Many new contenders enter fall election

NEWTON — A total of 38 people filed nomination papers for 24 seats on the Board of Aldermen and 18 filed for eight School Committee races Tuesday.

Preliminary contests will be held in Wards 2, 3, 4 and 8 in September. Newton's city elections are nonpartisan, and in cases where there are more than two candidates for any given seat, a run-off is held and all candidates but the top two are eliminated.

Six people filed for the two at-large aldermen seats in Ward 2 and three filed for ward alderman in Ward 8.

Three people have entered the race for School Committee in Ward 3 and four people have filed for School Committee from Ward 4.

Several incumbents have chosen not to seek reelection. Veteran Ward 1 Ald. Joseph McDonnell is not running again. Ward 8 Ald. Robert Stiller announced at the beginning of his current term that he would not seek another, and Ward 7 Ald. David Cohen, now a state representative, is vacating his Board seat.

It came as a surprise to many political observers that Ald. Robert Sandman, completing his first term as an alderman-at-large from Ward 5, bowed out of the race. He had nomination papers but did not file by the Tuesday 5 p.m. deadline.

School Committee members Manuel Beckwith from Ward 4 and Alvin Mandell from Ward 8 are prohibited by the City Charter from running for the School Committee again. The other six School Committee members are seeking reelection.

Incumbent aldermen Terry Morris and Edward Richmond are both seeking reelection and will face four opponents in the September preliminary.

Challenging the aldermen are David Berkeley, Patricia Ciccone, Robert Weinroth and John Holden. Two of the six candidates will be eliminated in the September race.

Berkeley for mayor two years ago, and Ciccone has run for office several times, including the Board of Aldermen and state resentative. This is the first time she is running as a resident of Ward 2. Her other races were in Ward 1.

Ward 8 seat

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell is seeking the Ward 8 ward alderman seat being vacated by Stiller. Also in the race are Robert Katz and Harold Zogas. Katz ran in 1977 and lost to Stiller. One of the three will be eliminated in the September run-off.

Beckwith's seat

Four people filed nomination papers for the seat being vacated by Manuel Beckwith. They are: Susan Silbey, JoAnn Best, Nicolo Nardone and Robert Yofie.

The last-minute entry of a third candidate in the race in Ward 3 has raised an interesting question. Incumbent Nancy Mann is being challenged by Rosalind Johnson, president of the Franklin School PTA and Police Officer Thomas Fleming.

The question of whether Fleming's candidacy represents a conflict of interest has been referred to the city solicitor for a ruling.

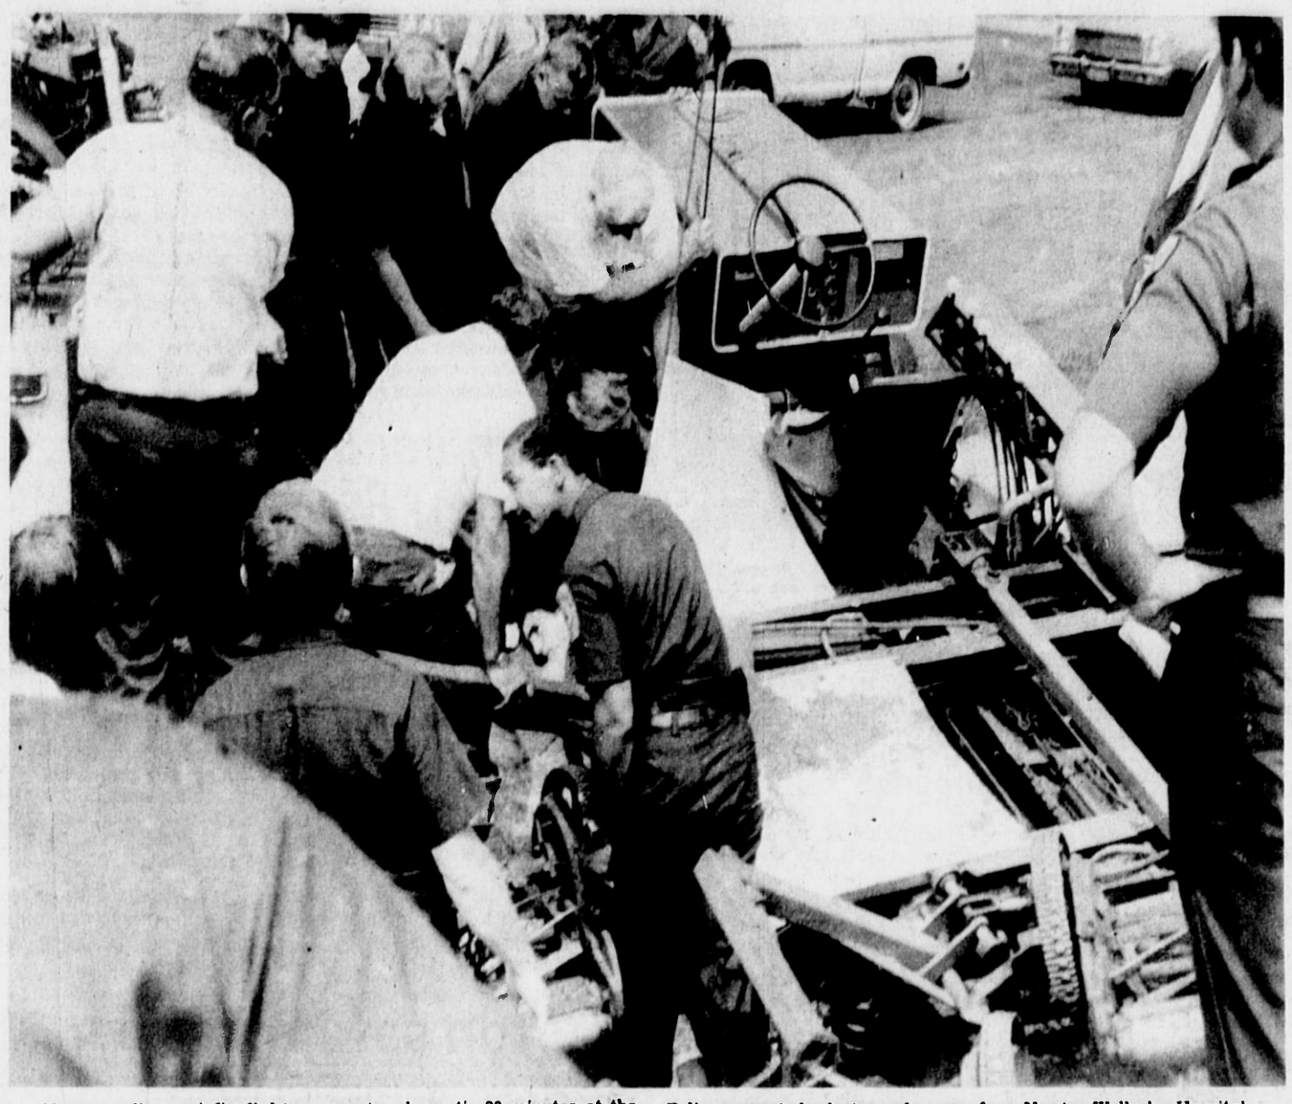

By law, city employees cannot run for seats on the Board of Aldermen without quitting their jobs first. Whether the same principle applies to the School Committee will be decided by the city solicitor.

Eight of Newton's 24 aldermen are running unopposed. They are: Joseph DePasquale, Ward 1 alderman; Elaine Gentile, Ward 2 alderman; Susan Schur, Ward 5 alderman; Rodney Barker and Ethel Sheehan, aldermen-at-large in Ward 6 and Ernest Dietz, Ward 6 alderman; and Cynthia Creem and Wendell Bauckman, aldermen-at-large in Ward 8.

Although Anthony "Fat" Pellegrini took nomination papers to challenge DePasquale, he did not file them and explained Tuesday that he was too busy to run.

Three people had nomination papers to challenge Gentile, but dropped out of the race. Vincent Farina considered another try at the Board

Newton police and firefighters spent a dramatic 30 minutes at the Commonwealth Golf Club in Chestnut Hill last week working to extricate Michael McKniff from under a large grass cutter. The 25-year-old Brighton man, who was cutting the grass at the club, was trapped beneath his vehicle when it slipped out of gear and rolled into a culvert. Police requested a doctor and a nurse from Newton-Wellesley Hospital at the scene in case the victim was injured during the task of getting him out. Remarkably, McKniff emerged unscathed from his ordeal, and did not even require hospitalization. (Photo by Steve Hartshorne)

Edison pulls plug in Newton

NEWTON— Boston Edision pulled the plug in Newton Monday, leaving the eastern portion of the city without power for 90 minutes or more.

Newtonville reported a power outage at 10:30 a.m., followed in quick succession by Newton Corner, Chestnut Hill, Newton Centre and Newton Highlands.

Boston Edison cut power in Newton, and other "non-critical" areas such as Brookline and Lexington, in response to a chain reaction of overloaded lines that ultimately affected 225,000 residents of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

It all began with a major transmission line that overloaded from southern Connecticut to northern Rhode Island.

Demand for power then caused the Mystic 7 plant in Everett to "trip out," which forced the Braden Plant in Somerset to overload and "trip out." At the time, Pilgrim I was operating at 40 percent of capacity instead of its normal 83 percent.

To prevent a New England blackout, Boston Edison cut power back by 5, 10 and finally 15 percent to halt system failures.

An Edison spokeswoman, using radio stations as a means, asked customers throughout New England to immediately cut down on the amount of energy they were using to help the system recover and allow for power to be restored to "non-critical" areas.

In a later radio broadcast, the spokeswoman thanked Greater Boston for its response to her plea.

The loss of power caused burglar alarms to go off and eliminated all traffic lights in affected areas.

According to Police Lt. Charles Feeley, control of traffic was given priority during the blackout.

Feeley said there were no problems because "people were extra cautious."

The emergency measure of turning off power in selected areas is called "load shedding."

Each community supplied by Boston Edison has parts of its land given priority in the event of an emergency. An Edison official said the priority list was developed "years ago."

The Police Department, City Hall and . Newton-Wellesley Hospital were not affected by the shutdown.

Murley-go-round keeps going

OAK HILL — Another developer has jumped on the Murley-go-round.

Alan J. Green of Newton, has a purchase-and-sale agreement on the 30-acre Murley Farm land at Dedham and Parkers streets contingent on being able to get the land rezoned for clustered townhouse development.

The land is owned by Jordan Friedman, trustee of Peace Realty Trust. Friedman acquired title to the property from Haim Eliachar in 1978.

Eliachar bought the land in late 1977 after several plans for development of the property had been denied by the Board of Aldermen over the preceding year.

The first proposal for development was put forth in 1976 by Alan Barkin, Stephen Hopkins and Thomas Larsen, who wanted first to build 196 condominiums. That plan was worked down to 100 a year later but was still denied.

Eliachar was going to build 43 single-family houses under the city's cluster zoning regulations but changed his plans to a straight subdivision; then Friedman acquired the property.

The subdivision, called Country Park, was given preliminary approval by the Board of Survey in February 1979 for 39 house lots. There are also six house lots on Dedham Street that are not part of the subdivision.

Site preparation was begun on the six lots in November 1978; the excavations were filled in during the winter and nothing has been done since.

Green, a Newton resident, said last Friday he is still "examining the land for the best use'" but he is hoping to build one-story and two-story attached single-family houses to be sold as condominiums.

He said he does not know how many units there will be. He has not been to the Planning Department yet and says it will be "several months" before there is anything to present to the city.

Green is president of the Green Company, a large builder of condominiums and houses.

The cluster zoning section of the zoning ordinances allows smaller lot sizes — 15,000 feet instead of 25,000 in Residence A district, the zone for the Murley property — provided that the unused 10,000 feet of land be set aside as permanent open space.

Therefore, without a zone change the density of the 30 acres could not exceed the density that would exist in a development of 25,000-square-foot lots.

Green has proposed clusters of attached dwellings, which would appear to require rezoning of the property to Residence D or E or Private Residence, all of which require only 7000-foot lots under cluster zoning.

Neighborhood opposition was strenuous at previous attempts to rezone to less than the traditional 25,000-foot lots.

BC loses bid for campus branch bank

CHESTNUT HILL — With little discussion, the aldermanic Land Use Committee last week denied a petition from Boston College for site plan approval of a branch bank on the Chestnut Hill campus.

Assistant City Solicitor Michael Peirce said that in the opinion of the Law Department the application for site-plan approval was not the proper route. A bank is not essential to an educational institution, he said, and is not the type of activity state law permits in exempting schools from zoning regulations.

Peirce pointed out that there are two large commercial centers near Boston College, Cleveland Circle and Newton Centre.

Philip Thompson, representing Boston College, argued that his interpretation of the law is that the bank would be permitted, in the same way that B.C.'s security service is' with no permission to operate required.

Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris explained that there is no land use question involved with a security service and there is no commercial activity open to the public in the security service.

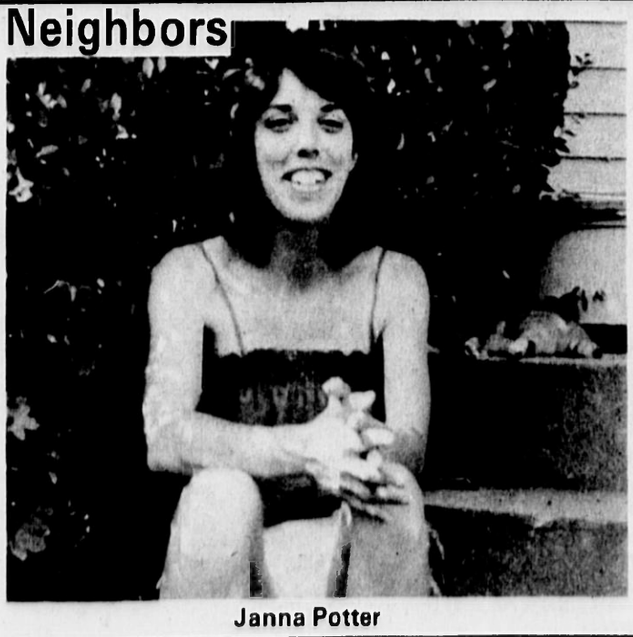

The bank was planned to be located in an addition in a corner of the McElroy Commons building at Beacon Street and College Road. The space would have been leased to BayBank Newton-Waltham Bank for $1 a year, Thompson said.

After Ald. Susan Schur moved denial of the site-plan petition, Thompson asked whether the committee would consider the bank branch if it were located completely within the building, not requiring an addition, and not accessible from the outside. Ald. Cynthia Creem said the committee could not consider that now because that was not before it.

Voting against the bank were Ald. Morris, Schur, Creem, David Cohen, Ethel Sheehan and Robert Gaynor. Ald. Carol Ann Shea and Paul Daley were absent.

Nurse opts to train in solar field

Janna Potter

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
staff writer

NONANTUM — After working for seven years as a nurse in the Boston area, Janna Potter of Nonantum decided she wanted '.a real change."

"A lot of people are getting out of nursing these days. It has its rewards, but after a while you want a different kind of reward. It's not just financial. You look for a little more recognition."

Now, after a 160-hour course at the New England Fuel Institute in Watertown, Potter is a certified solar equipment installer. PD "I felt it was a field with a real future," she says.

The NEFI course was a combination of "hands on" training and lectures which covered the installation and maintenance of solar equipment. The course also covered the government incentives — grants and tax breaks — for those who purchase solar equipment. In some cases these incentives 8 cover more than half the price of a solar unit.

Potter heard of the course from a friend of a friend and checking up on it, she found it had a good reputation with solar scientists at MIT.

"We learned a lot of different skills,', she says, "placing the units, plumbing, and electrical work on the thermostatic controls."

Potter says the most common units now on the market in the New England area are domestic hot water heaters, most of which operate alongside backup oil, qas or electric systems. She says these units can now pay for themselves in a year or less with the increase in fuel prices.

The course also covered space heating units which are more widely used in warmer secitons sections of the country.

According to Potter, New England is behind many other sections of the country in the development of the solar industry. "Even in the Pacific Northwest where there is a lot more rain than here there are dozens of listings in the phone book for solar equipment companies," she says.

The domestic solar hot water system is made up of a collector connected by piping to a holding tank which feeds the standard hot water tank.

The collector is an insulated box containing a copper "absorber plate" which is painted black so it will absorb heat. This plate is "rippled" with copper tubing which carries either water or antifreeze to a heat exchanging coil in the holding tank.

The system is powered by a thermostatically controlled pump which shuts off when the water in the holding 8 tank gets hotter than the collector.

The collector is placed on the roof facing the southern sky, and its tilt should be equal to the degree of latitude (Newton's is 42 degrees) to catch the sunlight in both summer and winter.

Potter says the solar system can provide hot water through four or five days of cloudiness.

The domestic hot water system, Potter explains, is an example of

Dual use favored for Emerson School

NEWTON—The committee appointed last December to study potential reuses of the Emerson School has recommended that a portion of the building be maintained for the use of community groups and that the remainder be converted to condominiums or "market value" rental units.

In a report submitted to the aldermanic Administration and Planning Committee Monday night, the reuse committee also offered as alternatives conversion to commercial use or "mixed income" housing, should the condominium conversion prove not to be feasible.

"A loss of the entire building," the report states, "would deny to Upper Falls municipal services which would continue to be available locally to virtually every other Newton neighborhood, and to which they believe they have a right."

"Any proposal to reuse the building or site which does not meet these community needs is unacceptable."

Judy Malone, chairman of the reuse committee, said the group made an effort to come up with a proposal which would "stand on its own feet financially."

She outlined an arrangement for the purchase of the property by a developer which would transfer the title without payment of the purchase price. Under the proposed transfer, the city would take a mortgage on the property to secure payment.

The City would then be paid the purchase price as the units are sold, with the funds received being earmarked "for the purpose of allowing the continued community use of the facilities."

Representatives of the League of Women Voters and the Newton Community Development Foundation urged the aldermanic committee to recommend mixed income housing for the school building, but members of the reuse committee and other Upper Falls residents in attendance expressed a strong preference for condominums or "fair market value" rental units.

Ms. Malone, in resonse to statistics showing the City's pressing need for low and moderate income housing, said that 32 percent of the housing in Upper Falls is moderate or low income, compared with a 25 percent figure citywide.

"There is not another community in Newton where low and middle income housing more available," she said.

Brian Yates of Upper Falls disagreed with the reuse committee's priorities, stating that office space would be a better reuse for the school building because it would make it easier to convert it back to a school should enrollments increase.

"Enrollments will once again rise," he said and added that the building should be kept in a "holding pattern, waiting for classrooms to be filled."

Yates, however, said that the office use should not be considered "at the price of any delay" and joined with members of the committee to urge the fastest possible resolution of the issue.

Community Schools ponders takeover of after-school sports

NEWTON— Because the School Committee cut the appropriation for the after-school sports program from the 1980 school budget, members of the Committee have asked the Community Schools to see what program offerings could be made available this fall to provide sports programs for elementary school students in the afternoons.

Executive Director William Slotnik of the Newton Community Schools has met with elementary school principals, physical educators and local Community School coordinators to discuss after-school sports, but he stressed the fact that program offerings will be entirely up to the local committees which plan and organize their own courses.

"All Community School programs are determined by the local committees in response to community needs," Slotnik said. "We are looking at what is possible within budgetary and organizational constraints."

He added that fees are charged for programs in the Community Schools, whereas the School Department after-school sports program was offered at no charge.

Local committees are now beginning the process of determining their schedules for the fall, and local coordinators say that while it will not be possible to replicate the School Department program, efforts are being made to respond to the absence of the after-school sports program.

"We know there will be more demand for sports this year," said Mary Lehner, coordinator of the Bowen 8 Community School, "but it's hard to get someone to duplicate what the gym teachers were doing. We're adjusting as much as we can but we can't take the program over wholesale."

Slotnik stressed the "grassroots" nature of the Community School programs, and said all residents of the city are encouraged to participate in the organization of the fall schedule.

Those interested can call their local coordinator or the Community Schools office in the Davis Elementary School in West Newton at 552-7117.

Plan an escape route in case of home fire

NEWTON — Fire Chief Edward Reilly Jr. wants everyone to notice the initial letters of the home fire escape plan, "EXIT DRILLS IN THE HOME" spells "EDITH" and "EDITH" spells a measure of protection against the deadly and toxic gases and smoke of a residential fire.

After you have installed an approved smoke detector in your home, "EDITH" should become a permanent member of your family because once you have been alerted to the fire emergency you must have the plan to get out immediately.

Plan two ways out of each room, especially the bedrooms. In most cases a window is the alternate or second means of exit.

When awakened by your smoke detector, quickly leave the house by the safest route. Do not stop to dress or gather valuables.

Select an outside meeting place well away from the house where everyone is to gather to "count noses."

Chief Reilly strongly urges that everyone remember the cardinal rule "Once out of the house — stay out." Hold on to young children to prevent them from trying to get back to the house to get a favorite pet, toy, or to hide from danger.

Notify the Fire Department immediately from a neighbors phone or from the nearest fire alarm box located in the area.

Nahanton plan changes approved

NEWTON CENTRE — Changes in plans for Nahanton Woods, a luxury condominium apartment building going up at Nahanton and Winchester streets, were approved by the Land Use Committee last week.

The building area will be increased 16 percent.

The building area will be 35,000 feet instead of 30,000. The building location has been changed slightly, and other changes have been made in sewer flow and the location of the access road.

On balance, all things considered, the changes in the plans are better for the project, Planning Director Barry Canner said.

Ald. Cynthia Creem was concerned about the increase in the size of the 109 units to be in the building. Originally, the ratio of one-bedroom to two-bedroom apartments was to have been three to one; now the two-bedroom apartments will predominate.

Developer Oscar Wasserman explained that because of the reduction by the Board of Aldermen of 14 units in his original plan and the requirement that he provide six off-site apartments for low-income housing he has had to increase the size of the apartments so he could increase the selling price.

The project would not be economically feasible otherwise, he said.

The building will have a total of 173 bedrooms, which under the 10 percent ordinance requires apartments providing 17 bedrooms for the low-income housing.

Five of the low-income apartments will be in the building, six in new or renovated structures off the site.

The cost of the low-income housing has been budgeted at $450,000, Wasserman said.

The increase in the size of the apartments will have a negligible impact on traffic and density, Wasserman said.

Sales of the condominiums so far, Wasserman said, show that there is a greater demand for two-bedroom units.

The vote of the committee was 5-1, with Creem opposed.

Methodists can't decide which church best to use

NEWTON — A recent merger of the Newtonville United Methodist Church and the Newton Centre Methodist Church leaves the congregation "as of the moment trying to decide which building to use," according to the Rev. Thomas Gallen, pastor of both churches.

They may use neither church, the Rev. Gallen said. A building committee has been looking at Walnut Hall, 430 Walnut St., a building of the former Newton Junior College, and owned by the city.

The city has been trying to sell the property for about two years, but zoning problems preclude its residential use for more than two families, and neighbors have objected to use of the building as professional offices.

The use of the building as a church would be zoning-exempt.

However, there has been no "serious exploration of Walnut Hall," the Rev. Gallen said, and no decision will be made until the fall.

The merger of the churches, which became effective July 1, may result in the closing of one of the churches.

The Rev. Gallen said the Newton Centre church will not be used for services, but the use of the chapel may be retained.

The two churches have not been appraised for possible sale. They are both in Business A district but have no accessory parking area.

Newton safety officer studies at seminar

WEST NEWTON — Newton Police Safety Officer Lt. Charles E. Feeley this week completed a course in instructional techniques and effective communication sponsored by the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau. (GHSB).

The two-day seminar included workshops on learning theory, lesson planning, effective teaching styles, and the use of audio-visual equipment and materials.

Because police safety officers present several hours of classroom instruction to public school pupils each year on bicycle safety, safe school bus use, pedestrian safety, and other safety-related topics, the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau is presenting 10 seminars throughout the Commonwealth during the summer months.

Under the direction of Bureau Director Francis X. Colleton, the program is administered by GHSB Training Director and Quincy resident F. Daniel Waters. The project is supported by federal funds set aside for the purpose of assisting local officers in developing their safety training programs for the coming school year.

Since Feeley is particularly interested in fostering the highest safety standards in school children at the youngest possible age, a unit of special Interest in the course was "Considerations in Teaching the Elementary Aged Child," taught by David R. Condron, a veteran elementary teacher and primary school principal in East Bridgewater.

Other instructors in the seminar included Marshfield residents Walter and Marcia Littlefield, professors at Emerson College and Cape Cod Community College, respectively.

Few speak on Cable TV

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

NEWTON — A public hearing Thursday on starting the cable television process in Newton was attended by some 40 people, most of whom work with or for cable systems.

There was a scattering of members of city government and only a few members of the public from whom was hoped to get opinions on cable TV. Since few people spoke, the hearing was over in 45 minutes.

Lorenz Muther, usually representing the Newton taxpayers but this time saying he was in the unfamiliar role of consumer advocate, analyzed the return to the city from admitting cable television.

From the 50 cents annual subscriber fee and personal property tax paid on equipment and lines, the city could get a maximum of $55,000 a year from the cable company, Muther said.

"What will the city do for that money? Should the city collect money for nothing?" Muther asked.

He also asked the cable commission to restrain the city in the demand for more local channels and service that it can use, so as not to burden subscribers with unnecessary cost.

Finally Muther asked, "How far should the city go into content?" He is in favor of monitoring service, but feels the city should not act as a censor.

Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission and in charge of the annual city census, told the committee he would use the city channels for election information for Newton citizens. Cable television would be used in general to bring city government to the people, Licarie said, and "the more people we can educate about what we do here, the better off everybody will be."

A representative of a cable system spoke at length about what the committee had been talking about in its meetings for several weeks, and a number of other people who said a few words could not be understood.

At least two other public hearings are planned, one in October and one in December.

The poor attendance at the first hearing may be attributable to the oppressive heat Thursday night combined with a weak effort at notifying the public.

Deadline set for day care center

NEWTON — An after-school and day-care facility for children in a residential zone has been given six weeks to get the building painted and other improvements made before being granted site-plan approval.

Sandra Tannenbaum operates the center at 150 Eastbourne Rd., Newton Centre.

She is frank to admit that the house needs painting and a few other touches, but it was rundown and in need of paint when she bought it two years ago.

Neighbors have always resisted the center, approved as an educational facility by the state, but the city cannot forbid its location there, because educational purposes are zoning-exempt.

The city can, however, control certain aspects of the outside through approval of the site plan and can force adherence to building and health codes.

The Land Use Committee Wednesday night, in not denying site-plan approval, gave Ms. Tannenbaum till Sept. 15 to get the house painted, a dead tree removed, a large hole in a back-porch foundation repaired and have the house inspected by the Fire Department.

Several recommendations of the Hzalth Department and Building Department have already been complied with.

The day-care facility is limited by an order of the Board of Aldermen to a maximum of 19 children and staff members, although Ms. Tannenbaum says there have never been that many people in the house.

Neighbors complain about the noise created by the children and criticize the operation of the center for lack of discipline, but mainly they are concerned about the appearance of the house and yard.

When Ms. Tannenbaum took over the house the garage was falling down and she had it and other rubble in the backyard removed. She said at a public hearing recently she had not understood that she had to remove the upright dead tree, only trees on the ground.

She has contracted with a painter, she said Wednesday night, who has promised to start work in about two weeks, and is trying to find someone she can afford to remove the tree.

The painter will also do some other repairs, including fixing the hole in the porch foundation.

John Samuelson, 155 Eastbourne Rd., called the school a "public nuisance," said the children play in the street, are not properly supervised, and disagreed with the description of the operation as an "educational facility."

Samuelson said he feels the day-care center has diminished property values on the street.

Street at NNHS to be blocked?

NEWTON — The Elm St. end of Blithedale Rd. should be closed off with a chain when Newton North High School is in session, the Public Safety and Transportation Committee will recommend.

Traffic generated by the high school is the main problem, street resident Steven Shufro told aldermen on the committee Wednesday and he reported jackrabbit starts, speeding, and tire tracks on the street.

The committee unanimously voted to recommend giving the Police Department responsibility for raising and lowering the chain that will block entrance to the street between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. on school days.

The committee stipulated the chain be of the "breakaway" variety and that it be well marked.

Committee member Elaine Gentile said the city could designate a street resident to control the chain but that the legal department didn't recommend it because of potential liability for the city.

At one point the discussion strayed to the larger question of the influence of school policy on traffic problems in the neighborhood around the school.

Committee member Rodney Barker said if the Blithedale St. problem is caused by "kids driving cars down the street when they should be in school studying" then the School Department should be responsible.

Alderman Elaine Gentile said the School Department is in the process of rethinking the open campus policy and there is a possibility of returning to a more traditional attendance policy.

Alderman Matthew Jefferson said he believes restricting access to a street to residents is illegal without an act of the state Legislature.

He suggested the committee should decide whether to leave the street open or block it off pernanently.

Jefferson added he hopes the School Department doesn't make a decision about the open campus on the basis of traffic problems.

Pamela Shufro, a Blithedale St. resident, estimated there are about 50 cars a day on the street that contribute to the problem.

Alderman Robert Stiller said he viewed the street four times and did not see a problem. He agreed with Jefferson the street should be open or permanently closed, and objected to the partial closing.

Dennis Becker, an Elm Rd. resident, said there was no reason to close the street completely because the traffic problem only exists during school hours. He agreed the school's open campus policy was tied to the traffic problem.

Jefferson was concerned about the cost of assigning a police officer to the chain on school days.

Miss Gentile said there is an officer on duty at Elm St. and Lowell Ave. in the morning and again in the afternoon who could raise and lower the chain.

One-way Bullough a surprise

NEWTON — Making streets one-way can usually stir controversy, but when a section of Bullough Park in Newtonville went one-way recently nearby residents didn't know until they saw the sign.

If the one-way designation came as a surprise to most residents of the area, their opposition to the move came as a surprise to aldermen on the Public Safety and Transportation Committee Wednesday night.

Thirty-four residents of Bullough Park and nearby Upland Rd., Mill St. and Berkshire Rd. signed a petition asking the Board of Aldermen to reverse the decision making the street one-way from Berkshire Rd. to Commonwealth Ave.

The board had routinely voted to make the street one-way on the basis of a Traffic Commission recommendation.

The commission had recommended the change after a request from Bullough Park resident Edith Goldberg which was supplemented by a five-signature petition.

After hearing from a number of residents in the neighborhood, the Public Safety Committee Wednesday unanimously voted to recommend the street return to two-way traffic, and that the Bullough Park question go back to the Traffic Commission for further study after residents are notified.

Aldermen on the committee were disturbed the item made it all the way to final approval without any hint of disagreement in the neighborhood.

Committee Chairman Mark White said Traffic Commission handling of the one-way request put the committee in a "precarious" position and he said the commission will have to offer more justification for designating streets one-way in the future.

Past experiments that resulted in "havoc", White said, convinced him "there must be a compelling reason to change a street."

Mrs. Goldberg was at the meeting and said she proposed the change because cars skip the light at Walnut St. and head up Bullough Park at high rates of speed.

"I'm more concerned with the safety factor than the inconvenience," she said.

She asked the committee to reach a solution acceptable to the neighborhood that would still ensure safety.

Nicholas Yannoni, a resident of Upland Rd., a street that is an extension of Bullough Park after Mill St., said a speeding problem hasn't been documented and the city Planning Department has no record of an accident on the street, although he remembered a fatal crash several years ago.

If there is speeding, Yannoni said, speed limits can be enforced without closing the street to two-way traffic.

Jane Murphy, a Berkshire Rd. resident, said the one-way designation hasn't stopped speeding and has created a larger problem because drivers now assume there are no vehicles coming the other way, although residents at the meeting admitted they disregard the sign.

Bullough Park shares a "cross-town" traffic problem with many other streets in the city, White said, and the solution will be a master plan, not a "piecemeal approach."

Jackson Parker, Berkshire Rd., said Bullough Park is a neighborhood problem, and that the Traffic Commission should survey the entire area.

Julie Rockoff, a newer Bullough Park resident, said cars do speed on the street and asked the committee to leave the street one-way.

Seymour Goldberg, Bullough Park, said there has been less noise on the street since it became one-way.

Weber decision

The latest United States Supreme Court ruling in regards to affirmative action makes things even more confusing, at least to the non-lawyer.

In the well-publicized Bakke decision, the high court said that race alone could not be used to admit or deny applicants to higher educational facilities. It reversed lower court decisions. But in the Brian Weber case the court, by a 5 to 2 vote, said that a corporation could use affirmative action in employment practices to aid members of racial minorities.

A male, white factory worker named Brian Weber brought suit against the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation and the United Steel Workers of America because he had not been given an opportunity for a promotional educational opportunity. There was a quota system to aid blacks in the corporation's and union's program. The majority on the Supreme Court ruled that a lower Federal Court had exaggerated the effects of the Bakke decision.

"The Kaiser-USWA plan is an affirmative action plan voluntarily adopted by private parties to eliminate additional patterns of racial segregation," the decision stated in reference to the 50-50 racial quota for a craft training program. "It would be ironic indeed if a law triggered by a nation's concern over centuries of racial injustice and intended to improve the lot of those who had been excluded for so long constituted the first legislative prohibition of all voluntary, private race-conscience efforts to abolish traditional patterns of racial segregation and hierarchy."

The intent of the act probably was to reduce discrimination toward members of minorities in employment who certainly have suffered over the years from both employers and labor unions. But it does not specifically state that advantages should be given to those minorities to make up for the past. Besides, which minorities? A great many immigrants, including Italians, Irish, Poles, Jews and even Germans during World War I, have suffered from various kinds of discrimination.

And then there is that Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, again passed to aid those discriminated against, that says "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States . . . nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws . . ."

Through legislation and court decisions even with the best of intentions, is the United States working its way into a completely untenable position?

My Turn

Why are we unable to say, 'no'?

By ELIZABETH McKINNON?

YES

What's happening to questions and answers?

It seems to me that, more and more, people are responding to questions with nonanswers and are asking the wrong questions.

At the gas station, an attendant answered a question about whether he was selling gas that day by saying, "Not really."

A friend recently said, "Not exactly," when I asked her whether anything was 9oing on. There was more to that one, though.

A clerk in a store, asked whether the store was still open for business, replied, "It's siz o'clock."

What's wrong with "no"?

An engineer at a City Hall meeting responded to a long, complicated question about drainage with "no." I was impressed, but the other people couldn't take it in.

Then there are the answers that tax your powers of deduction and clairvoyance. Q: Are you going to Boston today? A: I have to go to the bank.

That answer was discovered to mean, "If it's not too late to get a check cashed and do other errands, I will go to Boston, and it probably won't be too late, so don't wait dinner."

The interpretive answer is the worst. It tells you what the hearer thinks you want to know. Q: Have you seen Jack Wilson recently? A: Well, the car is in the driveway and I heard the dog barking. That's not what I wanted to know.

I have to admit that I have to resort to the interpretive answer in my house, where such oblique questions as "Where did these (strawberries, shoes, pliers) come from?" abound.

Playing Russian roulette with the various bits of information available — such as where these were made, where they were bought and when and by whom, where they were grown, where they were before they were left out of place in the house — I have to guess at the right answer. It saves time and words.

There are other impossible questions. Q: Has nobody given the cat his medicine? To negative questions, either answer is subject to misinterpretation.. "Yes" should mean the cat has not been given his medicine but would probably be taken as meaning the cat had had the medicine.

"Did somebody take my book (eat the leftover chicken, remove any object from its accustomed place)?" is the kind of accusatory question that deserves a nasty answer, such as "Obviously, if it's not there."

The question is really a statement that says' "Whoever did this deed that disturbs me should identify himself or herself and properly atone for the act and restore life to its former state."

The ultimate in awful questions is the kind that end with "right?"

I sat here at my desk once and listened to a man introduce himself on the phone by saying, "My name is Tony Benson, right?" To which I can still hear myself actually responding, "I don't know — is it?"

Dismissed - for what?

Commentary by John D. Lofton, Jr.

WASHINGTON — George Hardy, president of the 600,000-member Service Employees International Union, says that President Carter's firing of HEW Secretary Joe Califano was a "gutless and indecent" act. Well, this is obviously arguable. But one thing's for sure: In terms of open government, Jimmy Carter has come a long way since he was a presidential candidate.

On Dec. 12, 1974, at the National Press Club, Carter announced his candidacy, declaring that the "root of the problem" facing the country was not so much that the people had lost confidence in government but that, time and time again, government had demonstrated its lack of confidence in the people. To remedy this situation, he proposed, among other things:

"We must insure better public understanding of executive policy and better exchange of ideas between Congress and the White House. To do this, Cabinet members representing the president should meet in scheduled public interrogation sessions with the full bodies of Congress."

In January 1976, Carter said that it was too much secrecy in government that had encouraged "distrust, disillusionment and frustration" in the country.

In his book "Promises to Keep," Los Angeles Times political writer Bob Shogan says that before Carter was elected, Hamilton Jordan told him: "If Jimmy is elected, you'll see a strong Cabinet." Jordan said that if he were Carter he'd tell his Cabinet: "If any of my staff people, any of them, start jerking you around or calling you to tell you what to do, you come and tell me, because you work for me, you don't work for them." Prior to his election, Carter reportedly told Shogan:

"I believe in giving Cabinet members authority. I don't intend to run individual departments of government out of the White House or through staff members. I don't want a group of yes men or yes women in my Cabinet. I need to have strong advocates for their positions, particularly when we meet as a group."

So what has happened? First, President Carter has scrubbed candidate Carter's idea of having the Cabinet publicly grilled by the Congress. This hasn't happened. And second, two-and-a-half years into his presidency, Carter has canned four Cabinet members without one public word as to why the firings occurred.

Appearing in the White House press room on July 19, the president read a five-point statement explaining his Cabinet shakeup. He called the changes "constructive," said he was "pleased" with them, characterized every move as "positive" and pleaded for the full support of all Americans. Having completed his statement, Carter left the room. He took no questions.

A few days later, Hamilton Jordan, the new presidential chief of staff, appeared on the nationally televised news show "Meet the Press." In a word, he stonewalled. When asked three times why it was necessary to ask the entire Cabinet to submit their resignations if the president planned to fire only a few, Jordan said it would not be "productive" to examine in detail why the president did what he did. He said the American people are not concerned as to exactly what happened, only that it has happened.

Elaborating on his own new role, Jordan went overboard, saying, incomprehensibly, that not only would he not stand between Cabinet members and the president, but also: "I will not even stand between myself and my colleagues on the senior staff."

Addressing himself to the new importance that is to be attached to loyalty to the president, Jordan launched into a tear-jerking homily on the virtues of loyalty. Loyalty is not bad, he said; loyalty is "an admirable trait — loyalty to one's friends, to one's family, to one's country. Loyalty in itself is not a bad thing." Indeed it isn't. But privately, and much more candidly, there are indications that, under the new White House setup, loyalty is to be the only thing. The Wall Street Journal quotes a presidential adviser as saying that now: "The litmus test is loyalty — period. Ideology and ability are unimportant." This is bad.

Obviously, if I were president, Joe Califano, Brock Adams and Michael Blumenthal would not have been my first choices for Cabinet posts. But this is not the point. Perhaps it is true, as some are saying, that most Americans have never heard of these people and most of those who have couldn't tell you what they did.

My point is that when he fired these individuals the president had an obligation — both to them and the American people — to say publicly why they were dismissed. The fact that he chose not to do this seems to be, in my judgment, more of that kind of excessive governmental secrecy which candidate Jimmy Carter correctly deplored when he was seeking the office he now holds.

Fact-finding mission on 'Boat People'

By ROBERT DRINAN

WASHINGTON, D.C. — I have just been asked by the leadership of the House of Representatives to join several other congressmen on Aug. 2 on a fact-finding mission to inspect the Southeast Asian refugee camps currently sheltering the "boat people."

This mission, headed by Congressman Benjamin Rosenthal (D-N.Y.), will bring us to refugee camps in Hong Kong, Thailand, Malaysia, and Indonesia. In the course of our visit we hope to identify methods by which Congress can more adequately respond to this immense human tragedy. On our return to Washington, the members of this fact-finding group will prepare a full report of our findings, and we will submit recommendations for appropriate courses of action.

One stop on our week-long trip will be Hanoi. I intend to meet personally with the Vietnamese foreign minister and to impress upon him the obligation of Vietnam to act responsibly and halt the flow of refugees. I will also ask that American consular officials be allowed into Vietnam to help process visas for those who wish to come to this country.

I feel very strongly that the United States and the other nations of the world have a clear moral obligation to come to the aid of these suffering human beings.

Discrimination

In the 40 years since the Social Security system came into being, women have moved into the work force in increasing numbers and have taken a much greater role in supporting their families. The social security system, however, has failed to take this change into account, and in many instances social security benefits discrininate on the basis of sex.

In the past I have introduced legislation to correct this inequity and to insure that women paying Social Security taxes get the same treatment as men. This week I introduced a new bill which would further eliminate sex discrimination in the distribution of benefits.

Areas addressed by this bill would include divorced husbands benefits, fathers' benefits, benefits provided in the remarriage of a surviving spouse, and other glaring inequities in the current system.

Women pay for these benefits. They and their dependents should not be denied them on the basis of sex.

Shcharansky

I have received word from representatives of the American Red Cross that they will ask their counterparts in the Soviet Union, the Red Crescent, to make an inquiry into reports that Soviet prisoner Anatoly Shcharansky's health is rapidly deteriorating.

This young Soviet dissident, whom I came to know during a trip to Moscow four years ago, is serving a 13-year sentence in a Russian prison on a charge of spying for the U.S. — a charge President Carter has denied. I called upon the Red Cross to look into the question of Shcharansky's health after press reports indicated that he was very ill and that his eyesight was deteriorating rapidly.

Hopefully this inquiry will result in a lessening of the harsh prison conditions under which Shcharansky is languishing, until the day when we can succeed in gaining his freedom.

Heating Oil

In an effort to keep the pressure on the administration to ensure adequate heating oil supplies for the coming winter, I am writing to President Carter outlining a number of proposals.

In the letter I will urge the president to: ensure sufficient stocks of heating oil; make the Department of Energy prepare production guidelines for refineries NOW, in case that it has to be mandated later; actively support improvements in the weatherization program; and to support congressional efforts to create a $500 million crisis intervention fund to help out low and middle income people this winter.

I will also ask President Carter to impose price controls at the refinery level — which would control oil company profits while protecting small retailers — and to request standby authority to allocate heating oil in the event of a shortage this winter.

In my opinion, this is the type of comprehensive, long-term planning we need to head-off a potentially dangerous situation this winter.

(There will be no reports during the August recess).

Opinions

Recycling changes

To the Editor:

The various reports of the very low participation of Newton citizens in the recycling program call for some comments.

All my neighbors and I participate in the program, and I believe most of Newton's citizens do likewise.

However, many households, like ours, consist only of one couple, and we have little to recover every week, filling about one-half of a barrel per month of dark or white glass. With only one daily newspaper, a few weeklies and magazines, it is only worthwhile to make a bundle once a month.

Consequently, according to official statistics, we are considered to be participating only at 25 percent.

From our own experience, it is clear that weeky collections of glass and paper are a waste of time and money, as very few households collect enough dark or white glass to fill a barrel more than once a month, and the proposal to have a weekly collection alternating white glass, green glass, and newspaper makes good sense.

I find it, however, disturbing that no market can be found for magazines and junk mail, as this represents, with cardboard boxes and white and brown bags, a large part of our rubbish.

If this could be collected separately, but at the same time as newspaper, would be possible to have a different collection every week: white glass, colored glass, newspapers and other paper materials, and general rubbish.

As long as our leash law is so poorly enforced, a requirement of covered, solid trash barrels, and not flimsy plastic bags would greatly improve the appearances of our streets.

Considering what the introduction of a bottle bill would do for the appearance of our city, I can only remember that in my native country, Switzerland, most foods in liquid form (oil, vinegar, mineral water, ordinary wine, beer, etc.) were sold in one-liter bottles certified by the state, with a deposit of 50 cents (U.S.) per bottle and 15-20 cents (U.S.) for non-certified bottles (soft drinks, bottles of foreign origin, etc.) as compared to a nickle proposed in the Massachusetts law.

The result is that you never see broken glass on Swiss sidewalks or streets, or bicycle paths, which encourages people to walk and bicycle, another great energy savings.

Public golf course

To the Editor:

A few years ago there was talk of constructing a par three golf course in the Cold Springs area. This city-planned municipal course never materialized.

Now the city has a golden, once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to acquire the Commonwealth Golf Club and keep it recreational open space.

The land of roughly 70 acres contains a plush and lush 18-hole golf course comparable to the affluent private courses at Brae Burn, Charles River and Woodland.

It also contains fine tennis courts, a large swimming pool and hilly terrain which could be used for all winter sports.

With the energy crunch and soaring gasoline prices, it makes for a million-dollar recreation area within the confines of our great city.

As an avid golfer from a long-time Newton golfing family (Uncle Jack a pro, father Jim Newton High captain 1915), I would suggest that the golf course and pro shop facilities be operated as they are now by Ken Campbell and family.

Ken is one of the top PGA golfers in New Engalnd and compentently ran Ponkapoag for many years.

He has also been the strongest supporter of junior golf, sponsoring and running many tournaments over the years.

I'm sure some arrangement could be worked to the mutual satisfaction of the Campbells and the city fathers. Even if the city broke even, it would be a great thing for the long-neglected working class residents to have a municipal golf course.

I also think the Recreation Department Department, without additional help but a more resourceful distribution, could handle the tennis, swimming and winter sports programs.

I would hope the following would give this their first priority: Mayor Mann, the Board of Aldermen, the recreation commissioner, State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci, State Rep. David Mofenson, Congressman Robert Drinan and Lois Pines (with some of the zest she used for the bottle bill it will not suffer a demise the way Albemarle did).

How to vote

To the Editor:

I hope, we the voters of Ward 2 in Newton know now, how to vote in September. We have already found many faults, failures, on the record of our aldermen at large.

I think of Newtonville Square, with all the one way streets last season. Personally, the business people are pleased to see the streets back to normal.

Commonwealth Avenue, the gateway to the "All American City" is a disgrace with all the obstructions. Take for example, the barrier we have near the fire station on Mannet Road in Chestnut Hill. The fire apparatus finds it very difficult to make their turns on Commonwealth Avenue, when coming out of the station.

This, with many other comments I will continue to keep you all informed on.

Music

To the Editor:

Don't waste your time telling the kids that the music of our day was so much better. Rather, console yourself with the fact that had they been born earlier, tunes by Dorsey and Miller or vocalizing by Helen O'Connell, Ray Eberle or Vaughn Monroe would have caputured their undivided attention.

Wait a minute. Have you really listened to some of today's songs? Many of them are great.

Be fair. You were a teenager once.

from Ward 6, but also failed to file his papers.

Contested races

Running for alderman-at-large in Ward 1 are Glenn Louis Morris, Bruce Carmichael and incumbent Robert Gavnor. In Ward 3 at-large, incumbents Robert Tennant and Matthew Jefferson are being challenged by Richard Bullwinkle, who gave up his ward alderman's seat in 1977 to run for mayor. Incumbents Paul Daley and Anthony Salvucci are running for ward alderman in Ward 3.

Incumbents Donald Budge and Richard McGrath are seeking q reelection at-large in Ward 4. John Harrison is also a candidate. Ward Ald. Carol Ann Shea will be opposed by Diane Conti.

Incumbent Paul Coletti is running again at-large in Ward 5. So are former alderman James Miller and Nicholas Bibbo Jr.

Dominic Taglienti and Mark White, the Ward 7 at-large incumbents are running again. The challenger in this race is Nicholas Kyriakos, who ran for the Board once before. R. Lisle Baker and John Gardiner are running for the seat vacated by State Rep. Cohen.

School Committee

Ward 1's Howard Spergel is the only School Committeeman running unopposed.

In Ward 2 incumbent Katharine Jones is opposed by Kenneth Hartford. Chairwoman Honora Kaplan faces Elisabeth Cody in the Ward 5 race and Ann Berwick is challenged by Frederic Sternburg in Ward 6.

Ward 7 incumbent Sandra Fleishman will be challenged by Eleanor Samuels. Robert Ricles and Alfred Smith are running for Mandell's seat in Ward 8.

Ricles, who ran with the other incumbents on the CONCERN slate in 1977, lost that election to Mandell. Smith is a member of the Newton Youth Commission.

Tires stolen at Frost Motors

NEWTON—Police report that someone cut through a chain link fence over the weekend and stole eight tires from five 1979 Cadillacs at Frost Motors at 399 Washington St.

Police say the culprits jacked up the cars and lowered them onto cement blocks. The tires were valued at around $800.

An Auburndale woman who reported her wallet stolen at a supermarket in that neighborhood got the wallet back, missing $80 in cash. Police say the complainant stated that the wallet was probably taken at the market Thursday by a short, fat woman who bumped into her. The wallet was found in a mailbox later that day.

A water pump valued at $500 was taken from the Charles River near Nahanton Street between 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday. The pump belongs to W.W. Contractors, Inc. of Hopington and was chained to a tree. Police say a pickup truck xas seen in the area around that time.

Jewelry valued at over $800 was taken from a Newton Centre home sometime Monday, but police have been unable to determine how the burglar got into the house.

According to police the owner of the house left the burglar alarm on when she left the house at 7:30 a.m. and the house was still secure when she got home around 6:30 p.m. Reported stolen were a gold lady's watch, a gold Egyptian figurine and a gold diamond and rub.v ring.

Three ten-speed bicycles were stolen from a Walker Street home sometime Sunday night by thieves who removed the hinges from the back door of a garage. The bicycles were valued at $400.

A resident of Pine Ridge Road was hanging clothes out to dry when burglars entered her home and stole silverware around noon Monday. Police say it has not yet been determined whether anything 8 else was taken. Police speculate that entry may have been gained by slipping the lock on the front door.

Stereo eo.uipment worth $600 and assorted bottles of liquor worth $70 were stolen from an unlocked garage sometime Thursday night on Cabot Street.

Michael Lally, 32, of 1028 Chestnut St. was arrested Saturday night at a restaurant on Needham Street. He was charged with assault and battery on a police officer and "assault with hands, fists and feet" on the manager of the establishment.

Two oriental ruqs valued at $5,000 and gold and jade pieces worth over $100 were taken from a Berkeley Street home around noon Saturday.

Francisco Vazquez, 32, of 95 Newbury St., Brockton was arrested early Sunday morning and charged with operating under the influence of a controlled substance (Class D). Vazquez was reportedly observed driving in an erratic manner near the corner of Boylston and Woodward Streets.

A cement mixer and a trailer were reported stolen from Taylor Rental, 244 Needham St. sometime within the past two weeks. Both items were reportedly kept at the rear of the building.

A Newton Corner woman has reported losing $131 in cash and personal papers after she set her handbag down in a Newton Centre store around 2 p.m. Thursday and it was taken.

Nobody can do it like McDonald's can.™

Walk in some other restaurant and tell us if you feel the same spirit, the same energy, the same care and concern.

Nobody can do it like McDonald's can. That's not a boast. That's a promise.

A promise that the next McDonald's hamburger you get will be a great one. The Quarter Pounder will be hot, tender and lean. The Big Mac will be toasty, tasty and terrific. The fries will be the golden-greatest in the world.

Nobody. That's not a boast. That's a belief. People believe in McDonald's. They believe in our service. They trust our food. And when people believe in you, it gives you the will, the energy, the motivation to do your very best. That's why nobody can do it like McDonald's can. And that's not a boast. That's a thank you.

Mofenson praises jury program

BOSTON — Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) reported this week that the Middlesex County Jury Management Program has yielded far more in benefits than ever imagined when he first filed the bill several years ago.

Mofenson said, "After only six months, this pilot program has admirably demonstrated that jury service can be an important educational experience, cost effective, and improve the quality of verdicts, thereby strengthening our criminal justice system."

The new program, implemented last January, has saved the county an average of $55,000 each month. Innovative components have helped to make this pilot project a great success, Mofenson said.

The new law:

Abolishes statutory class exemptions. No person is excused from jury service by virtue of their profession. By evenly distributing the burden over the entire community it provides for a good cross section of that community and more fairly fulfills the promise of being tried before a jury of one's peers.

While under the old system, a juror had to set aside about one month for jury service. In the new Middlesex system 85 percent of the cases are completed within a three-day period. This makes it easier on employers and employees alike. In fact, many jurors complete their service after only one day.

A computerized system selects the juror pool at great speed, and with no exemptions, more jurors can be selected. This feature allows for greater efficiency as well as greater and quicker turnover.

Compensation rates paid to jurors are $40 per day but do not begin until the fourth day of service. Employed persons are paid by their employers during the first three days. Unemployed persons and housewives are not paid the first three days but do receive the standard daily rate for the fourth and subsequent days.

The $55,000 per month savings accrues because most jurors completing service within three days. Businesses and industry are supportive of this program because the absence of an employee for an entire month (under the old system) no longer occurs.

Training materials are prepared and sent out in advance to prospective jurors to assist them in understanding their duties: A 24-hour juror hotline was established to answer any questions jurors may concerning jury service. These efforts have allowed for a smooth implementation of the program.

Anyone who is called for jury duty has a statutory right to postpone such service for no more than 10 months. This provision allows for a greater amount of flexibility and makes it much more convenient for each citizen.

Mofenson pointed to present Jury Commissioner Joseph Romanow as the major force behind this effort.

He said, "Joe Romanow was the one who wrote the law and for whom I filed the bill, and it is very fitting that he run the program. He has successfully accomplished a very difficult task and I have high admiration for the job he has done."

Mofenson said he plans to file legislation for 1980 to expand the Middlesex County model to a state-wide plan. Romanow has already submitted a grant application to the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) which would help convert the statewide system.

DiBacco, Shinnick graduate hospital's radiologic program

NEWTON — Roberta DiBacco and Elizabeth Shinnick, both of Waltham, have graduated from Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Radiologic Technology.

Graduates have completed a 24-month program in affiliation with Mass. Bay Community College and received associate degrees. They have taken their National Registry Examination to qualify for certification as radiologic technologists.

Applicants to the School of Radiology must be high school graduates with a college preparatory course, including algebra, and either physics, chemistry of biology.

Working closely with physicians and other members of the health team, radiologic technologists have direct patient contact and administer X-ray examinations.

Fish kill caused by raw sewage in river

NEWTON CORNER — Was the raw sewage discharging from Hyde Brook responsible for the fish dying in the Charles River in Watertown on the July 15 weekend?

"There may be a likely connection," said Rita Barron of the Charles River Watershed Association. Sewage is full of nutrients which use a high rate of oxygen, Mrs. Barron said. In the summer heat, oxygen is also depleted in the water, she added. Deprived of oxygen, fish begin to die, Mrs. Barron said.

"There are always fish kills (fish dying) in the summer," Mrs. Barron said. What upsets Mrs. Barron is many of - .— died were the little fish, which would mean that a great deal of money would have been wasted in stocking the river this year.

While the city has repaired the sewer line that was discharging into the culverted brook, it is a recurring problem, according to Paul DiPietro of the Massachusetts District Commission's Environmental Quality Division. Hyde Brook is today completely encapsulated by pipes and discharges into the Charles River in the Newton Corner area. At Franklin and Eldredge Streets, the storm drain and sewerage systems are so close together that when the sewerage system overflows, the sewage rushes into the brook pipes.

Newton does not have a permit to discharge sewage into the Charles, DiPetro said. A permit would be required for such a recurring problem, he added.

Neighbors told to try for carriage solution

NEWTON — Lawyers for the neighborhood and the developer were told by the aldermanic Land Use Committee last week to get together and try to work out a solution to the use of a carriage house at 107 Bellevue St.

George Naddaff, owner of the carriage house and a large house next door, which he occupies, has petitioned the Board of Aldermen for permission to convert the carriage house to seven apartments. It now contains four.

During deliberations of the Land Use Committee, the whole matter has become confused. It is now not clear whether the notice of the public hearing was adequate because the wrong number of apartments was used. So far no one has been able to prove how many apartments existed in the building before 1922 , when zoning laws took effect. And not even the ordinance under which the apartments may be allowed has been finally decided.

Robert Freeto, attorney for Naddaff, presented affidavits from a plumber who examined plumbing in the building. The plumber believes that the date of April 4, 1920, found on the bottom of a bathtub, was the date of installation. He dated other plumbing as being pre-World War I, and found in one apartment plumbing dating from around 1945.

Freeto says the plumber's findings indicate that at least three of the apartments predate zoning and therefore are a legal nonconforming use.

Jason Rosenberg, lawyer for the opposing neighbors, wants the apartment use to come under an ordinance governing conversions of houses to apartments by special permit of the Board of Aldermen. He feels that this procedure would result in fewer apartments permitted, even though the lot area of the carriage house would allow up to six apartments.

The most likely agreement, if there is one, is that four apartments be allowed.

Roslindale woman hurt in Newton car accident

NEWTON—A Roslindale wonan was injured Thursday when the car in which she was a passenger swerved to avoid a hole in the road and struck another car.

Police say Chrisanth Kalaitzidis, 41, of 56 S. Fairview St., Roslindale was southbound on Centre Street near the Carroll Center around 4 p.m. when she swerved to avoid the pothole.

Her vehicle reportedly struck a car driven by Douglas Ordway, 40, of Twin Oaks Village, Mansfield.

Injured was Effie Topouzaki, 54, of 47 Amherst Rd., Roslindale who was taken to Newton Wellesley Hospital where she was treated and released.

A Waltham woman was injured when her car struck a utility pole, knocking it over around 11 a.m. Thursday.

Police report that Murielle LeBlanc, 19, of 227 Ash St., Waltham was southbound on Grove Street when she saw a dog in the road and swerved to avoid it, striking the pole. She was taken to Newton Wellesley where she was treated and released in the emergency room.

Tax relief coming from state

BOSTON — Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci, (D-Newton) a member of the House Ways & Means Committee, which developed the final budget, said this week, "An immediate impact of the new budget will be $166 million in property tax relief and $27 million in income tax reductions for the citizens of the Commonwealth."

DeNucci stated, "Local aid, revision of income and capital gains taxes, as well as increased funding for many needed human services are among the items passed by the legislature in the 1980 budget."

DeNucci said, "We will increase exemptions for dependent children from $600 to $700 effective immediately, as well as increase elderly exemptions from $600 to $700 as of July, 1979."

DeNucci noted that the exemptions for non-wage-earning spouses will increase by the same $100 amount immediately, and by an additional $100 to $800 on July 1, 1980.

Exemptions for the blind will go from $2000 to $2200, and there will be a three-year phase-in on the capital gains tax to comply with federal code, the Newton lawmaker pointed out.

"Included in this year's budget are a number of other important items," DeNucci said, "such as funding of a Special Joint Commission on Uniform Sentencing and Revision of the Criminal Law Statutes to make our criminal laws tougher where needed.

"We are also providing funds for investigation of Medicaid fraud, reimbursing cities and towns for loss of revenue by state takeover land, funding programs for the treatment of alcoholism, epilepsy and lead poisoning.

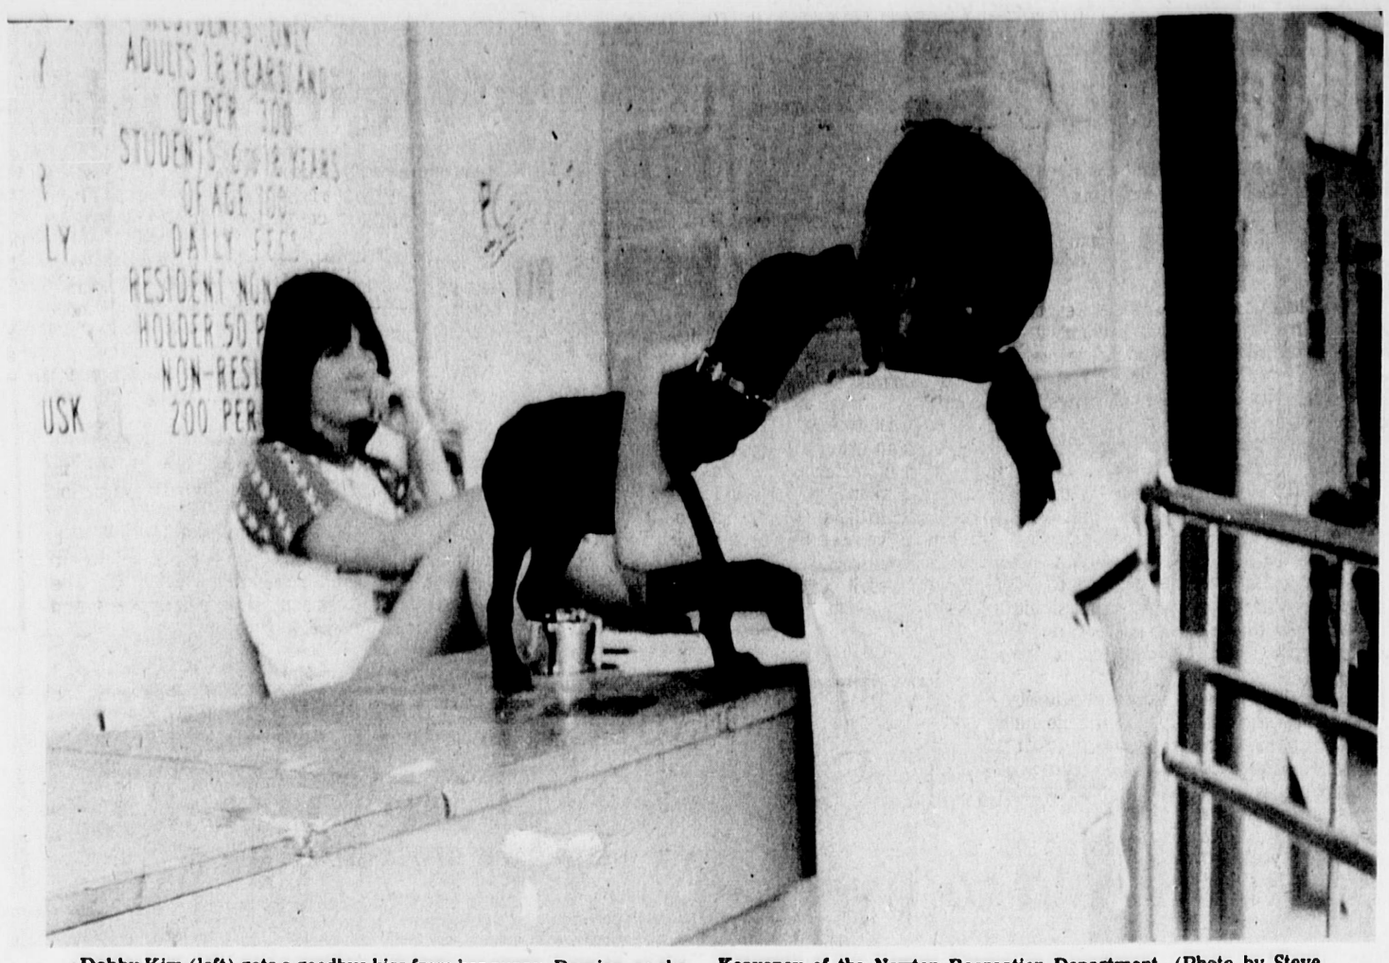

"On the human side of the budget, we are also providing the annual funding for human and social services, and especially for the new Department of Social Services which will go a long way toward helping abused and neglected children in Massachusetts," DeNucci said.

"Basically, the $5.4 billion budget provides something for everyone — taxpayers will be getting relief, but not at the expense of the poor, who will continue to receive at least the same level of benefits."

'Tiddlywinks, it just isn't kid stuff'

LA SALLE, Ill. (NEA) - Recognize the terms "squidger," "nurdle," "piddle" and "squop"?

Then how about "tiddlywinks"?

Ah, yes. That childish game of flipping plastic discs into a cup.

Perhaps at age 5 it was childish.

But 25-year-old David Lockwood, an economic forecaster for a major U.S. airline, is committed to the game. He is one of its estimated 200 devotees in the United States and England.

Last year he won the North American tiddlywinks championship.

Lockwood says tiddlywinks is a way of bringing "the ridiculous" into his life.

"It combines the elements of golf — putting and potting out," Lockwood explains. "It draws elements from chess strategy.

"But at its purest level, tiddlywinks is tougher than chess because of its estimation of probabilities. In chess, you know the possibilities because you know what each piece can do. Tiddlywinks is probabilistic; it depends on your ability."

Far from just flipping six colored plastic discs into a cup, Lockwood plays a 20- to 25-minute game of strategy, covering and maneuvering winks against another player. (There is also team competition in which two pairs of players pit their abilities against one another.)

Lockwood admits the game is "not interesting at the novice level — you can't get into strategy if you can't execute the shots."

The shots, yes, the shots.

They include the piddle or freeing of a friendly wink, the squop or covering of an opponent's wink, and the nurdle, when a shot leaves a wink too close to the cup.

Lockwood has five squidgers — large plastic discs used to flip the smaller winks.

As in the children's version of the game, play ends when all the winks are flipped into the cup. Lockwood holds the record for most shots potted without a miss — 722.

Lockwood took up tiddlywinks in earnest in 1972 as an engineering undergraduate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has since spent hours a day practicing potting and other shots oddly described in the arcane language of the game.

Last November he was even pictured in People magazine.

"As a result of that, I now have an agent," he laughs.

According to Lockwood, most U.S. tiddlywinks players are from the New York-Boston area. There is a good-natured competition among them, he adds.

Though the Americans travel to British tournaments, the teams rarely consist of "all-stars." Rather, says Lockwood, they are made up of "those who can afford to go."

As an airline employee, Lockwood can fly free to tournaments. He has even commuted on weekends to England.

It was that mobility, he says, that caused his selection as head of the International Federation Tiddlywinks Associations.

There is no money involved in tiddlywinks — yet. Lockwood and other U.S. players are trying to establish tournament prizes of up to $1,000. The British, however, are opposed to prize money and expanding the game, fearing "the element" that might be drawn into it.

In contrast, Lockwood looks forward to the popularization of his favorite pastime. The next step, he says, will be production of a game called "Tournament Tiddlywinks."

He hopes people will then begin to see tiddlywinks as serious adult entertainment much like chess or backgammon.

The energy crisis is bringing back the skylight

NEW YORK (UPI) — The growing energy problem could bring about a renaissance of the Roman-style atrium principle in American homes and commercial buildings.

The atrium itself — the court in the center of the building open to the sun — is basic to Spanish and much other Mediterranean architecture and still is found all over America.

But the modern return to the atrium principle generally will involve increasing use of the skylight to cut down on window surface and to save energy used in lighting as well as for heating, says the Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association.

This burgeoning trend is a curious reversal of thinking, the association said. "As recently as the early 1970s, government regulatory agencies and government-endorsed industry regulatory bodies were contending that the skylight was an energy waster."

Perhaps it was when it was used mainly to cap an air shaft and let in a little dim light for inside windows in a factory or tenement building.

But the electronic computer has been used in the last few years by building groups and architects to test the potential of the skylight with some surprising results.

For example, the computer projected that a typical one-story factory in Jacksonville, Fla., could save $35,000 a year in electric power cost by having 3.6 percent of its roof area devoted to skylights.

This projection was for a building 850 feet long, 316 feet wide and 55 feet in height. Each square foot of skylight, the computer said, would save $4 worth of energy a year compared with the surrounding insulated opaque roof. This saving is from combined heating and air conditioning costs.

The computer said a comparable skylight in a similar building in the latitude of Boston would save $13,500 a year. The big difference, of course, is that Jacksonville gets a lot more sunshine.

John Wolf, president of the Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association, said, "The potential energy savings by judicious use of skylights could be astronomic."

Putting big skylights in modern, wide-span, one-floor factories is easy from the standpoint of architectural design but how do you go about putting them in homes?

"Actually, skylights already have begun to make a significant impact in home construction," Wolf said. "One of our building contractor members predicts that within a few years all newly built homes will have two to three skylights for every 10 windows."

While the energy savings of skylights are not nearly so dramatic in homes as in factories, Wolf said, architects and homeowners also are attracted by the pleasing lighting effects that can be created by the judicious placing of skylights.

However, he predicted, architects increasingly will target on skylight use in the home to save on the cost of heating and air conditioning as well as to provide a light, airy environment.

"Skylights always have been retrofitted into old houses and store and office buildings to some extent," Wolf said, "and our members say orders for such installations have doubled in the past two years."

Highlands selects Walnut St. developer

By LINDA FRITZ
Correspondent

HIGHLANDS — The Newton Highlands Village Design Committee decided Monday night to recommend Arrowstreet, Inc. of Cambridge as its first choice design consultant for improvements of Walnut Street.

The decision came after a month and a half of studying proposals and interviewing designers and architects. At the beginning of Monday night's meeting, the committee narrowed its choices down to four.

The committee showed great concern that the designers who actually develop the plans stay with the project through the completion of the contract. Such a problem has almost arisen in other village improvement projects. In Upper Falls, for example, the designer, while completing Pettee Square plans, left the contracting firm.

Personality was another important factor. Several members were fearful of a dominant architect, while others worried about an architect who might be patronizing. With a membership that includes several architects, the committee clearly wants to participate in the planning process.

In the end, Arrowstreet was chosen for the quality of its proposal. "It presented the most complete analysis of the problem," said committee member George Mansfield.

Arrowstreet's other projects include the Park Street station in Boston and the Washington Street mall also in Boston.

The Walnut Street project will extend from Forest Street to Centre Street. It will be the second phase of the Highlands neighborhood improvement program. In the first phase, the Highlands concentrated its attention on Lincoln Street; it installed two brick pedestrian plazas, plantings, lighting, benches and other amenities.

Before any actual designing can begin for Walnut Street, Planning Director Barry Canner must approve the design committee choice and negotiate a contract with the selected firm. Mayor Theodore Mann must then give his final approval.

Prevention programs at two banks

NEWTON — The Newton Co-operative Bank is conducting a series of fire and crime prevention programs in co-operation with Fire Chief Edward B. Reilly and Police Chief William F. Quinn of Newton.

Richard E. Bolton, president and chairman of the board of the Newton Co-operative Bank said that, "Prevention should not take a vacation."

The bank, as a public service, has invited both departments to set up displays and conduct prevention programs as a service to the public and bank clients.

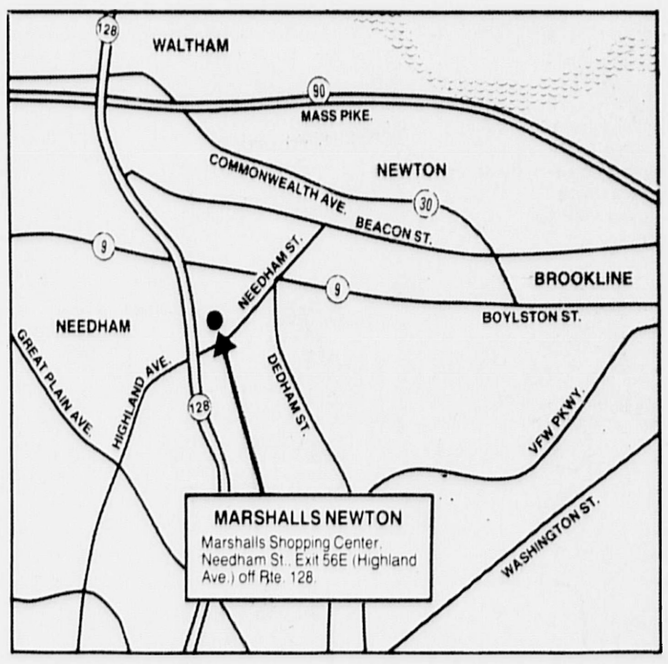

Capt. Joseph T. Fitzsimmons, fire prevention officer and Lt. Charles E. Feeley, community service officer of the Newton Police Department, will conduct programs at West Newton Co-operative Bank Monday, Aug. 6, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Chestnut Hill Co-operative Bank Monday, Aug. 13, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Fire and police personnel will discuss prevention, how the resident cooperation is needed and displays of fire and smoke alarms and locks.

Many travel agencies offer group package tours. These "package tours" are intended to keep traveling prices at a minimum, while exposing travelers to the "best" and perhaps most popular sights.

Under a package tour, your itinerary is planned nearly down to the minute. This itinerary usually provides hotel accomodation, guided daily trips, and nightspots for entertainment and dining. The lowered group rates are truly economical. Freedom under such a package need not be compromised. You are free to do your own personal exploring.

Most agencies offer lowered group rates for transportation costs, accomodation fees, and substantial discounts on rental cars, dining out, and shopping. These advantages do not require your presence in a rigid schedule that someone else devised.

Group package tours on a freestyle basis can be an economical route to European bound travelers. Freedom is yours without paying a fortune for the privilege of being independent. Set your own pace.

Spain's Costa Del Sol (Coast of the sun) is a wonderful place to begin a European vacation. Beaches on the Mediterranean, swimming, tennis, golf, nightlife, shopping and sun together create a vacationers dream. Partake in guided sightseeing or investigate on your own. The choice is yours.

This gentle Mediterranean shore is perfectly named. Natural beauty is the major attraction on this coast. The surf crashes down on stunning, sandy beaches where a scent from the orange trees freshens the air. Costa Del Sol is one of Europe's most famed sun resorts. Casual fun is your key to this beachcomber's paradise.

Sample the best of Southern Europe's fun in the sun. Plenty of swimming pools decorate the coast for the pleasure of those who prefer fresh, calm water swimming.

Throughout the year bullfights, fiestas and sporting features crowd the calendar. Dine on delicious gazpacho, (a chilled tomato flavor). Enjoy scrumptious seafood among boats and nets of an old fisherman's harbor.

Join in the high spirited social world. Golf or beach parties by day, bar hopping, discos, flamenco and guitars after dark.

Resort hotels range from the down to earth prices of medium class, to first class and deluxe accomodations. Most have swimming pools and summer resort facilities. Rooms are air conditioned with a bath or shower.

Discover the Flamenco, a traditional Spanish dance. Gypsy entertainment is also popular here. The finest leathers and ceramics tempt everyone into a bout of shopping.

Guided sighseeing usually includes the major attractions of Arab-influenced Malaga. Malaga is Andalusia's second largest city. Life here is a blend of contemporary and traditional Spanish culture.

You'll also want to see the lofty village of Mijas, with its gleaming white houses, Moorish citadel and burro taxis.

Plan a vacation to Costa Del Sol, and enjoy what you deserve. The cost is less than you'd expect. See your favorite travel agent for arrangements.

Travel Talk

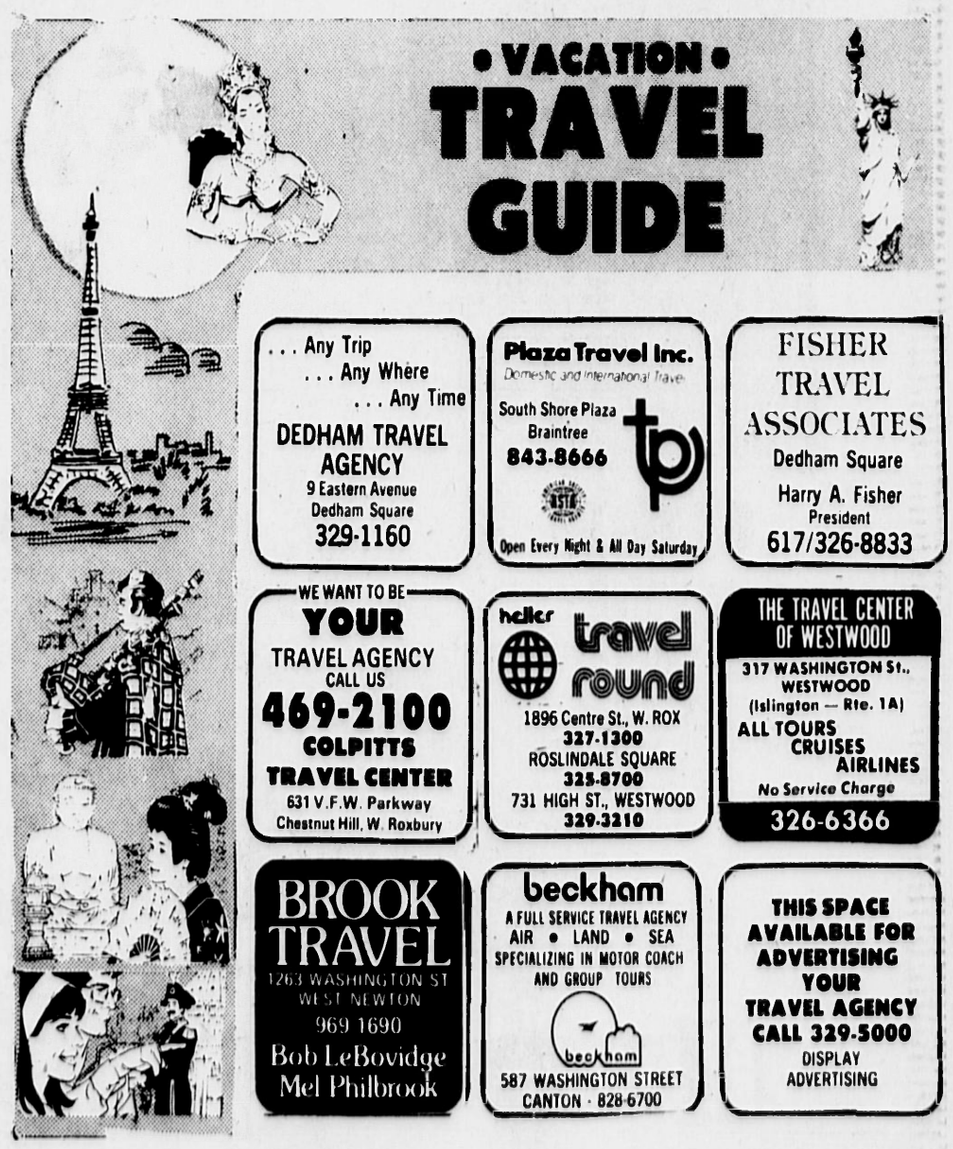

By Josephine Arria

There are still "low-cost" countries to visit, places where the basic cost of living is substantially below the norm. The traveler can, in fact, enjoy really comfortable accommodations at substantially less cost per day than in the more popular "tourist destination" centers. Getting away from the "center of things" will save any traveler money in any country, of course. How to do this? An economical, yet fun, vacation, must be carefully and expertly planned. A travel expert is the person to consult.

Today cost is important to most veryone. The best way to save money and get the most for your travel dollar is to come to BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TAVEL SERVICE, INC., 306 A Washington St., Newton Corner. Our staff has the experience, knowledge and professional capacity to coordinate times, routes and accommodations so as to maximize your travel pleasure while minimizing your travel cost. Come in and discuss your travel needs with s today and let us show you the economical way to go and to get the most for your dollar. Mr. and Mrs. Alan Suna

Joanne Ellen Frank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lewis Frank of Newton, was married to Alan Neil Suna on June 23. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Suna of Roslyn, N.Y.

Rabbi Richard Yellin, Rabbi Isaac Suna and Cantor Gregor Shelkan officiated at the wedding ceremony at the Spring Valley Country Club in Sharon.

Marjorie Frank was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Lisa Frank and Michelle Suna.

Best man was Stuart Suna. Ushers were Andy Suna, Leonard Finkel, Stephen, Paul and Marvin Kleinberg, Dennis Posen, Eugene Biddle and Brian Novick.

The bride is a graduate of The George Washington University and holds a master's degree in special education from Wheelock College.

Mr. Suna studied architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Cornell University, where he received his professional degree in architecture. He is currently employed with the Boston architectural firm of Hoskins, Scott, Taylor and Partners.

After a wedding trip to Europe, the couple will live on Beacon Hill.

Sew at Sea on QE 2 cruise

NEWTONVILLE—A course in needlepoint will be offered on the Queen Elizabeth 2's ten day cruise from Boston to the Caribbean over the Veteran's Day holiday Nov. 4-14. It might be just the thing after you have tried the classes in yoga, exercise, gardening, cooking and dancing, the arts and crafts workshops and the tennis and golf clinics which are also featured on the cruise.

The Miller sisters, Sylvia and Edith, instructors from "The Creative Home" of Newton, will be special staff members aboard the QE 2, giving workshops in basic and advanced stitchery, new techniques, and the latest in bargello and latch-hook rug making.

Passengers may swim, sun, jog around the deck, and enjoy regal meals, nightclubbing, gambling and first run movies. They will visit the ports of St. Maarten, Martinique, Barbados, Tortola and St. Thomas.

For further information about the QE 2's Nov. 4th cruise, call Crimson Travel Service at 742-8500.

Merit Taste Key To Success!

'Enriched Flavor'™ cigarette sparks whole new taste era in low tar smoking.

A few years ago, most smokers agreed: low tar meant low taste.

Then along came MERIT and a whole new taste idea called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And the "low tar, low taste" theory was exploded. Exploded with proven taste in a new low tar cigarette.

No other new cigarette in the last 20 years has attracted so many smokers as quickly as MERIT!

It's clear: MERIT taste is changing attitudes towards low tar smoking.

Phone cable facilities upgraded

AUBURNDALE — New England Telephone is spending some $35,000 to expand and improve cable facilities in Auburndale.

Local telephone manager Linda DesRoches said, "The new cable facilities will provide additional space to meet the present and future needs of residential and business telephone customers in the seven Newton (243, 244, 332, 527, 964, 965 and 969) exchanges."

Some 5500 feet of underground cable is being placed along Auburn Street from Washington Street to Woodland Road.

The work, now underway, is expected to be completed in the fall.

Realtors new office

NEWTON CENTRE — Hunneman and Company, one of Greater Boston's most successful real estate firms, now engaging in a year-long celebration of its 50th birthday, has opened a new residential sales office at 833 Beacon St., in Newton Centre.

The office is managed by Saul B. Cohen, senior vice president and director of Hunneman and Company. The Chestnut Hill office of Hunneman and Company primarily serves Brookline, Newton, Chestnut Hill and select in Jamaica Plain.

Founded in 1929 by Carlton Hunneman, the company has grown from a one-man office on Boston's Charles Street, handling only the sales and rentals of individual residences, to a full-service real estate firm with branch offices in 14 Greater Boston communities.

The company is headquartered in Boston's financial district with more than 100 employees providing a complete range of realty services — residential and commercial brokerage, property management, appraisal, consulting, finance, insurance and development.

Hunneman President Robert Livermore Jr., in announcing the firm's anniversary program, said that its purpose is to recognize the important contributions made by each Hunneman employee in creating a professional organization able to anticipate and solve every type of real estate need.

Livermore, who has been with the company for 46 of its 50 years, hosted a reception in Boston June 26 to honor past and present Hunneman employees.

Doctor directory published

July brings the publication of "Do You Have a Doctor?," the 1979-1980 Boston Area Physicians Guide. The geographic area covered by the directory includes Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Chelsea, Newton and Somerville.

Dr. Muriel Sugarman, consultant to the project, says, "We compiled the directory as a consumer service — to offer people some facts about physicians and their policies.

"Individuals can use the guide to locate doctors who accept Medicare payments, make house calls, speak languages other than English, or those with evening hours."

Dr. Sugarman serves as the medical advisor or board member of a number of consumer, parenting and self-help groups.

"Do You Have a Doctor?" is divided into four sections, listing primary care physicians in solo (individual) practices, group practices, community health services, and hospital outpatient primary care services.

Primary care physicians are defined as those whose area of medical involvement is general practice, family practice, internal medicine, obstetrics and gynecology, and pediatrics.

Among the categories included in each listing are: office hours, the range of fees for initial, routine, or hospital visits, if the physician will make house calls, take unscheduled walk-ins, or accept new patients.

Additional information is provided on the doctor's training and current affiliations. A glossary of medical terms, list of abbreviations used in the book, and some notes on current health legislation fill out this newest consumer's guide. The guide is indexed for easy cross reference.

The Physicians Guide was compiled over a two-year period by a research group with cooperation from hospital administrators, physicians and health care service personnel.

The Guide allows the reader to attempt to assess the quality of the care provided and offers many useful types of information to someone selecting a physician.

Hospital inaugurates new efficiency award

LOWER FALLS — The internal battle against rising hospital costs is often a lonely one, with the general public seldom aware of the efforts being made by the hospitals themselves.

In recognition of the fact that Newton— Wellesley Hospital is aware and is trying, the hospital's board of governors has inaugurated an annual award to be given to an individual or to a department within the hospital that has made a "significant contribution toward the improvement, efficiency or cost effectiveness of hospital services."

The award will be presented at the hospital's annual dinner in November. Recipients of the first annual award have already been chosen. They are Dr. John Meeker and the department of Pathology.

Since Meeker was named director of laboratories in 1975, productivity has been markedly increased while other expenses have been held at levels far below the general rate of inflation.

The volume of laboratory units has increased by almost one million units during this period and new tests and testing capabilities have been developed throughout the laboratory. As a result of this performance, laboratory charges have been reduced to below 1975 levels.

Gold certificates offered

CHESTNUT HILL — University Bank said this week that it will begin selling gold certificates to the public immediately.

The certificates, issued by Citibank of New York, can be bought for $1000. After the first purchase, additional certificates can be bought in $100 units.

John Nyhan, president of the bank and director of "The Gold Store," said that the initial investment price is considerably less than the minimum required elsewhere, which is generally around $2500. "This," he said, "will enable customers to invest in the gold market where previously they could not."

Each gold certificate is an investor's receipt for a measured quantity of gold bullion. Investors can take possession of the gold in its elemental form for a nominal service and delivery charge.

Citibank of New York is the largest provider of gold and precious metals in the world.

University Bank is the only Boston-area distributor.

Middlesex Bar honored for free legal clinic

CAMBRIDGE — The Middlesex County Bar Association will be honored for its outstanding service to the general public during the annual meeting of American Bar Assn. in Dallas, Tex. on Friday, Aug. 10.

The American Bar Assn. Award of Merit for Single Project Excellence will be presented to Anthony R. Rizzo, Somerville, president of the Middlesex County Bar Assn. The presentation will be made by Leonard S. Janofsky, president-elect of the ABA.

This award is being given to the Middlesex County Bar Assn. for its innovative weekly Legal Informational Clinic. This clinic, the first in the nation, is conducted on Wednesdays from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Court House in Cambridge for the general public.

Each week, about 20 members of the bar association are available to individuals to answer questions in virtually all areas of civil and criminal law including divorce, property, contracts, landlord and tenant relationship, taxes, consumer and tort.

About 40 to 50 persons attend each clinic. Generally, individuals coming to the clinic are assigned a lawyer who helps them. There is a panel of 131 attorneys who have volunteered their services and are used on a rotating basis.

Persons attending the clinics come from many sources including the yellow pages of the phone book, call—for-action agencies, the Attorney-General's Dept., judges, courthouses, etc. The clinic only offers information and advice. Persons that require further legal assistance are referred to their attorney, if they have one, to legal aid agencies if they cannot afford a lawyer, or to a member of Lawyer Referral Panel if they do not have an attorney. For many persons attending the clinic this is their first contact with an attorney.

"The free Legal Informational Clinic performs an important community function in providing the public with legal information and advice, and performing a vital service in making law available to all," Rizzo said. "It is gratifying to see the Middlesex County Bar Assn. honored for this exceptionally fine public service project."

The Middlesex County Bar Assn., founded in 1883, serves 52 cities and towns in Middlesex County. Further information about the Legal Informational Clinic may be obtained by phoning (617) 494-4150.

Katherine W. Keane of Chestnut Hill has been appointed assistant counsel, legal department, at Connecticut General Life Insurance Company.

GOOD NEWS FROM UNIVERSITY BANK FOR PEOPLE WHO WANT TO BUY GOLD.

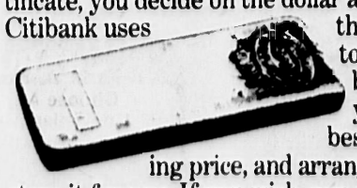

If you have good reason for wanting to buy gold, a Citibank Gold Certificate from University Bank offers you the convenience, liquidity and custodial services you need. Minimum initial purchase: $1,000.

University Bank is pleased to announce that it has been selected a distributing agent for Citibank Gold Certificates.

A Citibank Gold Certificate is a new form of gold ownership. It's backed 100% by gold, while eliminating many of the problems normally associated with owning gold.

When you purchase a Citibank Gold Certificate, you decide on the dollar amount. Citibank uses the funds to buy gold bullion for you at the best prevailing price, and arranges to store it for you. If you wish, you can take actual physical possession of your gold.

Total flexibility. You may liquidate all or any part of your gold at any time. Citibank will sell the gold for you at the best price prevailing on the open market – which may be more or less than the price you paid.

As long as you don't take possession of the gold, there is no sales tax, and no costly assay is required for resale.

For sophisticated investors. Gold is a highly volatile commodity that produces no cash dividends or interest payments. Its price must rise above what you paid to yield a positive return. For these reasons, University Bank and Citibank do not pass judgement on gold as an investment, but rather offer an improved alternative once you have decided to buy gold.

However, if you have good reasons for wanting to buy, give, or invest in gold, the Citibank Gold Certificate gives you a combination of convenience, flexibility and safekeeping unmatched by any other form of gold ownership.

For a free booklet on the new Citibank Gold Certificate, please call Clara Abell at 899-7500. Or mail the coupon.

Named to NWH staff

LOWER FALLS — Two Newton residents are among the 15 new house officers who joined the staff of Newton— Wellesley Hospital on July 1.

First-year medical resident Joan Lange of Newtonville received her medical degree from Dartmouth, and Richard J. Sidd from West Newton, also a first-year resident, is a graduate of Johns Hopkins Medical School.

Other first-year house officers are: Dr. Richard Chace and Joseph A. Deltito from Brown University Medical School; Ronald B. Cohen from Albert Einstein; Richard L. Franklin from Boston University School of Medicine; Richard Loehr, Dan H. Martin, Bruce Tofias, and William F. Winchell from Tufts University Medical School; Jeffrey Melamed from Yale and Paul M. Stoopack from New York University.

New second-year residents are Dr. Elaine C. Berlinsky, a graduate of Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, who comes to NWH from Boston City Hospital; and Dr. John Conte, University of Connecticut, who did his internship at the Washington, D.C. Medical Center.

Joining NWH from New England Deaconess Hospital is third-year resident George Greenwald, MD, a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia.

The new house officers join nine medical residents who have remained at the hospital to complete their second and third years of training.

Call dial-a-story

NEWTON CORNER — Do you wish someone could tell the children a story before bedtime, during the hustle-bustle of early morning preparations, while others are still sleeping, to divert a squabble, or just because stories are wonderful to hear?

The Newton Free Library has the solution. It's dial-a-story. Just pick up the phone, dial 552-7157 any time between 6 p.m. and 9 a.m., all day Sunday, and any time the Main Junior Library is closed, to listen to a short story told by a member of the Junior Library staff.

Geared for elementary school-age children, the story might be fact or fiction, myth, drama, comedy or biography. Dial-a-story might also include a riddle, a joke, or an announcement of an upcoming event. A new story can be dialed every Tuesday evening.

Dial-a-story is a gift from the Friends of the Newton Free Library.

Tips on a healthy vacation

Health Experts advise going away when you vacation in order to get a change of scenery. You should also plan on doing something different — a postman's holiday is not the most beneficial, say the experts.

They also warn against taking work along with you, and suggest that vacationers learn to relax without feeling guilty about "doing nothing."

After enjoying a relaxed vacation, don't make the mistake of rushing back to work as soon as you get back — allow yourself a day for getting acclimated.

Keep Red Cross ready.

Playground Tennis Tournament

The 1979 edition of the Newton Recreation Department's City-wide playground Tournament will be held Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 6, 7 at the Newton North High School Tennis Courts beginning at 9 a.m. Rain dates will be Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 8, 9, at the same time.

There will be two divisions: Midgets for girls and boys aged 10, 11 and 12 and Juniors for girls and boys aged 13, 14 and 15. Newton residents may sign up at the Newton North Tennis Courts the first morning of the Tournament. No one who has won a sanctioned tournament or who holds a New England Lawn Tennis Association ranking is eligible to play in this tournament. Players should bring their own racquets and must wear tennis shoes.

Supervisor, William J. Barry is in charge of this annual tournament.

Newton Women's Twilight League

The final standings in the 1979 regular season's play in the Newton Women's Twilight League are: "A" League — Jesters 10 wins, no ties, no losses and no forfeits for a perfect season, and a total of 36 points; Hustlers 9-0-2-1 for 29 points; McQ's 6-1-5-0, 25 points; Art Caroll's 6-0-6-0, 24 points; Why Nots 3-1-8-0, 19 points; Royals 2-2-7-1, 17 points and the Place 2-0-9-1 and 15 points.

"B" League — Raideretts 10-0-0-0 for 36 points and First Place; Magoos 8-0-4-0 and 24 points; CJ's 7-0-5-0, 26 points; Shirley's Cherubs 6-0-6-0 and 24 points; George's Cafe 5-0-7-0 and 22 points; General Cinema 2-0-10-0 for 16 points and Newton-Wellesley 2-0-8-2 and 14 points.

Final Playoff Schedule

Monday, Aug. 6, the winners of the "A" League semi-finals will meet at No. 4 field at Albemarle at 8:15 p.m., and the survivors of the "B" League semi-finals will play at field No. 4 at Albemarle at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 8, "A" League will play at field No. 4 at 8:15 p.m. and "B" League will play at field No. 4 at 6:15 p.m.

All games will be governed by the NAGWS Softball Rules. It will be single elimination with a consolation round.

Newton International League

Playoff spot race tightens

As the Newton International League winds down to the final three games of days of the regular season, several playoff spots are still dangling in the balance.

St. Bernard's and the Newton Sports Center kept gheir slim Murphy Division playoff hopes alive with victories, while the Highlanders and the Boys' Club firmed their grasp on the second and ghird spots in the Copp Division.

Post 440 has already clinched first place in the Murphy Division with a 13-5-1 slate for 27 points. The rest of the spots, however, are still up in the air with four teams fighting for three spots. The Auburndale Warriors are in second with an 11-7-2 record for 24 points, while the Albemarle Club is 10-9-0 for 20 points and Sports Center is 10-10-0-20. St. Bernard's has the slimmest chance with a 9-10-1 mark for 19 points and one game left Thursday against Albemarle, which also must play front-running Post 440 tonight.

The Warriors meet Oak Hill in their finale Thursday, the same night that the Sports Center faces Post 440.

In the Copp Division, even first place is up in the air. Trans National Travel (TNT) is in first with a 15-2-1 slate for 31 points, one ahead of 15-3-0-30 Highlanders and three points in front of the Boys' Club (14-5-0). And, to make matters even more interesting, the three teams play each other with TNT hosting the Cubbies tonight and the Highlanders Thursday. The Highlanders will entertain Upper Falls tonight.

Upper Falls (10-8-0-20) is tied with the Totem Pole Braves (9-9-2-20) for the fourth spot, but the Braves ended their regular season by losing to the Highlanders Tuesday night. The Lions close against Carson Post Friday.

A two-run double by John Corsi sparked a seven-run third inning and gave the Boys' Club a 12-3 romp over Carson Post at Cabot Park.

Tom Keefe started the Boys' Club scoring with a two-run single in the second.

Will Ziener and Corsi led off the third with singles and Joe Slamin loaded the bases when the right fielder dropped his fly ball.

Joe King singled in a run and Jeff Gromada drove in another when the catcher dropped his pop up. Rich Marchioni finished the scoring with a two-run basehit.

Corsi later ripped a two-run homer to center to finish the Boys' Club rout.

Righty Tom Ryan mixed his pitches well and came away with a three-hitter in St. Bernard's 12-2 thrashing of the Elks Red Sox.

St. Bernard's led, 2-1, entering the fifth, when Mark Lewis drove in three runs with a triple to left. Frank Gallello rescued Lewis later with a base hit.

Lewis and Mike Collins cracked two-run singles in the sixth and Ryan collected an RBI with a bingle. John Bresnahan drove in a run for the Elks, when the second baseman overthrew his grounder in the fourth and Chris Doonar notched a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Pitchout insures Mosca win

It's not very often that a managerial call can directly be attributed to his team's victory.

But, Tuesday night, Mosca Club Mgr. Gary Mosca called for a pitchout at just the right time, successfully snuffing out the tying run and for all intents and purposes clinching his team's 3-2 National Division victory over defending finalist Newton Centre at Newton Highlands Playground.

The victory improved Mosca to 10-6-2 for 20 points as it clinched third place in its final regular-season game and now sits back to wait for its semi-final opponent. The best-of-three semis will begin next Monday night.

Mosca's pitchout call came in the top of the fifth inning after Newton Centre had already scored one run to cut the gap to 3-2. Eric Fallon opened the inning with a line-drive single to right center. Peter Dennis followed with a blooper to right. Rightfielder Bobby Mosca caught the ball on the short hop and tried to make a play at second for Fallon, who had had to hold up.

The ball sailed over second baseman Mike Kasten's head allowing the runners to advance an extra base. Jim Hill then grounded back to the mound with Fallon scoring. Then, with Phil Donnelly at the plate, Gary Mosca called the wide pitch on the second toss to the plate. Dennis broke for the plate on the pitch and was easily thrown out on a toss from catcher Eric DeWaard to third baseman Mark Picardi. Donnelly proceeded to strike out, ending the game.

The Centre had opened the scoring in the second inning when Paul Kassabian and Dennis both walked. DeWaard attempted to pickoff Kassabian at second, but his throw sailed into center field, allowing the run to score.

Mosca came back to do all its scoring in the fourth. DeWaard opened it with a walk and went to third on a line single to right center by Bobby Mosca, who then stole second. Picardi drew a freebie as did Kasten to force in the first run. Mosca came home on a wild pitch with Steve Kosowsky at the plate.

Kosowsky then hit a grounder to third that was bobbled, but Kasten got caught in a rundown. He managed to elude the tag long enough, however, for the third run to cross the plate.

Righthander Jeff Segal picked up the win, striking out five and walking two, while pitching a two-hitter like his losing counterpart, Robbie Abromson, who whiffed three and passed seven.

The winners threatened in both the first and third innings without scoring. In the getaway frame, Kosowsky, Joel Dennis and Segal drew two-out walks, but were stranded when DeWaard lined to short. Two innings later, Russ Nicoletti walked and Kosowsky singled, both with one out. Abromson bore down, however, ending the threat with a pair of strikeouts.

In other National Division play, Upper Falls edged the Matthews Club, 7-5. The summary:

Softball tourney

The United States Slo-Pitch Softball Association (USSSA) will hold the MinuteMen Open Slow Pitch Softball Tournament 10-12 August 1979 at Fort Devens, Mass.

Entry fee is $65.00. The tournament deadline is 8 August 1979. The tournament champion will qualify for a World Tournament Berth to be held Labor Day weekend.

Teams wishing to enter the tournament should contact Dean McNew at 75 Groton School Rd., P-2, Ayer, Mass 01432 or call 617-796-2920 during the day or 617-772-0084 evenngs.

Local teams in softball benefit

Newton softball teams are signing up to play in the Second Annual Busch-WBZ Radio Softball Marathon for Easter Seals. The Marathon will be held August 18 and 19 on fields throughout Greater Boston. Proceeds will benefit Easter Seal programs for handicapped children and adults.

More than 150 teams have already registered for this important event. Almost 300 are expected to participate in what will be the World's Largest Softball Marathon.

Teams from Newton which have already registered include: David Proia's Formal Wear team; Patty Arsenault's Auburndale Rix team; and Ken Gidden's Kielbassa Club.

Players are out recruiting sponsors and donations for Easter Seals and will be eligible for individual and team prizes based on the amount of money they raise. Prizes like beer, T-shirts, a team dinner at Victoria Station, Red Sox tickets, and a week for two in Santo Domingo have been donated as incentives for teams to raise money for Easter Seals.

Spaces are still available for teams to sign up. Anyone wishing to register his or her team, or anyone who just wants to form a team of friends for the Marathon should call Easter Seals at 482-3370 or the Softball Hotline at 482-3319.

Hospital clinic helping runners

"I was training for a race and was getting stiff and sore all over, mainly in my legs and knees."

The speaker is one of the patients recently seen at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Runners Clinic, a service for the prevention and treatment of running injuries.

Staffed by athletic trainer Bill Bates, RPT, and podiatrist Sidney Brass, DPM, the clinic is backed by all of the resources of the hospital — consulting physicians, X-ray, physical therapy, etc. Since it opened in April, the clinic has served nearly 200 people.

The "stiff and sore" patient was asked to fill out a comprehensive questionnaire covering his physical status, his running history and his current running patterns. Then Bill Bates put him through balance, flexibility and coordination tests.

Finding nothing mechanically wrong, the trainer referred the patient to Dr. Brass for a podiatric evaluation. He had been asked to wear shorts and his running shoes, and Dr. Brass was able to see that the shoes were forcing his heel up and to the side. He was advised about the kind of running shoe he should be wearing.

The following week, Dr. Brass inspected the new shoes and inserted a small form in the heel to hold the foot in place.

Interviewed some weeks later, the patient said he has had no problems since. "I wanted to catch it before I was injured, and I did," he reported.

The Runners Clinic is open on Thursday evenings from 5 to 7 p.m. Appointments may be made by calling 964-2800, extension 386.

Women's softball tourney Aug. 11-12

The Newton Women's Invitational Softball Tournament, sponsored in cooperation with the Newton Recreation Department, will be held Aug. 11 and 12 at the Albemarle Playground.

Saturday, at 11 a.m., Burlington will face the Why Nots, and The Watertown All-Stars will play Art Carroll's.

Liberty Square will match up against Auburndale A.C. at 1 p.m., and the Raiderettes will meet the Rookies on the Little League Field, also at 1 p.m.

The winners of the morning round will play at 3 p.m., as will the losers in a consolation game.

Victors in the first round afternoon games will play against each other at 5 p.m., and the losers will pair up at the Little League Field, also a 5 p.m. start.

The two finalists in the tournament will play on Sunday, at 8 p.m. The consolation final will take place at 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Newton youth tennis tournament scheduled

The Newton Recreation Department will hold a tennis tournament at the Newton North High School Monday and Tuesday at 9 a.m.

Divisions in the tourney will be midgets for boys and girls 10, 11 and 12 and juniors for girls and boys 13, 14 and 15. Newton residents may sign up with playground tennis instructors Leslie Fitzgerald or Suzanne Casey, or at the Newton North Tennis Courts on Monday.

Anyone who has won a sanctioned tournament or who holds a New England Lawn Tennis ranking is ineligible to play in the tourney.

Newton West LLB 'Stars bolstered by Boule, 6-4

David Boule smacked a double and a home run Tuesday night to pace the Newton West Little League All-Stars past the Warrendale All-Stars, 6-4, in the first game of the District 17 Double-Elimination All-Star Tournament, at Bunker Field in West Roxbury.

Warrendale attacked first in the opening inning. John Kelley led off with a single. Mark Bourgeois followed hitting into a fielder's choice. After Danny DiVito was beaned by a pitch, Susan Giagrande hit a two-run single to start the scoring. Mike Dragone hit into a fielder's choice that scored run number three.

Newton West matched those three in the bottom of the inning. Kevin McGrath strolled, and Jackie Kinsella doubled to left field, setting the stage for Boule who sent the ball to straight away center for a three-run blast. It was tied for three innings.

Newton added another three in the fourth inning on four basehits. Pinch-hitter Sean Quinlan laid down a bunt single to open the inning. Jamie Rice and McGrath singled to score the go ahead run. Boule rapped a two-bagger that drove in a pair of insurance runs that ended the scoring for Newton.

Warrendale produced one catch up run in the sixth. Dragone singled before Peter Nardone was hit by a pitch. First baseman Steve Hart singled in Dragone but it wasn't enough.

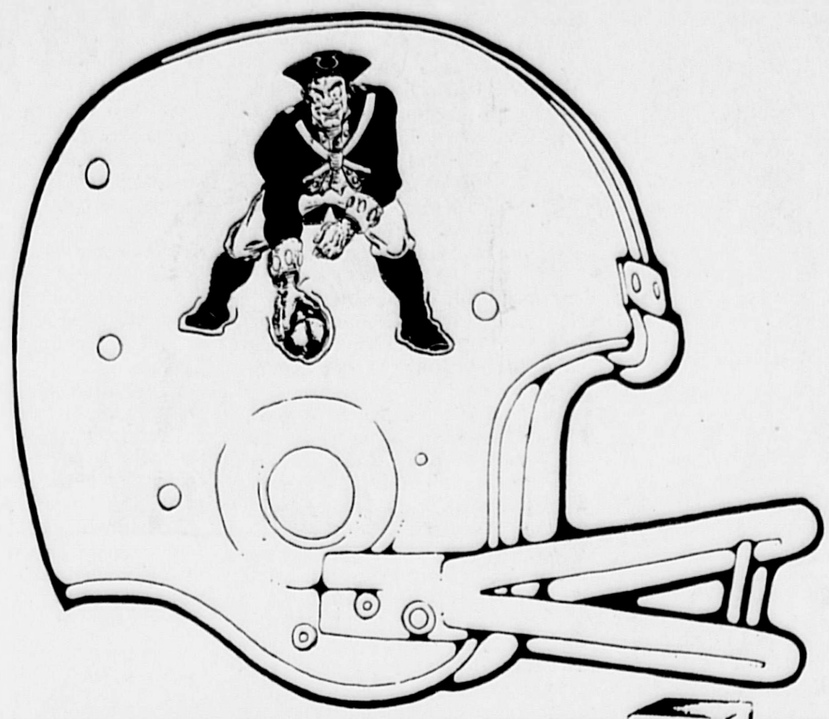

DiVito lost on the mound for Warrendale with nine strikeouts.

Pappas guns Highlander win

Fourteen-year-old Michael Pappas fired a no-hitter Tuesday night, as the Highlanders blanked the Totem Pole Braves, 4-0, in Newton International League action at West Newton Common.

Pappas, a righthander, struck out five and scattered three walks in three separate innings. Two weeks ago, Pappas tossed a one-hitter against Carson Post. Pitching control innings, Pappas is 4-0 this season on the mound.

The game was scoreless until the top of the fourth when Mark Paglia hit a line-drive single up the middle. Arthur Walton followed with a run scoring shot to left that was good for three bases. Walton scored on a Phil Small grounder that the shortstop booted.

Another pair of runs came in the fifth. Andy Cohen reached on an error to lead off the inning. A double by Steve Mosca that sailed to right field scored one run. Then, with a one and two count, Paglia ripped his second single of the night scoring Mosca.

The closest Totem Pole got to a hit was in the sixth inning. Lefty pitcher Paul Howley was at the plate. With a runner on third, he hit a sharp grounder to Paglia in the hot corner. The ball just nicked Paglia's gloves and shortstop Walton made the play to rescue the no-hitter.

The Highlanders are now one point out of first with a 15-3 record. They will face first place Trans National Thursday night in a showdown. The loss for Totem Pole cancels its playoff hopes.

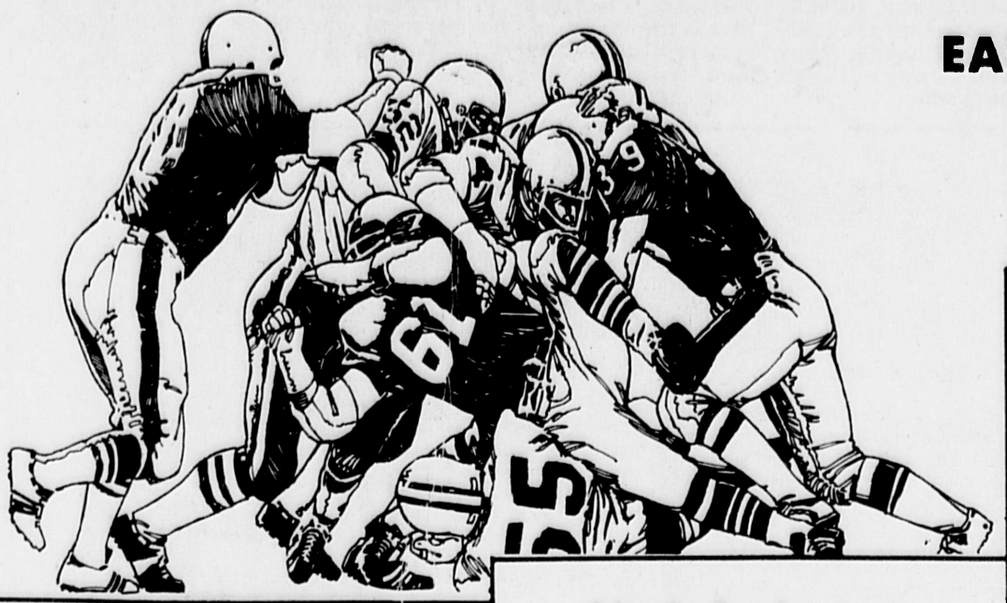

Richie Keyes went two for two as Newton Sports Center defeated the Oak Hill Cubs, 6-3. The loss eliminates Oak Hill from the playoffs. Sports Center is still fighting for a spot. Thursday night it meets Post 440 in a must win situation. July 6 Sports Center edged past 440, 4-3, in eight innings.

Oak Hill got on the scoreboard first on a walk and an error. Newton Sports took over in the bottom of hhe first inning with two runs on singles by Ken Kohlberg and Gene Lindsey.

In the top of the third the Cubs added another lone run, beginning when Vic Otero singled. Otero moved to second on a David Segal sacrifice fly, then stole third base. With two out, Steve D'Angelo strolled. On a delayed steal, Otero scored while D'Angelo was caught in a run down. D'Angelo was out but the run counted.

Sports Shop responded with two more runs, all it would need for the win. Keyes led off with a basehit to left, then was forced at second on a Tony Clarey grounder. Clarey went to third on a ground out, then scoced when Kohlberg reached on an error. Lindsey got a freebie scored on a wild pitch.

'Chicken' can talk, too

SODDY-DAISY, Tenn. (UPI) — A mysterious voice on the public address system at the Sequoyah nuclear plant has officials scratching their heads and searching for the "Phantom Chicken."

Sometimes the voice makes clucking or pecking sounds. But the "chicken" can talk, too.

The chicken — dubbed "PC" for short — has been ruffling his colleagues' feathers by squawking over the plant's public address system about how inept he thinks they are.

Jere Ballentine, superintendent of the Tennessee Valley Authority plant 18 miles northeast of Chattanooga, said Tuesday the clandestine cackler could be any one of more than 4,000 workers there.

All of the plant's telephones are hooked into the public address system, and anyone can be heard over the system by dialing a special number, Ballentine said.

"Obviously some people have the number figured out," he said. "We can't dismantle the whole paging system, though, just to quell this guy."

Plant officials recently thought they had nabbed the chicken, but ended up with egg on their faces. They were questioning a worker when the PA came on, a few squawks were heard, and then "PC" bellowed: "You've got the wrong man!"

Another time, "PC" chided fellow workers who had heaved and shoved a section of pipe for several hours only to discover they were moving it the wrong way.

"If those in authority see the humor in Phantom Chicken, they aren't showing it," said one worker.

"But it makes our working days bearable. He has become an unsung hero around the plant," he said.

Ballentine laughed when asked about the culprit. He said there hasn't been any fired-up effort to catch "PC" — yet.

More gasoline in August

Vacationers and commuters will find gasoline more plentiful in August, but the cost is likely to keep their tempers as hot as the weather. Energy specialists predict the average U.S. pump price will hit $1 a gallon before the end of the month.

The authoritative Lundberg Letter reported Monday that gas supplies would increase because world crude oil supplies have eased and several oil companies have increased their allocations.

But while the gas lines may be getting shorter, Lundberg said, the average pump price could top the dollar-a-gallon mark thanks to new Energy Department rules giving dealers a maximum markup of 15.4 cents a gallon beginning Wednesday.

The independent Lundberg Letter, published in Hollywood, Calif., specializes in oil market analysis and gasoline statistics.

Since March, retail gasoline prices have jumped by a monthly average of 4.98 cents a gallon to a nationwide average of 92.79 cents a gallon in July.

If this price trend continues, Lundberg projected, the average national pump price could reach $1 a gallon by Aug. 30, move to $1.02 a gallon in September and climb to $1.17 a gallon in December.

Retail prices have risen far more rapidly than wholesale prices since March, indicating gasoline dealers have been increasing their retail profit margins.

Consequently, 52 percent of U.S. dealers will be required to roll back pump prices when the DOE's new maximum markup of 15.4 cents a gallon becomes law this week, Lundberg said.

But the letter said dealers may drag their heels in rolling back prices.

"It is a practical certainty that margin increases to 15.4 cents a gallon will take place more swiftly than rollbacks," Lundberg said.

Lundberg said there was "a very good chance" gasoline supplies would be better, even as early as August, than they have been since early this year.

"World crude supplies have loosened up a little, gasoline stocks have improved, and (home-heating oil) stocks for next winter are building up ahead of schedule, relieving refiners of the necessity to divert some crude from gasoline production," the letter said.

In another sign of growing availability, several major oil companies have increased gasoline deliveries since July 1 and others are expected to follow suit, it said. Some companies have allowed customers to draw against their August allocations.

"The upshot is that with so little summer left, refiners can probably release more gasoline stocks to customers without raising the specter of shortages later in the year," Lundberg said. "This will take some pressure off rising gasoline prices but probably not significantly until the summer is over."

STARDUST

by Steve K. Walz

Star Trends—'Alice' star Linda Lavin will have a dramatic role to portray when she goes before the cameras this week in 'The $5.20 An Hour Dream' for CBS. Linda will play Ellen Lissik, a divorced mother and factory worker burdened with heavy debts, who fights hard to get a job on the traditionally all-male assembly line.

Linda Lavin

Star-lets—CBS seems to have the distinction of keeping all of its series stars happy by having them headline in their own made-for-TV flicks. Bonnie Franklin, the pert divorcee on 'One Day at a Time,' recently signed to star in 'The Remarkable Mrs. Sanger,' a motion-picture for TV which will air, of course, on CBS. Bonnie will recreate the role of Margaret Sanger, a courageous forerunner of the women's movement, who during the period of 1911-17 established the first birth control clinic in the United States and was consequently brought to trial under the New York State obscenity law of the time.

Bonnie Franklin

Star Notes—While hubby Paul Newman burns rubber on various race courses throughout the world, Joanne Woodward will be busy lensing 'East L.A.,' a tele-feature for CBS which is currently in production. The 'Emmy' and 'Oscar' award-winning actress will be seen as a woman who, despite warnings against such direct action, begins a journey into the barrio, a Spanish-speaking neighborhood, to locate and punish three Chicano youths who have senselessly slashed the new tires on her car.

Future Star—Very few people realize that sultry blonde actress Deborah Raffin is the hottest young talent on the market. The soft-spoken thespian has already wrapped up the 'Haywire' miniseries for CBS this fall, and has just recently completed two other projects including the chiller 'Are You Alone Tonight' for CBS, and another tele-feature about Elvis Presley. Now Deborah has signed to star in NBC's blockbuster six-hour miniseries 'The Last Convertible,' which the web is calling "the highlight of the fall season." Along with co-stars Perry King, Kim Darby and Eddie Albert, Raffin will portray Radcliffe student Chris Farris. The story, which covers 25 years from 1940-65, deals with the lives of five Harvard University roommates and the Radcliffe girls they loved.

Deborah Raffin

Star Extra—The dramatic remake of 'All Quiet On the Western Front,' the classic World War I novel, is being lensed for CBS's Hallmark Hall of Fame. Richard Thomas stars as Paul, the artistically inclined German student who is pressed into military service. The three-hour tele-epic will air sometime later this year.

Demonstrate manuevers

NEWTON — "I'm Choking" maneuvers will be the topic of presentations at the Newtonville and Newton Highlands Senior Drop-in Centers in early August.

Winston Averill, CPR coordinator of the Newton Health Department, will provide an explanation, as well as demonstration of the proper techniques to be used with a choking person. The importance of learning these simple procedures cannot be underestimated. They are responsible for saving many lives.

The presentation will be given at the Newtonville Senior Drop-in Center, 41 Austin St., on Monday, Aug. 6, at 12:45 p.m. and at the Newton Highlands Senior Drop-in Center, 68 Lincoln St., on Wednesday, Aug. 8, at 12:45 p.m.

All interested senior citizens are invited to attend these presentations.

Richard K. Wallen has been appointed ea dean of administration at Lasell Junior College in Auburndale.

Membership cards can be borrowed

NEWTON CORNER — The library circulates membership cards for the Museum of Transportation, the DeCordova Museum, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Audubon Society and many others.

The cards are loaned for a three-day period and are subject to the same regulations as seven-day materials no renewals, five cents fine for each day overdue. No reserves will be taken.

These membership cards provide the bearer with free admission to the institution, to members' rooms, and for discounts on purchases. The cards are available at the circulation desk of the Main Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Summer hours at the Main Library are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday; Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., closed Saturday and Sunday through Sept. 23.

Darvon danger signals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Eli Lilly Co. will issue a pamphlet soon to consumers explaining how dangerous the pain killer Darvon can be if it is abused.

The Food and Drug Administration said Monday the Indianapolis-based company would distribute a leaflet warning that mixing Darvon with alcohol or other drugs or taking too much of it could "cause weakness, difficulty in breathing, confusion, anxiety and more severe drowsiness and dizziness."

In some cases, the warning says, "extreme overdosage may lead to unconsciousness and death."

Acting FDA Administrator Sherwin Gardner emphasized that if used properly, Darvon, known generically as propoxyphene, is safe.

Critics had asked for a ban on the drug, and charged that there are as many as 4,000 deaths a year related to it.

But outgoing Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano said earlier research has revealed no need for a ban.

Gardner said the FDA will ask other propoxyphene makers to take similar steps to warn users about potential hazards.

Eli Lilly produces about 80 percent of all the propoxyphene used by Americans and markets the drug under the brand names of Darvon, Darvon Compound, Darvon-N and Darvocet-N.

Adventure Camp

NEWTON CORNER — The Newton Presbyterian Church is sponsoring a Summer Adventure Camp for all children going into kindergarden through sixth grade on Aug. 6-10 evenings, 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

The camp will be held at the church, corner of Park and Vernon streets, in Newton Corner.

Children will enjoy competetive games and activities, religious instruction, and have a chance to make new friends. Cost is $1 per child. Preregister by phoning the church office, 332-9255 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., or bring your children to the church by 6:30 p.m., Monday, Aug. 6.

Country Players stage 'The Drunkard'

HIGHLANDS — "The Drunkard," an American theater classic, will be presented by the Newton Country Players on Fridays and Saturdays, Aug. 3, 4, 10, and 11, 8:15 p.m.

Originally produced in the United States in the 1840s, "The Drunkard" is a melodrama about prohibition and temperance as espoused by Carrie Nation, who lived from 1846 to 1911.

The Newton Country Players' production is the recent off-broadway musical version with music and lyrics by Barry Manilow, contemporary American composer.

Advance tickets are now on sale at $4 for adults, $3 for students, and $2 for senior citizens. Tickets sold at the door will be 50 cents more. For ticket sales and reservations call 244-9538.

Tickets may also be purchased at Willey's Drug Store at 32 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands.

The Newton Country Players' theater is located in the Newton Highlands Congregational Church at 54 Lincoln St., two blocks from the MBTA Green Line Newton Highlands stop.

On opening night, Friday, Aug. 3, theater-goers have the option of purchasing a theater-dinner ticket with dinner served after the performance at the Cantin' Abruzzi, 51 Lincoln St., across from the Players' theater. Cost for the theater-dinner ticket is $9.95 per person and should be reserved early.

Audience participation will be the main feature of each performance of "The Drunkard." Audiences will be encouraged to jeer, boo, and poke fun at the characters on stage. Community singing will also be featured at each show.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

Military research funds studies

(UPI) — Three times as much money is spent for military research around the world than on developing energy technologies, according to a private study.

A report by the Worldwatch Institute said Sunday military research and development takes a quarter of the $150 billion used for research all research worldwide.

"The world's research and development budget is more relevant to the military needs of the '50s than to the social needs of the '80s," said Colin Norman, author of the study published by the private research organization.

"Research and development is now a $150 billion global enterprise, employing some 3 million scientists and engineers," Norman said. "But military R and D alone swallows up about one-fourth of this investment — three times the amount devoted to the development of new energy technologies, and more than is spent on energy, health, food production, and environmental protection combined."

Norman is a senior researcher at Worldwatch, which specializes in focusing attention on global problems.

Mt. Ida can't use septic system

By LINDA FRITZ
staff correspondent

NEWTON — Mt. Ida Junior College in Newton Centre is prohibited from using its newly built septic system, according to last week's Conservation Commission decision.

The prohibition will have an impact on Mt. Ida's new Animal Health Assistant Technology Program, which the school was hoping to begin this fall. In preparation for the program, Mt. Ida intended to remodel a building next to Longfellow Pond for classroom space and a student union room. The plans also included a dog kennel near the school's riding stable. Plumbing facilities were to be installed in the classroom area.

The school hired an architect and an engineer, who developed plans for a septic system. After the plans were cleared with the city's Health Department, the school proceeded to build the septic system.

What Mt. Ida did not realize was that the septic system would fall within the 122-foot elevation, that is within a potential flood area. If the system is within the flood area, even the Conservation Commission is cannot grant a permit.

"I feel any future development on the Mt. Ida campus should be on e sewers and not on septic systems," said commission Secretary Helen Heyn.

Extending a line to the city sewer system would be almost prohibitive cost-wise, said David Lentz, Mt. Ida's business manager.

But using the city sewer system and relocating the kennel to beyond to the 122-foot elevation would allow the school to go forward with its building plans without having to consult the commission, said commission member Richard Staley. The engineer should have known that the Wetlands Protection Act would disallow building within the 122-foot elevation, Staley added. The school could possibly sue the engineer, he said.

In other matters, the commission voted to include two lots along the Charles River in Upper Falls. as part of its "Self-Help" application to the state. If its grant is awarded, the city will be reimburse for part of the acquisition costs.

Previously the application was to buy only a portion of the two lots' for Jack Antaramian had planned to use the remainder for his condominium development. Antaramian's plans no longer call for these lots, thereby paving the way for the city to purchase them. PD Turning to Hammond Pond in Chestnut Hill, the commission is planning to seed areas of the pond with minnows for mosquito control.

Children will enjoy weaving

By CHERYL COFFIN

FRANKLIN — Children of all ages, even preschoolers, enjoy weaving. It is an activity that assists in developing the child's concentration, muscular coordination and self-confidence.

To begin a weaving project, make a loom from an 8 inch by 10 inch piece of soft wood. Have your child hammer nails one to two inches apart at both the top and bottom of the wood. The nails should be opposite one another. Then, using heavy twine, tie a knot around the first nail on the left top side and loop the twine around the opposite nail at the bottom, bring it to the top again, loop it around the next nail and continue the process to the end, tieing a knot at the last nail.

A wide variety of interesting materials can be used for weaving and varied according to the season. For example, in the spring, use pastel ribbons, flowers, or soft branches; in the summer, select tall grass or leaves; in the fall, dried grass colored leaves or dried flowers; and in the winter, particularly at Christmas, use vivid ribbons, yarn, or tinsel.

Of course, yarn, ribbon and cloth can also be used at any other time of the year. If these are used, cut one piece about 24 inches long.

Begin at the right side, tie the fabric to the twine, and then weave the material over and under the remaining row the end of the first row, loop the material at around the twine and begin the next row, this time moving from left to right and going under and over.

When you come to the end of the material, tie a knot to the twine and begin a new piece. For whatever type of material is used, be sure to push the rows tightly together. When the entire working space is filled, remove the project.

It can be used as a wall hanging, placemat or decoration.

Weaving is an enjoyable, inexpensive family project that can be done at any time during the year.

Your next poem could pay for your dinner

BOSTON — Half way across the world in Japan, people are celebrating the ancient summer festival of "Tanabata."

Part of this celebration, which heralds the halcyon days of summer, is the tying of poems to sprigs of bamboo.

You don't have to go all the way to Japan to be a part of this charming summer rite. Benihana of Tokyo, Boston's first Japanese steak house, is celebrating its own "Tanabata Festival" with a poetry competition. The theme is "Summer in Boston."

The poems may be submitted in any meter (including Haiku or Tanka) and should be limited to 10 lines. Date of the competition is Aug. 1 to Aug. 17. All entries may be submitted in person, or by mail to: Tanabata Poetry Contest, Benihana of Tokyo, 201 Stuart St., Boston, Ma. 02116.

The winner will receive dinner for two at the Benihana.

In keeping with the tradition of the "Tanabata," all poems will be displayed in the reception area of the Benihana. Here the poems will hang from the "Jizai," a bamboo hanging pole with a carved fish holding a caldron.

"Tanabata" is based on the Japanese myth of a young shepherd, Kengyu, and his love, Ohime, a weaver. The two are so preoccupied with romance that they neglect their duties. As punishment, they are banished to opposite ends of the Milky Way. Once every year, on the seventh day of the month, the lovers are reunited.

"Tanabata" celebrates their reunion and the earth's rejoicing at the advent of summer!

You know about the Museum of Transportation and the Children's Museum (Metroguide, July 19), but what do you know about the Boston Fire Museum? It's an MOT adjunct that is slated to open some time next year in the old firehouse that formerly housed Engine Number 39 and Ladder Number 18. Exhibits will include hands-on fire engines (and a fire pole for sliding), artifacts and firefighting equipment from the Boston Fire Department, and audio-visual displays including, of course, a tribute to the late Arthur Fiedler, who was almost as famous for his interest in firefighting as for his music. Here's the catch: To help restore and refurbish the old Congress Street Fire Station (which was built in 1891), the Boston Fire Museum is soliciting contributions, which are tax-deductible. If you are interested in helping, write to the Boston Fire Museum in care of the Museum of Transportation, Museum Wharf, 316 Congress Street, Boston 02210.

Young as it is, business is booming at Museum Wharf, and the new "North of South Boston" area may give Faneuil Hall a run for the money as the place to hang out as it fills up with artists' studios and restaurants. Already there: an elaborate McDonald's that must be the apotheosis of the genre; the giant Hood milk bottle that used to stand by the side of the road near Taunton, and a real restaurant called Trawlers, with a raw bar and a fish-conscious menu, at 316 Congress Street.

It's getting easier to get around on the subway. Bright new signs and super-graphics are like a breath of fresh air at major stations. At Park Street, for instance, stops on all the branches of the Green Line are charted in detail. Where the old signs are content to say, vaguely, "Riverside" or "Arborway," the new signs fill you in on the intermediate stops and points of interest. If you're not familiar with the system, the additional information is a real blessing. Also mapped out: bus connections and commuter services that intersect with subway stations. Travelling by T is no longer a matter of intuition and blind luck, and the other side of the coin is, the easier public transportation becomes, the more you can plan to save your car (and your gasoline) for middle-distance motoring, and use the T for gadding in and out of town.

You can get a walllet-sized guide to consumer's rights from the Self-Help Information Office of the Office of Consumer Affairs. Bright green and folded like an accordian, the mini-guide provides important information about credit and credit bureaus, retail return policies, warranties, and licensing boards, of which there are 28 in the Commonwealth, governing everything from Accountants to Waste Water Treatment Operators. For your free copy, call the Self-Help Office, 727-7780.

MetroBoston's Great Outdoors

By Mark Wolff

If you suddenly had the urge to become one with the great outdoors, where would you go? Massachusetts, blessed with the sea to the east and mountains to the west and north, is also blessed with an abundance of parks, forests, and reservations offering a wide range of recreational and camping opportunities year-round. You'll probably be amazed to find out just how much there is to do in the outdoors of the Bay State. And the beauty of it all is that these parks and forests are practically in everyone's backyard, which means you won't burn up much gas getting to them.

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management succeeded the former Department of Natural Resources in 1974. It has custody of nearly all state-owned forests, parks, beaches, pools, skating rinks, timberlands, and reservations.

The MDC (Metropolitan District Commission) is in charge of parks and reservations in Boston and environs. The MDC was the brainchild of Charles Eliot, who initiated the Metropolitan Parks System in the 1890s, and was devoted to the preservation of the surviving fragments of New England's primitive wilderness areas. Eliot was impressed by the "refreshing power" of the natural beauty surrounding Boston and ever since 1919 (when the MDC was officially established) the commission has overseen beaches, boating facilities, parks, playgrounds, skating rinks, reservations, and historical landmarks for the public's enjoyment.

Whether you're looking for an enjoyable camping experience of several days (or weeks) duration, or if you're just looking to have fun on a day's outing, there's something available for you at either a state-run facility or at an MDC location.

As with everything else, there are rules, regulations, and fees to deal with. But don't worry, most of the rules and regulations are based on common sense, and the fees are minimal.

Camping in state-owned campgrounds is on a first-come-first-served basis and the season lasts through the Saturday before Labor Day. The maximum camping period allowed is two weeks. Campers need to register at park headquarters and pay in full for the period they're planning on staying. Check-out time (yes, even in the great outdoors there's a check-out time) is 1 pm. Campers are allowed two tents or one recreation vehicle per campsite. Camping fees are $4 for Type I sites, $5 for Type II sites (Type I and II refer to the quality of the sanitation — toilet facilities — available). Primitive campsites (no sanitation facilities) cost $1 per night. Utilities (water and electricity), if available, cost $1 each per night.

State day-use facility fees are also modest and apply to all state forests, parks, or reservations. A season parking pass for pleasure vehicles costs $15. Any vehicle bearing such a pass is eligible for two hours use of picnic tables and fireplace facilities on any given day throughout the season. Parking for pleasure vehicles (without the season's pass) costs $2 with the same two-hour picnic and cooking facility privileges. Walk-ins pay 25 cents per person and again, receive the two-hour facility use privileges. Senior citizens — Massachusetts residents 62 and older — are eligible for a green senior citizen pass, which entitles them to no-fee privileges at all recreational facilities, with the exception of rental campsites. Passes are available upon presenting proof of age at all regional headquarters or at the Boston Office of the Division of Forests and Parks.

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management — Division of Forests and Parks has maps of most of its camping and day-use facilities, as well as rules, regulations, and other valuable guides and brochures available without charge at the department's main office at 100 Cambridge Street, Boston, 02202. Call 727-3180 for information.

MDC parks and reservations are all free. There's no admittance fee; however, there are fees for partaking in certain activities. These, too, are nominal.

Use of MDC swimming pools costs 25 cents for those 18 and over, under 18 and senior citizens pay only a dime. Admission to saltwater beaches is a 50-cent parking fee per vehicle. Freshwater beaches are free. Canoe rentals cost $3 for the first hour and $2 for each additional hour on weekdays and $4 for the initial hour, $3 for the second hour, and $2 for each hour thereafter on weekends. Community Boating, the MDC's sailing course and sailboat-use program, costs $70 per person for full season's use (April 1 through November 1) and $100 for a husband-and-wife membership for the same time period. The fall sailing membership runs from August 15 to November 1 and costs $30. Sixty consecutive days (any time) costs $40; 30 days costs $23. Special rates are available for youthful sailors.

Primitive camping — on a limited basis at the Quabbin Reservation requires a permit (issued at the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife Swift River Management Area) and is available by reservation only.

All MDC picnic areas are free of charge as is the use of all public boat landings and floats. Permits are required to use tennis courts. There is no charge.

For golfers, the Ponkapoag Golf Course in Canton (828-0643) features two 18-hole courses and the Leo J Martin Memorial Golf Course in Weston (894-4903) features one 18-hole course. Annual membership (good at both places) costs $150 for seven-day use, $100 for golfers who only want to play Monday through Friday. Senior citizens pay $75 for a seasonal membership, which is good Mondays through Fridays. Greens fees are $4 Monday through Friday ($2 after 5 pm), $1.50 for juniors and elders.

The MDC also provides free outdoor music concerts through September 3 at the Hatch Shell on the banks of the Charles River, Boston; at the Nantasket Pavilion, Nantasket Avenue, Hull; at Houghton's Pond Bandstand, Blue Hill River Road, Milton; at the Nahant Beach Bandshell, Nahant Beach Parkway, Nahant; and at the Marine Park Bandstand, Day Boulevard, Boston. Call 727-5215 for up-to-date information as to times, dates, and performers.

For complete information, in the form of free brochures, maps, and other guides, write to the MDC's recreation section, 20 Somerset Street, Boston, 02108, or call 727-5250.

General information about hunting, fishing, and wildlife conservation is available from the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife, Field Headquarters, Westboro, 01582 (they're the people you need to see for fishing and hunting licenses). Call them at 366-4470.

> And the beauty of it all is that these parks and forests are practically in everyone's backyard, which means you won't burn up much gas getting to them.

Motorboat and snowmobile enthusiasts might find the folks at the Massachusetts Division of Marine and Recreational Vehicles helpful. Their address is 64 Causeway Street, Boston, 02114 (727-3900).

Due to space limitations, what follows is a selected directory of state and MDC parks and recreation areas, along with the recreational activities or services available.

Drum and Bugle Corps Championships

The 17th annual World Open Drum and Bugle Corps Championships, featuring 30 Class A and 25 Class B groups, is held at Manning Bowl on Western Avenue in Lynn. Groups from all over the eastern United States and Canada compete with flourishes and precision marching techniques. Qualifying competition for Class B and All-Girl corps starts at 7:30 this morning and continues throughout the day. Tickets cost $2.50, $1.50 for kids. Championship bouts cost $5, $2 for kids and are held at 7:30 pm. Tomorrow, Class A qualifying meets are held beginning at 8 am when tickets cost $3.50, $1.50 for children. Championship competition starts at 6:45 pm and costs $7, $5 for children. For all the specifics call 783-1150.

Kids' Stuff

Sheer Necessity, a children's theatre group, presents The Adventures of Harlequin, a funny-bone tickler at 10:30 am and 12:30 pm at the Lyric Stage, 54 Charles Street, in Boston. Tickets cost $2.50, adults accompanied by a child pay a mere dollar, and ARTS/Boston vouchers are cheerfully accepted. On Monday the troupe presents Tom Thumb the Great at the same place, at the same times, for the same prices. Call 742-8703 for all the details.

Ain't Misbehavin'

The rollicking musical Ain't Misbehavin', the tribute — in dance and music — to jazzman Thomas Wright "Fats" Waller returns to Boston. This time around it's at the Shubert Theatre, located at 265 Tremont Street, in Boston. Tickets range in price from $10 on up to $20, depending on when you choose to go. The choices are as follows: Monday through Friday at 8 pm, Saturday at 6 and 9:30 pm, and Wednesday afternoons at 2. Ain't Misbehavin' runs through September 1. For all the jazzy details call the box office at 426-8383.

The Drunkard

The melodramatic American theatre classic The Drunkard, promises a jeering good time when it opens tonight at 8:15 at the Newton Country Players' Theatre (in the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, 54 Lincoln Street, Newton Highlands). The play is presented tomorrow as well as August 10 and 11, also at 8:15 pm. Tickets cost $4, $3 for students, and $2 for elders. For reservations call 244-9538.

4-sat

Campaign 1864 at Fort Warren

A re-creation of Campaign 1864, a mock battle between Union and Confederate forces, is set for today and tomorrow at Fort Warren on Georges Island, in Boston Harbor. The two-day re-creation is highlighted by artillery barrages using field pieces of the Civil War, as well as displays of arms, equipment, and other articles used during the Civil War. Things get going around 11 am each day. Once you're out on the island everything is free. To get there, take a Massachusetts Bay Lines boat, which leaves at 10 am and 1 pm from Rose Wharf, 344 Atlantic Avenue, in Boston. The cost for the boat trip is $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for kids. Call 542-8000 for details.

Today's Music

Music abounds in the area, beginning with a Country Jamboree, featuring Carl Perkins, Dick Curless, Sleepy LaBeef, and others at August Acres Farm, located five miles south of Claremont, New Hampshire. The music gets going at 2 pm with tickets priced at $8 (in advance at Ticketron outlets) or $10 (at the gate). Call (603) 863-1225 for more information. Also to the north, at the White Mountains Center for the Arts, in Jefferson, New Hamshire, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band presents its New Orleans style sounds at 8 pm. Tickets go for $5.50 and $6.50, with single lawn seats at $4.50, family lawn seats at $13. (603) 586-4322 gets you more information. Down in South Yarmouth, the Kinks bring a bit of nostalgic Sixties sounds to the Cape Cod Coliseum on White's Path. Tickets cost $8.50 and $9.50 and are available at the box office (394-2131), Ticketron, Strawberries, and Out-of-Town.

Newport Opera Festival

Newport, Rhode Island, probably one of the more musical towns around, hosts the largest international opera festival in the US, beginning today. The festival is highlighted by 11 opera and eight chamber music concerts in 32 performances that run through August 19. Highlights include the American debut of two European chamber companies — the Vienna Chamber Opera and Trésors Retrouvés de Paris — the world premiere of Luytens' The Light Princess, as well as performances by the renowned Metropolitan Opera Company. The opening performance is by Trésors Retrouvés de Paris who present Les Troquers (an American premiere) at 8:30 tonight the Beechwood mansion, in Newport. Tickets for tonight's performance cost $10 and $12.50. For a complete rundown on the festival call (401) 847-8683 or (401) 846-0998.

Pearl Bailey opens at the Cape Cod Melody Tent in Hyannis, on Monday.

(S) Linen-Making in New England

All sorts of good, sufficient cloth is what's offered at Linen-Making in New England, 1640-1860, a new exhibition opening today at the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Road, in Lexington. The museum is open from noon to 5:30 pm today. Admission is free. Call 861-6559 for all the details.

(S) Folk and Victorian Parlor Music

Folk music, along with Victorian parlor music, can be heard at the Longfellow Garden Concert, featuring soprano Emily Romney, cellist John Each, violinist Janet Parker, and pianist Elise Jackerdoff at 3 pm at the Longfellow National Historic Site, 105 Brattle Street, in Cambridge. Admission is free. For more information call 876-4491.

The Sound of Music

The hills are alive with The Sound of Music, presented at the Country Summer Theatre at 51 Walden Street, in Concord beginning tonight at 7. After tonight, the show's schedule is August 9 to 11 and 16 to 18 with curtain times at 8 pm, at 7 pm on Sundays. Tickets cost $4, $3 for elders and groups of more than 20. For information and reservations call 369-7911.

The Duke Ellington Orchestra

The Duke Ellington Orchestra, now headed by the Duke's son, Mercer Ellington, recreates the big band sounds at the Cape Cod Melody Tent, at the West End rotary, in Hyannis. The music begins at 8:30 and tickets cost $10. Call 775-9100 for all the details.

6-mon

4 Girls 4

Rosemary Clooney, Rose Marie, Helen O'Connell, and Margaret Whiting get together in a reprise performance of last summer's sell-out show, 4 Girls 4, beginning tonight and running through August 11. The place is the North Shore Music Theatre, Route 128, in Beverly. Show times are 8 pm Monday through Saturday, and at 2 pm Wednesday and Saturday. Tickets cost $10 to $11, matinees $6 and $8. Call 922-8500 for further information.

Pearly-Mae

Pearl Bailey makes her annual appearance at the Cape Cod Melody Tent, at the West End rotary, in Hyannis, beginning tonight and running through August 11. Show times are at 8:30 Monday through Friday, at 2:30 pm on Thursday, and at 6 and 9:30 pm on Saturday. Tickets cost $8 for matinees and $11 for evening performances. Call 775-9100 for information and reservations.

Tickets cost $6.50 in advance, $7.50 the day of the show with tickets available at the box office (254-2053), Ticketron, Strawberries, and Out-of-Town.

Arthur Prysock

Arthur Prysock, the blues singer who's probably best known for a certain beer commercial, shows what else he can do at Lulu White, 3 Appleton Street, in Boston tonight through Friday night with sets starting at 9:30. The admission charge is $5. For additional information call 423-3652. Here's to good friends . . .

8-wed

Richie Havens

Richie Havens, the deep-voiced singer of folk and blues, performs at Jonathan Swift's, 30 Boylston Street, in Cambridge tonight at 7:30 and 10:30. Tickets cost $6 and are available at the box office (661-7945) and Out-of-Town.

(S) Joffrey II Ballet

The Joffrey II Ballet troupe performs in Summerthing's Dance Series tonight at 8 at the Hatch Memorial Shell, on the banks of the Charles River, in Boston. The program is absolutely free. For details call ARTSLINE at 261-1660.

Tonight's Music

The Kristin Webb Trio, featuring a pianist, a flutist, and a cellist, perform in the Chinese Room of the Beauport Museum, in Gloucester at 8 pm. The performance, along with a tour of the museum costs $5 for reserved seats, $6 at the door. Call 283-0800 for information and reservations. Out in Lincoln, the Banchetto Musicale, the baroque ensemble, performs at the DeCordova Museum's outdoor amphitheatre on Sandy Pond Road. Admission is $4. For further details call 259-8355.

Food

Delmonico's

By Steven Raichlen

Located in the lobby of the Lenox Hotel in Boston's Back Bay, Delmonico's offers fine food and a dazzling culinary floor show. It affords a glimpse at the glitter of the Gay Nineties, at a unique style of dining that combines Continental refinement with the American love of excess.

Delmonico's is the showboat of Boston hostelry. It's a sort of restaurant-theatre, where the waiters perform flaming feats and derring-do at your tableside. It is also a musical restaurant, since the dining room adjoins Diamond Jim Brady's, Delmonico's piano bar, where Boston golden-throats warble many a favorite tune. You thought the singers hailed from Las Vegas? No, they're Bay State amateurs, folks like you and me, who emerge from the audience each evening to give their vocal cords a workout. The melodies and the laughter spill over from the bar to the dining room, infecting Delmonico's with irrepressible gaiety and verve.

The original Delmonico's of Manhattan closed in 1925. Boston's Delmonico's, which opened a dozen years ago and bears no relation to the New York restaurant, retains much of the turn-of-the-century splendor of the original. The dining room feels incredibly spacious, thanks to two-story ceilings. But alcoves and partitions along the walls afford diners a measure of intimacy. The menu — heavy on the beef and flaming dishes — is as vintage as a Model-T Ford.

Dinner opened with Ritz crackers and cheddar cheese spread — not what I'd call inspired, but well-suited to cocktails. For appetizers, we ordered oysters Rockefeller ($4.75), clams casino ($4.75), and caesar salad for two ($2.75).

The six enormous oysters were outstanding. Their half shells, perched on a bed of rock salt, brimmed with creamed spinach, poached oysters and Mornay (cheese) sauce shot into fanciful squiggles on top. The oysters themselves were cooked perfectly: firm on the outside, still moist and watery within.

> The dining room feels incredibly spacious . . . The menu — heavy on the beef and flaming dishes — is as vintage as a Model-T Ford.

The clams casino — a mixture of minced quahogs, bread crumbs, herbs and bacon — proved a toothsome dish, though lacking the delicacy of the oysters. It's difficult to make stuffed clams transcend the taste of bread crumbs. Delmonico's version succeeds as well as any I've sampled in Boston.

The caesar salad provided us with a veritable cooking demonstration. We nodded approvingly as the ingredients — garlic, anchovies, olive oil, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, coddled egg yolk and romano cheese — flew one by one into the salad bowl. The end product, though perhaps a little acidic, was certainly equal to the effort that went into preparing it. The buttery croutons were, as always, the best part.

Delmonico's entrees are grouped on the menu by those prepared at your tableside and those prepared in the kitchen. If you've come to Delmonico's to whisper sweet nothings to your dinner companion, you'd best order the latter, as each tableside performance lasts ten minutes. We shunned seafood, having had it for appetizers, and focused our forks on Delmonico's bovine fare.

The steak Diane ($13.25) — named for the Roman goddess of the hunt (or was it for the mistress of Henri II?) — was an everything-but-the-kitchen-sink sort of dish. Its multifarious ingredients included mustard, Worcestershire, Diable and Tabasco sauces; cream, brandy and garlic. The result was tasty, but I had that guilty feeling I'd gunked up a peerless steak — New York strip, rare and tender — with some sort of ultimate ketchup.

The prime ribs of beef ($10.95) had lots of visual appeal. The huge, and I mean huge, slab of red meat made the eyes of my Midwestern dinner companions light up like flashbulbs with pleasure. The meat was tender enough to cut with a fork, but it somehow lacked the full flavor of properly aged beef.

The Veal à la Crème ($10.95) — also prepared at the table — was an interesting dish. Red peppers and brandy enlivened the usual cream and mushrooms. The sauce had lots going on the palate.

The prime rib came with a great, puffy popover. The evening's vegetable — puréed butternut squash — was pleasantly palatable. Spuds came in three forms: French-fried, baked, or Delmonico-style. The latter, a sort of potatoes au gratin, was by far the best. The house salad wore an innocuous creamed garlic dressing.

I hate to admit how much food we'd consumed so far. Duty called for dessert, but our bellies groaned in protest. Then lo, at the far table, a waiter with nerves of steel melted sugar around the rims of two wine glasses and poured a flaming liquid back and forth between the glasses in mid-air.

"What is that?" I cried.

"Brazilian coffee," he answered.

Like magic we regained our appetites and ordered one, along with peach Melba, and a slice of Black Forest cake to round out dessert.

The Brazilian coffee ($2.75) was a devilish concoction of Grand Marnier, brandy, and Kahlua. The coffee and whipped cream helped offset the liquory punch.

The peach Melba ($1.75) was adequate but unexciting. The original peach Melba, created by the great French chef Escoffier for actress Nellie Melba, consisted of freshly poached peaches and freshly puréed raspberries over freshly churned ice cream. The canned peaches and aerosol whipped cream of Delmonico's version did little to live up to its ancestor.

The Black Forest cake ($1.75) was the only unmitigated disaster. Not that the chocolate cake wasn't dense and chocolatey. Not that the ample cherry marmalade wasn't admirably tart. But the cake was iced with a sort of sickly-sweet butter cream, instead of the customary whipped cream. The sugar made one's teeth smart — ugh!

Delmonico's wine list is simple, well-chosen and inexpensive. The modestly priced wines of France and California are well represented. The coverage of the wines of Spain, Italy, and South America surpasses that of most other restaurants in town.

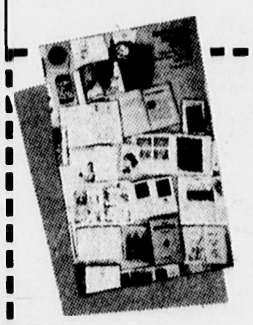

All in all, Delmonico's is a fun place to dine. If the quality of the food sometimes falls short of the service, it's because the service is exceptionally good. Delmonico's really does deliver a splendid time for all.□

Notes

Delmonico's Restaurant, at 710 Boylston Street in Boston, is open Monday through Friday from 7 to 11 am and from 5 to 10 pm. On Saturday the hours are from 8 to 11 am and from 5 to 11 pm. Open for brunch on Sundays, 8 am to 3 pm. Reservations are accepted Monday through Thursday only. Fully licensed, all major credit cards. Call 536-2200.

Benihana-201 Stuart St, Boston, 542-1166. Japanese food cooked at the table by knife-wielding chefs. Hibachi steaks and chicken. Full bar, moderately expensive. Hours: Daily, noon-2 pm and 5:30-10:30 pm; Sun 4:30-9 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Chardas-1306 Beacon St, Brookline, 232-4050. Hungarian food, goulash, chicken paprika, palascinta. Moderately expensive, full bar. Reservations recommended. Hours: Daily for dinner, 5-10 pm; Wed-Fri 11:45 am-2:15 pm. AE, BA/V, DC.

Front Street-260 Berkeley St, Boston, 247-0011. The Boston division of the well-known Provincetown restaurant, with elegant, international cuisine. Full bar, reservations. Hours: Daily, 6-10 pm. AE, BA/V, MC, House Charge.

Jason's-130 Clarendon St, Boston, 262-9000. Dining among palm trees and sensational saltwater aquariums. Seafood and Continental specialties:oysters Rockefeller, veal Oscar, roast Long Island duck. Downstairs, sandwiches and a seafood bar. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-3 pm. Dinner daily 5 pm-midnight. AE, DC.

Legal Seafoods-237 Hampshire St, Cambridge, 547-1410. There are two principal schools of thought about Legal Seafoods: broiled or fried. Debate the issues while you are waiting in the upstairs bar; the lines at Legal are very long, even on weeknights. Patience is rewarded because the fish is great and the prices moderate. Hours: Open Mon-Sat from 11 am-9 pm and Sun from 1-9 pm. The bar provides all drinks. No credit cards and no reservations.

99 Restaurant-125 Pearl St, Boston, 423-4792. One of a number of branches, sandwiches and burgers in a saloon style setting. Inexpensive, fully licensed. Hours: Daily, 11:30-1 am. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Pondicherry-429 Boylston St, Boston, 266-3797. Indian food: tandoori chicken, lamb and mutton, out of the ordinary fish dishes. Full bar, reservations accepted. A 15% service charge is included in the prices, which are moderately expensive. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-3 pm and 5:30-11 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Ristorante Igo's-1812 Mass Ave, Cambridge, 547-3733. Italian food: lots of seafood specialties, also chicken, veal, and beef. At lunchtime, omelets and salads. Full bar, reservations accepted. Hours: Daily from 11:45 am to midnight Sun-Thurs, to 1 am Fri-Sat. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Scotch 'n Sirloin-77 N Washington St, Boston, 723-3677. Menu specials include teriyaki steak, ale-battered shrimp, and King Crab. Full bar, moderate prices, reservations accepted. Live entertainment. Hours: Daily, 5:30-10:30 pm, until 11:30 pm Fri and Sat. Dinner from 5 when the Bruins or Celtics play the Garden. Sun 3:30-9:30 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Sheraton-Boston Hotel-39 Dalton St, 236-2000. The Mermaid Seafood Tavern, Kon Tiki Ports. Respectively, seafood and South Seas exotica, both with full bars. Both are moderately priced, but the hours vary, and you would do well to call ahead.

Thompson's Chowder House-Faneuil Hall Marketplace, Boston, 523-6942. Good old American chowder, also foreign chowders like cioppino, gumbo, bourride. Fish salads and seafood dinners as well. Full bar, moderate to expensive. Hours: Daily, noon-1 am. AE, BA/V, MC.

The Voyagers-45½ Mt Auburn St, Cambridge, 354-1718. One of Cambridge's ritzier restaurants, with a glassed-in roof garden, and a menu that changes every day, depending on what is fresh at the market. Full bar, Reservations are recommended. Hours: Tues-Sun 6-10 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

The Wild Goose-Faneuil Hall Marketplace, Boston, 367-0183. Goose, of course, and other rarely-encountered game: pheasant, quail, squab, sometimes boar and venison. Moderate to expensive, full bar. Reservations recommended. Hours: Mon-Sat noon-2:30 pm and 6-10:45 pm; Sun 1-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

NORTH

Andover Inn-Chapel Ave, Andover, 475-5903. On the grounds of Phillips Andover Academy, but a far cry from school fare. Some of the far-flung favorites are Loempia, scampi flambé. Make sure that the pastry cart rolls past your table. On Sundays, the dinner feature is Rijstaffel, a Dutch-Indonesian buffet. Moderately priced, elegant. Full bar. Open Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-3 pm, and 5-10 pm. Sun, 10:30 am-3 pm, and 4-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Bistro Le Bistingo-8 Front St, Salem, 745-0324. Steaks, shrimps, scallops, and special casseroles like chicken livers Henry VIII. Fully licensed, and reservations are accepted. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-2:30 pm for lunch, dinner 5 pm-midnight; bar open until 1 am. AE, BA/V, MC.

Hardcover-15A Newbury St, Danvers, 774-1223. American favorites like sirloin and shrimp, accented with French touches like crêpes. Moderate prices. Full bar. No reservations Fri-Sat, but at other times, they are not a bad idea. Hours: Mon-Thurs, 5 pm-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm; Sun, 4 pm-9 pm. AE, MC.

The Landing-At the Town Landing, Marblehead, 631-1878. Right on the harbor, a mostly seafood menu: Marblehead scrod, seafood casserole, fisherman's platter, and some landbound specialities as well. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: From 11:30 am Mon-Sat, from 10:30 Sun, until 10 pm weekdays, 11 pm weekends. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Rosalie's-18 Seward St, Marblehead, 631-9888. The cucina here is North Italian, the surroundings warmly Victorian. Veal Sorrentino, shrimp Luciana. Open daily, 11:45-2:30, and 5:30-10 pm. Reservations are advised for dinner. Fully licensed, no credit cards.

Stefan's Gourmet Inn-Daniel Webster Hwy South, Nashua, NH, (603) 888-0342. European and American specialties, including four different kinds of caviar, in an elegant atmosphere. Fully licensed. No reservations on Sat, otherwise, they are a good idea. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-10 pm, until 11 pm Fri-Sat. AE, BA/V, MC.

WEST

Backside Restaurant-Rte 1A, Dedham (at Dedham Plaza), 326-2144. Turn-of-the-century decoration, with dining and dancing. Prime rib, sirloin, baked stuffed shrimp. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11-1 am. AE, MC.

Le Bourguignon-79 East St, Dedham, 326-8824. Everything here is French: the cuisine, the atmosphere, and the service. Specialités de la maison include boeuf bourguinon and coq au vin de Bourgogne. Full bar plus extensive wine list, reservations are recommended. Hours: Tues-Sat noon-10 pm; Sun 5-10 pm. No credit cards, cash or personal checks only.

The Every Day Gourmet-Mill & Speen Sts, Natick, 653-8010. Not quite everyday, actually, it's only open on weekends. The menu from this teaching kitchen changes all the time. Make reservations, and bring your own things to drink. Hours: Fri-Sat, noon-3 pm, Sun, 10 am-2 pm. No credit cards.

Legal Seafoods-Rte 9, in the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center, 277-7300. Legal's outpost on the western front is sometimes less hectic than the Cambridge branch, especially if you are willing to eat early or late. Otherwise, the set-up is pretty much the same: the crowds, crowds, crowds are offset by the fish, fish, fish. Reservations for large parties. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11 am-9 pm; Sun, 1-9 pm. AE, and personal checks.

Mill Falls-383 Elliot St, Newton Upper Falls, 244-3080. At Echo Bridge, a Continental menu with rack of lamb, veal Oscar. Full bar, moderately expensive. Reservations are accepted. Hours: 11:45 am-2:30 pm and 5:30-10 pm, until 11 Fri-Sat nights. Closed on Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Old Mill-Rte 2A, Westminster, 874-5941. Down by the old mill stream, and waterfall, a traditional setting for traditional dining. Duckling, prime rib, baked stuffed shrimp. Full bar. Open daily, 8:30 am-10 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Peking Garden-27 Waltham St, Lexington, 862-1051. Sino-American egg rolls and chow mein for the bashful, and a host of Szechuan, Mandarin, and Shanghai specialities for the initiate. A range of prices: House Special Duck tops the bill at $9. Full bar. Reservations are accepted for parties of eight of more. Open Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, 'til 11 pm. AE, DC, MC.

The William Paul House-Reservoir St (Rte 31) Holden, 829-6666. The specialty of the House is seafood, with a Continental accent: baked stuffed filet of sole, seafood Mornay. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: Tues-Sat, 5-10 pm, Sun, noon-8 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Yangtze River Restaurant-25 Depot Sq, Lexington Center, 861-6031. Mandarin-Szechuan with Polynesian things as well: Gai-Har-Lo-Mein, Shrimp Almond Ding, Blessed Family Happiness. More happiness: everything is nicely explained on the menu, which is long. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-9:30 pm; Fri-Sat, until 10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

SOUTH

Barnside Tavern-Assinippi Corners, Rte 3, Hanover, 878-9814. Sprawling and always crowded, it's Americana from the word go: prime rib and shrimp are among the favorites. Salad and dessert bars. Full bar. Hours: Daily from 11:30 am-10 pm; from 1-9 pm on Sun. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Casa Berrini-Main St, Marshfield, 834-8765. Italian, continental, and traditional cuisine: veal, prime rib, fresh seafood, and salad Gazebo. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: Daily except Mon, 11:30-1 am, Sun from 11 am. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Humarock Lodge-Humarock Beach, near Marshfield, 834-7981. Traditional and Continental dining by the shore. Chateaubriand, coquilles St Jacques. Full bar, reservations. Hours: Daily except Mon 11:30-3 and 5 pm onwards. Sun brunch from 11:30-3. AE, DC.

Ken's Fish House-218 Dedham St, Norfolk, 384-8152. A fish house, with steak and chicken, too, for landlubbers. Moderate prices. Full bar. Reservations are required on holidays. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-10 pm. AE, DC, MC.

Plaza Inn-Rte 1, Wrentham, 384-2800. "The pleasures of the table are of all time, and all ages, of every country and of every day." Entrees, which are French, Italian, and American, start at $5.95. Full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am. AE, MC.

The Victorian-583 Linwood Ave, Whitinsville, 234-2500. Whitinsville may be off the beaten track, but if you're in the area, or even if you're not, The Victorian will reward you with period decor and a menu that is mostly French, with Continental and American accents. Closed Mons, otherwise, Tues-Sat, 11:30 am-2:30 pm and from 5:30 pm onwards, and Sun, noon-8 pm. Fully licensed. BA/V, MC.

Winsor House Inn-390 Washington St, Duxbury, 934-2548. The Winsor House is grandly Federalist without, warmly panelled within. Continental menu: Saltimbocca, coquilles St. Jacques, sole Jacqueline. Moderately expensive. Fully licensed. Hours: Tues-Sat 11:30 am-2 pm; Tues-Sat 6 pm-9 pm, Fri-Sat 6-10 pm. Reservations are a good idea for weekend dining. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

#90 Phone Books

By Don Rubin

In an effort to conserve paper and delay the inevitable deforestation of this entire planet, America's book publishers, in voluntary cooperation with the Bell System, have introduced the first in a series of Novels for Telephone.

Think of it. Every phone book will become a classic; every telephone booth a library; every Washington, DC, directory yet another copy of Catch-22. The possibilities are endless.

Here, in a nutshell, is how they work.

Each of the logos on this sample Yellow Page is part of a continuous chain of letters forming a sentence. We'd like you to find that sentence, for openers.

Name _____

Address _____

Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through September 6 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Labor Day Lottery and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the September 13 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE puzzle desk, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Answers to Puzzle #88

Fort Knox

If at first you don't succeed, pry, pry again. And many of you did just that. We suspect it took a great deal of prying to unlock the solution to this puzzle. As many of you figured out, there was more than one letter corresponding to different keys, however, only one particular key opened a particular lock. Had we been in a horizontal mood in laying out the solution blanks things probably would have made more sense. The letters would have spelled out: Eureka? Try banzai. As things went, however, the solution looks like this:

1. E
2. U
3. R
4. E
5. K
6. A
7. T
8. R
9. Y
10. B
11. A
12. N
13. Z
15. I

VOL. 109 NO. 32 | NEWTON, MASSACHUSETTS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 9, 1979 | PRICE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

Firefighter contract approved

By MIKE RYAN
staff writer

NEWTON — Since November 1977, the negotiating committee of the Newton Firefighters Association has worked on a new contract. Last week they got one by a 4 to 1 margin of approval.

The first year of the new pact covers the last fiscal year (FY'79) with a five percent raise, and the second gives firefighters a 5.75 percent pay increase.

A total of 173 out of 250 firefighters voted last week on the proposed contract. Since firefighters have worked since July 1, 1978 without a contract, this two-year pact expires in July, 1980.

The association made concessions in the matter of minimum manning. Terms of the contract call for a reduction of five to four men per in-line preconnected pump during July 1 to December 31, the peak vacation period. This will cut down on overtime formerly required by the old contract.

The City of Newton, under the new deal, is required to operate a force of nine pumps or engines, three ladders, and two rescue companies. Three of the nine pumps, the inline preconnected pumps, will be cut back to a minimum manning of five to four. If the City fails to maintain its operating force, then the manning reverts back to five men. Theothersix pumps are manned by a minimum of three men.

An in-line preconnected pump is a firefighting vehicle that does not have to attach itself with a fire hydrant; it carries its own water to fight a fire for a short duration. Of these three inlines one pump holds a capacity of 1,000 gallons of water; the other two each hold 500 gallons.

David Cawley, chairman of the negotiating committee and seven-year member of the force, said, "It's a reasonable package. We've alleviated the overtime pressure which involved a lot of money."

President Frank Vona of the Newton Firefighters Association said, "It's a long,tedious process. I think it's fair to both sides."

The following other points were approved:

— Longevity pay was increased. A tenyear employee will now receive $350 a year, 15-year worker $450, and someone with 20 or more years experience would get $500. This is comparable to private business when a worker receives a bonus for each added year on the job.

— The .75 increase on the second year of the contract was a buy back for giving mandatory coverage for PBL(personal business leave). Each firefighter still will only have just two PBL days, but the City does not have to cover the PBL days with overtime.

—Five dollars is added to each man's cleaning allowance making the total $80 annually. Newton firefighters come to work every day in full dress uniform, then change into work clothes.

—A three per cent differential takes place retroactively July 1, 1978 with an increase to six per cent starting January 15, 1980. About 98 per cent of the fire department works at least two nights a week.

Despite a positive vote for the new contract there were mixed reactions among the men.

Firefighter John Lucas said, "I think we should get better on the cost of living."

Another firefighter said, " We signed the contract because the bargaining committee recommended it. They(the committee) felt it was the best contract at the moment."

Dick Hay of West Newton said, "I'm satisfied with the give and the take of the negotiations." He added, "I can live with it."

Firefighters in Needham and Waltham recently agreed to pay hikes of six percent; Brookline firemen voted in favor of a seven percent boost.

The Newton Firefighters Association represents more than 99 percent of the fire department's men.

The coolest cherub in town is at the intersection of Highland and Chestnut Streets in West Newton.

Policeman's candidacy questioned

By CYNTHIA BLACK
staff writer

NEWTON — Newton Police Officer Thomas Fleming is free to run for a seat on the School Committee, but if he wins, does he have to quit his job?

According to City Solicitor Daniel Funk, "The City Charter strongly implies that Officer Fleming is prohibited from serving on the School Committee and at the same time continuing as a police officer for the City of Newton."

Funk, in an opinion issued Monday, cited section 4-5 of the City Charter which states:

"No former school committeeman shall hold any compensated appointive city office or city employment until one year after the expiration of his service on the School Committee. This provision shall not prohibit a former city officer or city employee from resuming his duties as such city officer or city employee at the conclusion of his service on the School Committee."

Fleming said Monday that his candidacy is "not a joke," and he intended to sign his nomination papers Tuesday, officially entering the race.

Election Commission Secretary Alan Licarie verified Tuesday that Fleming did indeed come in to sign the papers and will be on the ballot for the School Committee seat in Ward 3.

Fleming also said Monday that he would review Funk's opinion "with my counsel" and decide what further steps might be taken. His interpretation of the intent of section 4-5 of the City Charter differs from Funk's.

Funk, in his written opinion, conceded the section is "not free from ambiguity and is not particularly well-drafted."

But he went on to say that the key words seem to be "former" city employee and "resuming" his duties. According to Funk, this implies that the individual "was a city employee and that he did not continue to be an employee while on the Committee."

If he had continued his employment, Funk reasoned, there would be no need to "resume" his duties after his term was up. .

Fleming pointed out that police officers do serve on school committees in other communities. In Norwood, for example, Richard Joseph is now serving his second term as a member of the School Committee.

Joseph, a Norwood policeman, said Monday he does not work any details for the Norwood School Department, such as traffic posts or football games, etc.

Waltham Police Sgt. Hoqer Saulnier ran unsuccessfully for a seat on that city's School Committee two years ago, after receiving the go-ahead from the city solicitor.

This year Saulnier is again a for a School Board post. Solictor William J. Gannan notd no conflict in the policeman's candidacy or possible holding of office.

Fleming is running against incumbent School Committeewoman Nancy Mann and Rosalind Johnson, president of the Franklin School PTA.

Two finalists survive the preliminary to run for the seat in November.

If he made it through the preliminary and won the final election, it would be up to his fellow School Committee members to decide whether or not he could be seated.

Section 4-1a of the City Charter provides that the "School Committee shall be the judge of the election and qualification of its members."

In Stoughton recently, for example, a police officer was elected to the Board of Selectmen, and his fellow board members refused to swear him in.

Auditor says Housing overcharged tenants

NEWTON— Tenants in two state-aided projects operated by the Department of Housing Services have been overcharged for rent, State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko said this week. The state auditor said the errors may have resulted from the department's failure to make all allowable deductions from tenants' gross income. "The department," said Buczko, "should reimburse those tenants who have been overcharged, and adhere to Division of Community Development (DCD) regulations regarding rental fees."

The miscalculations are not major, according to State Auditor's office spokesman, John Cooney. At Project 707, which is scattered site lease housing, a total of $360 was overcharged for Fiscal Year 1978. This meant the average tenant was overcharged about $5, said Cooney. The discovery resulted from a spot check of the Auditor's Office of about 25 tenants.

Cooney said that Project 705-1 on Beaconwood Rd. overcharged its residents by an excess of $2 to $3 for FY 78. This was "very minor," said Cooney. Project 705-1 was checked through a survey of tenants under 20. Buczko said also that the Department of Housing of Services did not file an annual report or budget for FY 78, and he requested that the department would do so. Buczko cited that under the General Laws of Massachusetts a housing authority is required to make a financial report to the State Auditor's Office.

The Department of Housing Services oversees four state-aided projects in Newton.

ZBA unanimous on Hamilton reuse

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
Staff Writer

NEWTON—The Zoning Board of Appeals voted unanimously Tuesday night to grant a comprehensive permit to the Community Development Authority for the conversion of the Hamilton School to 42 one-bedroom apartments for the elderly.

The application for the comprehensive permit was made by the Authority in lieu of applications for a zone change from unzoned to Residence E, a special permit and site plan approval for an apartment house and two variances from the requirements of the city zoning ordinance.

The state enabling legislation for the special permit is Chapter 774 of the Acts of 1969, the so-called "anti-snob zoning law," intended to expedite the construction of low and moderate income housing.

Construction of the apartments will be carried out with funds awarded to the city by the Mass. Department of Community Affairs under Chapter 667. The DCA grant is designed to fund construction of housing for tenants with federal Section Eight housing subsidies.

Under the proposal the 1957 winq of the school will be retained for community uses such as the branch library, Community Schools, gymnasium and community group meetings.

The site of the elderly housing would be split off from the community building and the playground into a separate 51,700 square foot lot which the city would transfer to the Community Development Authority. The remaining 319,658 square feet would be retained by the city for recreation and community use.

The dividing line between the two lots will bisect the existing structure, with the 1957 wing falling in the larger lot.

The proposed renovations will not make any substantial structural alterations in the existing building. Apartments will be created on all three floors of the building.

The tennis courts will be relocated to the southeast corner of the playground and 13 parking spaces will be constructed for the playground and

$20,000 for asbestos consultant at North

NEWTON—The Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen has authorized the expenditure of $20,000 for testing at Newton North High School to determine which sections of the building contain asbestos and what danger that asbestos poses to students and teachers.

The Committee authorized the expenditure unanimously Wednesday night at the request of Building Commissioner Allan Fraser who said the test results are necessary to determine what the city should do about the problem of asbestos in the six-year-old high school.

The School Committee voted 8 to 1 March 12 to ask the Board of Aldermen to "investigate the appropriate way ... to abate the potential asbestos hazard at Newton North High School and to take action as soon as possible based on that investigation."

The testing, which will be carried out by Dr. Charles Spooner of the GCA Corporation, will determine where asbestos insulation is located in the building.

The health hazards of asbestos fireproofing were discovered before the high school was completed in 1973, so a different type of fireproofing was used in parts of the school. Fraser said that information about the location of the asbestos is not available from the contractors and architects involved in the building's construction.

Committee Chairman Edward Richmond said that Spooner has said he can begin testing August 22 and that the results could be available by the end of September.

Mitch Gordon

By STEPHFN HARTSHORNE
staff writer

NEWTON CENTRE — As a percussionist, Mitch Gorden is well-known to those who attend musicals in the Newton schools. He has performed and coached in more than 75 musicals in the last seven years.

He also plays in the Newton Symphony Orchestra, the Wellesley and MIT symphonies, Paul Scribner's Big Band, the John Philip Sousa Band and the Northeastern University Jazz Band.

Since he graduated from Newton South High School in 1976, he has also been teaching percussion in the schools.

Gordon is also an accomplished student and instructor in the martial arts with + black belts in two styles of karate and a green belt in ju-jitsu. His study of the martial arts includes a broad range of techniques from the "hard" arts — punches and kicks — to the "soft" — holds and throws.

He is an instructor at the Academy of Physical and Social Development in Newton Centre and at the Bushido-Kai in Natick.

Both in the martial arts and in percussion, Gordon works with children with learning disabilities and emotional problems of all kinds. This is one of the reasons he will be entering the University of Massachusetts in Boston this fall to study psychology.

One thing the two fields of instruction have in common is the mastery of the body and Gordon says that this can help greatly in the mastery of the mind.

"Learning rhythm and movememt is a good way to break through a lot of barriers," he says. "You conquer the body and then conquer the mind."

This is one of the central principles of the Academy of Physical and Social Development, founded by Director Mike Burg, where children learn self-confidence through a variety of physical activities like boxing, judo, gymnastics, ju-jitsu and karate.

"We work xith children who have many different kinds of problems. Some have dyslexia or cerebral palsy. Some are too big or too small for their ages. Some are not socially adjusted. Some are getting picked on in school and some are bullies."

In all cases the learning of self defense is coupled with building confidence in dealing with others.

"We're not trying to build people into fighters," Gordon says. "We're trying to teach self defense."

He says this is also fundamental to his own study of the martial arts. "I'll do anything to avoid a fight," he says. "I'll talk my way out. I've even lied my way out. If someone wants my money he can have it. I'm afraid I might actually kill somebody."

While Gordon has done well in a few competitions, he does not often participate in them. He says he doesn't go in for demonstrations, like breaking boards or bricks.

"When am I going to be attacked by a board? We're not out to put on a show; we're out to learn the martial arts."

The techniques of the martial arts come from hundreds of different schools all over the world. Gordon has a whole bookcase of works by different masters. Students are taum.ht to incorporate techniques from different schools into their own styles.

"We don't say 'This is how you do it.' We say 'These are the basics.' We take the "kata" (forms) and we translate and analyze them, asking 'What is this really doing?'"

The instruments of the percussionist are equally varied. Besides the basic drum set, Gordon plays the timpani, congas, bongos, timbales, triangle, tambourine and mallet instruments like the xylophone, vibraphone, marimba and chimes.

While he performs and coaches in symphonies, marching bands and musicals, Gordon also teaches and plays jazz.

He plays in Paul Scribner's Big Band every two weeks at the Burlington Mall, works with the Northeastern University Jazz Band, and has his own group which has no name as yet.

"When we find a job we'll find a name."

Police Report

Brighton youths nabbed after high-speed chase

NEWTON—Newton Police arrested two Brighton youths Friday night after a high-speed chase involving the Boston and MDC Police.

Newton Sergeant James Norcross approached a parked car on Shorncliff Road around 9:20 p.m. and reportedly detected a strong smell of marijuana.

The car reportedly backed out onto to Nahanton Street and on to Washington Street. After a 15-minute chase police arrested a Brighton 16-year-old on charges of using a motor vehicle without authorization, possession of a Class D substance and several motor vehicle violations.

Police also arrested Donald Shea, 18, of 24 Newton St., Brighton on a charge of using a motor vehicle without authorization.

Police arrested an Indiana youth Saturday night on a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle and detained two juveniles as runaways from a residential facility in Connecticut.

Sergeant Arthur Fryar and Officer Joseph Donahue Jr. observed a car stopped on the Mass. Turnpike around 8 p.m. and saw three youths climbing over the fence to Austin Street.

After an investigation it was learned that two of the youths were runaways from the Vitam halfway house in Norwalk, Conn.

Arrested was Michael Spicer, 17, of Richmond, Indiana.

Police also report that a Weymouth man was bitten by a rat when he went to empty a dumpster at the Trade Winds restaurant at 24 Eliot St. around 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Police say Ernest Kenny of 55 Colonial Rd., Weymouth was picking up trash around the dumpster when a rat ran up his arm and bit him on the face, breaking the skin.

Kenny was treated and released at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Police arrested a Mattapan man and a Quincy woman on burglary charges Tuesday night at Mulhern's Sunoco at 325 Boylston St.

After a report of a burglary in progress police surrounded the gas station and reportedly apprehended Daniel Vinifsky, 32, of 14 Meadowbank Ave., Mattapan leaving the station.

Police say Susan Clark, 22, of 15 Grossman St., Quincy was apprehended in a car parked nearby on the street with a case of Sunoco motor oil in her lap.

Vinifsky was charged with burglary, larceny and possession of burglarious tools. Clark was charged with burglary and larceny.

A Newton woman was forced at gunpoint to turn over the keys to her car in the parking lot of the Star Market at 200 Boylston St. Monday.

Police say a black male in his early 20s repored reportedly put a gun to her stomach and ordered her to give him the keys to her car around 1 p.m.

Police say the car was seen heading toward Brookline.

Police report a break-in at the Meadowbrook Junior High School early Sunday morning which left a door and several windows smashed.

Police say entry was gained by smashing a window at the side of the building.

Blood was reportedly found on the second floor and police surmise that one of the intruders must have been injured breaking windows.

It is unknown at this time whether anything was taken in the break.

A 14-year-old Newton youth was arrested for burglary early Tuesday morning near City Hall after he fled the scene of a burglary on Valentine Street.

Police say the owner of the Valentine Street house called police when he heard his dogs barking and saw two males leaving the house.

After an extensive police search involving the canine patrol, a party on Risley Road observed two youths running through his yard and called police.

Police arrested the youth at the corner of Walnut Street and Commonwealth Avenue.

The incident will be further investigated as police search for the other suspect.

Intruders broke into the Mass. Rehabilitation Center at 230 Boylston St. over the weekend. Police say entry was gained by breaking glass on an outside rear door.

Reported stolen were two typewriters, a calculator and two clock radios.

A burglary on Warren Road over the weekend reportedly netted two paintings, two prints and two clocks, one of them valued at $850. Police say entry xas gained by pushing in a cellar door.

Marshalls Mall on Needham Street

Marshalls shopping center opens today

UPPER FALLS — Needham Street moved a step closer this week to becoming the bargain hunter's mecca with the opening of the Marshalls Shopping Center.

Marshalls, the major tenant, sets the pace for the center with its slogan: Brand names for less. Specializing in apparel for the entire family, the store also sells sheets, towels and other domestics.

On a visit to the store last week, Peter Barber of Northland, developer and owner of the shopping center, found Marshalls' employees filling one rack with $200 men's suits at $79 each. "The retailer is clearly the top chain of its type," Barber commented.

Open 9:30 a.m to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, Marshalls expects to do $6 million to $7 million of business at the Needham Street store during its first year, Barber said. "Volume-wise that is close to what a supermarket does," he added. "Marshalls is prol.ecting the Newton branch will be its best store nationwide."

The Newton branch is Marshalls 60th store. Headquartered in Woburn, Marshalls is actually owed by Melville Shoe.

Melville Shoe also owns CVS, another tenant at the shopping center. This branch will be unique in that it is CVS's only store in a shopping center without a supermarket, Barber said.

The Upper Falls CVS will not only sell health and beauty aids and magazines and newspapers, but will also have a pharmacy. Like other CVS stores, it will be open 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

In keeping with the price inage, there is Shoetown, which features brand name shoes at discount prices for the whole family. Owned by Heck's the Newton store 4 is Shoetown's first entry into the Boston market, according to Barber. Nevertheless, it is a national chain with 160 stores, Barber said.

Shoetown and its neighbor, Stacy's Fashion are open 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 pm. p.m. Monday through Saturday. Stacy's is a Needham based women's wear chain with 14 stores. It sells quality merchandise at bargain prices.

To round out the shopping center there will be a bank — Freedom Federal Savings Bank. It will not, however, open until September.

Closest to Needham Street is Newport Creamery, an ice cream and sandwich shop owned by the Rector family of Rhode Island. Beginning as a dairy over 50 years ago, Newport Creamery makes its own ice cream. Today the firm owns 30 restaurants throughout New England.

The Newton branch, with a seating capacity of 78, has both booth and counter service. It is open seven days a week from 7 a.m to 11 p.m.

In a separate free-standing building, scheduled to open in September, there will be a Women's World Health Spa in the lower level. It will have exercise equipment and classes for members only.

Northland is also planning to lease lower level space to a beauty salon, Barber said. Space is also available on the second floor for a retail or service organization, he added.

Other tenants of the free-standing building will be The Lodge at Harvard Square, a sportswear store; Good Vibrations, a record store chain; Fox Travel, a travel agency; and Specks, an optician.

The shopping center has parking space for 400 cars. Five percent of the interior parking lot is landscaped, according to Barber.

While the Marshalls Shopping Center will definitely increase the number of cars on the already congested Needham Street, most of the traffic will not come at the rush hours, according to Robert A. Danziger, president of Northland. Since most of the stores open at 9:30 a.m. and are the least busy between 4 and 6 p.m., the shopping center will provide the most complementary traffic use, Danziger said.

Both Danziger and Barber have noted that the shopping center is in keeping with the recent trend of Needham Street toward retail stores and office buildings. The street is moving away from manufacturing even though it is zoned as such. The shopping center itself is a good example. Previously owned by the Regis Paper Company, it was at one time manufacturing space. In recent years, it was vacant.

The shopping center should, therefore, mean more money for the Newton coffer. While the Board of Assessors has not yet sent Northland a tax bill, Barber's ball park estimate is that the firm will pay $80,000 to $100,000 a year in taxes for the shopping center.

Pettee Square plans set

By LINDA FRITZ
Staff Writer

UPPER FALLS — The Upper Falls Advisory Committee learned Tuesday night the construction of the first phase of the Pettee Square project will occur this fall.

The project should go out for bid as two packages this September, according to Stanley Clauson of the Planning Department. The first package will be the rehabilitation of the depot building at Chestnut Street. The second will be the beautification of the south side of Pettee Square, which is at the intersection of Oak and Chestnut Streets. gPD The beautification plans for this phase call for brick plazas, sidewalk widening, tree plantings, and a park on the side of the depot. Also included is the development of a parking lot between the railroad tracks and the stores on the south side of Chestnut Street.

With the rehabilitation of depot complete, the committee hopes to rent it to a commercial tenant. The building itself will be leased to the city from the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority (MBTA) as will the parking lot and park land.

The city's Law Department is currently studying a draft of that lease, according to Steve Gartrell of the Planning Department. The lease, however, does not yet cover anything else but the depot, Gartrell said. Adding the other land will probably not be a problem, he said.

Because the MBTA must put any long-term leases out to bid, the city will only receive a lease with a 30 day termination clause, Gartrell said. If the MBTA chooses to terminate, he added, it must use the land for transportation purposes. It cannot just leave the property vacant — as it has done in the past — or try to lease it to some other tenant.

Turning to the Echo Bridge Mall, the committee has asked the Planning Department to draw some landscaping plans for the Chestnut Street sidewalk end of the mall parking lot. The committee would like the landscaping for a clear demarcation between the sidewalk and the lot. G. Arnold Haynes, owner of the mall, has said he would be willing to make the diagonal parking at that point parallel, according to committee member Lee Fisher.

In other matters, Gartrell reported that the historic district funding project will take applications from August 15 to September 15. The program, financed by the federally funded community development program, has $75,000 available. Grants of up to $6000 are available to those in the historic district.

Nonantum group selects consultant

By ELLEN POWERS

NEWTON — The Nonantun Neighborhood Advisory Committee (NAC) voted last week to recommend the Newton Planning Department award a land use study contract to a Boston-based consulting firm.

After more than three hours of reviewing the land-use study proposals of three consulting firms, the committee members agreed the proposal made by Community Planning Research Associates (CPR), presented the best grasp of the specific problems facing Nonantum.

The same firm is doing consulting work in Newton Corner.

According to Judy Beram, the city community planning coordinator, the firm's bid was approximately $15,000, similar to the bids placed by the firms of Philip B. Herr & Associates and Lozano, White and Associates, both of Cambridge.

The money for the study and implementation of its yet to be developed suggestions for land-use changes comes from a Department of Housing and Urban Development Community Block Grant. In 1974, the City of Newton received $2.3 million to revitalize its neighborhoods.

Nonantum, Newton Corner, West Newton and Newton Highlands have benefited from the monies. A community development plan developed for Nonantum in 1977, however, failed to provide committee members with ways to implement its suggestions.

The committee's main question to each firm addressed how the residents of Nonantum could push through bureaucratic channels any changes they saw fit to make.

Representing the CPR firm at the meeting in the Education Building on Walnut Street, were Charles Nelson, Phil Dowds and Kathy Golvin.

They came prepared with an up-to-date map of Nonantum with its zoned areas and non-conforming zoning uses of land clearly depicted.

"Looking at this map," said Nelson, "you can see there is almost no relationship between land use and zoning borders." The six voting committee members, four non-voting members and one interested citizen who were present agreed with Nelson.

"We would try to identify ways and techniques to achieve what you want to do," Nelson said. He and his colleagues stressed to the group that the plans the firm developed for the community would not sit on a shelf.

The NAC is working towards the beautification of Watertown Street.

Committee Chairwoman Alice Webber told the News Tribune that a goal of the NAC is to establish a full-time multi-service center in Nonantum.

The committee is responsible for developing the Senior Citizen's Drop-In Center and for making improvements at Hawthorne Playground.

Voting committee members attending the meeting were Florence Grella, Mary Tramontozzi, Margaret Cormier, Mrs. Webber, Barbara Mooney and John Romanowski.

Non-voting members were Sally Magni, Ward 1 Aldr. Joseph DePasquale, Chester J. Leary, and Joanne Pellegrini. The interested citizen was John A. Webber.

Ms. Beram, who monitored the meeting, said she will take the committee's recommendation to the plann ng department.

Repair class for new listing

NEWTON— New England Telephone residence and business customers in the Newton exchange area(243, 244,332, 527, 552, 964, 965, and 969) now have new and separate repair service numbers.

The new repair number for homes is 5551611. For businesses the new repair service number is 555-1515.

"Separate repair service numbers for residence and business customers will better serve the individual needs of those two distinct telephone markets," said local telephone manager, Linda DesRoches. "Technicians ,specially trained, will handle all home repair8 calls. Other technicians, also specially trained, will handle business repair calls."

There is no charge for repair service calls.

Legion can bargain for city land

NONANTUM — American Legion post 440 is free to resume negotiations with the city to acquire additional land in front of the post now that Governor Edward King has signed an act authorizing the city to sell it.

The City of Newton acquired the parcel of land in 1925. It became known as Victory Field. Years later, the Recreation Commission declared the land surplus and the city sold 84,000 so.uare feet of it to Post 440 in 1970.

Under a 1972 state law, legislative approval is now required before municipal recreation land can be sold' so the matter went to the Legislature.

The Board of Aldermen approved the sale of an additional 32,000 square feet of land to the post in 1975, but the purchase has never been completed.

This year, post officials came back to request an additional purchase of 14,000 square feet, and the city decided to get the proper clearance from the Legislature before going any further.

The Legion intends to use all 32,000 square feet for additional parking and part of the 14,000 square feet for parking. The remainder would become a tot lot.

Aldermanic Administration & Finance Committee Chairman Ernest Dietz said Monday that the Legion is now debating leasing the land instead of buying it.

He said his committee will meet Aug. 20 and may act on the matter if approached by post representatives with a decision. newto

The parcel, fronting on California Street, was once earmarked for four units of low-income housing, but the Massachusetts Department of Community Affairs (DCA withdrew funding because estimated cost of the project was too high.

Mann raps King on aid

NEWTON — Governor Edward King's decision to distribute state aid tocities and towns according to the lottery and Chapter 70 formulas has drawn criticism from the mayor and chief budget officer of the City of Newton.

Calling King's decision "one of the biggest cave-ins of all time," Mayor Theodore Mann said it was taken "at the direct expense of 67 percent of the people of the Commonwealth."

"The big city mayors, representing 15 percent of the people have again run roughshod over the balance of the state," Mann said.

The governor's decision, taken in conference with the leadership of the House and Senate, means that $83 million in aid will be distributed according to the Chapter 70 school aid formula and $83 million according to the lottery formula.

Mann and representatives of ten other municipalities had been trying to persuade the governor and legislative leaders to approve a "growth factor formula" which they say would benefit 274 Massachusetts communities, representing 67 percent of the state's population.

Under the Chapter 70 and lottery formulas, Newton will receive about $1 million. The growth aid formula would mean $2.8 million for Newton.

Newton's Chief Budget Officer Albert DiGregorio said a last ditch attempt to get the growth factor formula adopted nearly succeeded and he added that the effort will continue into the coming year.

"We've raised the consciousness of a lot of people — the communities, the governor and staff and legislators. We're finally making them aware that there is an alternative. We've lost one battle, but the war is at hand."

Mann points out that there are 103 representatives and 23 senators whose communities would benefit under the growth factor formula sponsored by the Coalition for State Aid Equity.

"I find it nearly impossible to believe," he said, "that they could not reflect the needs of the poor and the elderly in their communities."

Finance okays psychiatric bills

NEWTON — The aldermanic Finance Committee authorized Police Chief William Quinn to pay $2,029 in psychiatric bills incurred by Officer James Guaragna while on the police force, but added several motions protesting the court-ordered payment and the recent action of the Newton Reitirement Board awarding Guaragna a disability pension.

Passed by a vote of 6-0 was a motion by Ald. Ernest Dietz to ask the mayor to see that Guaragna is examined once a year "to see if his disability is still valid."

Also passed unanimously was a motion by Committee Chairman Edward Richmond "to ask the city solicitor whether the city should take an appeal from the decision of the Retirement Board to grant a disability pension to Officer Guaragna."

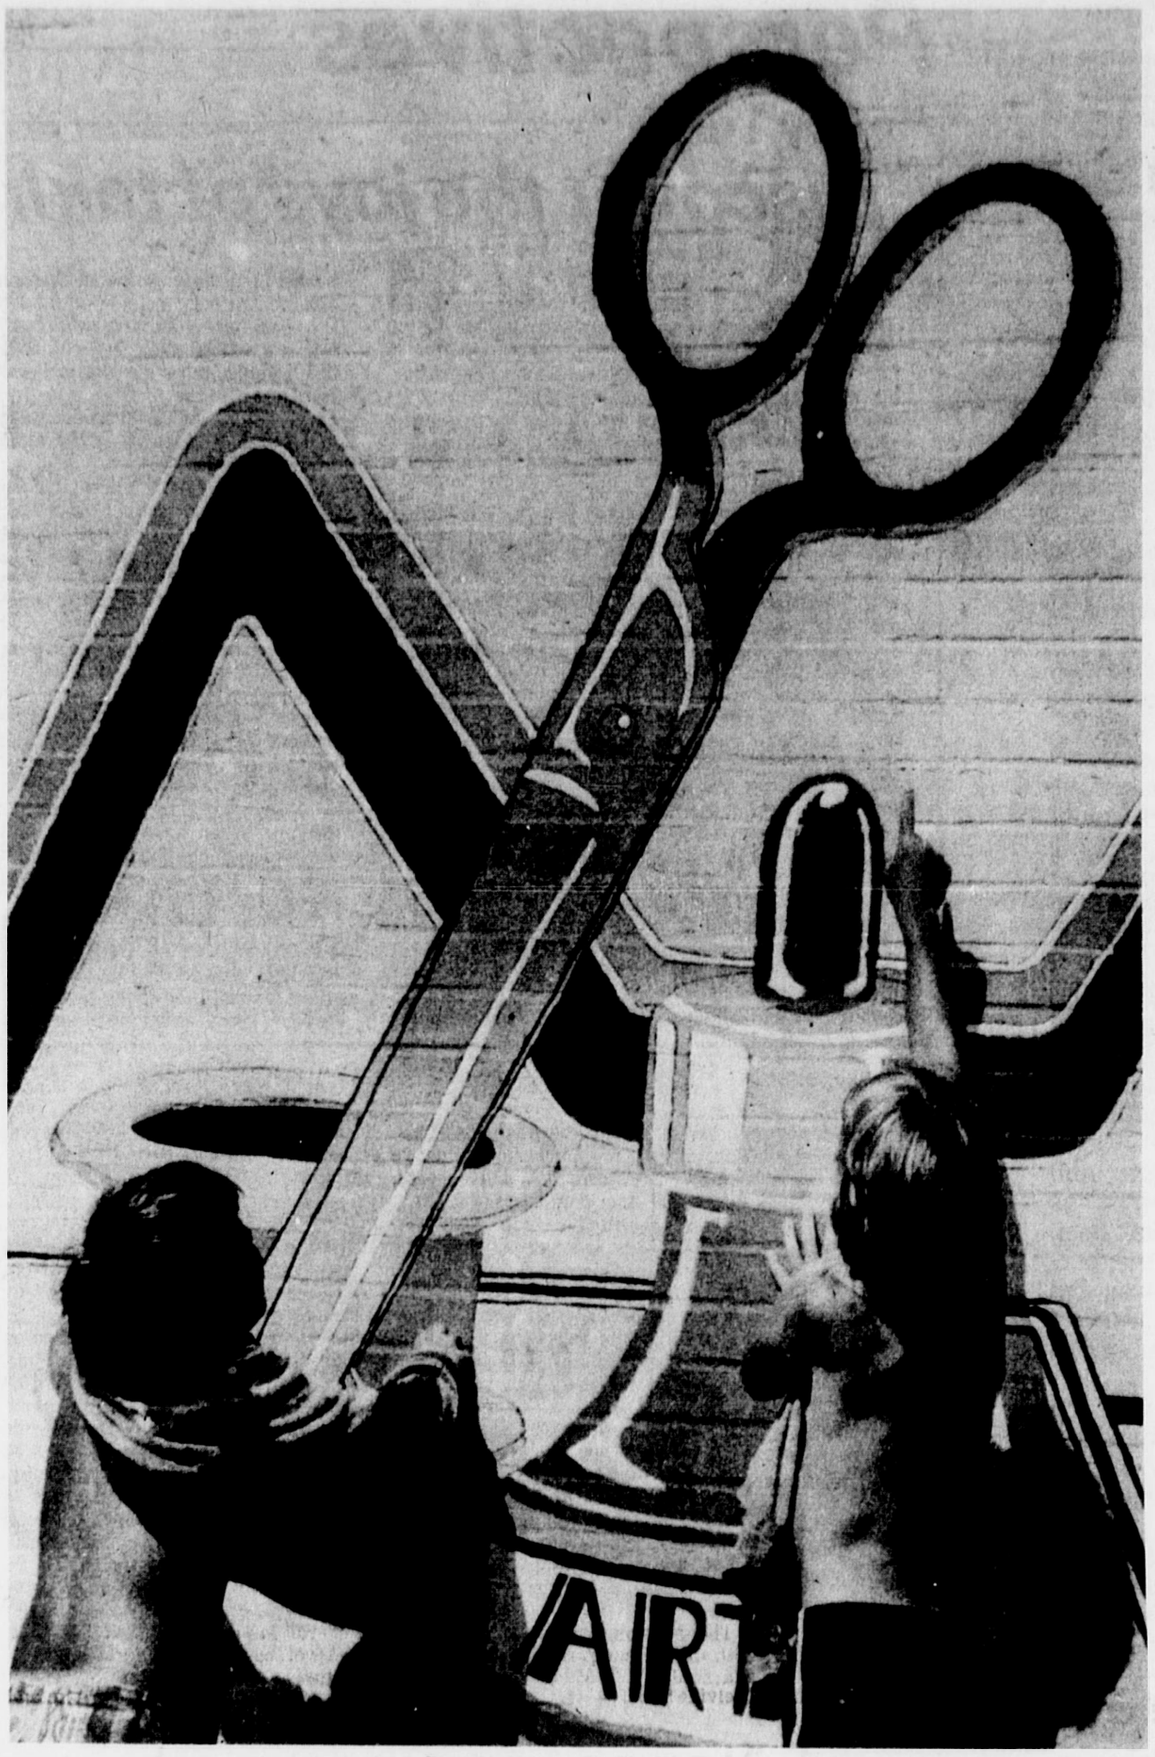

"If we do nothing," Richmond said, "the precedent will stand." He further suggested that the city appeal the injunction of the Middlesex Superior Court ordering Quinn to pay Guaragna's past psychiatric bills.

"Newton always has to be first in everything," said Ald. Robert Tennant, "and it costs us a bucket of money and here we go again."

Richmond said the appeal of the Retirement Board's July 23 action would be based on the fact that the action reversed a previous vote and that the fact that one of three board members abstained.

Guaragna was granted accidental disability retirement by the Retirement Board July 23, which qualifies him for a pension equaling 72 percent of his salary tax free for the rest of his life.

Four psychiatrists concurred that his psychological condition was caused by several incidents in which he was harassed and attacked while serving as a police officer in Newton.

Newtonville man faces drug charges

NEWTON—A Newtonville man has been arraigned on four drug-related felony charges as a result of a police search Friday night at 272 Newtonville Ave.

Police say the search turned up "thousands of dollars worth of heroin" as well as "needles, syringes, and other drug paraphenalia."

William Allen, 28, was arrested at the scene and charged with possession of a Class 6 substance with intent to sell, possession of hypodermic needles and syringes (separate charges)with intent to sell, and possession of a Class A substancewith intent to sell.

Police say the search was carried out after a lengthy investigation with a search warrant from Newton District Court.

The residence was reportedly under surveillance for some time before six detectives and three uniform officers surrounded it Friday evening at 9:35 p.m.

Youth still in intensive care

NEWTON — A 16-year-old youth from Newton Highlands was still in the intensive care unit at Newton-Wellesley Hospital Wednesday after he was hit by a car while driving a moped.

Police says Philip Emmanuel, 16, of 63 Bowdoin St. was struck by a car driven by Laraine Swett, 34, of 59 Grove St. at the intersection of Plymouth Rd., and Endicott St. around 1 p.m. Monday.

Emmanuel has been in the intensive care unit since he was admitted to the hospital Monday afternoon.

The driver of the car told police she was unable to avoid the moped, which reportedly entered the intersection right in front of her car. She was not cited by police.

The program is not at the Chestnut Hill Cooperative Bank, as previously reported.

Clarification

The wording of a sentence concerning the School Committee race in Ward 8 that appeared at the end of last week's election story has apparently caused confusion.

Running for the School Committee seat in Ward 8 are Robert Ricles and Youth Commission Chairman Alfred Smith. Neihter is an incumbent. The seat is being vacated by veteran School Committeeman Alvin Mandell.

More time granted to plan human services

NEWTON— The Human Services Advisory Committee voted yesterday by a four to three margin to extend the deadline for human service agency pre-applications by one week from August 27 to September 4.

The committee is trying to decide what human service programs to allocate their money for. . Their budget for Fiscal Year 1980 is $140,000. This money comes from the federal Community Development Block Grant Program. Newton has received $2.3 million for FY 80; the Commnunity Development Authority of Newton determines how the $2.3 million is distributed. The committee originally asked the Planning Board for $254,000 for FY 80, but received only the $140,000.

By October the committee would like to allocate their money for human service programs because some of their previously funded programs run out funds in October. Deadline for the pre-applications is September 4. At that time the committee will evaluate the pre-applications.

In other business, the committee has considered working with Bill Slotnik and the Community School. The committee suggested programs, which it could not fund, to the Community School program and its executive director Slotnik.

Community Schools, complete with 12,000 participants, offers a multitude of activites and courses.Some programs educate people, help them, or just are created for recreation.

Thirty percent of Community Schools is funded by the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee; the other 70 percent is raised through membership fees, regular fees, and grants.

"A big part of our program," said Slotnik, "is to develop skills. " Regarding neighborhoos who would like any sort of program he said, " All people have to do is contact us. We'd be delighted."

Paula Belsey, chairperson of the committe , said she thought the committee would be asking Community Schools for help, but Community Schools could use the committee's assistance to help set up programs for Newton neighborhoods.

Belsey said, "We can be helpful to you."

The Human Services Assistance Program has committed over $214,000 to 19 social and human service related programs operated by 11 agencies. It focuses on the following need priorities: day care, youthalcohol abuseprevention, and the elderly.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, August 21, in Room 209, at City Hall.

The pre-applications will be available the latter part of next week.

Claflin Hall price snags plans

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
Staff Writer

NEWTON—Developers with proposals for the reuse of Claflin Hall may be sent back to the drawing board a second time, and some of them may withdraw them altogether because the purchase price of the site may be going up.

Finance Committee Chairman Edward Richmond and Ald. Robert Tennant say the value of the property as a site for condominiums has gone up considerably since the Planning Department issued its request for proposals in January.

Richmond said says the $110,000 price is "about half what it should be." Tennant says "The market has gone absolutely haywire, even within the last six months."

Fifteen developers were invited to submit revised proposals in March because the Administration and Planning Committee recommended residential use for the entire site. Those developers had all previously submitted proposals for combined commercial and residential use.

Abuttors of the property say that if the price is raised, no developers will submit proposals. They say that vandalism in the building, which has been vacant since Newton Junior College closed in 1976, will make it costly to develop.

The highest purchase price in the proposals submitted to the Planning Department this time around was $150,000 by Claflin Hall Associates, but that proposal was not recommended by the department because it "would require major site alterations" to comply with the city zoning ordinance.

Of the four proposals recommended by the Planning Department, the highest bidder is Newton School House Co. with $138,000.

The proposals all call for 12 townhouses on the site, with seven to 14 apartments planned in the existing building.

The Finance Committee will request a recessed meeting at the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen to consider the price of Claflin Hall after examining the price of comparable pieces of land in neighboring towns.

Three injured in accident

NEWTON—Three persons were injured Friday when a car reportedly "shot out from Oak Street" onto Needham Street, causing another car to swerve into the opposite lane.

Police say Lawrence Hanlon, 29, of 467 Commercial St., Weymouth was westbound on Needham Street around 10 p.m. when the other car pulled out in front of him from Oak Street.

Hanlon's vehicle swerved into the eastbound lane where it collided with a car driven by Kathleen Bergin, 23, of 108 Fairfield Av St., Needham. TRAFFIC 2

Hanlon, Bergin and Sandra Shaheen, a passenger in the Bergin vehicle, were taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital where they were treated and released. The accident is under investigation.

A Marlboro woman was injured Monday in a collision on Boylston Street near Woodcliff Road.

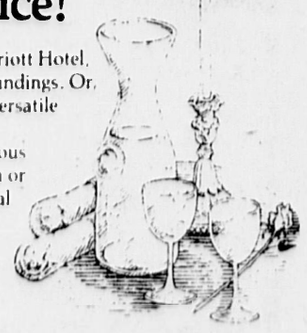

A car driven by Mary Murphy, 58, of 624 Boston Post Road, Marlboro was reportedly stopped at a red light when it was struck by a car driven by Maria Monsalde,29, of 123 Bishop Drive, Framingham around 1 p.m.

Murphy was treated and released at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Editorial

The verdict

It's simple' it saves money and it improves the quality of justice. It's a wonder no one ever thought of it before.

What?

The pilot jury selection program that has been in effect in Middlesex County since last January.

Newton State Rep. David Mofenson reported last week that the pilot program has worked so well, he's going to file legislation to institute the system statewide.

We would like to commend and give our support to the people who desi9ned the pilot jury program. It deserves to become a statewide system.

Mofenson says the program has saved Middlesex County an average of $55,000 a month.

The pilot program did away with profession exemptions, but it eased the burden for prospective jurors, quite often breadwinners, by changing the amount of time a juror must serve from a month to one trial. Mofenson says 85 percent of trials are finished within three days.

It means employers don't have to do without valuable employees for a month, and because no one is exempt, changes the jury pool to more accurately represent a cross-section of one's "peers."

Doctors, lawyers, reporters and even police officers can serve as jerors. In fact, a police chief has been impaneled for a trial since the program began. And a doctor was the foreman of the jury in a malpractice case. Imagine how helpful his expertise was!

The reason the system is saving the county money is that juror compensation begins on the fourth day of service. So all those three-day trials are saving taxpayer money.

Mofenson credits Middlesex County Jury Commissioner Joseph Romanow of Newton with writing the law. High praise for Romanow comes from others too because he worked with election commissioners and city clerks on his law to come up with a procedure that would be easy for them to implement.

We'd like to commend Mr. Romanow too. He is truly a many after our own hearts—a man who knows the value of the motto, "Keep it simple."

"Mother has invited you to spend the night, but I'm warning you. Don't expect any good junk food."

My Turn

Discover the joys of taking a walk

By ANN CARTER

You are probably walking more than you used to. Do you ever forget about saving your gas or your shape, and walk just for fun?

Newton is a great place to do it. Each village has its personality and the city offers a diverting mix of housing and people types. No matter how many times you have driven through them you won't really be familiar with the villages until you have explored them on foot.

Fantasize about the personalities of residents. Consider what they plant and store in their yards, how they care for their property, how they have decorated or remodeled. Each house is individual, even in a row of development homes. Your own neighborhood takes on new interest when you learn the architectural details of the houses and meet the dogs and children who live in them.

The greenery of Newton is sometimes spectacular. The oak is the city's dominant tree but there is a rich variety of other species, beautiful in any season. Some of Newton's modest or massive older homes are framed by magnificent rhododendrons or other handsome shrubs. From the professionally manicured grounds to the garden shrines and the pocket flower beds edged with lettuce or parsley, the botanical rewards are great.

As various as their houses are the people of Newton, who come in all models and types. The tide which ebbs and flows from the MBTA stations is a sampling. Chic working women, Symphony-bound matrons, students. Business suits, T-shirts, down jackets. Shopping bags, brief cases, back packs and books. Sometimes someone has a huge musical instrument or even a dog.

Joggers are standard on almost any street. The tennis-mad matron in her whites bounces about the shops and squares like one of her own tennis balls. In summer in the Crystal Lake area you may see a soggy boy in wet swim trunks dash across a street of heavy traffic, leaving the damp prints of his bare feet on the pavement.

Besides the parks and playgrounds, esch village has its special gathering spots. Years before anyone heard of a "tot lot", Arthur Southwick put up a tire swing and gym equipment on his Waban Avenue property for the use of the neighborhood children. Some of them have children of their own now to play at the tire swing.

The aqueduct crossing the city provides assorted interesting pockets of turf for sledding and ball games. Sections of the Charles River banks, which border Newton for 12.3 miles, have become picnic and parking grounds, nature and cross country ski trails.

It wouldn't be hard to explore the unfamiliar sections of the city, even if you don't want to use the gasoline. When you have a legitimate errand across town, allow enough time to walk around the area while you are there. Or ride a stop or two on one of the bus lines or the T.

The various shopping centers of Newton open new bargains and specialties to the walker. Browse in a new gift shop, locate the day-old bread store, learn who carries the best cheese. When you do this, of course, your brisk walk becomes a stop-and-go shopper's saunter, and you may well end up with something you have to carry home. But after all, you walked briskly to get there, didn't you?

Walk the same beat regularly, from planting time to harvest, and share the gardener's pride in burgeoning lawns, tomatoes, roses. Learn the unfamiliar plants thoughtfully identified in some gardens with botanical labels. Study the shapes of trees in winter or animal tracks in snow. An all-weather walker can savor the full flavor of the territory.

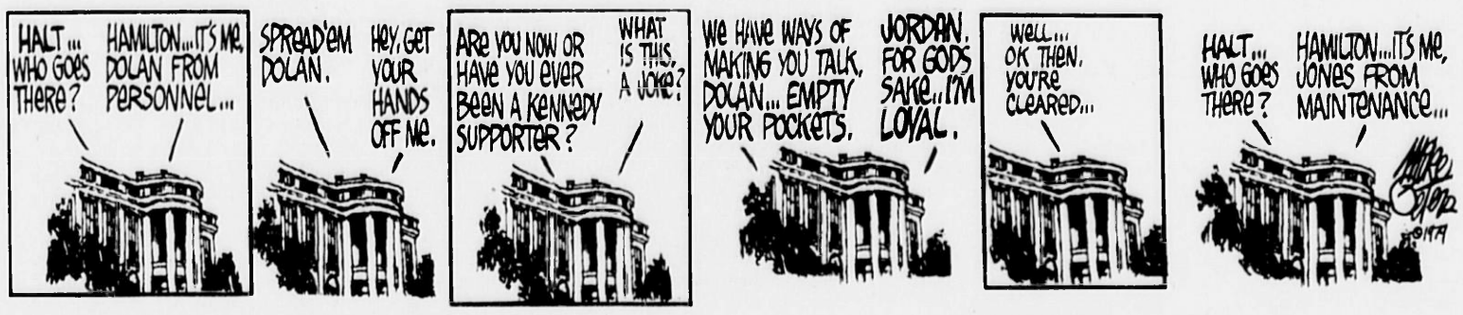

If you have a special interest like bird watching, architecture, geology, there is probably a Newton tour featuring the object of your interest. But part of the fun of the random walk is its lack of purpose. Write a letter and take it to a mailbox, not necessarily the nearest. Go to the third tree on the right, touch it and return. Plan a loop walk or walk up one side of the street and down the other. Push the stroller, air the dog, or just walk.

If you wander by the pond at City Hall, you can see how many other birds share the water with the resident ducks. You may even happen on a wedding on the bridge if the weather is fine.

Wander around Crystal Lake and perhaps you'll see the girl who so skillfully rides a unicycle along its edge. Notice the wind, and the number of flags flying in it.

Pull some crabgrass with the volunteers who carefully tend their community plantings all season. Have a good walk!

The aftermath of Watergate

Commentary by Donald Lambro
UPI Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — It was five years ago that the House Judiciary Committee voted to impeach Richard Nixon, driving him from office.

Some members say the bitter residue of Watergate lingers on, corroding the nation's confidence in its government

In interviews on the fifth anniversary of the impeachment proceedings, members who served on the committee in those historic days said the passage of time has not altered their perception of the scandal that destroyed the Nixon presidency, nor their belief in the rightness of what they did.

Yet some, like Chairman Peter Rodino, fear that the aftermath of the scandal which shook the nation still festers in the public mind in a growing distrust, suspicion and lack of confidence in government.

The 38-member committee has changed substantially since those days in July, 1974 when the nation watched and listened as the committee voted three times to impeach Nixon — July 27, for obstruction of justice; July 29, for abuse of power; July 30, for failure to comply with House subpoenas for information related to Watergate.

Only 14 of the original 38 remain. Twenty no longer are in the House. Several were defeated in the so-called "Watergate election" of 1974. Some unsuccessfully tried for higher office and failed. Others retired.

The limelight and national recognition of the impeachment hearings paid off politically for only two members: Reps. William Cohen, R-Maine, and Paul Sarbannes, D-Md., went on to the Senate in 1976.

Barbara Jordon, D-Texas, catapulted to national attention by the hearings, retired unexpectedly in 1976 to teach at the University of Texas.

William Hungate, D-Mo., whose country humor often cooled the passions of the panel's deliberations, is a U.S. district court judge.

Others like Walter Flowers, D-Ala., James Mann, D-S.C., Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., and Charles Sandman, R-N.J., are pursuing successful law practices.

In a lengthy interview in his Capitol Hill office, Rodino remembered those days as "a traumatic time." On his office wall hang reminders of the Watergate days: framed copies of the national news magazine covers with his picture.

Rodino said he was "more aware now than ever before that the awful mistrust that people had then has left a great deal in its wake and has aggravated the climate of today's crisis in confidence in our government officials — and indeed touches the very presidency."

"It has left an awful kind of impact in the aftermath because that distrust is still there," Rodino said. "The suspicion is still there. The lack of confidence in public officials.

"When we look back and couple Watergate with Vietnam and then again with some of the other practices we found in government — whether in the executive branch, the judiciary or the legislature — of misusing their office, we find all the more that it goes back to the time of Watergate when it became so great and we focused on it so much."

The New Jersey Democrat, whose name and face become nationally recognized as a result of the impeachment inquiry, said the evidence of what he repeatedly called the "aftermath" of Watergate is abundant.

"Go to the polls, and you find our how drastically there is a falloff and a fallout in voter participation. What does this say

"I have to conclude that it says, 'Look, we don't believe that you can govern. We don't believe in some of you. And there has been all of this abuse of power. There has been this deception. There has been more concern with being elected or re-elected.'

"And so to me while it may not be Watergate as such, it's the aftermath," Rodino said.

For former Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., a partner in a Washington law firm, the impeachment inquiry "changed my attitude greatly because I was under great political pressure (from constituents) to support the president. But I felt it was more important to support the Constitution."

Flowers said Watergate forced "a re-evaluation by the people in their government, and since then there has been a great exposure of wrongdoing.

"It was very important part of my life. It was one of those terrible things you see happen but you are awfully glad you were there when it happened. I think I was a better congressman as a result of it.

"I think we did the right thing," he said. "There was no issue that I faced in Congress that measured up to that one. Hardly a week goes by that I don't have someone ask me to relate some part of it to them."

For Cohen, one of Nixon's earliest GOP critics on the committee, the impeachment inquiry has been "pushed back into the recesses of my own mind."

"These things tend to be airbrushed with the passage of time into a gray oblivion," he said. "We tend to minimize the importance of the event long after it has receded."

"The country is stronger for what we have gone through," Cohen added, but he also reflected Rodino's belief the nation still is gripped in the throes of Watergate's "aftermath."

"I think the president has been weakened as a result of that aftermath," he said. "But there has also been a healthier separation of powers" between the White House and the Congress.

"History swings in cycles," Cohen said. "What we saw then was a tremendous concentration of power in one branch and a weakening in the other."

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, now the committee's ranking Republican, said he thinks about the impeachment proceedings "about every day I guess. Other people remind me of them — whenever I meet with constituents, scholars, political scientists. They seem to have a vivid memory of 1974."

But McClory said he rejected the "tendency on the part of Democrats to try to keep the whole period alive, to use it for political purposes, endeavoring to castigate Republicans as responsible for Watergate."

"I don't think that the offenses of Watergate were peculiar to Republicans or to that period," he said.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., said, "I think most of what has happened since (the impeachment hearings) has only borne out what we were involved in.

"You had a president who resigned from office in the face of a certain impeachment," Sarbanes said. "That's never happened before in our history. And I think the memory and legacy of that is still with us. To some extent it can be related to our present difficulties."

He said he thinks it is important that "young people who come along should read about it, learn about it, and understand and appreciate why it was important and significant."

Rep. Tom Railsback of Illinois, now second ranking Republican on the panel, said that Watergate "when coupled with Vietnam created a malaise in the country which has resulted in fewer Americans even taking enough interest to vote."

"As you look at the election statistics, you see a steady decline in voter turnout," Railsback said. "The whole sleazy revelations of the Watergate era contributed to the shock and dismay of the American people."

Yet throughout their remarks about the nation's impeachment trauma and the resignation it forced, one refrain was repeated again and again:

The orderly, rather calm transition of government that followed Nixon's departure from office.

"We learned once again," Rodino said, "that not only the system worked, but it worked so beautifully that there was not a single shot fired, there wasn't any violence, there wasn't any outbreak."

Said McClory:

"The Congress rose to its responsibility, and I think the American people should pause to remember it.

"And I think they should take pride in the fact that we have such a great document that it is capable of performing in a great critical transition without violence, without serious upheaval."

"In all of this, Richard M. Nixon has acted in a manner contrary to his trust as President and subversive of constitutional government, to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and to the manifest injury of the people of the United States.

"Wherefore Richard M. Nixon, by such conduct, warrants impeachment and trial, and removal from office." —Articles of Impeachment.

Nixon...Watergate has left its mark on the entire country

Opinions

Nahanton changes

To the Editor:

On Monday, Aug. 13, a petition concerning Nahanton Woods will again be brought before the Board of Aldermen. It is an amendment to allow increased density, parking, lifting of a restricted area, driveway site changes, and technical changes regarding waste disposal and landscaping.

As a neighborhood, we have opposed petitions regarding this area for the past three or four summers. When the petition to rezone was passed, we did not employ any legal delaying tactics, and we put it all to rest.

However, less than nine months later, we again find ourselves in a position where we feel that our original opposition is still viable.

Rather than being an "amendment," the changes being asked suggest that it is basically a new petition. We are confused and concerned about the density.

At the original hearing, one figure was given; and less than two weeks later, with the same plans in view, another figure was given. We assume now that the percentage increase is somewhere in the 17 to 25 percent range.

More importantly, it seems the number of bedrooms must be around the doubled figure. Relatively speaking, however, even 1 percent of a five-story building is sizeable.

In asking for the increase, it seems that somehow the allowance for the low-income housing agreed to in the original petition is the dominating factor. We suggest that when the petition to rezone was passed last October, this was fully explored and seemed to be fully agreed on.

To allow any increase on this basis will only result in a pattern of developers expecting that they are entitled to increased density on the same basis. This is a dangerous precedent to establish.

We are also concerned with the lifting of a restricted area. This also was part of the board order. It is just another step in reducing anything that was gained in the original order.

It raises much concern with us with the other restricted area. This is the larger area containing a wetland. According to the former board order, this does not have to be formulated until before an occupancy permit is issued.

This, of course, leaves so much to be determined at a critical date when people may be waiting to become settled.

Because waste disposal and landscaping are technical matters and should be determined with as much expertise as possible, we feel that they could be amended in a separate manner.

We would hope that the issues that concern the peripheral area will be given utmost and separate consideration. In the past few months, truck traffic on Winchester Street has increased incredibly fast. With the increased development in Wells Ave. and on Needham Street, Winchester Street and the little side streets have naturally become the access routes from both Rte. 9 and Rte. 128.

The estimated increase a few years ago for a development this size was somewhere between 900 and 1200 trips per day. Any further increase, of course, just compounds the problem.

With an increase in the development of den-bedroom space, it is inevitable that families with children will move in. Under the present system, transportation will no doubt be required.

Historically, the Board of Aldermen has always served to make Newton a better place to live while at the same time endeavoring to satisfy a tax base. We do not feel that an increase in density or a lifting of the restricted area will serve either purpose.

We would like to request that the technical portion of the petition be separated from the density change and related portions.

We do not know whether this can be done or not, but, as citizens, we do know that waste disposal is highly important and should be taken care of, while at the same time we feel that the density increase would be detrimental to the area.

As we write this, we are highly disappointed.

We honestly hoped that the October decision would be the end of it. We "put the baby to bed," so to speak. Now, before even one summer has passed, the petitioner has rocked the cradle.

It is rather disgusting.

Backman: Welfare needs hike

NEWTON—In a letter to Governor King last week, Senator Jack H. Backman urged the Governor to keep his pledge to support legislation granting mothers and chi8ldren on welfare a six percent cost-of-living increase. The Governor had promised to deliver a special welfare message when he vetoed the proposed cost-of -living hike in the Fiscal 1980 State Budget three weeks ago. King said that program was not eligible for federal reimbursement. "I can not understand the reason for any further delay," said Backman. "The very day the Governor issued his veto message, a bipartisan coalition of ten legislators filed a bill that meets all federal requirements." The legislators' bill immediately grants a six percent increase to all welfare recipients. Its estimated cost is slightly less than the program King . originally vetoed. The Governor had not opposed the size of the Aid to Family with Dependent Children (A.F.D.C.) budget, only its wording, and had promised that his new spending recommendation wouldbeabout the same. The state's grant to needy families has not increased since July 1, 1977. The Consumer Price Index has increased since then by 15 percent. "Compared with that standard, a six percent cost-of-living increase is modest, at best," Backman's letter concluded. "Please submit your special message promptly so that the 360,000 mothers and children receiving A.F.D.C. can begin to cope with their inflationary-pinched budgets."

Grant for warehouse

NEWTON CENTRE — The Tatelman Family Trust has been awarded a grant by the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency (MIFA) to acquire a warehouse in Newton Centre.

The $1.5 million grant will assist the trust, acting on behalf of Jordan's Furniture Co., in acquiring a new warehouse at 125 Wells Ave.

The firm intends to acquire the 7.5 acre site with an existing 6-year-0ld building and renovate it.

Jordan's Furniture is being forced by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to vacate its Waltham warehouse which will then be used for housing.

The Newton Centre facility will become the central warehouse for Jordan's, but the retail store will stay in Waltham.

Eighteen new jobs are expected to be created.

Pair nabbed shoplifting

NEWTON — Police apprehended a couple who was allegedly walking from store to store in the Chestnut Hill Mall and stealing as they went, Tuesday morning.

According to police reports, police were alerted that the couple might be stealing by store managers at Bloomingdales and Stowells Jewelry.

The police caught up with the Dorchester man, 25, and the Roxbury woman, 25, in August Max.

The woman was reportedly wearing necklaces, a shirt, and a scarf taken from Bloomingdales, and the man was wearing a pair of sunglasses also taken from Bloomingdales.

Upon further investigation, police discovered more stolen products, valued at considerably more than $100, from Bloomingdales , Filene's and Perkins Tobacco.

In another break Tuesday, police arrested a couple for breaking and entering at Mulhern's Sunaco Station, 325 Boylston St.

The Mattapan man, 32, and the Quincy more woman, 22, allegedly entered the service station building by knocking in a metal panel on a door.

Responding to an anonymous phone call, police apprehended the couple at 5:30 p.m. sitting in their car with a case of motor oil and tools from the service station. The couple had also reportedly helped themselves to gas.

A Warren Rd. house was also broken into some time between Aug. 3 and Aug. 7 and more than $1,000 worth of goods is reported missing.

The owner of the house told the police that while she was absent intruders appeared to have smashed in a door and entered the house taking an antique clock, paintings, prints, china and other items.

Police are investigating.

Reps seek to free Latin doctor

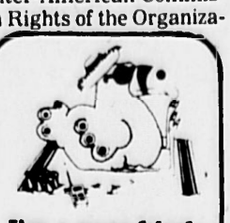

NEWTON— The Massachusetts House of Representatives has passed a resolution last month sponsored by Reps. David J. Mofenson and David B. Cohen calling on the government of Argentina to release Dr. Maximo Eduardo Jaroslavsky. A similar resolutin offered by Sen. Jack H. Backman will be considered before the Senate this week. Dr. Jaroslavsky, an Argentine cardiologist, disappeared four years ago in Tucuman, Argentina enroute to a heart clinic he had established in that city. His family, including a relative living in Allston, has not heard from him since that evening. In January, 1978, an Argentine refugee sent word to the family that he had seen Dr. Jaroslavsky, and reported that the physician was being held prisoner in a secret military detention camp. Rep. Mofenson said that Amnesty International has submitted Dr. Jaroslavsky's name to the Inter-American Commission of Human Rights of the Organization of American States (OAS). In addition, numerous appeals have been made to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to include Dr. Jaroslavsky on the list of missing persons sent to the Argentine government. , Appeals have also been made to the Minister of the Interior and the Minister of Justice of Argentina. To date, his family has received no explanation for his disappearance. "The grave and tragic situation of Dr. Jaroslavsky is not an isolated case," said Rep. Cohen. "There is at least one other documented case of a relative of a Massachusetts citizen having disappeared, and Amnesty International states that thousands of Argentinians have vanishcd without a trace." Rep. Mofenson also said the Dr. Jaroslavsky case was brought to the attention of the legislature by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith who was asked by Dr. Jaroslavsky's Boston relative to assist getting even some official word that he was still alive. In its resolution, the House called on the Argentine government to inform Dr. Jaroslavsky's family of and to permit ?his whereabouts visitation rights for his wife and two sons, none of whom have heard from him since the night of his disappearance.

Grand finale Star Market recipe contest

BOSTON—Star Market Company's first annual Recipe Contest will come to a grand finale on Thursday, August 9th at the Sheraton Boston Hotel. Recipes submitted were based on four food categories: 7-Rib Pork Roast, Rock Cornish Hens, Smoked Ham Shank or Country Style Pork Ribs. Kay McCarthy, Star's TV Recipe of th Week Hostess, chose the 12 semi-finalists from over 700 entrants. Each was judged on originality of recipe, wide appeal and clarity of directions.

The recipes, many of them old family favorites, will be judged on appearnace and flavor.

The 12 semi-finalists whose recipes will be judged are: Ms. Frances Cullen of Hyde Park, Ms. Bernadette Cusack, South Hamilton, Ms. Mary Morris, Sudbury; Mr. Roy Dahl, Yarmouthport, Mrs. David Sheets, Wellesley; Ms. Anne Williams, Subury, Ms. Mary Sarkes, Readville; Ms. Diane Dervin, Westwood; Ms. Norma Bennett, Wolfeboro, N.H.; Ms. Karen Smith, Laconia, N.H.; Ms. Cecila Pinto, Pawtucket, R.I. and Mrs. Joan Peters, York, Me.

The four Grand Prize winner will each receive an Amana Touchmatic II microwave oven, $500 worth of food in Star Markey gift certificates and their recipe prepared on television by Kay McCarthy. 8 second place winners will receive $100 worth of food in Star Market gift certificates.

Look for the 4 winning recipes in Star's weekly circular available at all Star Markets.

She made bail but couldn't make door

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Mattie Elam was nowhere to be seen when she was convicted in Criminal Court on charges of possessing illegal lottery slips.

Mrs. Elam did not jump bail. The door to the courtroom was simply too narrow to accommodate her 350-pound frame.

Mrs. Elam's daughter stood in for her mother after Judge Robert Watts allowed Mrs. Elam to plead "guilty in absentia" in the case. Mrs. Elam was found guilty and fined $150 plus $80 in court costs.

Assistant State's Attorney Dennis Cuomo said police found uncounted quantities of illegal lottery numbers and slips in Mrs. Elam's second-floor bedroom during an April 30 raid.

Natick road race forms available

NATICK — Long distance runners may obtain entry forms for Natick's Third Annual Road Race at several retail outlets and recreation department offices.

Forms for the 5.5 mile mini-marathon, sponsored by the Natick Recreation and Park Department, at 6:00 p.m. on Wednesday, August fifteenth, may be obtained from the Recreation Departments in Framingham, Natick, Needham, Wayland, Wellesley and Dover. Runners may also find entry blanks for the Natick race in Framingham at Road Runner and in the sporting goods department of Lechmere Sales at the Framingham Mall, at Sports III Inc. and at Herman's World of Sporting Goods at Shopper's World.

This year, for the first time, wheelchair athletes may compete in the Natick race, leaving Memorial School on Eliot Street (Route 16) at 6:00 p.m. Other competitors will start the course at 6:30 p.m.

PBS in the spotlight

Pete Seeger & Arlo Guthrie on 'Summerfest '79'

'Summerfest '79' presents a folksinging jamboree Saturday, Aug. 11, when an encore performance of 'Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie From Wolf Trap' is presented on PBS.*

Arlo Guthrie

Seeger and Guthrie, two of the best-known singers in the American tradition of folk music, perform together and separately in this 1978 concert recorded at Wolf Trap Farm Park in Virginia.

Among Seeger's numbers are the traditional favorites 'Where Have All the Flowers Gone?,' 'Freight Train' and 'If I Had a Hammer.' Arlo Guthrie performs his hits 'City of New Orleans' and 'Ground Hog' and sings along with Seeger for 'This Land Is Your Land' and 'Midnight Special.'

'Summerfest '79' is a three-month-long season of Saturday evening popular music and dance concerts broadcast from summer music festivals across the country.

Pete Seeger

The series which was developed by public television's first performing arts consortium of stations—KCET/Los Angeles, WETA/Washington, D.C., WTTW/Chicago, and WNET/New York—has been made possible by grants from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and public television stations through the Station Program Cooperative.

Happiness for comedian George Burns is ...

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comedian George Burns has been filming on location in 95-degree mid-Manhattan, the lunch break is two hours late, and he's expected to talk while chewing a ham-and-cheese sandwich.

"Don't worry about it," he reassures the interviewer. "I can talk through the holes in the Swiss cheese."

Which he does. But not for long. When he finds he can't even give the sandwich away, it's, "Where did I leave my cigar holder?"

At 83 he smokes "10 to 15 cigars a day. I don't bother with Cuban cigars or anything like that. I use a holder. And with a holder a 35-cent cigar smokes just as good as a $2 cigar."

The scene is his air-conditioned trailer-dressing room, parked on 51st Street just east of Park Avenue in the city where he was born.

They're doing location scenes for Warner Bros.' "Going in Style," a comedy about three retirees anxious for action, in which he stars with Art Carney and Lee Strasberg. A few blocks away "Just You and Me, Kid," which he made with Brooke Shields for Columbia Pictures, is having its premiere showing.

Since "The Sunshine Boys," Burns has been flooded with movie offers. There was "Oh, God," and his next will be an "Oh, God" follow-up.

"Going in Style" should have been in the can by now. But Carney hurt an eye, which held up shooting for two weeks, so they've still got a couple of weeks to go in New York, and then a week in Las Vegas.

"I'm not a gambler, but I play a little blackjack. I like it because you can do it sitting down," Burns says.

"That's why I like acting — you can do it sitting down. At my age, I'm in the right business.

"When we get back to the Coast..." (he lives in Beverly Hills, in the same house which he and his late wife and partner, Gracie Allen, bought 40 years ago) "...when we get back, I'll be doing another 'Oh, God' movie: 'Oh, God, Part Two.' But I won't be doing it for another six months. I want to a play a little bridge.

"I have an office where I go every day and work from about 10 till 12. I have five — no, four — people working for me, three writers and a secretary, and we sit around and talk. Then I go to the (Hillcrest Country) Club for lunch, a couple of hours of bridge. In the afternoon a nap, then a couple of Martinis. Two-three times a week maybe I go out to a good restaurant."

A favorite dinner partner for great-grandfather Burns is blonde Rebecca Brooks, his personal assistant, who cooks his meals when he's filming, helps him learn his lines, retrieves his cigar-holder, mixes his Martinis.

Miscellaneous Burnsisms:

The roller-skating fad: "I used to dance on roller skates. There was a trick to it: the back wheels didn't work.

"Brooke Shields gave me a pair of roller skates when we finished 'Just You and Me, Kid.' I don't know how she knew I needed another pair."

The energy crisis: "I get my energy from eating vegetables and sour cream. Make sure the onions are in there, too. No; I get my energy working. Having something to do sparks you."

Manhattan's muggy summer weather: A wave of the cigar and, "I don't mind the weather — so long as I get paid. I get paid if the sun shines; if it rains, I get paid."

Food: "I like food you can eat with a fork and a spoon. I feel if you have to cut it with a knife you should be paid for eating it."

Playing God: "Didn't bother me. There's a little bit of God in everybody, and if God makes a mistake that proves he's only human. John Denver made the movie beautiful. If God did come down, he'd pick someone like John to speak to. I don't think it would work with Milton Berle.'

Movies today: "Realism is great. This movie is real. It's about 75-80 percent on location, and I think if you've got a believable background you believe in the actors. No one uses makeup any more. When I started in movies, everyone looked like Dolores del Rio.

He enthuses over Martin Brest, 27-year old writer-director of "Going in Style."

New anti-sting drug supply up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1 million to 2 million Americans who run the risk of severe allergic reactions from insect stings now have a first-of-its kind immunization treatment.

Demand for the new drug has been so heavy that many doctors who ordered it have had to wait since the product was approved last spring by the Food and Drug Administration.

The manufacturer, Pharmacia Inc., Piscataway, N.J. hopes to have all orders filled by the end of August or the beginning of September, and be in a position to keep a 4- to 6-months supply on hand thereafter.

The treatment is the first ever to use just the venom of bees, hornets and other insects to protect against severe reactions to stings. The FDA estimates 30 to 50 Americans die each year from such reactions.

Highly sensitive persons, once stung, can suffer a sudden drop in blood pressure, collapse and die within minutes.

Previous treatments consisted of injections made from ground-up whole insects. Dr. Michael Woehler, in charge of clinical research for the product, told UPI the earlier treatment was not satisfactory because little if any venom was actually left in it.

The new drug, Pharmalgen, uses freeze-dried venoms that are reconstituted with a special diluent before injection. After an initial series of injections patients continue to receive one shot per month to keep up their protection.

Five varieties of venom are available: honey bee, yellow jacket, yellow hornet and white-faced hornet as well as a mixture of yellow jacket, white-faced hornet and yellow hornet venoms. The manufacturer says it markets the combination product because most persons who have insect sting allergies are sensitive to more than one type of sting.

The drugs must be administered by a doctor. They are recommended only for persons who have already experienced potentially life-threatening reactions to a sting, and whose reaction has been confirmed by a skin test.

The costs are high.

Doctors pay from $108 to $531 for the drug in the initial year of treatment, depending on what products or combinations are bought. In subsequent years of treatment, when the doses need not be as strong, the cost still can run from $72 to $354.

The costs to patients would be higher because they include the doctors' fees.

Investment law says: 'Trust us'

HONG KONG (UPI) — China has adopted its first foreign investment code in an attempt to woo foreign technology and the estimated $200 billion it needs to modernize.

But Western capitalists are being invited to invest in China on the basis of the ancient Chinese business principle of "trust."

The new law represents a quantum leap over what businessmen previously knew about their rights and duties in China concerning taxes, employment practices and patent rights.

It also aims to protect China's own rights and resources and leaves many vital questions unanswered.

"We (Chinese) have always believed in trust in business dealings," Liu Yiuchu, a prime architect of the code, said in an interview in Hong Kong's bustling business district.

The investment code, approved by the National People's Congress in early July, contained only 16 skeletal principles.

They stipulate that a foreign investor must contribute at least 25 percent of the cost of a joint venture, with a $1 million minimum. A joint enterprise must have a Chinese as chairman, meaning control rests with China no matter how much the foreigner invests.

Personal and corporate income tax schedules — source of many a capitalistic heartache — have not been handed down, but Mrs. Liu says they "will be promulgated very soon."

A patent rights law will come much later, if at all, she said.

"You must trust us, and we will trust you," Chinese trade officials told a group of Hong Kong-based Western businessmen.

The Chinese appear to be solving many of the unanswered questions on a case-by-case basis. Two companies in the same industry can have entirely different contracts with the Chinese, based solely on how effectively they negotiate with their Chinese hosts.

One thing neither Chinese leaders nor foreign businessmen can control is China's political pendulum. For 10 years during the Culture Revolution, political turmoil brought China's economic growth to a near halt. Mrs. Liu does not think it will happen again.

Although Mrs. Liu holds no official position in the Peking government, the 45-year-old lawyer is a firebrand revolutionary who mentions the Chinese people's well-being with as much zeal as she talks about the epoch-making business code she helped draft.

Born in Hong Kong, Mrs. Liu trained at Oxford University, spent six years at Harvard Law school until 1975, and has been privy to modern multinational corporations' complex legal operations.

Malloy Road Race slated

The second annual John Malloy Memorial Road Race has been scheduled for Wednesday, September 5, according to race coordinator Mike Simbolist. The race will start at 6 p.m. at the Museum of Science in Boston and will follow a 4.2 mile scenic course along the Charles River.

167 Runners competed in last year's race, and the organizers hope to at least double that number this year. (There will be no limit on the number of entrants.) Runners of all ages are invited to compete, and numerous prizes will be awarded.

The race is unusual in that it is not organized by a single institution or running club, but by the entire Boston advertising/media community. It is named after the late John Malloy, a very popular and well-known Boston advertising executive who died last year at the age of 44. He was a former Newton resident.

Every entrant is required to pay a $3 entry fee and to sign-up five personal sponsors who will guarantee $1 per mile completed by that particular runner. All proceeds from the race will be donated to the John T. Malloy Educational Trust Fund, which will underwrite the educations of the three Malloy children. Corporate contributions are also invited. (All contributions are tax deductible).

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the race (which is not AAU sanctioned) and changing facilities will be available at the Museum of Science. A good time is guaranteed to all.

For registration information, write to John Malloy Educational Trust Fund Race, c/o Quinn & Johnson, 535 Boylston St., Boston, Mass., 02116. Or call Mike Simbolist at 262-5800.

World's smallest tennis camp?

"The world's smallest tennis camp," the Tennis/Now Adult and Junior Summer Camp program being conducted on a maximum of two courts at the Tennis/Now OUtdoor Playing Center at 60 Angleside Road in Waltham is unique not only for its size, but also for the quality of its program and teaching.

"Successful group teaching, even with no more than 4 on a court, is made possible by having players at an equivalent level of tennis development and ability," explains Michaeldeming, Tennis/Now's Head Professional and Camp Director. "To insure a good match-up, we evaluate each applicant for the camp ahead of time, and will not accept a player if we don't have the right group." The evaluation is free of charge, can be scheduled at the applicant's convenience, and takes 10-15 minutes.

The Camp program is based on 5 years of camp experience, and consists of a well-balanced mixture of instruction, practice drills, and pro-supervised play. There are morning and evening sessions for adults, and afternoon sessions for juniors. The teaching is by Michael Deming, Hugh Barry, and Jeff Leighton — highly experienced tennis professionals. Tennis/Now teaching was rated "Best in Boston" by Boston Magazine last fall. The daily two and one quarter hours of instruction (2 hours evenings) are supplemented by Free Play and Ball Machine Practice, and use of the Playing Center swimming pool is included in the Camp.

For information about the Camp and available openings for the remaining weekly sessions (through the week of August 27), please call the Playing Center office at 891-6030.

Montrose ...a learning alternative

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

When three sets of parents decided to become solely responsible for their daughters' education, they moved swiftly from philosophy to practicality. These intrepid parents have founded an all girls independent school, Montrose, which will open this September.

Since 50 percent of the student body will be Catholic, the educational component of the school will include optional religious classes.

In a recent interview, two of the fathers, who founded the school and who will be serving on the board of directors, spoke about the kind of educational opportunities they sought for their daughters. Present were G. Edward Noonan, president of the board of directors, and James F. Morgan, treasurer. William Bowman, vice president, was unable to attend.

All Harvard graduates, Noonan and Morgan described themselves as businessmen who could utilize their business acumen for this venture. Morgan is with American Research and Development Corporation while Noonan set up his own business as a financial consultant. Bowman is with the Boston Consulting Group. All the men have daughters.

The kind of school the parents sought to fund was one which would "reflect the values in the home," said Morgan. While students will be taught "the principles of Christian behavior," both men stressed that the school "will not be run by the Church establishment." "It is not a protest movement—it is an alternative," said Morgan.

Having closely examined education offered in public schools and by religious orders, they determined that "these places have strengths of different types, but we feel that education is most effective when parents play a role," explained Noonan.

The role of the parents in the Montrose School would be a strong one. Parents would be asked to monitor progress and to "spend a few evenings during the year at the school."

One of the educational concerns the parents say they will face is that "most kids don't have study skills." Contending that there are "instant breakfast" courses with short order answers, Morgan and Noonan both observed that rigorous requirements such as "demanding writing assignments" are absent from many schools.

Roughly 60 girls will be enrolled at Montrose in grades seven through 10. Morgan observed that the school will be a college preparatory school and will not "take remedial students, 766 students or emotionally disturbed girls—it is for normal girls—average or above average."

Tuition will be $2500 for the 1978-79 year. Montrose will be located in Brookline on property leased from the Sisters of Holy Cross. This was the site of the former Cardinal Cushing College.

Students of any race, color, national and ethnic origin will be accepted. For boys, a similar school, Westbridge, exists. Westbridge is located in Concord and will be moving to Lexington. There are other independent schools such as Montrose in other states. One is the Willows in Chicago and the other is Oakcrest in Washington. It is to schools such as these that the Montrose parents turned and have "depended heavily for their advice."

Presently the school is funded by parents and while they are seeking foundation money, no grants have been disclosed thus far. Therefore, Morgan explained that only a "limited financial aid program will be available."

The director of the school is Dr. Elizabeth DeTore, who has a Ph.D. in reading and study skills, and who will have a daughter in the school. An all female staff has been recruited.

While the salaries are "competitive" with other independent schools, Morgan said they are still lower than public school salaries and for some of the teachers, they represented a 50-60 percent pay cut. "Yet it is the kind of climate that teachers dream about teaching in," says Morgan and he noted that the teachers response had been enthusiastic even in the face of a pay cut.

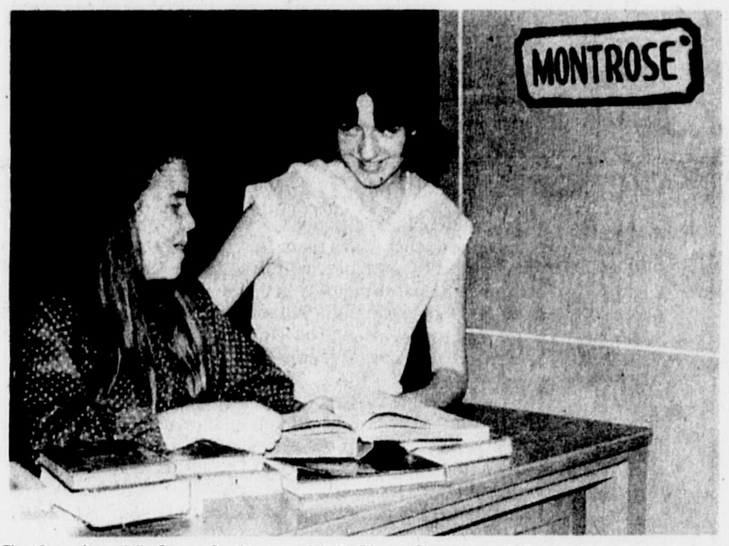

Presently the school is receiving applications, not only from Massachusetts but also from Mexico City, Spain and Germany. Girls who attend the school from other countries must live with a student from the school, says Morgan.

Morgan emphasized that "these parents have concluded that what they want for their children—their dreams and goals—will be realized through personal responsibility."

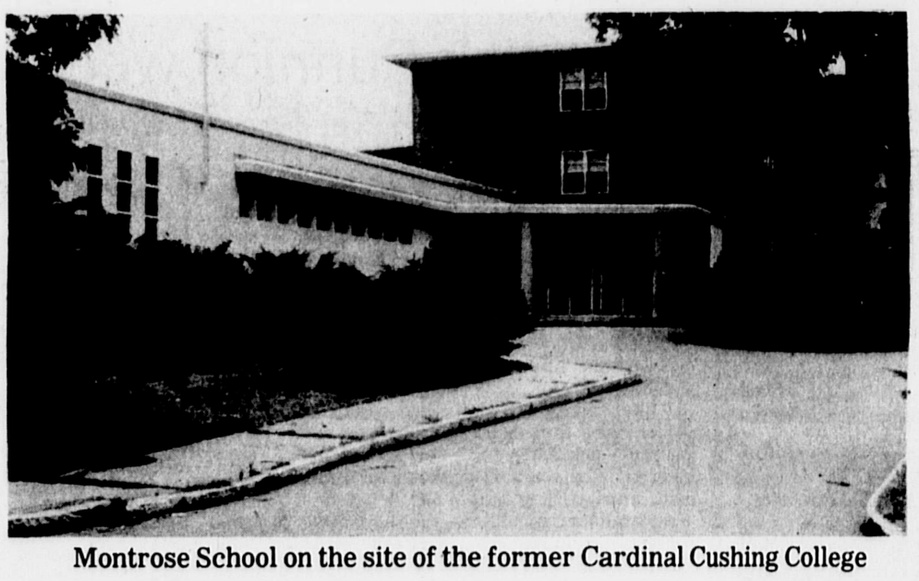

(For information, write The Montrose Foundation, Inc., Room 3128, One Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. 02108.)

THE READERS WRITE.. Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Dear Diane: How about some beat-the-heat summer salads for my "wilting" family?

Mrs. J.S., Needham

Dear Mrs. S: Salad combinations are endless, only limited by what's on hand. Here are a few suggestions.

BEECHER SALAD

1 small pkg. each of lemon and lime jello, dissolved in 1¾ C. hot water. When beginning to thicken add 1 C. evaporated milk, 1 small can crushed pineapple, 1 C. mayonnaise, 1 lb. Farmer's style cottage cheese, 2 Tbsp. horseradish and ½ C. chopped walnuts. This fills 12 individual molds or 1 whole one.

CHICKEN SALAD

4 C. diced cooked chicken
2 C. chopped celery
½ C. finely chopped green onions
2 tsp. minced green pepper
4 chopped hard boiled eggs
1 C. fresh or canned bean sprouts
1 small can sliced water chestnuts
MSG
Lemon pepper
Chicken Seasoning

Mix all together and season to taste. Moisten with a splash of French dressing and then add about 2 C. of mayonnaise. Chill. Large, ripe tomatoes or avocados are good stuffed with this for a luncheon.

CHOW MEIN NOODLE SALAD

Mix together 1 C. mayonnaise, 2 Tbsp. milk and 2 Tbsp. red wine vinegar. Add ½ C. each finely chopped celery and green onions, 2 Tbsp. finely chopped green qepper, 1 small can ripe olives and, if desired, some red pimento. Stir well and refrigerate overnight. Just before serving add a #2½ size can chow mein noodles and 2 C. of chicken, turkey, tuna, crab or shrimp.

CUCUMBER CHEESE SALAD

1 large pkg. lime jello dissolved in 3 C. boiling water
When cool stir in:
3 C. cucumber grated with the skin
3 C. Farmer's style cottage cheese
¼ C. cider vinegar
¼ C. grated onion
¾ C. mayonnaise
3 tsp. horseradish
Lemon juice and Seasonings to taste

Makes one large mold.

RED BARN SALAD

Mix mayonnaise with canned, baby drained peas, crab meat, grated onion and finely chopped celery. Surround the ring with stuffed eggs.

Nutritional program to aid consumers in food selection

By DOROTHY HINES
In Focus Editor

In response to strongly expressed consumer desire for better nutritional guidance and based on the knowledge that nutrition is the key to preventive health care, a major supermarket chain, Stop & Shop Companies, Inc., has initiated this week its "Great Shape" nutrition program to aid the consumer in making informed choices of food products.

Greater Boston and the Providence area have been chosen as the location of this pilot program.

Company stores have already been arranged in departments according to the four major food groups of cereal, meat, produce and dairy products. The new twist is specially designed overhead logo signs, including a listing of the major nutrients supplied by each food group.

The point of the labeling is to guide the consumer in choosing nutritionally balanced meals by constantly keeping the necessary information before him.

According to Ellen Zawel Dubin, vice president, external affairs, The Stop & Shop Companies, Inc., "our customers told us they know the basic facts about nutrition but are pressured by lack of time and money when they get to the supermarket. They are frustrated by the vast variety of products available to them."

Therefore, the "roadsigns" will be in simple language which can be used quickly while shopping.

And the variety of choices will be great enough to allow for great flexibility in adapting to differing lifestyles.

Weekly advertisements will, also, key into this new promotion and give added information about nourishment and menu planning.

Two years of study and a year of planning went before the introduction of this program' which was developed with the aid of nutritionists, nutrition educators, industry representatives and medical doctors.

Particular effort went into accommodating the diversity of tastes and dietary needs in the spectrum of consumers.

Specific dietary health requirements of the elderly must be implemented within their limited budgetary capacities.

With expansion in the ranks of working mothers and other quick-paced schedules, fast foods are the single largest growth area of food products.

So despite a high level of awareness and concern about nutrition, there can be a wide gap between attitudes and actual purchasing behavior.

In consideration of these specific problems, several advisory boards have been formed to draw on the expertise of specialists in the field.

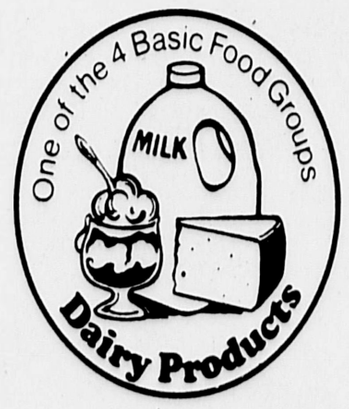

A Nutrition Advisory Committee and the Industry Advisory Board are concerned about finding ways to reconcile better nutrition with today's lifestyles.

In the initial phase of the "Great Shape" program, they will work to develop information on nutritional snacks because snacks now constitute an increasing part of the daily diet.

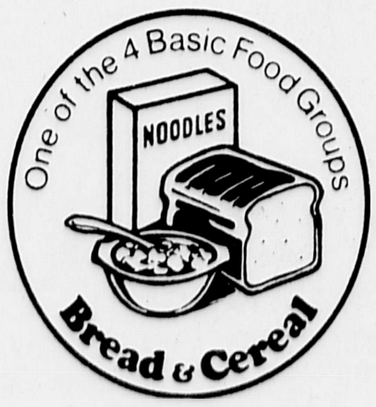

Beginning in October, Stop & Shop will implement another phase of their "Great Shape" program. Supermarket ads will include special recipes with tips on preparation and storage of food to retain its nutrient value and save the preparer time.

Boston NOW plans parade

CAMBRIDGE—A "Multi-motion ERA Parade"will be held Aug. 26 by the Boston chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) as a fund raiser. NOW asks participants to walk, jog, skate or bike a 10-mile course, collecting advance sponsors for each mile.

The parade, appropriately occurring on Women's Equality Day, will take place in the Boston-Cambridge area. NOW is inviting public officials to join in the kickoff rally at the Boston Common at 9 a.m. .

The fundraiser ties in with a new national ERA campaign to renew interest in ratification of the federal equal rights amendment. NOW chapters across the country will hold similar drives on that same day.

Maryann Murphy, president of the Boston chapter, commented, "The August 26th fundraiser is a unique opportunity for people across the country to show once again their continuing commiment to equal rights for women. Simultaneously, it will kick off, both financially and politically, a massive national campaign to secure retification of the ERA. This is an unratified country and we must acknowledge that fact as a national disgrace, convincing our legislators that ERA is a national political priority."

To sign up or help plan, call 661-6015. Meet at Boston Common at 9 a.m. August 26.

Palfrey Pre-school has openings for next season

WATERTOWN—The Palfrey Community Pre-school, celebrating its 10th anniversary this year, announces a few openings for the school year starting in September. The school is at 34 Oliver St., near Watertown Square.

The school consists of 18 children, 2 ½ to 5 years old, their families, two fulltime teachers and one or more aides. Children may come 3, 4 or 5 days a week from 9 a.m. to noon and may also stay through lunch till 2 or 3 p.m.

The Palfrey Community Children's School, Inc., is a non-profit organization which does not discriminate in admissions or any of its policies. For more information call Lucy Lyons 492-1034 or Karlen Ruth at 527-3626.

Foreign students need August weekend hosts

CHESTNUT HILL—Pine Manor College is seeking Boston area hosts for foreign students for the weekend of Aug. 17-19. The students would be members of Pine Manor's summer English Language and Orientation Program, an intensive experience to prepare foreign students for a fulltime college education in the United States.

The weekend "homestay" is an important experience for the student, who can practice language skills and experience American home life. The host families, in turn, learn about international life and customs.

If you would like to invite one or more international students to your home for the weekend of Aug. 17-19, call Pine Manor College, 731-7136 or 731-7067.

Pine Manor, an independent college for women, is at 400 Heath St., Chestnut Hill.

The bride, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Francis P. Cunnion of Tuckahoe, N.Y., is a doctoral candidate at Harvard. She is director of Project PRISM, and teaches graduate courses at Emmanuel College and Framingham State College.

Dr. Newman, a psychologist, is on the staff of Cambridge City Hospital and is doing post-doctoral study at the Boston Institute for Psychotherapies. He is the son of Mrs. Mary Newman of Hallandale, Fla.

The bride holds degrees from the College of Mt. St. Vincent, Trinity College and The Johns Hopkins University. She is a consulting editor for a new journal for parents of gifted children published by Learning magazine.

Dr. Newman holds a PhD.and M.Ed.from Boston College and a BA cum laude from Iona College. He has done graduate work at several universities, taught graduate level courses at Southern Massachusetts University and Bridgewater State College, and been assistant superintendent of schools in Foxboro.

After a wedding trip to Ireland, the couple will live in Newton.

Dr. Masi to direct federal alcohol, drug abuse office

CHESTNUT HILL—Dr. Dale Avella Masi, Boston College professor, has been appointed by former HEW Secretary Joseph Califano to plan and direct a new alcohol and drug abuse program which will be a model for similar programs serving all federal employees.

Dr. Masi will become director of the newly established Office of Employee Counseling Services this month. She has already been involved in evaluating federal alcohol treatment programs as a member of the Interagency Committee on Federal Alcoholism Programs, and as a public member and chairwoman of the committee's working group.

An associate professor in the university's Graduate School of Social Work, Dr. Masi has founded and directed Boston College's Occupational Alcohol and Drug Training Program for master's degree candidates, the only such program in the United States. She has received a certificate of appreciation from the Boston Federal Executive Board for her efforts in establishing employee assistance programs in government agencies and private companies.

At Boston College she has taught community organization, social planning, organizing for women's services, substance abuse and industrial social work. She has written, spoken, and consulted in these fields.

Men of Myrtle to hold fish fry

WEST NEWTON—The Men of Myrtle will hold their monthly Fish Fry on Saturday, Aug. 11 from noon to 7 p.m. at Myrtle Baptist Church, 21 Curve St. Proceeds will be used to reduce the renovation mortgage.

The menu features fresh fish, potato salad, cole slaw and cornbread. Beverages may be purchased. No reservations are needed and orders may be taken out.

The Men of Myrtle and Pastor Robert L. Littlejohn invited the public to participate. Charge is $2.75 for adults and $1.75 for children 12 and under.

Gail Goldberg, Mr. Harris married at Temple Shalom

Gail Ann Goldberg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Goldberg of West Newton, was married to Paul Marshall Harris on June 24. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Harris of Newton Centre.

Rabbi Murray I. Rothman performed the late afternoon ceremony at Temple Shalom, West Newton, where a reception was held.

Nancy Bernstein of Quincy was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marcy Clebnik of Brookline and Robin Robinson of Newton Centre.

Robert Harris of Newton Centre was best man for his brother. Ushers were Neil Goldberg of West Newton, brother of the bride; and the groom's brothers, Todd and Jeffrey Harris of Newton Centre.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and is a public relations coordinator for the arts at Boston University. Mr. Harris, a graduate of Vermont Law School maintains a private practice in Boston.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple is living in Brookline.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harris

Helen Mandell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Mandell of Waban, was married on July 1 to Aaron Zimmerman of Western Gallilee, Israel. He is the son of Mrs. Ziporah Zimmerman of Chadera, Israel, and the late Mr. Zimmerman.

Rabbi Murray I.Rothman performed the morning ceremony at Temple Shalom of Newton. A reception was held at the Holiday Inn, Waltham.

Carol Mandell of Waban was maid of honor for her sister. Micha Grossman of Israel was best man.

The bride attended the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. The groom is a member of a kibbutz in Israel. After a wedding trip travelling through the United States and Europe, the couple will live in Israel.

Graphic policy on weddings, engagements

The Newton Graphic is pleased to accept wedding or engagement a stories, where one or both people are from Newton, at no charge.

Black and white photos can be submitted with the wedding or engagement stories. Photos of couples are acceptable for weddings; photos of the bride-to-be only for engagements.

Wedding forms are available at the Newton Graphic office, 1157 Walnut St. If you wish to request a wedding form, call 965-6300, and one will be sent to you.

There are no engagement forms, and we suggest you follow the engagement style that appears in this paper when sending one. Engagements should be typed and doubled spaced when possible and should include the name and phone number of a person we can contact if we have any questions.

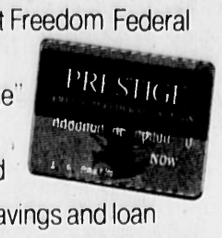

Engagement announcements must be sent in well in advance of the wedding date.

If you have any questions, contact Ann Carter at the Graphic office any Thursday or Friday.

The mailing address is: Newton Graphic, P.O. Box 341, Newton, Mass. 02161.

what is Marshalls

Marshalls is a unique fashion store that can save you 20% to 60% on the same brand name family and home fashions found in department and specialty stores. No opening specials, the items advertised here are just examples of the everyday selection, quality and low prices you'll always find. Come discover everyday savings on brand name after brand name in Marshalls men's, women's, children's, footwear, domestics and giftware departments.

what's the secret behind Marshalls

There is no secret . . . because Marshalls pays less, you pay less. Instead of ordering merchandise a season ahead like most major stores, Marshalls waits until the season begins and buys the same merchandise at lower wholesale prices. Manufacturers sell at lower wholesale prices at the start of the season, because they've overproduced, missed a delivery deadline or want to make room for their next season's line.

if you're not happy with it, Marshalls will buy it back

Marshalls stands behind each and every item sold with a no-hassle money-back refund. Wrong size, wrong color, whatever the reason, simply return your purchase with the sales slip within fourteen days and get your money back.

experience Marshalls once

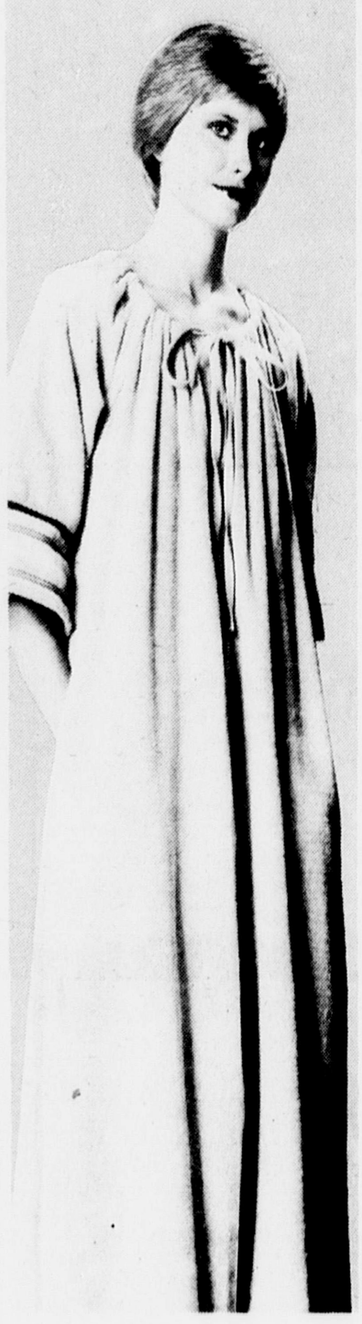

You have to experience Marshalls because there's no other store like it. Look at rack after rack, table after table of brand name fashions, the same brand name fashions found in department and specialty stores. See the famous labels, feel the quality and then look at the price . . . that's going to say it all!

City offers kid care

NEWTON— Many Newton parents may not know that routine preventive health care is available to their children at the Well Child Clinics sponsored by the Newton Health Department's Child Health Program. The clinics are open to all Newton's children five years old and under.

Although families that do not have a regular pediatrician are especially encouraged to attend, the clinics are not intended to substitute for care by a family physician or pediatrician. These clinics, offered twice a month, are now expanding their services to include many simple diagnostic testsin an effort to provide thorough, preventive health care.

The Well Child Clinics are staffed by two public health nurses, a nutritionist from the Health Department, and pediatricians from the Newton community. In!addition to routine physicals , immunizations, and general consultation, the staff will screen children for lead paint poisoning, anemia, vision and hearing difficulties, and developmental problems. These tests, which are easily performed, will help detect medical and developmental problems in the initial stages when the chance for successful follow-up care is the greatest.

The clinics are held on the second and third Thursdays of the month at the Second Church in West Newton and the Emerson School. For information concerning the clinics please call Joan York, Child Health Coordinator, at the Newton Health Department, 552-7058.

at Marshalls

Less than 25% of the total merchandise Marshalls carries is irregular. And, every irregular is an exceptional buy not only because it's selected so the slight imperfection will not affect the fit or wear, but because an irregular can be offered at even greater savings than first quality items. Marshalls is constantly in the market looking for more irregulars but since famous makers have such exacting specifications, their irregulars are few. To find an irregular, look to the price ticket, it's marked there as well as on the garment, itself. When you find it, you've also found an exceptional buy.

our price
tickets tell you more than the price

When you see "our price" on the ticket you can be confident you're saving 20% to 60% on a brand name quality fashion.

When you see the "compare at" price on a ticket it tells you what the item was made to sell for in a department or specialty store.

When you see the "compare at" price followed by the words "If first quality," the comparison is based on a first quality item.

Every price ticket indicates first quality or irregular. In addition, "past season" is added to the ticket if the item was purchased the previous season.

Current or past season, first quality or irregular, our buyers verify every price comparison.

N.H. tourism firms seek SBA loans

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Tourist industry officials say some firms might be forced to take out federal Small Business Administration loans to offset the effects of an almost 40 percent shortfall in business this year.

Karl Zacker, manager of tourism development at the Lakes Region Chamber of Commerce, Sunday said the chamber had contacted the office of Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., for information on low interest SBA loans.

"If August isn't as good as we anticipate, a lot of places will go under," Zacker predicted.

He added an easing of the gasoline crunch and hot, humid weather had brought more people to the Lakes Region in recent weeks. But, he said unless a miracle occurs, the season will go into the books as a poor one.

Senators urge rescue plan for ailing Chrysler

By WILLIAM SILBERG

DETROIT (UPI) — Michigan's two senators say the staggering cost of a possible Chrysler Corp. failure is a "compelling" reason to develop a federal rescue plan for the struggling No. 3 automaker.

Sens. Donald Riegle and Carl Levin, both Democrats, told separate news conferences Monday that U.S. Treasury officials are formulating an aid package for Chrysler, which has lost about $260 million so far this year.

Levin said assistance of some kind is called for because federal regulations have had a role in creating Chrysler's financial plight.

"I think the government has got an obligation to get Chrysler out of its problems," Levin said. "This is not a bail-out but government help to solve a problem government has created."

If Chrysler, the nation's 10th largest corporation, goes broke, Congressional Budget Office staffers have estimated 360,000 jobs would be lost immediately, Riegle said.

That figure likely would double over a period of months as related industries feel the effect of a Chrysler failure.

As a result, the budget office estimated, the federal government would lose about $11 billion in tax revenues and another $2 billion in welfare and unemployment benefits, Riegle said.

"Whether one faults Chrysler for past decisions that contributed to this situation or whatever, if you just stand clear and let Chrysler go under, you have a tremendous shock to the national economy," he said.

"If we do nothing we're probably talking about a $13 billion blow and a devastating effect on local communities through unemployment. I think it's a very compelling economic argument."

Any of Chrysler's own financial or marketing mistakes have been compounded by the triple whammy of the energy shortage, recession and the cost of government regulations, Riegle said.

"The will is now there in the Department of the Treasury" to come up with some kind of aid package for Chrysler, Levin said.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller apparently has taken charge of the rescue mission and could report to President Carter on an aid plan within two or three weeks, Riegle said.

Both senators agreed Chrysler and any proposed bail-out likely would come under close scrutiny by federal lawmakers.

"You see, the rest of the country doesn't have the same fond feeling for Chrysler as we do," Levin said. "The average member is going to be asked, 'Why did you bail out Chrysler?'"

Chrysler has asked the government for $1 billion in tax credits over two years, which it equates with the cost of meeting federal emission and fuel economy standards.

Levin said a tax break would be the most difficult form of aid to push through Congress. Other options under review include government loans and "some form of employee partnership in stock ownership," he said.

Riegle said any bail-out package likely would include "all parties involved" in Chrysler's financial problems and have many federal strings attached.

Device pumps insulin to diabetics

By FRANK T. CSONGOS
United Press International

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Scientists are working on an "artificial pancreas" — a device smaller than a deck of cards that attaches to the stomach or a leg — to provide insulin to diabetics, thus eliminating daily hypodermic shots.

The battery-powered device, under development at the University of Pittsburgh, weighs a mere 3 ounces and can be worn at all times except during a shower or bath. It contains a microcomputer that regulates the insulin dose and delivery time.

"It is like an artifical pancreas," Dr. James Gutai said in an interview Thursday. "It would be attached to the stomach or a leg and is designed to send insulin through the skin. This method would eliminate daily injections through the blood stream."

Clinical tests on humans will be conducted next year and the device could be mass-produced by the late 1980s, said Gutai, who is project director and an assistant professor of pediatrics at the university.

If successful, the device could provide thousand of the nation's diabetics greater freedom in everyday activities.

More than 2 million Americans are afflicted with diabetics, an illness that can cause blindness, kidney failure and even death in severe cases unless brought under control. It is caused by a deficiency of insulin, a hormone, which facilitates the transport of sugar from the blood stream into the cells.

The artificial pancreas would mimic the function of a pancreas in achieving normal blood sugar levels under various degrees of activity, stress and changing diet.

Gutai explained the device pumps insulin into the patient by electrolysis of a saline solution.

Study finds cancer cells form protective cocoon

By JACK JACKSON

BOSTON (UPI) — Scientists have discovered cancerous tumors avoid detection by coating themselves with a "cocoon" and say the best treatment may be the body's natural defense system.

Cancer cells secrete a chemical which causes blood to clot around a growing tumor, doctors at the Massachusetts General Hospital report.

If the cancer was treated with drugs that prevent the cocoon from forming, the body's immunity system could destroy tumors before they spread, says Dr. Harold F. Dvorak, co-investigator of the three-year study appearing in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Growing inside its coat, a single malignant cell can establish itself without the threat of being attacked by the body's natural defenses, Dvorak said.

Cancer cells form a cocoon by causing the blood vessels to leak "fibrin," a protein involved in clotting. It forms a gel-like coating around the tumor.

The body's defense cells are unable to penetrate fibrin. But, Dvorak said the body could be immunized against specialized chemicals cancer cells need to build cocoons.

"Where I see the hope of therapy is in making antibodies against these products and block the whole sequence of events," he said in an interview.

Without the protective coat, tumors would be open to attack by the disease-fighting cells.

The body's immunity system is triggered by the presence of foreign substances. However, the fibrin coat keeps cancer cell proteins from being detected, Dvorak added.

"The tumor also has an enzyme to dissolve the fibrin gel," he said. "As the tumor grows, it lays down more fibrin on the outside, while on the inside — adjacent to the tumor — gel is being dissolved."

BORROW AT 6%
Special Get-Acquainted Money Offer for Homeowners— lets you borrow up to $1000 and pay just $15 interest in 3 months!
Incredible is an overworked adjective these days, but that's the only way to describe our 3-month loan offer.
Why are we doing it? Simple. To get you acquainted with the way we do business at Dial. We feel confident that after you experience our courtesy, friendliness, efficiency and speed, you'll come to us the next time you need money.
In a nutshell, here's the offer: Borrow by August 31, 1979, and after 3 months pay us back in one single payment at an annual percentage rate of just 6%. Approval is subject to our usual credit requirements. Here are some examples of how little your loan will cost:

AMOUNT OF LOAN	TOTAL COST OF LOAN	TOTAL AMOUNT OF SINGLE PAYMENT AFTER 3 MONTHS
$ 400	$ 6	$ 406
$ 600	$ 9	$ 609
$ 800	$12	$ 812
$1000	$15	$1015

So if you want money for any purpose, and if you've never done business with Dial before, take advantage of this special, limited-time offer now. And if you've been planning some purchases and figured you'd put them on a store or bank charge card, we urge you to compare our rate with theirs. Then figure on giving us a call. Just one 6% loan per customer, please.
Dial Finance
We don't want you to like us just for our money.

Loewenstein opens office

NEWTON CORNER — Dr. Ernest V. Loewenstein recently opened his office for the practice of optometry at 471 Washington St., in Newton Corner. A 15-year resident of the city, Loewenstein received his O.D. degree from the New England College of Optometry in Boston. He holds a B.A. degree from Cornell University and a Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University.

He is a member of the American Optometric Association and the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists Association and the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists. In addition Loewenstein is a clinical associate of the Optometric Extension Program and a fellow of the Optical Society of America.

Loewenstein's office offers complete visual care including full eye examinations with a test for glaucoma, the fitting of soft and hard contact lenses and the provision of visual training when appropriate.

Loewenstein stated "My predecessor, Dr. Lawrence W. Macdonald, was a specialist in vision training, and I intend to carry on this tradition."

Loewenstein has long been active in civic affairs in Newton. He belongs to the Newton Chapter of the Lions Club, and is a member of the Mayor's Committee on Supplemental Transportation.

The office will be open daily, including Saturday mornings, with early and late appointments available for whose schedules makes it impossible to come in during working hours. Medicaid patients are welcome, and help will be available for all types of health insurance forms.

Travel Talk

By Josephine Arria

Antwerp is the golden city of Europe. It is found on the River Scheldt, and is the world's third largest port. There are boat tours available for getting the best views of the port. The diamond center is considered world headquarters and is most interesting with showrooms and workshops. Jewelers come from all over the world to make the market for diamonds here. Antwerp is rich in other artistic treasures as well. It shows off a friendly, joyous atmosphere and is considered to have a different and exciting nightlife. There are plenty of fine restaurants and you will never run short of attractions to visit.

From the riches of the golden city to the ruins of Greece to the nostalgia of other countries, the staff of BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 305 A Washington St., Newton Corner, can make the accommodations and plans that can bring back the nostalgia of most any time period of history or place you in a spot that seems to be the world of the future. For a trip full of excitement, pleasure, enjoyment and fun, leave the planning to BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC. Open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri., 'til 8 Thurs. and 9-1 Sat. Portugal —— A Wise Choice

The people of Portugal are friendly, helpful, and inquistitive. A visit to the compact country will leave you feeling as though you found a home away from home.

High mountains reach up to the clouds. Rocky ledges border the sea. Five hundred miles of sandy beaches stretch along the coast. Surf and sun dominate Portugal's calendar. Only in the deep winter does the weather become chilled.

Fortresses, palaces, and castles antiquate the countryside. Year round blossoms add splashes of color to the landscape.

The lowest prices in Western Europe are found here. The attractions are all within easy distance of one another. Tennis enthusiasts will find an abundant number of courts. Hiking trails are varied. Enjoy an afternoon stroll or climb to the mountain's summits. Magnificent golf courses are availabel. You'll find refreshing swimming pools as well as some of the world's greatest beaches.

European charm adds character to Lisbon, a city of the old-world. History's Moorish masters influence the melancholy folk music known as "fado". Enjoy haunting melodies in the little night spots alsong th winding, medieval streets.

Mosaics of rough cut black and white stones are Lisbon's sidewalks. Sheep graze within the city limits. Goats and roosters wander about enjoying their status as pets. Windmills turn slowly as they have for centuries.

Investigate Portugal's culture and history. Fascinating castle, ancient buildings and orante churches create a thrilling history lesson.

Atop one of the highest hills is Castelo de Sao Jorge. A birds-eye view is breathtaking from the outer ramparts of this castle. Follow the spiraling path up into the structure which was built before the Visigoths. Inside the walls and moats are ducks, turkey, swans, geese, fantail doves, storks and ravens. Albino flamingos and Chinese pheasants also abide here. Enjoy a picnic lunch while viewing the sweeping panorama. Snowy peacocks nearby hope to get a tasty tidbit from picnickers.

Unspoiled villages, such as Alfama in the old Arab quarter, and Largo das Portas do Sol (a small square overlooking the bay), are seemingly untouched by modern times. Fishermen pull in their catch as they always have.

Museums are filled with treasures found no where else. The Museum of Decorative Art in Largo das Portas do Sol exhibits antique silverwork, embroidered rugs, pictographic tiles, furniture and bookbinding. Here you'll find ancient crafts still made. An extravagant display of 17th and 18th century carriages are to be found at the Popular Coach museum in Belem, a suburb of Lisbon. Other museums of special interest include the Ethnological Museum, the Jeronimos Monastery and the Museum of Popular Art.

In Lisbon, the National Art Gallery and the Gulbenkian Center for Arts and Culture are well worth your time..

Early in October visit the harvest festa in Vila Franca de Xira. The hot-blooded young are permitted to run before the bulls. Confontations are halted between man and bull before significant injury to either occurs.

Enjoy a shopping spree. you will be amazed at the bargains. The shops are full of exquisite tiles, ceramics, embroideries and other handwork. Discover one of a kind jewelry pieces as well as old books, maps and prints.

The food is superb. The wines are plentiful and varied. Dine in posh elegance orin charming little cafes, including an abundance of sidewalk cafes surrounded by greenery and flowers.

A vacation in Portugal is literally one of the most inexpensive in Europe. Luxury is her at a price you can afford. The American dollar goes a long way in Portugal.

Theater Review

This play, 'Cold Storage,' is something really worth seeing

Elliot Norton

For anyone who likes theater at its riveting best, the Theatre at the Square, in Harvard Square, Cambridge, offers "Cold Storage" in a production you should not miss. This is a rare one.

Forget, for the moment, that the principals are two doomed men on the terrace of a New York hospital. Doomed men are not pleasant, not the kind of characters you want to spend two hours with? Not now, not in the summer? Not in the theater, perhaps? That's fair enough as a general proposition: Theater should entertain. But this one, about these two men with a terminal illness, does entertain. Even on the most basic level. There is as much solid, honest laughter, as much irresistible banter, as much sardonic humor as in any comedy of the year. And as much sheer nonsense.

Two men on a hospital porch, the one doomed and half-humorously suicidal, the other reserved, uptight, frightened of what the "exploratory examination" will reveal? That's it. Funny and sad at the same time and, ultimately, because the playwright is courageous, upbeat, affirmative. And beautifully acted for two solidly satisfying hours in a playhouse that is comfortably air-conditioned.

Gordon Oas-Heim, an actor of sharp perception and real skill, plays the gadfly Parmigian. Seated in a wheel chair throughout, he creates a true and vivid likeness of a man who is very sick, but intensely vital. Prodding, bullying, ridiculing the other man till he batters down his shell of reserve and finds the true center of his life, he is crude, rude, funny and very warmly human.

As the other patient, Richard Landau, John Milligan is equally unusual, creating a character who is personally, intellectually and, it would seem, essentially, unlike the other. He is an art expert, with a passion for fine porcelain. Parmigian has lived his life selling fruit in his own store.

Parmigian is gregarious, Landau private. But under the pressure of personal crisis, with the fruiterer pushing out of a sheer need to break down the other's reserve in order to give and to receive understanding and consolation, they achieve understanding. This uncommon play, directed with intelligence and sensitivity by Arthur Savage, is the best thing that has happened during the bleak Boston summer season. The playhouse is at 12 Holyoke St., just outside Harvard Square. The phone number is 864-2112.

Copter cools off school

By ELLEN POWERS
Staff Writer

NEWTON—A helicopter came to the rescue of Newton North High School's disabled heating, ventilating and air conditioning (HVAC) systemMonday morning.

The J.W. Praught Co., of West Roxbury, general contractors for Phase III of the HVAC repairs, hired Carson Helicopters, Inc., of Perkasie, Penn., to lift 2,000 pound cooling coils to the middle of the school's roof.

The S58 T Sikorsky copter made five trips in about two hours to complete the job. Each time the copter lifted a coil into place, it returned to the baseball field as Praught workers on the roof could secure each coil separately.

Norman Praught, superintendent of the company, said the coils will provide additional cooling for the air conditioning basic units.

"I was sweating a $20'000 liability," Praught said, exasperated, after the job was successfully completed.

The pilot of the copter, Mark Pearson, said his company is "probably the biggest that does this type of work" which he called "external load." He said the company, which contracts for all over the world, owns 11 S58 T copters, capable of lifting 5,000 pounds, and four S61 copters, capable of lifting 10,000 pounds.

Pearson noted, and Praught later concurred, that a can do the work helicopter and faster than a crane. Pearson estimated the cost of the copter at $750 per hour.

"This roof, like a mall, where an air conditioner has to be put in the middle of it, would have to have a huge crane," Pearson said. "It would take days to do the job, too."

Jeff Fitzgerald, one of the Carson mechanics, said the same copter was used to tow hay over the men's slalom course in Lake Placid, N.Y., the site of 1980 Winter Olympics.

Pearson said he and his crew would be flying to Syracuse in the afternoon to do some power line work.

Aluminum recycling aids muscular dystrophy fight

UPPER FALLS — Help yourself and "Jerry's Kids" by recycling aluminum. Reynolds Aluminum will pay consumers 23 cents and donate a penny to the Muscular Dystrophy Association for every pound of used aluminum collected during the month of August.

This is the fifth consecutive year that Reynolds, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and Jerry Lewis have joined forces to recycle aluminum and use its value to aid persons afflicted by muscular dystrophy and related neuro-muscular diseases.

David Reynolds, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Reynolds Metals Company pointed out that in the past four years the public and his company have raised more than $700,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association by collecting all-aluminum beverage cans and clean household aluminum.

The Reynolds-Muscular Dystrophy Association program consists of:

The public donating aluminum beverage cans and clean household aluminum to the Muscular Dystrophy Association at one of Reynolds 850 nationwide collection points. Reynolds will then donate the value of the metal to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Reynolds' more than 35,000 employees will compete in a special aluminum recycling contest for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. In 1978, they donated more than $47,562 worth of aluminum through the contest.

From Aug. 1 through Labor Day, Reynolds will donate one cent per pound for every pound of aluminum collected nationwide. This is in addition to the 23 cents per pound the company pays the public for aluminum. In August of 1978, Reynolds collected more than 15 million pounds of aluminum.

"This program," Reynolds said, "has done more than raise funds for a worthy cause. It has recycled millions of cans that might otherwise have become litter and, by so doing, has saved 95 percent of the energy that might have been used to produce a similar amount of aluminum."

Reynolds recycles at 50 Tower Road, rear, in Newton Upper Falls, Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Obituaries

Lillian Benjamin

CHESTNUT HILL — Mrs. Lillian Zorn Benjamin, 78, a long-time resident of Chestnut Hill, died Wednesday (Aug. 1) at home after a brief illness.

In 1925, with H.C. Berkowitz, Mrs. Benjamin founded Old Mr. Boston Distillers in Boston. In 1942, the company was sold. Mrs. Benjamin joined Felton & Son, Inc., Distillers, in Boston, and was a member of its board of directors until her last illness.

Mrs. Benjamin was active in many local charitable and philanthropic organizations, including the Jewish Family and Children's Services, Beth Israel Hospital, the Recuperative Center, the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged, the Sidney Farber Cancer Center and the Boston Association for Retarded Citizens.

She was a member of Temple Emanuel in Newton and its sisterhood, and also belonged to the Order of the Eastern Str.

Mrs. Benjamin is survived by her son, Kenneth F. of Chestnut Hill; two daughters, Mrs. Barbara Lee Chertok and Mrs. Ruth Joan Levin, both of Chestnut Hill; a sister, Mrs. Ruth Grosberg of Mattapan; and nine grandchildren.

Services were held Friday (Aug. 3) in Levine Chapel, Brookline. Interment is in Temple Emanuel Cemetery, Randolph.

Paul F. Carroll

WEST NEWTON— A funeral mass was to be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday (Aug. 9) in St. Bernard's Church for Paul F. Carroll.

Mr. Carroll, 58, of West Newton, died Monday (Aug. 6) at home after a long illness. A lifelong resident of the city, he was employed in the transportation management office of the U.S. Postal Service.

Mr. Carroll was a World War II veteran and a member of the 26th Yankee Division of the Massachusetts National Guard.

Mr. Carroll is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy H. Carroll; two sons, Paul F. Jr. of Belmont and John A. of West Newton; three daughters, Mrs. M. Linda Lyons of East Weymouth, Mrs. Viriginia A. Burne of Waltham and Mrs. Kathleen D. Welch of Newton; a brother, J. Arthur of Newton; two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Sprcsansky of South Natick and Mrs. Gertrude Brooks Dickson of Arlington, Va.; and 11 grandchildren.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Arthur F. Gray

SOMERVILLE — A funeral mass was celebrated Wednesday (Aug. 8) in Our Lady's Church for Arthur F. Gray.

Mr. Gray, 70, formerly of Newton, died Sunday (Aug. 5) in Somerville Hospital after a long illness. He was a retired employee of the Middlesex County Register of Deeds.

For many years, Mr. Gray was a salesman for the Household Fuel Corp. in Medford and Beverly and was a member of the Medford Rotary. Since his retirement, Mr. Gray worked as a school crossing attendant in Somerville.

Mr. Gray is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Gray; and his sister, Edna Datow of Waltham.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Some historic baseball numbers

by PETE TAUSSIG
Staff Writer

Okay all you baseball numerologists, stand up and be counted.

Here follow 20 numbers that hold various elite places in baseball history and diamond lore. Most of them are records. Others were. The remainder are outstanding performances which haven't been matched since. Some will be instantly recogniz able. Others are incredibly obscure, yet interesting or amazing enough to deserve inclusion. A couple have more than one answer, while a couple others are tricky (hint: consider the decimal system).

That's all. Have at it.

2) 3,508
3) 367
4) 383
5) 1,710
6) 56
7) 190
8) 2,130
9) 60
10) 406
11) 1,070
12) 714
13) 508
14) 313
15) 118
16) 31
17) 257
18) 106

The Answers:

1) A nice easy one to start you off on the right foot. The famous asterisk in the record book. Yankee Roger Maris set a new home run record when he blasted his 61st of the season in the final game off Boston's Tracy Stallard. The year was 1961, the first season teams played 162 games, eight more than in previous summers. Thus the asterisk.

2) Walter "Big Train" Johnson struck out 3,508 batters over the course of his 21-year career with Washington. His lifetime record, incidently, was 416-279 (.599).

3) One of the trick shots. Ty Cobb's .367 lifetime batting average over 24 years is a record that will never be broken unless there is a radical change in rules or equipment. His 4,191 hits figures to be pretty safe, too.

4) Nolan Ryan struck out 383 hitters during the 1973 campaign, eclipsing Dodger Sandy Koufax's major league mark set in 1965 by one. The California Angels' ace did it while pitching 326 innings, thus averaging an incredible 10.57 K's per nine innings.

5) And while we're on the subject of strikeouts, 1,710 is how many times Mickey Mantle fanned during his 18 years with the Yankees, still a major league record.

6) An easy one. Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak took place in 1941 and was ultimately stopped by the Cleveland pitching tandem of Al Smith and Jim Bagby. During the famous tear, the Yankee Clipper batted .408 with 91 hits, 15 homers, and 55 RBI. He would hit .357 that season, finishing well behind in the race for the American League batting title. If, perchance, you'd forgotten that one, 50 is also the National League home run record, set by Hack Wilson in 1930, which is being threatened this season by Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt and Chicago' Dave Kingman.

7) Speaking of Wilson, he piled up an awesome 190 RBI that same season with the Cubs. Yankee Lou Gehrig would come within six of that record total a year later.

8) Gehrig's consecutive game streak of 2,130 is another record that will never fall. Sadly, 25 months after the streak ended Gehrig died at 37, a victim of a rare disease, amyotrophic lateral schlerosis.

9) Another easy one. Yankee Babe Ruth hit 60 homers in 1927. For the avid trivia expert, Old Hoss Radborn won 60 games for Providence in 1884 in the old National League while pitching 75 games and 679 innings in a 112-game season.

10) A familiar one, though slightly tricky. Boston's Ted Williams hit .406 in 1941, the year of DiMaggio's hitting streak, and remains the last man to hit over .400. In case you hadn't set your sights back that far, Jim Rice banged out 406 total bases last year, the first man to accomplish that feat in 19 years.

11) Hoyt Wilhelm appeared in 1,070 games as a pitcher, principly with the New York Giants. The relief ace parlayed the easy-on-the-arm knuckleball into an extended career that lasted until he was 49. He didn't break in with the Giants until he was 28. You might remember that he was a full-time starter with the Baltimore Orioles 20 years ago.

12) Ruth hit 714 career home runs, a record that stood for 39 years. The Sultan of Swat hit 49 of those for the Red Sox before being traded to the Yankees after the 1919 season.

13) Cy Young holds the record of 508 career victories which should stand the test of time. In eight years with Boston he won 190.

14) Young, who pitched 22 seasons and a record 7,356 innings, also has the most career defeats—313.

15) Lou Brock of St. Louis set a one-season stolen base record of 118 in 1974, shattering Maury Wills' 1962 mark of 104. Brock also eventually broke Ty Cobb's career standard of 892 and currently is approaching 920.

16) A tough one. Detroit's Denny McLain won 31 games against just six losses in 1968 for Detroit, the last major leaguer to eclipse 30 victories. Ironically, he could manage only a 1-2 record in that October's World Series, but the Tigers still defeated the Cardinals in seven games.

17) George Sisler banged out 257 hits good for a .407 average in 1920 with St. Louis.

18) Pitcher Mike Marshall of the Dodgers made a record 106 appearances in 1974, wiping out by 14 games his own major league record set the previous year, and won the National League Cy Young Award for his effort. In those two amazing seasons, Marshall threw 387 innings (and Lord knows how many more warming up in the bullpen!) in 198 games, and compiled a 29-23 record with 52 saves and a 2.52 ERA. And you thought Dick Radatz had some awesome years!

This town pays tribute to R.I. Red

LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (UPI) — Some towns remember their hometown war heroes or homebred celebrities. Little Compton honors a hen.

The Rhode Island Red, the state bird, turns 125 this year. It will be honored with a four-day celebration in the town where the breed originated.

The birthday party will include fireworks, hen memorabilia and — of course — a chicken barbecue.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

GMC seeks freeze on health care benefits

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp., determined to hold down labor costs, is seeking to break a traditional pattern of expanding health care benefits for its blue collar workers.

GM's call for a health care benefit freeze Tuesday was part of a strongly worded counter-proposal put on the bargaining table in reaction to wide-ranging United Auto Workers union demands.

Contracts for 750,000 auto workers at GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. expire Sept. 14. The economically critical talks now are in their fourth week.

"The union has presented the longest list of benefit proposals in the history of our negotiations and shown little meaningful concern for controlling costs," GM said in its 22-page presentation.

"We repeat our concern over the chasm which separates the parties at this time ...," the counterproposal said.

GM also said it will bargain hard this summer to eliminate duplication of pension and workers compensation benefits, enact strong sanctions against absenteeism, hold the line on paid time off and lengthen the time required for new employees to qualify for full wages and benefits.

The UAW has asked for substantial wage hikes, pension increases tied to the cost of living, additional paid time off and numerous improvements in health care benefits.

UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone, the union's veteran chief negotiator at GM, described the counterproposal as the "most vigorous" demand he had ever seen the company make on the union.

"But every single one of them has to do with reducing GM's labor costs," Bluestone said. "It's not to improve the lot of the worker. It's to improve the profitability of General Motors."

Morris said the tone of negotiations bargaining was not affected by UAW President Douglas Fraser's harsh criticism last week of GM Chairman Thomas Murphy, who had expressed reservations about government aid for financially ailing Chrysler Corp. Bluestone agreed.

Both sides also said time remains before the contract expiration to resolve differences and avert a strike.

"I don't think the chasm is that wide that it can't be bridged," Bluestone said.

Morris said GM "didn't get what we bargained for" in agreeing to a paid personal holiday system in 1976 designed to hold down absenteeism.

Since then, unexcused job absences have increased.

Newparking stickers available to seniors

NEWTON — The Department of Human Services is urging all eligible senior citizens in Newton to obtain the new "green" senior citizen parking stickers available here.

Possession of the stickers allows senior citizens age 65 and over to park without charge in metered municipal parking lots in the city.

Since the new, green stickers were made available June 19, more than 1500 have been given out.

Stickers cost 50 cents and the following regulations apply:

—Applicants must sign up during regular business hours at the Newtonville Drop-in Center, 41 Austin St.; or the Highlands Drop-in Center, 68 Lincoln St. They must be residents of Newton.

—Applicants must have valid Massachusetts licenses listing a Newton address.

—Applicants must have a Massachusetts automobile registration which corresponds to the driver's license address.

Stickers are issued for automobiles, not individuals. If a participant in the program trades his car, he must apply in person with the old sticker in order to get a new new sticker for the new car.

Banjo Dan & the Mid-Nite Plowboys, Vermont's most popular bluegrass group, winds up the Arts in the Parks Summer Folk Concert series Tuesday, Aug. 14, at the Jackson Homestead, 527 Washington St., Using traditional acoustic instruments, the group draws from a repertoire of bluegrass standards and mountain tunes, plus rock, country and Cajun songs. The Plowboys are led by Al Davis, rhythm guitarist and lead singer. "Banjo Dan" Lindner and his brother, Willy, playing mandolin, also perform, along with Pete Tourin on the fiddle and Sam Blagden on the bass and dobro guitar. The concert is at 7:15 p.m.

Irene Bickelman

A love affair with Newton

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
staff writer

NEWTON CENTRE—"I came here with my husband and my 9-month-old baby right after World War II," says Irene Bickelman, "and I've been having a love affair with Newton ever since."

During her 32 years in Newton, Mrs. Bickelman has helped found the Newton Arts Center, the Cultural Affairs Commission which stages the annual Springfest celebration, . the Creative Arts Committee of the PTA Council, two nursery schools, and several career education programs in the schools.

A career education counselor in the junior and senior high schools for 17 years, she has helped thousands of children explore the world of work through work-study placements in every conceivable type of career.

Mrs. Bickelman and her husband Alfred will be leaving Newton Thursday for a new home in Oakland, Maine.

"Irene Bickelman was the kind of person you could call in the middle of the night if a kid had a problem," says Newton Juvenile Officer Robert Braceland. "She helped a lot of kids with a lot of problems. I'm going to miss her and the kids are going to miss her. They don't come any finer."

Mrs. Bickelman has helped children through all kinds of problems — broken homes, truancy, alcohol and drug abuse and delinquency — but she feels strongly that counseling programs should not be aimed exclusively at "troubled" children.

"I don't know what a 'troubled' kid is," she says. "All kids have problems, even the ones going to Harvard or Radcliffe or Yale. I know a girl with two psychoanalysts for parents and she's just as troubled as any other kid."

"It's important to be concerned with people's needs. It's important not to lump them into categories — handicapped and non-handicapped; college-bound and non-college-bound."

Along with Dr. Rachel Chaffey and Emilie Larson, Mrs. Bickelman started Operation Upstart cited by the Mass. Department of Education as a model junior high program.

The program takes eighth graders on visits to hospitals, courtrooms, nursing homes, City Hall, the police station, professional offices — anywhere a person might want to work.

Ninth graders are then placed in work-study positions where they work one afternoon each week.

"Kids are given a chance to explore what their future could be," Mrs. Bickelman says. "Going into the adult world really means something to the kids. It builds their self esteem."

She says that the job placements gave the program leaders a focus for their counseling with the children. "The kids didn't want to go downstairs to the 'shrink' in guidance," she says, "but we could really talk to them about their jobs."

She says she found children would open up while driving around job hunting. "There's something about driving in a car with someone. A lot of truth comes out."

In a case which typifies the program, a student interested in astronomy was placed at the Harvard observatory where she helped discover a small star.

"Things really changed for her after she discovered that star."

Mrs. Bickelman notes with regret that despite the accomplishments of Operation Upstart, which include the organization of the Upstart Bus recently funded by the city, the program has not really been accepted by the school system as a whole. She cites the case of a student working at a computer center whose father complained that he was missing one period of math a week.

For the past two years Mrs. Bickelman has been working on a program which pairs a handicapped students with non-handicapped students in job exploration and work-study placements. This enables the handicapped students to go where they might not otherwise be able to go, and sensitizes the non-handicapped students to the special needs of the handicapped.

Mrs. Bickelman says her work with the children of Newton has shown her that a lot of "big city' problems exist here despite Newton's image as the "All-American City."

"Everyone thinks of Newton as a rich upper class neighborhood, but I've seen things here which could match anything in the inner city. The division between the 'haves' and the 'have-nots' is something which exists in this city to an extent you wouldn't believe."

She says alcohol abuse among children is a real problem here, although it involves only a small percentage of the children, because those children can affect others.

She says the problems usually arise when a child's parents are alcoholics, when a lot of alcohol is available in the home and when parents are not around for long periods of time.

Another source of problems is broken homes which she says are "disastrous" for children age 7 to 18.

As an advocate and counselor for the children, Mrs. Bickelman has patiently and diligently sought them out when they failed to come to school and gained their trust in discussing their problems.

"I've always believed what a kid told me. It might not be the truth, but to them it's the truth, so I believe it."

Mr. and Mrs. Bickelman will live in their Maine home during the summer, and will live on Cape Cod during the winter.

Mrs. Bickelman says she plans to "consult with school systems, travel with my husband and commune with the chipmunks."

Any tax rise will be small

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Staff writer

NEWTON — "Newton's property tax rate will compare favorably with the last fiscal year's performance," Mayor Theodore Mann said this week, giving hope of only a small tax-rate increase in FY80.

The good news that the city has a record surplus of $4.9 million — almost double the surplus of last year at this time — gave rise to speculation that a large chunk will be allocated toward holding the increase in the tax rate down.

Farlier this year, mayoral assistant Jane Pitt had cautioned against spending too much of the surplus funds because of the 4 percent tax cap, which is to be in effect next year as well as this year. Pitt believes that the city will have expenses next year that must be provided for by conserving this year's surplus.

Mann would not estimate how much of that surplus might be used against a tax increase until the city receives the "cherry sheet" from the state, which is expected in about two weeks.

The cherry sheet details what financial aid is coming from the state and what the city owes the state.

When the new state aid is considered — $1,087,000 — Newton is sure to come out in the black when the debits and credits are figured.

Educated guesses on the increase in the tax rate, now pegged at $170.40, previously were a $5 hike. But those estimates were based on the city's surplus position estimated in May at the end of budget deliberations.

At that time the surplus funds were estimated for FY80 at $2.8 million, $2 million less than the city actually has now.

The city cannot spend all the surplus. It can spend what the state certifies as "free cash," a portion of the whatich has averaged out about $1.5 million less than the total surplus.

Part of the reason for the unexpectedly large surplus was the turnback of unexpended funds from the city's operating departments, which amounted to approximately $1.5 million.

Chief among the turnbacks were those from the Public Works Department ($400,000) and the School Department ($300,000).

Local receipts increased $565,000, the mayor said. In addition to increased fees for licenses and permits, the city received about $100,000 more in automobile excise taxes because of stepped-up collection efforts.

The $1.1 million in new state aid will mean about $2.50 on the tax rate — that is, a decrease of $2.50 in the expected increase. Every $400,000 of surplus used to offset a tax increase means another $1 less on the tax rate.

The tax rate is usually set in early September.

Mann aide resigns

Jane Pitt, "deputy mayor" of Newtonfor more than three years, has resigned effective Sept. 7, Mayor Theodore Mann announced Monday.

Ms. Pitt, who came to work for the city of Newton in January 1974 as director of the Department of Human Services, will assume the duties of deputy associate commissioner of the state Department of Mental Health Sept. 17.

She will be second in command to the associate commissioner of administration of the department and will be assisting in supervision of all operations, business and finance, personnel management, budget, formulation of policy, purchasing, engineering, and facilities.

Mayor Mann said he has advertised for applicants to fill Ms. Pitt's position, which is technically called "chief administrative officer" but often referred to by the mayor as "deputy mayor."

Until the position is filled, Mann said, Chief Budget Officer Albert DiGregorio and Comptroller Lawrence Marino will fill the gap.

Jane Pitt...'deputy mayor'

The mayor said of Ms. Pitt, "Jane Pitt over these past five years has grown in stature, and her performance and commitment have been of the highest order. The city of Newton is, indeed, a better place in which to live because of the service she has rendered, and her very careful planning in her administrative capacity leaves the city in excellent condition."

Ms. Pitt, in a letter to the mayor, said, "I leave with mixed feelings, knowing that while the position I assume with the Department of Mental Health will take me away from close friends, it will enhance my career and provide greater financial security for myself and my son."

Sales of surplus city buildings hung up

NEWTON — Sale of the former Peabody School on Oak Hill for conversion to condominiums was saved by a reconsideration motion at a meeting of the Board of Aldermen Monday night, but another reconsideration motion has delayed disposition of the former Claflin Hall in Newtonville.

A petition for rezoning of the Peabody School land failed to be approved because not enough aldermen were present to approve it. A rezoning requires a two-thirds vote of the Board, and by 1 a.m. only 17 of the 24 aldermen were left.

The school has been awarded to Edward Leventhal for $400,000. Leventhal will convert the rambling building to 20 condominiums and two apartments for low-income families, and needs the 12 acres rezoned to Residence E.

Ald. Carol Ann Shea moved reconsideration, which may come before the Board again at special meeting tentatively set for Monday, Aug. 20.

The rezoning will without doubt be approved. Monday night's vote showed only two aldermen, Cynthia Creem and Robert Stiller, opposed to the rezoning' and 14 aldermen in favor. Shea voted "no," but only as a maneuver to be able to move reconsideration.

Disposition of Claflin Hall, a building of the now defunct Newton Junior College in Newtonville, will not be so easy.

At a meeting of the Finance Committee Aug. 1, the minimum price of $110,000, set by a previous Finance Committee more than a year ago, ran into strong opposition. Finance Committee Chairman Edward Richmond wanted to at least double the asking price for the property.

The $110,000 was based on a previous plan to renovate the building for mixed residential and office use, with townhouses to be built behind the building.

The Board of Aldermen changed its requirement of potential developers and decided to request proposals based on all-residential reuse of the building.

During a meeting of the Finance Committee Monday night, the minimum sale price was increased to $175,000.

After a vote of 12 in favor, one opposed, Ald. Joseph McDonnell moved reconsideration because, he said, he believes that a two-thirds vote of the Board is necessary to authorize sale of city land. This question has never been raised before.

City Solicitor Daniel Funk said Tuesday he is researching that point, which is more complicated than first appears. The law referred to by McDonnell apparently applies only to land acquired by eminent domain landtaking by the city, and no one knows right now how the Claflin Hall land was obtained.

When the vote on the minimum sale price is resolved, there still remains the choice of developer to be made by the mayor.

All developers whose proposals have been found in compliance with requests issued by the Planning Department are being considered.

The mayor is responsible for selecting the developer with advice from the Planning Director.

The building has been vacant for more than three years and is a source of concern to the neighborhood.

Wood stoves attract Newton buyers

by MIKE RYAN
staff writer

NEWTON— While most of us enjoy the splendor of the summer season, a few conscientious people have have anticipated the reality of next winter's energy starved situation.

Here in Newton more than 40 families have received permits for the installation of .wood-burning stoves. Just in the month of June, 22 permits were issued by Newton's Building Department. How can anyone think of the winter in June?

One Newton resident, Larry Katz, said he thought about a wood stove last December and realized it was too late to do anything , so he did his "homework" this past acquisition. His duplex has winter for his seen the intitial installment finished; he will be prepared for this upcoming cold season.

He and his wife have bought a convertible wood stove, which serves as an efficient air-tight heater and opens up as an artificial fireplace. Katz said the stove will handle one-half of his heating needs working with an oil heater. Though he will buy delivered cords of wood, he said he knows he will have to split and cut his wood into smaller pieces. It will be "a lot of work," he said.

Despite the fact wood is more expensive, Katz said, there will still be wood when the oil supply runs out.

Where can you buy a wood stove in Newton? Through a check of more than 25 businesses, stores, dealers, and contractors, only two places sell stoves and ony only one of the two installs them.

Harney Hardware in West Newton has four to five wood stoves in stock and they're not moving according to one salesman. Harney's has either a Ben Franklin or a pot-bellied style.

North Atlantic Engineering also of West Newton installs and sells wood stoves, although it has not much of a demand, said president Brad Keyes.

"We're not big in this, but we plan to expand," said Keyes.

Keyes said there 15 to 20 stoves in different were styles in stock. Calls have increase asking about wood stoves, Keyes said.

Owner Stanley Keyes, Brad's father, said stoves can cost as low as $50 and as high as $1,000. "If you get a wood stove," said the senior Keyes, " you get two advantages. You can get enjoyment and efficiency."

How much wood does a household need for a mild climate? Estimates range from two to five regular cords depending on the stove's capacity and the house. A cord is a tight bundle of wood measuring four feet by four feet by eight feet for a total of 128 cubic feet and an approximate weight of one to two tons. The cost of a regular cord for next winter has been estimated anywhere from $95 to $150.

Comparatively, $100 worth of wood, based on a low estimate of a cord, equals about 13 to 27 million BTUs(British thermal units), according to the Massachusetts Energy Office; while, based on White Fuel Company of South Boston's estimates, $100 worth of oil, with a price of 76.2 cents a gallon, gets about 18 million BTUs. These are just approximates, but there is not much of difference between oil and wood. A lot depends on whose figures you use.

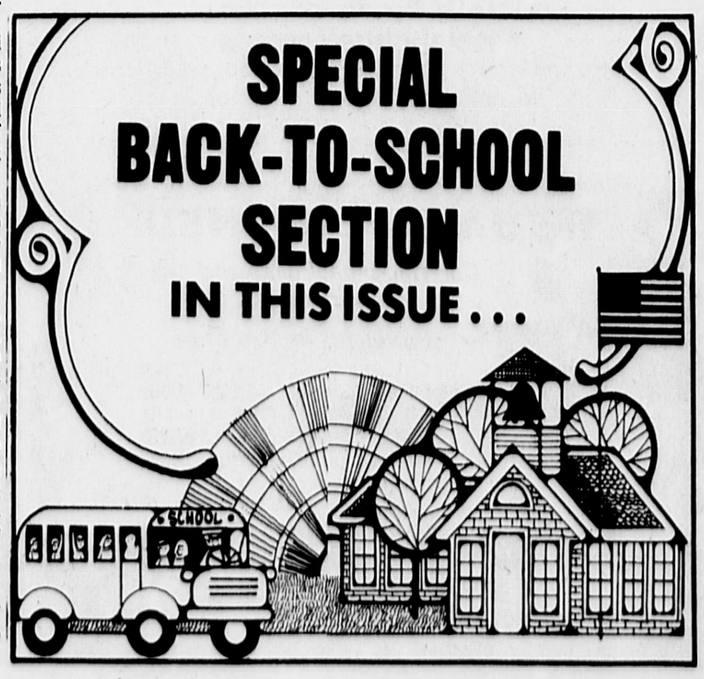

Mike Kuklinsky, an energy inspector for the City, said, in his opinion, wood stoves may not be economically feasible because of wood's expensiveness you need a house in New Hampshire or a "stout, hardy peon" to cut down wood for you. If wood, he said, is used in tandem with an oil or gas furnace it could be financially worthwhile.

Newton's Superintendent of orestry, Dick Metro, said, "I don't think one wood stove will take care of a six to eight room house." . Metro said he gets cals daily asking him on the availability of wood.

The McNamaras of West Newton will use a wood stove for all their heat this winter. Eight rooms will be heated; they have stored away two to three regular chords of wood. Their chimney is placedin their dining room. The stove is an air-tight stove.

The cost of wood stove bought by a Newton resident averages from $500-$700 with some as high as $1,000. The fee for a permit is $5.

Wood stoves may not be the perfect energy alternative and solve the possible problems heating next winter. It is an attempt to ease a complex situation.Wood-chopping . could be the "in thing" to do next winter.

Crystal Lake fence creates stir

By MIKE RYAN
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Norwood Ave. residents are losing sleep this summer due to callous late night swimmers and partiers in a private section of Crystal Lake. Now because of the nuisance created from litter and noise, a fence may be erected to ward off trespassers much to the chagrin of some neighbors.

On Norwood Ave. there is a parcel of shorefront land which extends about 125 feet long between a residence and the Crystal Lake Condominiums on the waters of Crystal Lake. The land, owned by the condominiums, is a small, grassy knoll.

For years residents have sat by the waters or swam there, even though the land is privately owned. This summer has marked a season of disturbances for the tenants of the condominium complex and the homeowners on Norwood Ave. The tenants, who are mostly elderly, have their private beach on the lake and have faced some difficulties.

People wanting to swim in the private beach area have dashed into the halls of the condominiums and undressed into their bathing suits, thus upsetting the tenants.

Two homeowners on Norwood Ave., Willard Johnson and John Shields, do not like the possibility of a fence for it would obscure their view of the lake.

Willard Johnson said the view "is important to the character of the neighborhood." He said the trespassers come from outside of the area and they were teenagers arriving after midnight.

The trouble, he said, is drinking, smoking, and littering. He added, "I doubt a fence would stop that. It's pleasant to see the lake unencumbered. We expect the condominium's owners would appreciate that."

A temporary fence would meet approval from Johnson's neighbor, John Shields of 56 Norwood Ave. This fence would be put up in the summer and taken down in the fall.

"It keeps us up at night," said Shields. He said Johnson and him have policed the area by picking up litter and reminding nonresidents of the private property. An attempt by Shields to buy the plot from the owners failed. The matter, he said, will be worked out in a "friendly fashion." Shields cited the shorefront land as where missionary John Eliot baptized Indians.

"That view," said Shields, "means a great difference to me and we will fight it."

A former resident of Shields' house, Father Phillip McConville, wrote the people of the condominiums emphasizing the historic significance and the tradition of the land.

McConville said residents have enjoyed the pleasures of the water for more than 50 years. Before the condominium was built, originally an apartment complex, there used to be an ice house and there was no problem as it exists now, McConville said.

"The narrow swath," concluded the Green Harbor priest, "of which I write means so much more to your neighbors than it ever can to most of you that I ask you to consider the charitable act of working withem to arrive at equitable solutions to the problem which exists."

James Poland, an owner of the condominiums and a member of its Board of Trustees, said a fence is "under consideration." The fence, he said, would be a three-foot chain link with some bushes in front of it.

"We're not trying to cause a rumpus," said Poland. The police, he said, recommended a fence as a deterrent to the problem. Poland said outsiders have caused the hassles for the tenants. Also he said he does not speak for the trustees; any action can only be taken through a board meeting.

"We haven't complained; we're trying to cooperate," said Poland. "We're not trying to get anyone out of here unless they're hostile. Respect the fact the place is private property."

He has done a lot of maintenance on the grounds and has met with unruly responses from teenagers when asked to observe care for the property, Poland said.

Both parties, one for the unobstructed view and one for quiet and clean grounds, want to settle the matter amicably. The Board of Trustees for Crystal Lake Condominiums will meet next week to discuss the topic.

Funds here for home upgrading

By BEN HOROWITZ
Staff Writer

UPPER FALLS — Residents of the Newton Upper Falls Historic District are eligiblt for federal grants of up to $6000 to renovate the exteriors of their homes.

Members of the Newton Upper Falls Historic District Commission announced the availability of the funds at a meeting last week.

Bruce Beck, a member of the city planning staff and administrator of the historic district funding program for the city, said the funds will be "limited to exterior features, so we could help declining houses from slipping into oblivion." He noted that the amount of each grant will depend on the income of the resident as well as the apparent "architectural significance" of his house.

Homeowners interested in receiving the grants were urged to apply for them. The commission members noted that a meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Newton Upper Falls Methodist Church on Summer Street, where the program and its guidelines will be explained.

Maximilian Fero, a preservationist for a firm in Natick and consultant to the commission, will deliver a lecture on the program. He will discuss program guidelines, eligibility requirements, home restoration and repair guidelines, and program operations.

Applications for the grants will be available at the meeting, and may also be obtained on Wednesdays from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Upper Falls Library.

The commission agreed to hire an architect to assist in restorations of homes with "special historical significance." His fees will come from the $75,000 grant.

The special nature of homes in the district is noted in a booklet prepared for the program under another Community Development grant. The booklet states: "Twentieth century standardization fortunately has not stolen the special sense of place found in Newton Upper Falls. Though some landmarks have been lost, it is easy to see how and why the place came to be as it is."

"In Newton Upper Falls, the survival of houses and stores, churches, mills, mansions, and workers' cottages from the 18th century and 19th century growth periods has left the village with a strong sense of place," the booklet says.

In other business, the commission appointed member Sigmund T. Romas as acting chairman. Romas, who has been on the commission for more than two years, temporarily replaces William Whitney, whose resignation from the post was effective Aug. 1.

Whitney said his business commitments no longer permit him the time to function as chairman. Romas said he does not want to be a permanent chairman and will serve in the position until a new chairman is found.

At present, the commission has vacancies for one full-time member (who would be the chairman) and one alternate. Commission members agreed to contact the Upper Falls Improvement Association (a neighborhood organization) to find a new chairman.

Coletti permit opposed by 20

NEWTON — About 20 Upper Falls residents urged the aldermanic Land Use Committee last week not to recommend a special permit for a third dewelling unit at the home of Ald. Paul Coletti, 34-36 Columbia Ave.

One of them, Brian Yates, said "The precedent could be disastrous, not only for Upper Falls, but for the entire city."

Coletti was ordered by Building Commissioner Allan Fraser June 11 to remove wiring, plumbing and appliances from a basement apartment at the Columbia Avenue house, which is zoned for two-family use.

Coletti is seekirg a special permit from the Board of Aldermen for the conversion of the house to a three-family dwelling.

He told the Committee "I do not at this time have any intention of renting the space." He said the basement apartment is used as an office and for guests.

Ald. Susan Schur asked Coletti if he had considered "ripping out the kitchen." She said she had heard from several people who considered purchasing houses with illegal third apartments in them. She said they could not obtain an occupancy permit without removing kitchen facilities from the third apartments.

John Mullen of 169 Eliot St. said the petition is "a source of embarassment to the neighborhood."

"We don't like to ave controversy with our neighbors," he said, "and we're embarassed by having to appear here to oppose it. This petition cannot but be a source of embarassment to the Board of Aldermen and the petitioner."

"The issue is not whether or not the petitioner can squeeze this through the requirements of the zoning ordinance. The issue is whether or not the Board is willing to set the precedent for converting basements into apartments."

"We don't want a three-decker area in our neighborhood. Even now there are traffic and parking problems. There should not be any more intensive use of that hill."

Both Yates and Committee Chairman Terry Morris noted that the section of the ordinance under which Coletti is applying for the special permit was designed to protect older houses which are not economical for two families. Coletti's house was built in 1976.

That section, 24-6-H, allows the conversion to three-family use where there are 5,000 square feet in the lot for each dwelling unit.

Yates said the ordinance "should establish criteria beyond simple square footage."

Coletti's lot measurers 16,300 square feet.

Coletti, in rebuttal, said most of the people who spoke are "abuttors of abuttors" and produced a petition signed by 15 neighborhood residents in favor of the permit.

Asbestos money approved for North

Despite some misgivings about the need and the method, the Board of Aldermen Monday night approved a $20,000 appropriation for immediate sampling and testing of asbestos used in the construction of Newton North High School.

The sampling, to be done by physicist Dr. Charles Spooner, acknowledged to be an expert on the physical properties of asbestos, will provide the Board of Aldermen and the mayor with information on which to base a decision on what to do about the asbestos, but will not provide medical opinion about whether the asbestos must be removed.

The sampling will consist of 400 cores of material from the school and will locate the asbestos and determine its condition. According to Ald. Robert Sandman, about 25 percent of the insulating material used in the 6-year-old school is not asbestos, but plans do not show which.

Spooner's recommendations apparently will be purely in terms of whether the asbestos found will support a sprayed-on sealant, needs to be boxed in with barriers or is deteriorated to the point at which it must be removed.

The work will be done before school starts in the fall.

Some of the aldermen agreed with Public Facilities Chairman Richard McGrath that there is not such an urgency to the appropriation that it could not wait until Spooner could come before McGrath's committee. .

The board appeared somewhat disturbed by having all information on Spooner's work relayed through Building Commissioner Allan Fraser, with nothing presented in writing.

Ald. Robert Stiller commented' "After we get the information (from the sampling), we won't be in a better position than we are in today."

Air testing of Newton North has consistently showed fiber levels to be within acceptable limits, according to the consultant used by the city to test NNHS air every two months, but pressure by Newton North teachers and parents, coupled with the state Asbestos Commission recommendation that every effort be made to minimize asbestos exposure and to survey closely the existing asbestos in the school, has made the city give second thoughts to complete removal of the asbestos.

The absence of definitive medical opinion on how much asbestos is too much will leave the city still facing the decision on whether to remove all the asbestos, at a cost of more than $5 million.

If and when that decision is made, the Spooner data will give a basis on which to choose a way to proceed.

The Board approval of the $20,000 was conditioned by a resolution that Spooner not discuss his report with anyone before submitting it to the Board and the mayor and that air samples also be taken. The air samples are not to be taken before 72 hours after any construction work or disturbance due to the work being done on the heating, ventilating and air-conditioning.

Another requirement is that the Board be given a copy of the contract with Spooner. cPD Ald. Joseph McDonnell had questions about Spooner's qualifications and about why he was chosen to do this work instead of obtaining proposals from several sources.

Those questions had been answered some time earlier in committee meetings.

Ald. Robert Sandman, answering objections to what might appear to be a rush on the matter, said that in his opinion "there is a weak but reasonable case" for doing it now and then studying the results so as to be ready to act during next summer's school vacation, if action is called for.

Ald. Ethel Sheehan commented, "A rush on the Board of Aldermen amounts to a snail's pace," and urged approval.

After denial of a move to recommit the matter to the Public Facilities Committee, the Board voted 20-0 for the appropriation. Ald. Donald Budge was absent for the vote; Ald. Paul Daley and Joseph DePasquale were absent for the entire meeting; McGrath sat outside the rail talking to a member of the audience and did not vote.

Inflation's effects

Inflation is increasingly our most serious national problem. Its effect is extensive.

It now takes an income of $25,000 for a family of four to equal the purchasing power of a family with only $13,200 income in 1970. One result has been the increase in two-income families.

In 1971 40.8% of working women were married. In 1978 the percentage had risen to 47.6 and is still growing. And while the income after taxes in 1960 dollars remained between $5,000 and $6,500 the actual income had jumped from $5,620 to $18,800. Of course taxes were taking a bigger bite but the real culprit was inflation.

However, the need to earn more money for families to live as they are accustomed isn't the only reason why more wives work outside the home. In a way, a career has become a status symbol. Legislation and court decisions have also eased the way.

During World War I, many women replaced men in the labor force but the majority went back to the home when the war was over. Sexual discrimination on pay and promotion wes ignored. But after World War II, things began to change. The Equal Pay Act of 1963 and the Civil Rights Act of 1964 made equal pay mandatory on the federal scene. An amended Title VII of the latter act prohibited discrimination of pregnant women. Insurance plans extended coverage for the temporary disability of late pregnancy and childbirth. Pregnancy-related programs have not been completely clarified because of the United States Supreme Court's lack of consensus on the issue.

There continues to be plenty of criticism of the two-income families. "They are part of the instant-gratification, self-indulgent Me decade, which has a taste for high-priced gadgets and little interest in self-denial," according to Time Magazine. Families generally are smaller. Wives want to be "fulfilled" and volunteer activities don't do it. Aside from the need to earn money for luxuries or frills, there is the hard fact of the high rate of divorce. Women who have spent all their adult lives in the home find it difficult to find employment if a marriage breaks up. There is also the pressure of advertising — for expensive gadgets, foreign travel, higher education. The women's liberation movement has emphasized the need of women to find careers outside of the home. Polls indicate that the happiest marriages today are when both husbands and wives have independent careers.

The old time family pattern has definitely changed. Couples have fewer children or none at all. They rely more upon service agencies and child care centers. There are commuter and long distance marriages and even separate households.

Is the major problem the fact that a quest for more material possessions is a primary influence in the new look? It could be that the inflationary zoom has coincided with the sexual equal rights movement. But if the result is a more fragmented and material society, there well may be national regrets in the future.

My Turn

Fascinating, intimidating and amusing

By CYNTHIA BLACK

I am one of those people who is, in turn, intimidated, fascinated and amused by computers.

Technically, I don't understand them at all, so they intimidate me. I'm awed by someone's ability to create a machine that seems to be able to think, that gets smaller as it gets smarter, that's always learning new tricks.

People should be so adaptable.

Computerization has been coming to the newspaper business gradually over the past few years. This column was set in type by a computer following codes I give it for what to do.

I can make the computer do tricks. I can make it write in italics.

I can

I can insist that it set this entire sentence in bold face type, and it will do exactly as I say.

Computers, however, are very sensitive and ours is no exception. It has a television screen on top that allows you to watch what it's setting in type inside. Here, it makes its own editorial comments.

If the letters are blurry, it stops and pulsates ominously until you tell it what the letters are supposed to be.

If you horrify it with the way you make a correction, it gives you this: !

Regular readers know its propensity for crazy 8's too. Sometimes, I've learned, it likes to slip those in when its not sure what letter you actually wanted.

The computer the Graphic is using has a "big brother" in our main plant in Dedham now.

We've yet to be introduced, but the new one has intimidated me without ever saying a word.

It has its own separate room in our composing room. It has its own air conditioning system and absolutely forbids smoking. I wouldn't think of going in to see it unless I knocked first.

I think I enjoy personifying the computers because it makes them seem a little less intimidating when I give them human attributes. But I can't help wondering sometimes if "1984" is really going to happen in 1984.

Anyway, with this as background, you will be able to imagine my glee Monday when I got a story from the telephone company about its new computer, the "Super Switcher."

Not only is it smaller and smarter, but it's paving the way for telephone tricks unheard of today.

For example: programming certain numbers to produce a distinctive ring on the telephone to identify them as priority calls.

I see a whole new status symbol vista unfolding here. Do you, or do you not have a priority ring? If not, why not? What's the matter with you?

How about a resounding ring for the boss, a sweet, tinkling sound for grandma or an angry blast from your irate friends?

Perhaps a trumpet fanfare would be appropriate for priority calls, causing you to leap out of your chair and stand at attention when you answer the phone.

Or maybe the "do not disturb" feature they're planning would be more to your liking.

Calls would automatically be recorded and stored when you told the phone you did not wish to be bothered.

Even priority rings?

How about a phone that will keep dialing a busy, long-distance number until it gets through? Saves a lot of wear and tear on the fingers, but suppose it dosen't get through for four hours and you're not home anymore?

The phone triumphantly reaches your uncle, his phone rings, he picks it up, and no one's there!

I have a better idea. How about a phone that can talk? Once a day, you could sit down with it and ask it what's going on in your life.

Chrysler case has a warning

Commentary by Joseph Kraft

Bad management undoubtedly played a part in making the Chrysler Corp. a basket case. But items of public policy — Iran and inflation as well as government regulation — also did their bit.

So the Chrysler case carries a general warning. Public policies need to be reshaped in ways that minimize the danger of more Chryslers — ways that promote the reindustrialization of America.

Several bad decisions by the high command at Chrysler are readily identifiable. For most of this decade the company has maintained a product mix that put heavy emphasis on trucks, vans and intermediate cars. Chrysler was thus especially vulnerable to the switch toward more fuel-efficient cars prompted by the oil embargo of 1974 and the gasoline shortages of early 1979.

In the third quarter of 1974 and the fourth quarter of 1978, moreover, Chrysler built up paper profits by pushing cars out to dealers even though sales lagged. Each time the dealers accumulated huge inventories. To stay above water, Chrysler has had to cut back production in this country and sell off profitable foreign subsidiaries.

In consequence, Chrysler's share of the American market has dropped from 16 percent in 1974 to under 10 percent now. Dealers have dropped out. Resale values have declined. Servicing has become harder. There has been generated a vortex of forces pulling Chrysler down toward bankruptcy.

Saving the company in these conditions is very hard. Contributions from the banks, the auto workers, the dealers and the government will all be required.

Some government officials estimate the federal contribution will have to be closer to $2 billion than the $1 billion the company and the union are asking. Other officials believe it would be better to let the company go bust, and then allow private interests — presumably German or Japanese auto makers — to pick up the pieces.

But if saving Chrysler, at this stage, is difficult, preventing future Chryslers is not. For the elements of public policy involved in the Chrysler debacle are easy to identify. Government regulation is an obvious factor. The feds impose the same standards for safety, emissions and fuel economy on all the auto makers. But because of economies of scale, the cost of the changes per car is more expensive for Chrysler than for Ford, and much more expensive for Chrysler than for General Motors.

Re-equipment and retooling is forced upon the auto makers partly by new government regulations and partly by the consumer preference for cars that eat less gasoline. But inflation has driven the costs out of sight. Total investment in new plant and equipment for the Big Three auto companies jumped from $1.8 billion in 1976 to $4.6 billion in 1978 and an estimated $5.3 billion this year. General Motors has been able to foot the bills. Ford has kept apace, thanks largely to earnings abroad.

But Chrysler has lagged further and further behind. In 1965 it spent 22 percent of what GM spent on new plant and equipment. Last year only 12 percent.

The gasoline shortage of the past few months has perhaps dealt Chrysler its death blow. The company is way behind GN and Ford in moving toward a new front-wheel compact. But as John Riccardo, the chairman of Chrysler, asked in a recent interview with me, "Why should we be blamed for not predicting the fall of the shah?"

The point of this is not to undo manifestly desirable government regulations. Nor to build sympathy for a bail-out of poor, little Chrysler.

But the fact is that the general climate for all American industry has changed for the worse. Government regulations do affect competitive conditions. Inflation diminishes the incentive for investment. Foreign competition — often from firms subsidizied in one way or another — is heavy. The basic American infrastructure, particularly in railroads but also in highways, has been run down.

So public policies need to be adjusted accordingly. Faster tax write-offs are required to stimulate investment in productivity. Anti-trust laws ought not to complicate compliance with other government regulations. The highway and railroad systems should be built up again. Institutional means should be developed to save companies in trouble before they become basket cases.

For the U.S. cannot afford to become a pure service economy. On the contrary, if this country is to maintain industrial jobs, save its major cities and sustain its traditional role in high technology and international security, it needs to formulate over the next few years an explicit policy for the re-industrialization of America.

'Yes sir! Priced below last year's model! Optional equipment is extra of course.'

The Army's Hotel

The $20 million hotel in Hawaii was built as a place for rest and recreation for combat troops. Since then just about everything has gone wrong with this monument to federal boondogglery.

Analysis by John D. Lofton, Jr.

WASHINGTON — In the annals of federal boondogglery, in sheer absolute dollars — as either a percentage of the gross national product or the national budget — the way the Army Department has run the Hale Koa Hotel at Fort DeRussy on Waikiki Beach, Hawaii, will rate little more than a footnote. But, measured qualitatively, the hotel has demonstrated management incompetence and inefficiency which the House Armed Services Investigations Subcommittee says, in one of the great understatements of this century, is "probably unparalleled."

Constructed entirely from so-called unappropriated funds — the profits from facilities patronized by military personnel in Vietnam — the 416-room luxury hotel was built at a cost of $20.5 million. Its primary purpose was to provide suitable housing for combat troops on rest and recuperation leave from Vietnam. It was also supposed to provide a first-class recreational facility for men and women of all the armed forces, both active and retired, and their dependents. The Army Department estimated that an occupancy rate of 80 percent would be required for the hotel to be self-sufficient. Things have not worked out this way, not by a long shot.

So what went wrong? The answer: everything that could go wrong.

— During its first three years of operation, from October 1975 through September 1978, despite the fact that it paid no taxes and paid nothing for its uitlities, the hotel required an infusion of $3,691,589 in appropriated tax dollars.

— Between October 1975 and September 1978, the hotel would have incurred a loss of $4,010,481 but for the appropriated fund support it received.

— As the appropriated fund support level became the subject of increasing high-level concern within the Army, the hotel management had no means for systematic indentification and analysis of these funds.

— In spite of a 98 percent average occupancy rate at the Hale Koa Hotel, room rental rates, which were 43 percent blow the prevailing rates at other Waikiki Beach hotels, were insufficient to support operation of the hotel. On a scale of one to 10, the hotel's management was rated a three by Army auditors.

The Army Audit Agency estimated that, for the 12-month period ending in January 1978, the hotel's food service operation suffered a net loss of about $120,575. The agency estimated that approximately $126,000 annually in dining room and kitchen labor or related payroll costs could be saved if this service was terminated. This suggestion was ignored by the Army's Support Command Hawaii, which had supervisory responsibility for the hotel.

Another cost-reduction proposal put forth by Army auditors was a reduced schedule for Pele's Cauldron, one of four cocktail lounges operated by the hotel, and termination of a promotional "free" drink program offered by the lounge. During a sample period, the auditors found that this lounge operated at a loss of $239 a day. Again, the Army Support Command rejected this recommendation.

Inadequate management control was also evident in the hotel's excessive advertising and promotional expenses. Advertising costs increased each year from $69,000 in fiscal year 1976 to $110,000 in fiscal 1977 and $120,000 in fiscal 1978. The hotel ran two separate full-page ads in the same issue of a magazine at a cost of $2,000 per ad. Advertisements were also placed in a magazine for local distribution in Hawaii at the same time ads were run in the publications of three local military wives' clubs which circulated in the same area. The House Investigations Subcommittee notes:

"Such expenditures might be justified if the hotel were attempting to increase its occupancy rate. But a hotel which has operated at an average occupancy rate of 98 percent since its opening can hardly justify such extravagance in advertising."

The Hale Koa's promotion expenditures also increased from $120,000 in fiscal 1977 to $144,000 in fiscal 1978. These promotions included such things as an "Aloha Breakfast" every morning, where guests were served "free" coffee and pastries, and "free" snacks offered to guests and "free" drinks passed out as door prizes during a twice-a-week celebrity hour. These two promotions alone cost $10,800 for a three-month period. Another promotional program which flopped was the offering of "free" drinks to induce guests to patronize one of the hotel's cocktail lounges. Says the Investigations Subcommittee:

"Such largesse hardly seems necessary at a hotel which is furnishing its guests beach accomodations at 43 percent below the prevailing Waikiki rate."

Incredibly, after labor costs, the hotel's entertainment costs represented the largest expense item. In fiscal 1977 the entertainment cost was $254,000 and in fiscal 1978 entertainment was budgeted at $300,000, an increase of 18.6 percent.

The federal government's operation of the Hale Koa Hotel, while an extreme example to be sure, is all too typical of the way government runs things. It is the rule rather than an exception. Keep this in mind the next time you hear somebody saying the government ought to nationalize the oil companies.

Footnote: The House Armed Services Investigation Subcommittee recommends that if the Hale Koa Hotel cannot become a self-sustaining concern by Oct. 1, 1979, consideration should be given to contracting with a commercial firm for its operation.

Heating oil prices

To the Editor:

The Newton Council on Aging is deeply concerned about the substantial increases in home heating oil and natural gas prices that are forecasted for the winter heating season ahead.

We are worried that senior citizens living on fixed incomes will be faced with an insurmountable financial burden. Many people will be forced to make choices, not between the necessities of life and non-essentials, but among shelter, food and clothing.

We feel very strongly that the state and federal governments have a responsibility to develop strategies to deal with this serious problem so people can live without fear of freezing to death or dying of malnutrition.

The Council on Aging urges Governor King to do all in his power to ensure the safety and well-being of our senior citizens in the coming winter. We will do all we can at the local level.

'Boat People' response

To the Editor:

The results of neighborhood concern for our "Boat People" family are most gloriously obvious as you walk into Grace Church these days.

That meticulous "Small Hall" has never seen such a splendid ingathering, the results of people's "giving." I am trying to write everyone thank you notes, but I know that some names will fall between the cracks and so I apologize in advance, and thank you, too. The response has been all and more than I could have hoped for, and we are immensely grateful.

No, we have not closed the doors on contributions. Far from it. We want to give this new American "clan" (who range from a 62 year old grandmother to 7-year-old twins) a welcome that will hold them through all the agonies of resettlement. If you and I had been forcefully ejected from Newton to remake our lives in the jungles of Indochina where last week's heat is the norm, the language as strange as the customs and all our heritage a mangled memory, we too would need kindness and friends.

Although so much has been given, we do need more. Our most pressing need right now is money. I have culled much information from our local bureaucratic giants and they all tell me the same — they will become self-sufficient very swiftly (their pride and culture demand it) but in the meantime we, as their sponsors, are responsible for them.

We must find enough money for at least one month's rent, for utilities, food (not everything is covered by "stamps") and those unexpected emergencies that happen in every family.

And does anyone have a bicycle that they're not madly peddling to work? It would save a great deal in transportation costs, and even children's bicycles would be useful for they are so much smaller than us hefty beefeaters! If you have anything to offer, please call me at 527-2988. Or call Grace Church 244-3221.

We'll tell you as soon as they arrive; and in the meantime, thank you again for your contributions, your caring and your support.

Quality of service

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to the Newton Fire Department and a copy forwarded to the Newton Graphic).

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to you and the rest of your department.

July 15 would have marked the end of a dream for me, my family and coworkers had it not been for the response and the expertise of your department. Many dollars were invested io into the property along with all my sweat as well.

With all the criticism of government officials and public servants, it seems only fitting to commend you for what you have done for us. The damage could have been extensive had your approach to the fire been any different.

Once again, I would like to say thank you for a job well done. I certainly hope other residents of this city never have to experience a similar incident in order to restore their faith in the quality service of our Fire Department.

Thieves hit 2 homes, club

NEWTON–Three sets of golf clubs, together valued at more than $1,300,were taken from outside the pro shop at Newton Community Country Club ,91 Algonquin Rd.,shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The clubs are owned by out-of-town golfers. One set had an estimated value of $700.

Four Oriental rugs, jewelry, silverware and a television were taken from the home at 173 Waban Hill Rd. North Tuesday.The items were apparently loaded in a car parked at the house and the intruders stole that vehicle as well.

The house was entered by climbing the front porch,then walking the south side of the roof to a second-floor window.The window was smashed in and every room in the home was ransacked.

Police also reported $222 taken from two wallets in a Rolling Lane home sometime late Monday or early Tuesday.The homeowner found a window open and a screen removed when he awoke Tuesday morning.

Jane Pitt

Ms. Pitt, 33, will continue to live in Newton with her 7-year-old son, William. She will also continue her study of law, which she will complete in two years.

A frail-appearing woman, Ms. Pitt won the admiration of department heads in City Hall during a particularly bad winter, when she went out with the public works commissioner and worked along with the men on emergency clearing of drains.

From there she showed her toughness in dealing with union problems that few expected a woman to be able to deal with.

Ms. Pitt acted as intermediary between department heads and the mayor and between feuding department heads at times, usually to the satisfaction of everyone, and became the expert in most areas of city government through her exhaustive work on budget preparation.

State study gives profile of a vandal

BOSTON — Vandals in Massachusetts are largely 17-25 years of age, according to a research study "Malicious Destruction of Property: 1975-78" recently released by Probation Commissioner Joseph P. Foley.

The study analyzed 122 randomly selected convictions (including juvenile cases) for malicious destruction of property, as part of a larger sentencing study of 4,976 Massachusetts convictions between 1975 and 1978.

According to Foley, "Nearly two-thirds of those convicted of Malicious Destruction of Property were 17-25 years of age; 22.1 percent were older adults (26 plus years of age). Only 13.9 percent of the adjudicated vandals were juveniles (seven-16 years old)."

These findings are contrary to the common belief that juveniles are responsible for the majority of vandalism, Foley said.

In the larger sentencing study of 4,976 Massachusetts convictions between 1975 and 1978, the office of the commissioner of probation found that 54.2 percent of the convicted persons were 17-25 years of age; older adults represented 30.4 percent of the cases, and delinquent juveniles accounted for 15.3 percent.

The study also found that females were underrepresented in this offense category. While 9.8 percent of the cases in the larger sentencing study were female, only 4.9 percent of those convicted of malicious destruction of property were female.

Simultaneous offenses

The probation research study also found a high incidence of serious simultaneous offenses. Nearly half (44.3 percent) of the convicted vandals were also charged with breaking and entering; 24.6 percent were also charged with assault and battery; 27 percent were charged with larceny; 2.4 percent were charged with arson.

Twenty-one percent of the vandalism cases were heard in Superior Court; 79 percent of the vandalism cases were heard in the District Court.

Prior histories

The convicted vandals showed a high incidence (81.1 percent) of prior convictions, particularly for property crimes such as larceny and breaking and entering. Among the adults convicted of malicious destruction of property, 60.9 percent had previously been convicted of at least one property crime. Those with juvenile records showed 83.3 percent with one or more prior property crimes.

Among those with prior property convictions or delinquencies, 60 percent showed one-three prior offenses, 18 percent had four-six prior convictions, and 22 percent had seven or more previous convictions.

Sentencing patterns

Analysis of the vandalism cases in the probation sentencing study found that 13.9 percent of these convicted persons were incarcerated, compared to a 21.1 percent incarceration rate in the larger study of sentencing convictions in Massachusetts.

While Massachusetts law cites imprisonment in a state prison for not more than 10 years, or a fine, as the punishment options for malicious destruction of property, none of the cases in the sample reflected a 10-year prison term. Ninety-four percent of those persons who received sentences of incarceration were sent to houses of correction, with the terms ranging from one month to two years. Only one person was sent to a state prison, for three-five years.

Convicted vandals received a suspended sentence most frequently (37.7 percent), and 21.3 percent received formal probation, with probation supervision ranging from seven-36 months. Eighteen percent of the malicious destruction of property cases were either "continued without a finding" or "filed." The remainder largely resulted in fines.

Vandalism cases heard in the local District Courts showed only 10.4 percent were given sentences of incarceration. However, cases heard in the Superior Court sittings across the state reflected a 26.9 percent rate of incarceration. According to Commissioner Foley, "This may be attributed to the incidence of serious simultaneous offenses."

The office of the commissioner of probation is analyzing sentencing data on other specific crimes, and the findings will be released shortly. Anyone interested in receiving a copy of the Malicious Destruction of Property study should contact the Research Unit, Office of the Commissioner of Probation.

The Office of the Commissioner of Probation is unique in that it maintains all criminal and delinquency records statewide. Six million records, dating back to 1924, are stored in the Probation Central File.

Needham woman injured in Langley Road accident

NEWTON—A Needham woman was injured Tuesday afternoon when she was hit by a car on Langley Road.

Police say Harry Labourene, 70, of 660 Beacon St. was southbound on Langley Road when Judith Didomenico, 30, of 235 Hunting Rd., Needham got out of a parked car and was struck by his car.

Didomenico was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital where she was treated and released.

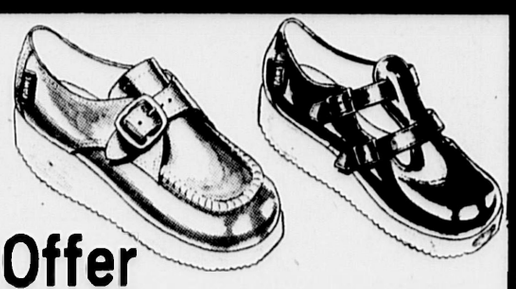

Three persons were injured in a head-on crash on Washington Street Tuesday afternoon.

Police say Paul Ragucci, 23, of 5 Willers St., West Roxbury was eastbound on Washington Street near Longfellow Road when a a westbound vehicle driven by James Looney, 44, of 142 Paul St., Dedham veered into the eastbound lane, striking Ragucci's car head-on.

Ragucci, Looney and a passenger in Ragucci's car, Ronald Lozzi, 19, of 2 Willers St., West Roxbury were taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital where they were treated and released.

Tenants benefit from Housing overcharge

By LINDA FRITZ
Correspondent

NEWTON — Despite claims in a state audit report that the Department of Housing Services overcharged tenants in the state leased housing program, the Housing Services Commission learned last week most tenants benefited by the department's calculation errors.

The report states that miscalculations were made in fiscal year 1978. The department did not give the five percent family deduction before calculating incomes, according to the report.

While this error was made, said Newton Housing Services (NHS) Executive Director Frank Quinn, the department deducted for utilities in unheated units as is 9 done in the federal leased housing program. Under this method, NHS calculates 25 percent of each tenant's income, less $300 per dependent. It then subtracts a utility allowance to determine a tenant's rent.

In the state program, five percent is deducted off the top of the income and then the $300 allowance per dependent. Then for unheated units the tenant pays 20 percent of the adjusted income.

Because of the generosity of the utility allowance, Quinn said, most tenants in the project actually paid less rent than they would have under the state's method of calculation. There may be a problem for the few — if any — tenants renting apartments which include the cost of heat' Quinn admitted. If such is the case, he said, those tenants will be reimbursed. In fiscal year 1979, which just ended in June, NHS corrected its method of calculation, Quinn said.

In other matters, the commission reelected its slate of officers. Once again Stephen Buchbinder is chairman, Leo Karas is vice chairman, Henry Wilson is treasurer, Donald Ferreri is assistant treasurer, and Frank Quinn is secretary.

Cambridge architects backed for Newtonville projects

NEWTONVILLE — The Newtonville Advisory Committee on community development voted last week to recommend a Cambridge architectural firm as a consultant on Newtonville improvements.

The committee is working to improve business facades, the Walnut St. bridge, and traffic problems in Newtonville Square.

The committee recommends the consultant to the Planning Department, which approves or disapproves the firm, then the mayor makes the final decision.

At their last meeting the committee listened to four firms present their proposals for Newtonville. Applying for possible consultants were Carr, Lynch of Cambridge, Moore-Heder Associates of Boston.

Moore-Heder Associates of Cambridge won the committee's recommendation with Carr, Lynch the alternate choice. All planner Dale Silin.

A decision by the Planning Department is expected soon.

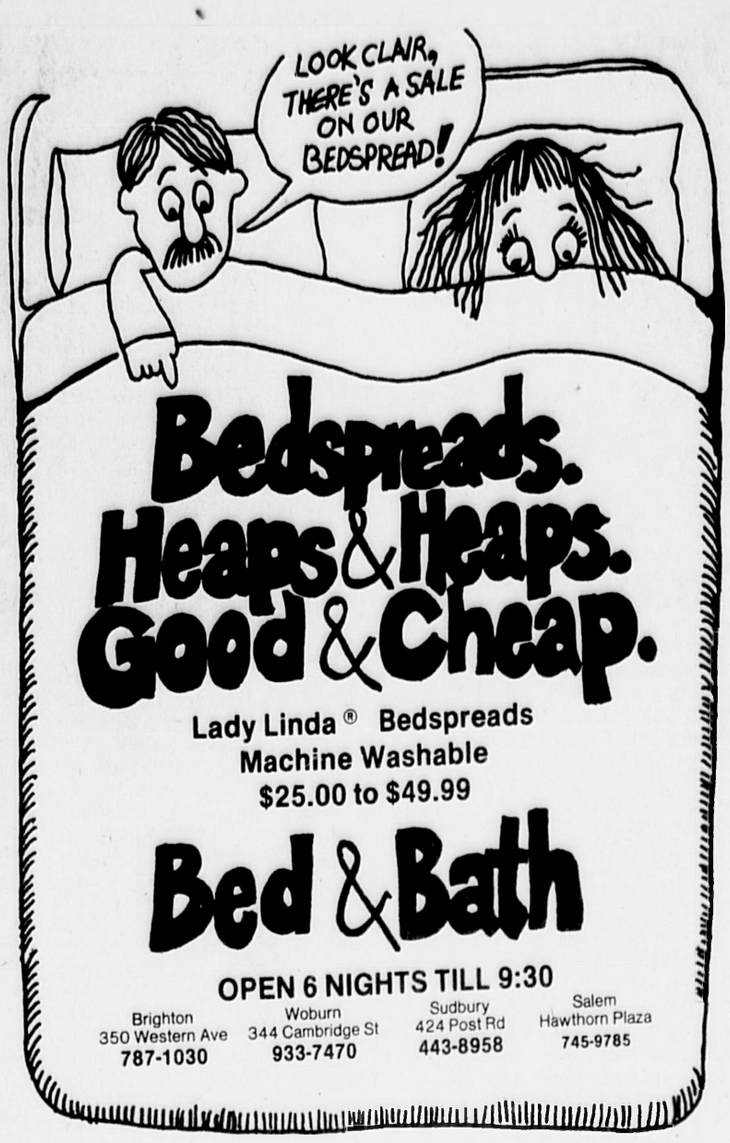

Drinan plans open forum

NEWTONVILLE — Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton) invites Newton residents to join him for an informal discussion of national issues at his Open Forum Tuesday, Aug. 21, from 8:15 until 9:45 p.m. at the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Pk., Newtonville.

"The floor will be open for discussion of any topic," Drinan said, "taxes, energy, Social Security, health care, inflation, the environment, or whatever people have on their minds."

Drinan will hold office hours in Newton City Hall, Room 202, 1000 Commonwealth Ave., on that day from 3:15 until 6 p.m., and from 6:30 p.m. until 8 p.m. He will meet with any Newton resident who is experiencing a problem in dealing with any part of the federal government.

"Anyone having a problem with veterans benefits, Social Security, or any federal agency can make an appointment to speak with me by calling my district office at 890-9455," Drinan explained.

It's Miss America ...by a swimsuit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Statistically speaking, Miss America should be a small-town lass who draws raves in her swimsuit, plays the piano or sings, and has measurements of 35.60, 23.40, 35.55.

Delegates to the 139th annual American Statistical Association meeting turned from pondering productivity, the economy in the 1980s, weather modification, and mathematical research, to analyzing today's beauty queens.

Two statisticians from Northern Illinois University — George Miller and Chipei Tseng — issued a 17-page report entitled "The Anatomy of Miss America." The report was released by the association Monday, but was to be formally delivered today.

Although they provided data on the famed pageant from 1959 to 1978, Miller and Tseng would not forecast exactly what the new Miss America — to be crowned next month in Atlantic City, N.J., will be like.

"A predictive model of a sequential decision nature is still under development at this writing," they explained.

They said, however, there "is an inherent small town bias in the Miss America Pageant," noting large cities can send only one representative to state pageants.

Currently, pageant judging is based on a scale of one-third for talent, one-third for swimsuit, one-sixth for evening gown and one-sixth for poise, but Miller and Tseng said over the years there has been "a definite bias toward swimsuit winners."

They said 16 of 52 swimsuit winners finished first or second, and 22 finished third or better, while only two of 57 talent winners finished second or better and six of 57 were third or better.

"Clearly a talented participant must win the swimsuit contest to have much of a chance for the higher ranks," they said.

Their figures showed that over the past 20 years, the mean measurements of the winners were 35.60 inches for bust, 23.40 for waist and 35.55 for hips.

"Judges do seem to favor a symmetry of bust and hips, with waists approximately 12 inches smaller," they said.

Trash Talk

Changes in recycling

By BETSY LEWENBERG

Recycling questions of the week:

What changes are planned for the Newton Recycling Program in September? Why are these changes being made?

Starting in September, there will be two major changes in the recycling program. One change involves the frequency of collection of glass and cans; the other deals with the kinds of paper that will be accepted for recycling.

Glass and cans will be collected twice each month. One pickup will be for clear glass and cans; the other will be colored glass and cans. Half of Newton's households will have glass and cans collected for recycling on the first and third weeks of the month (odd weeks) on regular trash day; the other half will be on a second and fourth week (even) schedule. Calendars delivered to each household will explain the schedules in detail.

Paper recycling is also undergoing change. Paper will continue to be collected on trash day for recycling; however only newspapers will be accepted for recycling. This means magazines, paper bags and phone books can no longer be recycled. Since paper baqs cannot be recycled, newspapers cannot be placed in bags for recycling, but must tied in bundles.

Collection costs and market factors have made alterations in the recycling program unavoidable.

Glass and can recycling has been costly since its inception, and although collection costs have been reduced due to improvements in the program and increased participation, the market value for the materials has dropped. In addition, some shipments of glass and cans have been rejected because of improper mixing of colors and contamination with ceramics, plates, etc. and this has meant a loss of revenues. Since the volume of glass collected does not justify two trucks collecting this material, the solution was obvious — eliminate one truck and save the program $25,000 in costs, and at the same time, increase revenues by collecting clear glass and colored glass on different weeks and thereby minimize the likelihood of mixed colors. The service of curbside collection of glass and cans is maintained; yet costs are greatly reduced.

The elimination of magazines, paper bags and phone books from paper recycling was dictated by the market. There is no market value at present for paper as it has been collected in Newton. The paper market is depressed, has been for more than a year and there is no immediate prospect for improvement. Only newsprint has value. If Newton were to continue collection of magazines, paper bags and phone books, we would only be able to receive $1 per ton, whereas pure newsprint fetches $5 per ton. At $1 per ton, paper recycling would cost Newton substantial money. Since most of the recycled paper is newsprint, elimination of a small percentage of paper for an increase of $4 per ton is sensible decision.

We must all change our recycling habits slightly to adapt to the program changes; however, it is worth the effort. Few of us have been recycling our glass and cans every week, and for those who have larger volumes of glass and cans than can be stored for their pickup date, they may bring them to Eliot Street in Newton Highlands any week day until 4 p.m. The elimination of magazines, paper bags and phone books represents a small fraction of paper recycled, and, as such, only a minor inconvenience.

Newton's commitment to recycling remains firm. With the support of our residents, the revised recycling program will be an economic as well as ecological benefit to our community.

Rugs stolen from homes

NEWTON--Oriental rugs figured in two of the three housebreaks reported in Newton during the past three days.

A small Oriental rug ,jewelry, coins, and a watch were taken from the home of William Harney, 143 Windsor Rd., according to a Sunday police report. Entry was gained by forcing a window.

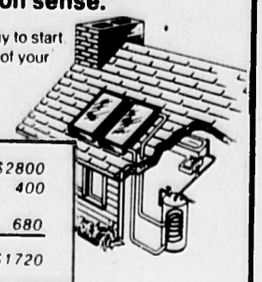

A 10 by 7-foot Oriental was taken from the home of Paul Derensis,702 Chestnut St. That theft was reported Friday.A window was forced open.

A quantity of jewelry and a television were taken from the home of Robin Jackson,26 St. James St., according to a Saturday report. A door was forced open.

Millions of records that invade your personal privacy

Once there was a Duchess who told Alice: "'Tis love that makes the world go round!" Alice said no. "It's done," she said, "by everybody minding their own business!" Alice had her own Wonderland. I have mine.

On or about 2:30 p.m., July 18, I stepped into it. My bank. I presented a savings withdrawal slip for $10,000 to a teller.

"That's a lot of money," he said. "Get an O.K."

I stood in line and in 20 minutes reached a young woman who looked at my passbook and withdrawal slip. She looked long and severely. She frowned. Merciful heavens, the thought passed my mind, she's going to ask why I want the money. She's going to ask...

"What are you going to do with it?" she asked sternly.

"Put it in a better bank," I replied, groping aghast.

"There is no better bank," she said.

The ensuing palaver took a lot out of me. I thought of saying I was going to give it to Richard M. Nixon for past favors or I was going to change it into Susan B. Anthony dollars and sprinkle it... never mind. The clerk went to higher authority. She returned with an O.K.

She showed the documents to the clerk next to her and said: "He says he's going to put it in a better bank." A shaken man, I finally got a cashier's check and left, feeling maybe a great machine in the bank's bowels might now have me filed as "that man who says he's going to..."

The clerk's question was a minor assault on one man's privacy — tiny indeed compared to what's been going on in past years in public and private institutions. Granted, the question was crudely engineered, a passing irritant. Nevertheless, where do they get off asking me peremptorily "what are you going to do" with my own property?

But the major assault on American personal privacy — a supreme irritant — lies in what one critic has called the trend toward a Dossier Society.

President Carter has reported (it is not recorded whether he gulped when he first heard of this) that "the federal government holds almost four billion (4,000,000,000!) records on individuals, most of them stored in thousands (!) of computers; federally funded projects have substantial additional files." The government is said to maintain more than 8,000 data systems.

The exclamation points are mine. The foregoing statistics are only a foothill to the mountain of computerized record-keeping systems kept by banks, credit bureaus, insurance firms, utilities, medical facilities, mail junkies, investigating outfits, and what have you.

Carter pointed out that the federal records are needed to run its hundreds of undertakings and then said: "Modern technology, however, makes it possible to turn this storage into a dangerous surveillance system."

Sixty-three percent of the American public couldn't agree more. That is the Harris-poll finding on Americans who believe the use of digital computers should be sharply restricted in the future to preserve personal privacy.

Once an item of info enters the computer's dossier, most often it is there in prepetuity. Lurking? Well, let us see. Death by computer

In upstate New York, Charles Weldner, 43, says he is still dead. Doornail dead he's been for a year. Consigned to eternity by errant megabits in a digital bog. Waiting to come alive by the grace of a computer that now has to be fed a lie in a government wheedle to resurrect him.

"They told my lawyer that they have to lie to the computer to get me back alive," Weldner said when I phoned him in late July. "They have to feed a lie into it. They are supposedly straightening my case out, but as far as I'm concerned it's not straightened out."

Weldner lives in Dryden, N.Y., has a wife and eight children, and a Social Security computer insists he drew his last breath Aug. 8, 1978. He laughed when his monthly disability payments for a 1963 accident began coming under his wife's name. Then, 10 days before Christmas, his wife was notified she was a beneficiary in his death.

Then his Social Security benefits stopped. The Weldners stopped laughing. He was shunted from one Social Security office to another, and was told that a typist probably sent the wrong code, computer language for "deceased" instead of, say, an address change. Word of his dossier death got out when he phoned the UPI bureau in Rochester, N.Y.:

"I'm gone. I don't exist anymore. I have to prove I'm alive."

He hired a lawyer, Anthony Dentino of Rochester, who found that the fail-safe computer system was programmed "so that if someone's dead, it's hard to start the checks up again." When I queried Dentino as to what gives in this "lie" feeding, he said: "In essence they have to defraud the computer. They said they have to 'beat the system.' I'm praying it's straightened out."

Some things never get straightened out, cradle to grave. And even if they're straight, where do government and private institutions get off putting them on file and swapping them around? That's what has the public steamed up, according to recent surveys.

People don't want their privacy invaded. But they insist on their right to know what's going on inside government, a right that entails invading a lot of other people's privacy. People want crime stamped out. But how can law enforcement agencies operate with informants who have stopped informing because criminals have the right to get the files that show who informed on them? The proper balance is a stumper. Atrocious dataveillance slips

Still, the polls show that most people want action now to stop what they consider a slide from sly surveillance to dotty dataveillance on the part of government, banks, insurance companies, employers, schools, and other aspects of Big Brotherism inputting its foot in it.

There are plenty of slips atrocious. The novelist Kay Boyle in San Francisco confirms that her government law-enforcement files, which she got under the Freedom of Information Act, contained a notation that she'd had an amorous affair with the poet Ezra Pound before the first World War. She says she was 10 years old at the time (1913), never met Pound until many years later, and didn't like him then.

There is the case of Edward I. Koch, now mayor of New York, who in 1946 was rejected for life insurance because a neighbor in a spiteful and absolute lie told an investigator that Koch had had leukemia 10 years before. That turned Koch into a vigorous espouser of privacy legislation. It led to his co-sponsoring when he was a Congressman — along with Rep. Barry M. Goldwater Jr. — of the Privacy Act of 1974, the major privacy law.

Arthur R. Miller of Harvard, a law professor and privacy expert, tells about a talented young woman who had a gallingly hard time getting a job when she got out of college. Employers were suspicious, it came out later, because of an entry in her university file: "Melinda's mother is emotionally unstable."

The comment had been made by the girl's sixth-grade teacher, who had met the mother only casually. That damaging remark had followed the girl for 15 years without challenge to its reliability or relevance.

"That is a real story," Miller says. "It is now impossible because of law. It goes back to the era when academic bosses could drop anything they wanted into a student's file.

"But your story about Weldner, the man who claims he's alive, is a sign of the times; once the great information machine starts getting cranked up, there's no stopping it. You're not talking about a little piece of information put away in a manila folder — you're talking about a system.

"You're talking about a high-technology, mechanized system that has a life of its own. And indeed the words that Weldner used are absolutely typical of this phenomenon. He said the computer doesn't know I'm alive. Well, the computer doesn't know anything: it's people running the computer.

"And it's this tendency to treat these information systems as if they were living, breathing animals that we owe respect to and we owe deference to, and in a sense we owe our futures to, that to me in a deep psychological sense is one of the most distressing aspects of computerized information.

"And I happen to be a lover of computers and a believer that they provide the administrative tools for executing a policy like social security. We couldn't have a social security system without that technology. Hiding behind the computer

"But the notion that it's a living, breathing, functioning, and controlling system is crazy. We owe it no deference. Our lives should not depend on it. We should be able to look it in the teeth and say: You've got wrong data — you've got improper data — you're talking to the wrong people.

"Everybody hides behind it. It's marvelous — that guy in Social Security is hiding behind the computer. It's not the computer that 's wrong, it's people."

Miller recalled the case of a bar association screening committee holding up the admission of a completely qualified applicant because their inquiry showed a signature on a left-wing petition. It developed that the petition had been put together when the applicant was two years old.

"So it obviously wasn't the same signature. But you get this constant name confusion, data irrelevancy, recorded gossip. And very often the irony is that the agency doesn't even use its own information sources to check the accuracy.

B.C. denied branch bank

NEWTON — The Board of Aldermen Monday night without debate voted denial of a branch bank at Boston College and disposed of two formerly controversial matters, Nahanton Woods and extension of nonconforming use at 40 Glen Ave., Newton Centre.

The proposed branch office of the BayBank-Newton-Waltham Bank was to have been located in a corner of the McElroy Common at Boston College and would have been accessible to the public, although it was planned primarily for use by students and staff.

The Land Use Committee felt that the proposed location of the small branch, at the corner of College Road and Beacon Street, would exacerbate traffic problems and would constitute a commercial activity not properly a part of school operation.

The site plan for Nahanton Woods, a condominium apartment building under construction at Nahanton and Winchester streets, was allowed to be amended to increase the area of the building and to change the siting of the five-story building and the access road.

The number of apartments, 109, will stay the same, but developer Oscar Wasserman pleaded before the Land Use Committee that he needs to make the apartments larger to make the project economically feasible.

Changes in conditions of the extension of nonconforming use for 40 Glen Ave. include permission to park a total of 12 automobiles in the parking lot on weekends besides those associated with Sweaterville' permission to park a truck on the site, and permission to have a limited number of employees in the building on Saturdays. The business building is in a residential zone.

The building at 40 Glen Ave. was shared by Old Colony ....Knitting Mills and Greenfield's Sweaterville for many years, and had legal nonconforming status, since the use predated zoning regulations.

Red Cross course this month

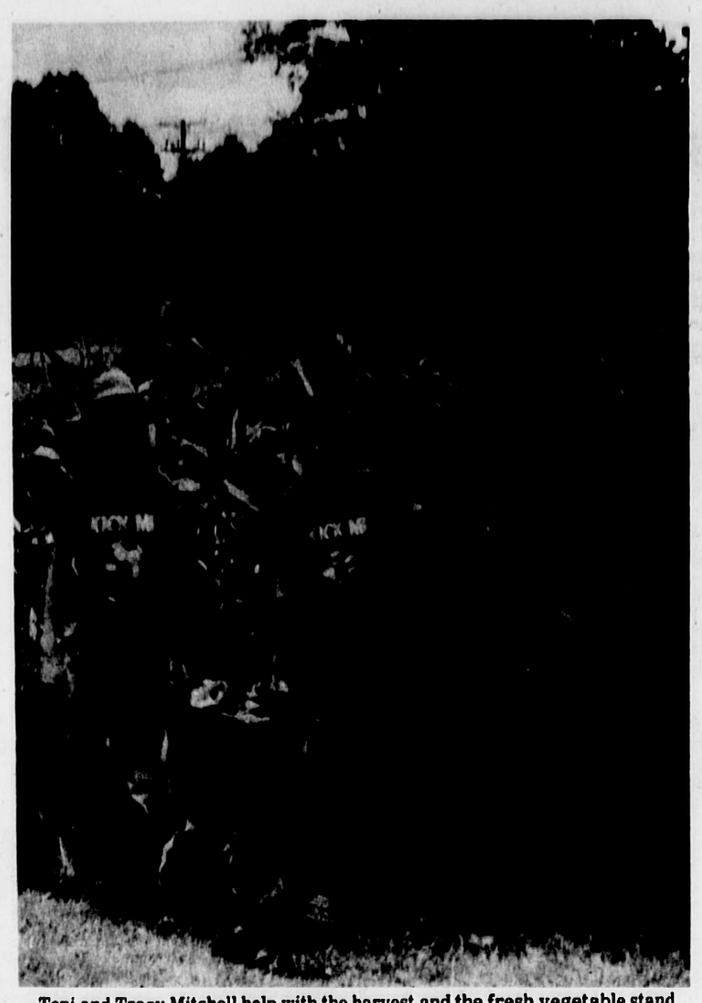

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross will be offering a CPR Module Course for three nights from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville. Class will meet Aug. 20, 22, and 27.

The instructor will be Bob Wargin, who . is also an advanced first aid and emergency care instructor and an EMT for the Newton Police Department.

The CPR Module Course is self-paced. The materials used are a programmed workbook, film viewing of the skills, practice on manikins, an instructor checkout and a final written examination.

There is a $3 fee for this course for the materials, which the students may keep upon completion of the course.

For further information and registration please call the Newton Chapter at 527-6000.

Cost of school buses going up

By JOSEPH FAZZINO

NEWTON — The school department, ready to call it quits with the Metropolitan Coach Co., could be paying as much as $525,000 more for school busing in the coming year.

In all likelihood, the additional cost for 34 daily buses will be about $445,000 if the city cancels the final year of its contract with Metropolitan and gives a new five-year pact to the Transportation Management Co. of Medford, presently the company busing the city's special education students.

Part of the additional busing costs could be recouped by city takeover of land in Billericawhich was offered by Metropolitan in lieu of a performance bond.

City and school officials are evaluating three bids, opened last week, which were sent from companies hoping to replace Metropolitan Coach as the daily buser of the city's school children.

Metropolitan Coach filed for bankruptcy early this year and has indicated to school officials it cannot complete the final year of its five-year contract.

The city now pays Metropolitan about $350,000 per year for the regular school transportation, a figure derived from a daily per-bus cost of $57 for 34 buses.

The new contract, if accepted by the city, offers substantial increases, in some cases as the annual cost could rise from the present $350,000 to as much as $875,000 for the coming school year.

The three bidders on the new contract are asking for daily bus prices of from $103 to $143, according to the city's purchasing agent, Blair Kanbar.

Bidding on either one, three, four or five year contracts were Transportation Mangement Co. of Medford (TMC), Vocell Bus Co. of Cambridge and Transit Bus Lines Inc. of Walpole.

Based just on the listed figures, Vocell offers the best contract to the city with daily bus costs of $93 for the three-year contract.

On a one-year contract, Vocell would charge $105 per bus per day; on a four-year contract, the daily bus fee would be $98 and on a five-year contract the cost would be $103.

TMC offered a one-year contract fee of $139.70 per bus per day, $134.70 for the three-year contract and $129.70 for the five-year contract.

Transit Bus Lines offered only a $143 daily bus fee on a three-year contract and a negotiable fee on a four-or five-year contract, figures show.

Kanbar noted that although Vocell offered the lowest per-bus, per-day prices, the company also listed three pages of exceptions to the bid specifications. Such exceptions could affect the final determination of bid selection, Kanbar said.

As with TMC and Transit Bus Lines, Vocell had a fuel escalator cost to have the city pickup a portion of additional fuel costs. However, Vocell also sought city payment for increases to the minimum wage which are ordered during the term of the contract.

But most disturbing to Kanbar was the lack of a performance bond from the Vocell bid. In lieu of the bond, Vocell would allow the city to withold 10 percent of the contract payments up to a maximum of $40,000.

That exception is probably unacceptable, Kanbar said, especially given the "problems we're facing now."

A sidelight to the bidding procedure is the fact that Vocell is operated by Paul Goodman, the son of Ben Goodman, the owner of Metropolitan Coach.

Kanbar and city officials are analyzing the contract bids and will foward those ideas to the School Committee which has scheduled a meeting on August 27 to discuss the contract problems.

After the school board makes its recommendations, Mayor Theodore D. Mann will make the final determination on the new contractor.

Although Metropolitan still has a year remaining on its busing contract, it has informed city officials it will not continue the busing because of its financial problems.

If that is the case, the city could seek a lien on the property which Metropolitan offered in lieu of a performance bond.

That commercial property in Billerica was once valued at more than $100,000.

The takeover of the land could help offset some of the additional cost the city will face with the new bus contractor.

June 6 A.D. 1979

Taken on execution and will be sold by public auction, on Wednesday, the fifth day of September A. D. 1979, at three o'clock P.M., at my office, 99 First Street in Cambridge, in said county of Middlesex, all the right, title and interest that George O. Piper of Newton in said county of Middlesex, had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the twentieth day of March A. D. 1978, at nine o'clock and no minutes, a.m., being the time when the same was attached on mesne process, in and to the following described registered land, to wit: Certificate #141704 Book #838 Page #154 of that certain parcel of land situate in Newton in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, bounded and described as follows:

Northwesterly by Agawam Road, one hundred and 64/100 feet;

Northeasterly by land now or formerly of Annie G. Kenney, one hundred thirty-two and 02/100 feet;

Southeasterly by land now or formerly of Edward Murphy et al, Trustees, one hundred feet; and Southwesterly by land now for formerly of Sophia J. Muldoon, one hundred forty-two and 45/100 feet.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a plan, as modified and approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of a portion of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 115, Page 17, with Certificate 17157, (Plan No. 10035A).

The above described land is subject to an Order by the City of Newton for laying and maintaining common sewer in Agawam Road and Taking of Easement in said Road for sewer purposes, Document 112297 and to a Taking for laying out said Road Document 113014.

Deduction.

Are bills turning your life story into "The Case of the Disappearing Paycheck"? Does all your hard-earned money seem to vanish without a trace left to save?

Then perhaps you should investigate United States Savings Bonds.

Because saving with Bonds is so simple, it's elementary. Especially if you join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Take stock in America.

Bentley Coll. offers women personal planning courses

WALTHAM—Three evening courses on "Personal Planning for Women" will be offered in October by the Bentley College Center for Continuing Education. They are designed to provide women with information necessary for successful fiscal management, investment and career planning.

The program will begin on Oct. 2 with "Down to Basics: An Introduction to Investments," to be held on eight Tuesday evenings from 7-9 p.m. June Nacey, a professional investor, will explore securities markets, concepts of risk and reward, analysis of financial statements and the impact of inflation on investment.

Miriam M. Rivto, of the Department of Education, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, will teach "Focus on the Future: The ABC's of Life Work Planning" for five Wednesday evenings starting Oct. 3, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. The course is for women changing careers, returning to the working world or seeking more creative use of time in a present job.

The legal areas of taxes, wills, domestic o settlements, insurance and btaining credit will be emphasized in "Effective Fiscal Management" which will be taught by Attorney Evvajean Malter Mintz on Oct. 4 and the next five Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m.

For further information on the program, call the Center for Continuing Education at Bentley College, Beaver and Forest Sts., Waltham 02154, 891-2241.

The put up job.
When you're planning a wedding, Bar Mitzvah, or any big family event, you plan for a few interruptions. But sometimes it's easier to put on a party if the party puts up somewhere else. So we suggest you let our professional "put uppers" handle the family accommodations. Then your job will be relatively easy.
All you have to do is call Susan in our sales office at (617) 969-3010. She'll explain our special way of handling your special guests.

Shriners plan Sept. 6 rodeo

There will be plenty of excitement when the Shriners Championship Rodeo opens in Wilmington Thursday, Sept. 6, for a four-day round-up of more than 200 cowboys and cowgirls from across the country.

Spectators will have a chance to see competitions that are as popular out West as football is in the East—calf roping, steer wrestling and barrel racing plus Brahma bull, bareback bronc and Saddle-bronc riding.

Showtimes at the Shriners Auditorium on Fordham Road, exit 13 off I-93, will be 7:30 p.m., Thursday through Sunday, with 1:30 p.m. matinees Saturday and Sunday. To create a proper Western arena, 700 tons of dirt will be hauled into the auditorium which also hosts the Shriners Circus.

Highlights of of the Boston area's first indoor rodeo in over 25 years will include the grand entry of flag and horseman pageantry, plenty of chuckwagon specialties and the awarding of $10,000 in prize money to cowboys and cowgirls. Contestants come to the rodeo at their own expense. They pay an entry fee for each category in which they perform and receive money only if they are skilled enough to win a prize.

For some of the riders there's a sense of challenge and danger in trying to stay atop a ton of bucking Brahma bull for eight seconds. The cowboy does not select which of eight bulls he will ride, it's all in the luck of the draw held close to showtime so there's not time to back out. Once the rider jumps or is thrown from the bucking bull only one thing stands between him and the bull—a clown.

Rodeo clowns are trained not only to amuse the audience, but also to divert the attention of a bull or horse from a fallen rider. It's a precarious position that attracts only the most daring of bullfighters. The Shriners Championship Rodeo will have two clowns of national prominenece, Thurston Hamrick and Joe Crawford, who will entertain with trained donkeys and dogs when not dodging the horns and hooves of a charging beast.

Tickets can be purchased in advance at $3 children and $5 adults by writing Shriners Championship Rodeo, P.O. Box H, Wilmington, 01887. Tickets can also be purchased at the gate; at all Ticketron outlets; and from the Out of Town Ticket Agency, 4 Brattle St., Cambridge or by telephone (492-1900 or 426-8181).

P.O. urged to end limits on delivery of urgent mail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Council on Wage and Price Stability says the Postal Service should scrap the rules and restrictions that now hamper private delivery of "extremely urgent" mail.

The move, now being considered by the service, could increase competition and reduce inflation, the council said Monday.

Private firms now are permitted to deliver U.S. mail only when the sender pays first class postage plus the speedy private delivery fee.

The Postal Service is considering allowing private delivery when a letter must be delivered within a specified time — such as six hours within 50 miles — at a fee of $3 or twice the U.S. postage, whichever is greater.

Green Thumb

Eggshells again: People are eating more eggs today and as a result have more eggshells on hand. Are these any good for growing plants? Eggshells consist of calcium, an important element for both plant and animal life. The calcium in the shells is not soluble (won't dissolve readily in water) so many gardeners run the shells through the blender which helps them dissolve faster. To add them to a potting soil, finely crush them in a blender and add to the soil mix, about one of two tablespoons to a quart of soil. Some gardeners add one eggshell to a quart of water in a blender and blend it for a few second. The mixture is used to water the plantS.

Note; Since the shells are not complete in nutrients, you should also feed your plants a liquid plant food for a balanced diet.

Aloe again: The so-called medicine plant (Aloe vera) is one of the most popular potted plants in our homes. This plant, as everyone knows, has leaves that are juicy and tender, and can be used for poison ivy, mosquito bites and dozens of other ailments. Aloe (pronounced Al-low-EE) has a bad habit of being wiggly or lopsy, or as a reader puts it, "just won't be seated." That's the habit of growth of aloe, especially when the plant is large. Start new plants from offshoots formed at the base of the plant. Take a knife and slice them off. Root in plain soil, perlite or sand. AlOe can also be started from seeds if you can get them. Under normal conditions, the spike-like racemes produce tubular flowers (reddish) which form the seed.

Check pear trees: We've received letters asking us what causes the black foliage on pear trees this time of year. This means fire blight, a bacterial disease that hits not only pears, apples but also pyracantha (firethorn) and Mountain ash. Often a blighted shoot will be bent in typical shephard's crook. Control: Not easy. Prune out infected branches several inches below the infected wood. Be sure to dip your clippers in a solution of household bleach or alcohol on each cut, since the bacteria can be spred to healthy limbs by means of your saw or pruners.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Our cucumber vines started out fine, then suddenly wilted right down. What made that?"

Ans: Sounds like mosaic disease. Some cukes will resist the disease, while others are very susceptible. Next year, try the Burpless variety. It's easy to grow, has no problems whatever. Note to L.S.: Don't worry about your squash blossoms dropping off. Squash, cucumbers and pumpkins produce male flOwers first, then after about 10 days or two weeks, the female flowers form. There are about 20 male flowers to one female, and those that drop are males.

Bills allow tax relief for renters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Increasing pressure is being put on the tax writing House Ways and Means Committee to consider some type of tax relief for renters when Congress returns from its August recess.

Rep. William Green, R-N.Y., revealed Monday that at least 108 congressmen — about one-fourth of the House membership — support various bills designed to bring some measure of equity into federal tax laws concerning renters.

"The government provides $16 billion in tax deductions for homeowners, yet provides nothing for the people — more than one-third of our nation — who rent," Green said.

"Elderly home owners are often given property tax reductions, but our renting elderly are ignored," he said.

Green made his comments in a letter signed by 74 other congressmen and sent to Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore.

Green said 28 members have joined 80 colleagues already sponsoring 16 pending bills authorizing income tax relief for the property taxes tenants pay through their rents, "bringing the total active support to about one-fourth of the House."

"These bills cover the spectrum of avenues of relief for renters, and they share a common theme," Green said. "The message implicit in all these bills is that the renters of our country deserve fairer tax treatment.

"In past years, tenants tax justice bills have been killed, but this tremendous support signals a change. Perhaps our time has arrived.

"For years our government has allowed property owners to deduct their payments of local and state property taxes from their taxable income However, the 35 percent of the households in this country that rent receive no such treatment."

A law recently passed by the New York State Legislature designed to deal with the situation has been rejected by the Internal Revenue Service, Green said.

"Though the fact that a portion of a tenant's rent covers the property taxes for the apartment seems patently obvious, the Internal Revenue Service recently ruled this is not so," Green said.

"In light of this ruling, it is evident that the Congress will have to take the lead if any relief for renters is to be achieved."

Travel Talk

By Josephine Arria

Senior citizens, alone or together, need not shy away from traveling alone. There are many special fares and courtesies tailored to suit the needs of elderly persons. Many motels, hotels, restaurants, and other attractions both in the United States and abroad offer discounts to senior citizens. And it may not be long before the airlines follow suit. Group trips are one of the best ways for senior citizens to travel, not only because people of the same age and interests are together, but because there is usually an escort along who, among other things takes care of tipping and baggage.

Whether your trip is something exotic or something comfortable and basic, for business, pleasure or necessity, your arrangements can be more coordinated and possibly your cost reduced when you leave the planning to the professionals at BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 305 A Washington St., Newton Corner. Travel planning is our business, and if our success is any indication, we do it pretty well. Open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri., til 8 Thurs. and 9-1 Sat. Tel. 244-8460. All standard credit cards accepted.

TRAVEL TIP: Before leaving on a trip, a senior citizen should have a medical examination.

Travel

A good way to take in a lot of Boston in a little time is through one of the city's tours. Some of the tours are self-lead, others are guided and you can pick excursions that cover general themes or specific categories. One of the most popular and convenient tours in downtown Boston is the FREEDOM TRAIL, a historic walk through the many revolutionary and pre-revolutionary sites and buildings. Guide maps are available free from the information desk at City Hall in the Government Center on Tremont Street, the information booth on the Tremont Street side of the Boston Common, and on the St. James St. side of the John Hancock tower.

Upsurge of Travelers to Boston

The newest hotel in Boston, the luxurious Colonnade has a cosmopolitan staff which speaks a total of 18 languages. Located for easy access by any mode of transportation and in the heart of the cultural and business complex of the city, the hotel appeals to the sophisticated and seasoned traveler. It is within walking distance to the most fashionable shops and art galleries. It is also within easy reach of the city's popular attraction, Fanueil Hall Marketplace. The hotel's gourmet dining room, Zachary's has won an award from United Airlines Mainliner magazine for its fine Continental cuisine and has been recommended by Gourmet Magazine.

Amos O. Juster, Managing Director of the Colonnade Hotel, announces the appointment of Hans F. Regh who is headquartered in Frankfort, Germany and oversees offices in London and Paris. "He will be responsible for The Colonnade's sales effort in Europe, where we hope to establish our reputation as successfully as we have here in the United States," says Juster.

Mr. Regh, is a former managing director of the United States Travel Service in Washington where he directed and coordinated program planning and supervised marketing support functions designed to increase tour offerings to the United States. Prior to this, he was the liason to West Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

He has occupied over 20 year's experience in the areas of travel marketing, sales, advertising, public relations, sales promotion and contract negotiations. A German-English bi-linguist, also fluent in Spanish and French, Regh has spent numerous years abroad. He studied law and economics at the University of Tuebingen, Germany. Regh's initial plan of action will be to help increase European travel agent knowledge of what Boston has to offer. "The most popular United States towns include New York and Washington, D.C., the West Coast and Las Vegas," says Regh. "The addition of Boston as a gateway to the United States will bring about changes in these traditional travel routes."

The appointment of Mr. Regh is predicted on the recent upsurge of foreign pleasure and business travelers to Boston! "For example," notes Amos Juster, "international travelers comprise nearly 15% of the hotel's booking this year." One reason for the boom is that major international airlines such as British Airways, Alitalia, Braniff and Air France now fly directly to Boston, making Boston more accessible to the foreign travelers.

Of special interest to foreign travelers, Juster noted, are Boston's sports facilities and the scenic New England sea shore and the mountains. For business travelers, Boston offers excellent meeting facilities and the opportunity to take professional or study tours at the country's finest medical, scientific and educational institutions.

Birthday Celebration

This Labor Day helps celebrate Newton/Marriott Hotel's 10th birthday. Register to win a free trip for two, to Marco Island, Florida, via Eastern Airlines.

Guests are invited to check-in Saturday and stay through Monday for 3 days and 2 nights of festivities which will include an elegant birthday party and dinner dance, an evening clambake and a "Night at the Races". Early Birds are encouraged to check-in on Friday and help kick off the birthday celebration at a wine and cheese party.

Breakfast each morning and the use of all hotel facilities are included in the special birthday packages. Marriott facilities include a swimming pool, sauna, health club and hydrotherapy pool.

Guest registration for the birthday package begins at 3 p.m. on Saturday, September 1. The Saturday Night Birthday Party begins at 7 p.m. and includes an open bar until 8 followed by a sit down prime rib dinner and an evening of dancing to the 14-piece Leon Merian Band.

Following Sunday Brunch the next day, the Marriott's traditional Birthday Clambake will be held at the Point - a scenic spot overlooking the Charles River next to the Marriott - with lobster, chicken, beer and all the trimmings.

Sunday Night will feature a "Night at the Races" offering the excitement of horse racing via film with many prizes to be given away.

Monday check-out will be delayed until 5 p.m. to afford guests the opportunity to relax and use the facilities.

The cost for the Saturday, Sunday, Monday Birthday Package is $189.00 per couple.

The Friday Early Bird Special which, in addition to the wine and cheese party, offers a riverside room, Saturday breakfast and a chance to win a luxury suite, costs $47.65 per couple.

Further information can be obtained by contacting the Newton Marriott at 969-1000.

BORROW AT 6%
Special Get-Acquainted Money Offer for Homeowners—lets you borrow up to $1000 and pay just $15 interest in 3 months!
Incredible is an overworked adjective these days, but that's the only way to describe our 3-month loan offer.
Why are we doing it? Simple. To get you acquainted with the way we do business at Dial. We feel confident that after you experience our courtesy, friendliness, efficiency and speed, you'll come to us the next time you need money.
In a nutshell, here's the offer: Borrow by August 31, 1979, and after 3 months pay us back in one single payment at an annual percentage rate of just 6%. Approval is subject to our usual credit requirements. Here are some examples of how little your loan will cost:

AMOUNT OF LOAN	TOTAL COST OF LOAN	TOTAL AMOUNT OF SINGLE PAYMENT AFTER 3 MONTHS
$ 400	$ 6	$ 406
$ 600	$ 9	$ 609
$ 800	$12	$ 812
$1000	$15	$1015

So if you want money for any purpose, and if you've never done business with Dial before, take advantage of this special, limited-time offer now. And if you've been planning some purchases and figured you'd put them on a store or bank charge card, we urge you to compare our rate with theirs. Then figure on giving us a call. Just one 6% loan per customer, please.

A proposal may respond to one priority in more than one Neighborhood Strategy Area or to more than one priority within a Neighborhood Strategy Area.

PROGRAM REGULATIONS

Applicants must demonstrate that programs proposed for Community Development funding comply with eligibility and technical Federal Regulations as found in 24CFR 570, summarized below. Applicants not demonstrating compliance with these regulations will be eliminated from further review.

- Projects must serve low-moderate income residents of designated NSA'S. Benefit to residents outside NSA'S may only be incidental.
- Projects must provide a new service or an increase in service. This does not apply to services previously funded by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.
- Projects must be necessary or appropriate to support physical development activities being undertaken in the NSA'S.

STRATEGIES AND POLICIES

The Human Services Advisory Committee will be giving the priority to program proposals which:
- Have potential for future self-sufficency.
- Have potential for generating matching funds or leveraging additional financial resources.
- Provide linkages to other critical programs.
- Support other community Developmental programs.
- Have demonstrated effective financial capabilities.
- Devote funding to the most critical needs.
- Devote funding to meet needs identified by Neighborhood Advisory Committee's.
- Give priority to direct services rather than enrichment programs.
- Are cost effective.
- Provide job training and job opportunities.

FUNDING

$140,000 has been allocated under the Community Development Human Services Assistance Program for Fiscal Year 1980, beginning July 1, 1979. Additional funds are anticipated for Fiscal Year 1981, to begin July 1, 1980.

APPLICATION PROCEDURE AND INSTRUCTIONS

The Human Services Assistance program application procedure will consist of the following phases:

Phase I: Proposal Summary Solicitations
Phase II Proposal Summary Review
Phase III: Request for Additional Information
Phase IV: Final Review

Interested agencies and organizations are invited to submit Proposal Summaries responding to the priorities adopted by the Human Services Advisory Committee.

- Proposal summary forms are available at:

WINNERS—Standing with Mr. James Henson, President of Star Market are the winners in Star Market's 1st Annual Recipe Contest: Ms. Mary Morris, Sudbury, Mass; Mrs. Diane Dervin, Westwood, Mass; Mrs. David Sheets, Wellesley, Mass; Mrs. Bernadette Cusack of So. Hamilton, Mass and Mrs. Kay McCarthy, Star's TV Recipe of the Week Hostess.

Local woman wins grand prize

A local woman, Ms. Diane Dervin of Westwood was one of four grand prize winners in a Recipe Contest recently sponsored by Star Market.

Chosen from 700 entrants, and twelve semi-finalists, Dervin's winning recipe for Pork Roast will be prepared on television by Kay McCarthy, Star's TV Recipe of the Week Hostess.

Dervin receives a grand prize consisting of an Amana Touchmatic II microwave oven, and $500 worth of food from Star Market.

Each recipe submitted was judged on originality, wide appeal, clarity of directions, appearance and flavor. Many recipe entries are old family favorites.

Mrs. David Sheets of Wellesley also won a grand prize for her Cornish Hen recipe. Ms. Mary Morris of Sudbury, and Ms. Bernadette Cusack of South Hamilton, MA. were also grand prize winners in the contest.

Eight second place winners receive $100 worth of food from Star Market.

The winning recipes will soon be published in Star Market's advertising promotions.

Kay McCarthy chose the twelve semi-finalists. The final judging was conducted by five well-known, local professionals: Donna Lee, Food Editor, Boston Herald American, Alexis Beck, Nutritionist and Food Editor, Christian Science Monitor, Janet Christenson, Public Information Officer and Home Economist for the Mass. Dept. of Food and Agriculture, and Gus Saunders, WROL Radio Personality, Host of the Yankee Kitchen Show and Restaurant Critic.

The twelve semi-finalists from whom the four grand prize winners were chosen are: Ms. Frances Cullen of Hyde Park, MA; Ms. Bernadette Cusack, South Hamilton, MA; Ms. Mary Morris, Sudbury, MA; Mr. Roy Dahl, Yarmouthport, MA; Mrs. David Sheets, Wellesley, MA; Ms. Anne Williams, Sudbury, MA; Ms. Mary Sarkes, Readville, MA; Ms. Diane Dervin, Westwood, MA; Ms. Norma Bennett, Wolfeboro, N.H.; Ms. Karen Smith, Laconia, N.H.; Ms. Cecila Pinto, Pawtucket, R.I.; and Mrs. Joan Peters, York, ME.

Star Market Company's first annual Recipe Contest came to a grand finale on Thursday, August 9th, at the Sheraton Boston Hotel.

He cashes in on skates

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Jack Schwartz coasts all the way to the bank these days because he's in the roller skate business. And for him it's just a weekend proposition.

He's cashing in on a craze that swept east in 1976 from the boardwalk at Venice, Calif., and has taken over the sidewalks of New York and almost every other piece of pavement in America.

Schwartz rents skates at $3 hourly from a van in Bushnell Park for the new outdoor trade and says he does a brisk business. He has similar outlets at the Boston Esplanade, Savin Rock in West Haven, Hull, Mass., and one in New York's Central Park.

Sunday, once a day of rest, is his big day, he says.

If the roller skating phenomenon is hard to get a handle on, then some of his rental transactions boggle the mind. One young man wanted to rent some skates from Schwartz, but didn't have a driver's license to put up as security. He asked a friend to lend him his.

"Supposing The Man stop me. I'm not giving up my license for any skates. If The Man stop me, what am I going to do, man ?" the friend said.

"Pardon?" says Schwartz, 28, University of Connecticut, Class of 1970, holder of a master's degree in business administration, former member of the U.S. Men's Olympic ski team, now a salesman for U.S. Surgical Supply in Stamford.

Schwartz turns from a reporter and says, "You want to go driving, you mean?" "He want to go driving," the customer says, "I want to go roller skating, right? See, I don't have a driver's license."

"Do you have a $20 deposit and a credit card?"

"Twenty dollars, a credit card?"

"Nobody says you ain't coming back," one of two boys helping Schwartz says quickly.

The customer looks at his friend and says, as if there were a telephone in the van, "They stop you, you know, you just call here."

"Man, I'm not giving up my license for no skates. Buy a pair!" At Schwartz's prices, $64 and up, they are not cheap, nor are they inexpensive anyplace else either. A $300 price tag is not uncommon.

The customer rolls up his sleeve and says, "My name's Chuckie. Look at this tattoo. It says 'Chuckie,' right? I ain't got a driver's license, but that's who I am. What do you say?"

A deal was struck, and what it showed was that almost everybody from ghetto kids to grandpas are on skates these days.

Roller skating's popularity outdoors as well as in the nation's 1,575 roller rinks, rolladiums, roller ranches, rollerdromes and so on appears to be similar to Liberace's. It took the entertainer 26 years to become an overnight success, he once said in an interview.

"A lot of people think that it was a sport 10, 20, 30 years ago or whenever they were kids and it just died out. And now it's a fad" says Arthur L. "Budd" Eversmann Jr., vice president of Sports International, Inc.

"The only thing new about it is that those people are rediscovering roller skating — it has been with us all along," says Eversmann whose East Hartford firm, one of 35 in the nation, assembles and distributes skates.

He believes roller skating has a new look, a new prestige.

Layered maple floors in many of the new rinks alone often cost in excess of $100,000, the wood dust and resin stains are relics of the past for today's costumed skaters.

The rinks are heat and humidity controlled with gleaming snack bars. Disc jockeys cue the activity, sometimes ridding the rink of rowdies by changing a rock tape to a couples-only ballad. Some have organists.

And roller skating was part of the Pan-Am games in Puerto Rico this year — and might be included in the 1980 Olympics, a prominence that would mean even millions more for the industry in a spinoff bonanza.

Eversmann's firm was started 10 months ago to serve the market in the Boston-New York corridor. Eversmann expects to gross $2 million the first year, and $3 million to $4 million the second.

He was a regional manager in Columbus, Ohio, for a company that ran a string of rinks, he prefers to call them 'skating centers,' but lapses occasionally. His associate is Karl Wall, the company president, whom he knew from Fort Wayne, Ind., where for the last nine years Wall ran his family's skate supply business.

His company is in the market's catbird seat because it operates a number of rinks, and it has a flooring subsidiary. These are the cushions for the distribution enterprise which caters mainly to the 6-to-16 age group. When the current fad ends, they will still be there. Just the faces change.

"We're into the outdoor market. Those people are getting into roller skating as an alternative to jogging, bicycling or just as a new thing. It won't surprise me if in a few years it started dying out again because the peak that roller skating is riding is a fad," Eversmann said.

The first "rocking skate" was devised by James Plimpton of Medfield, Mass., in 1863 — the forerunner of the modern skate. His could go around curves and the skates were able to turn while still in contact with the ground.

Motorists may bring back gas shortage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's motorists, with gasoline plentiful again, are reverting to their old ways, which could bring back another tight supply situation, the Automobile Association of America warns.

The average price of premium gasoline rose a penny to $1.01 a gallon, the AAA said Thursday, but supplies are plentiful around the nation.

The AAA said its survey of 6,589 stations showed most tourist destinations — resorts and national parks — had ample supplies. But the increased availability and shorter service station lines have brought back heavier traffic and faster driving.

"We're already seeing signs that people are beginning to breathe a collective sigh of relief and revert to their old ways," said an AAA spokesman.

"If motorists abandon the prudent driving practices they have been following they could still find themselves back in the tight supply situation many of them were in earlier in the year."

Nationally, 45 percent of service station owners questioned said they would be open Saturday, and 37 percent Sunday; 32 percent said they were open after 8 p.m. on weekdays and 7 percent are open 24 hours.

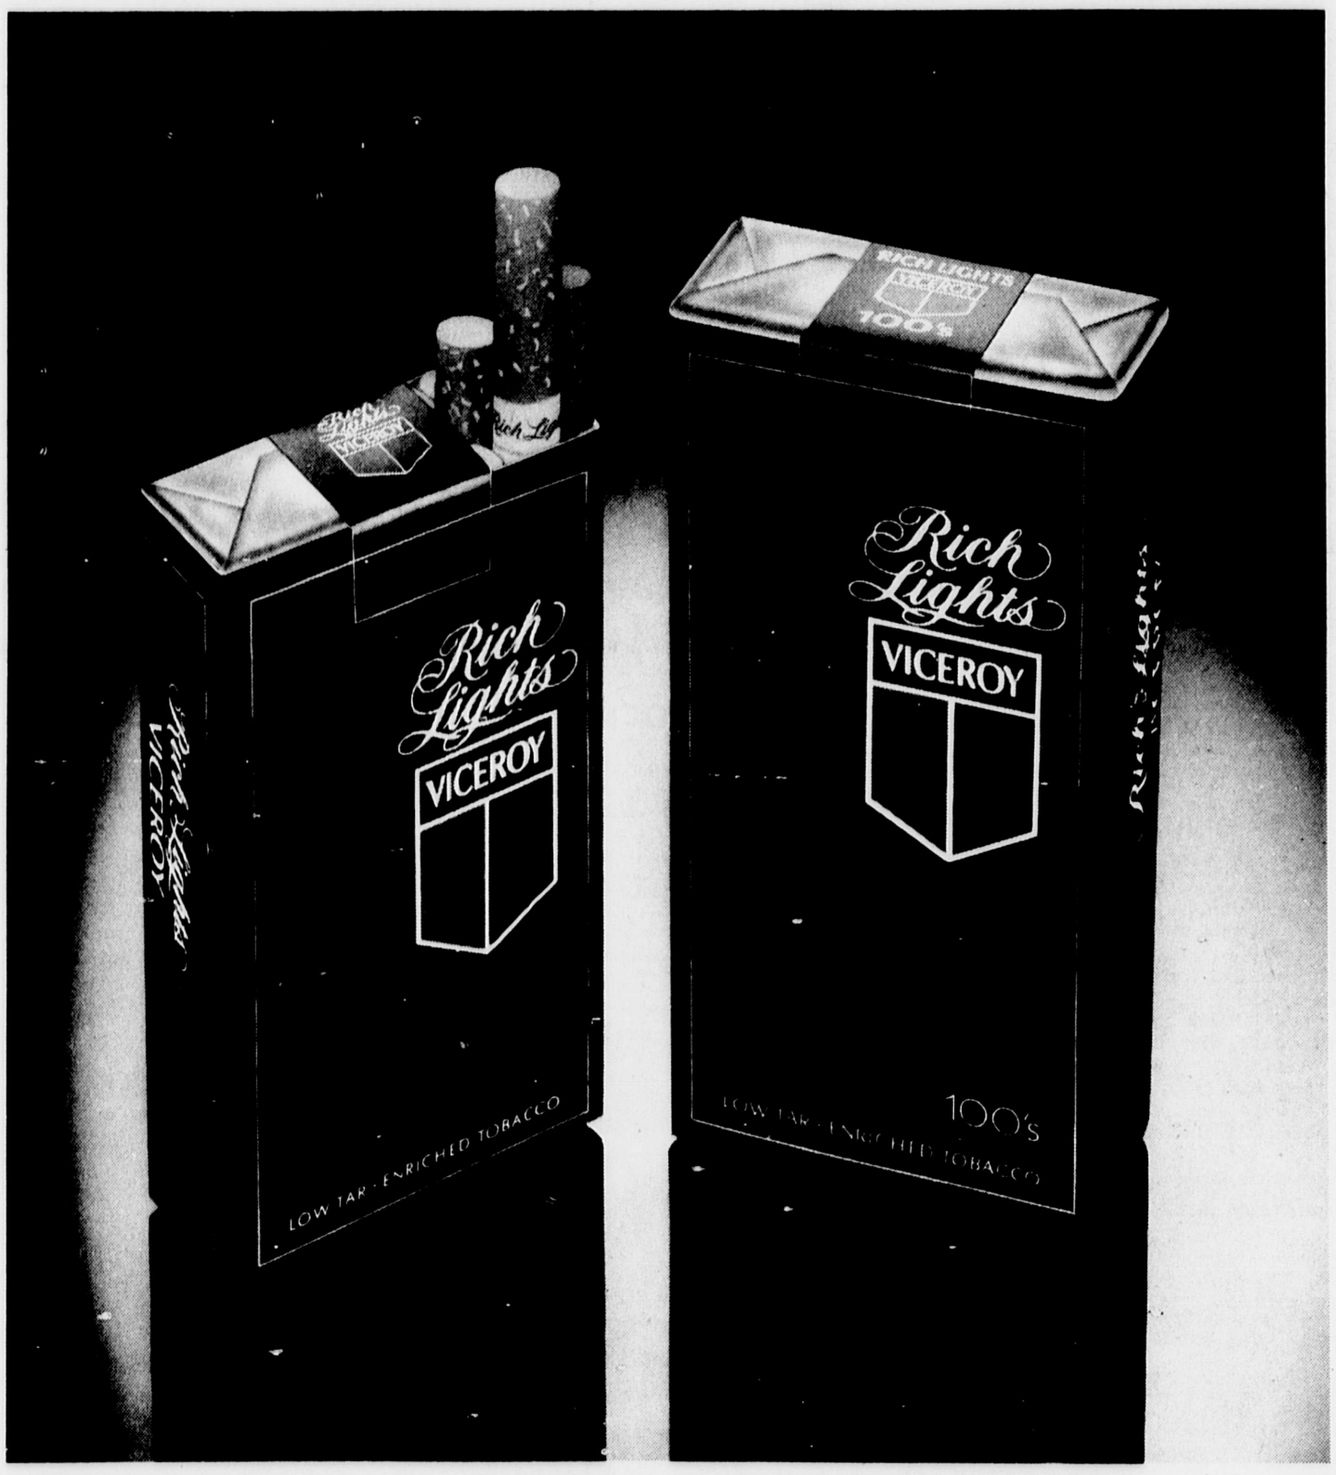

The AAA said only 3 percent of the stations reported they were limiting individual sales by dollar or gallon amounts.

Full-service prices averaged $1.009 for premium, 99.5 for unleaded and 95.9 for regular. Self-service prices were 98.5 cents for premium, 97.1 for unleaded and 92.9 for regular.

Illinois had the most expensive gas, with full-service premium averaging $1.084 a gallon. Texas had the cheapest gas, 86.8 cents for self-service regular.

Fifth Annual Crystal Lake Water Safety Show

On Wednesday evening August 1st, Crystal Lake hosted its Fifth Annual Water Safety Show.

Over 125 students from the swimming instruction program at the Lake, ranging from 6 to 18 in age participated. Gil Champagne, Aquatics Chairman for the Newton Recreation Department, was master of ceremonies. Also, in attendance was the Honorable Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Recreation Commissioner, Russell J. Halloran and Jeannete C. West. Each level of instruction from Beginner to Advanced Lifesaving performed some of the various skills they had learned during their introduction lessons of three weeks at Crystal Lake. Skills ranged from bobs to lifesaving rescues.

A special Water Ballet routine to the music from the movie "Rocky" was performed by Midge Connolly, Linda DiMonda, Beth Mullens, Tracey Greene.

John Volante, head lifeguard at Crystal Lake demonstrated rescue board skills to the thrill of the large crowd in attendance. The evening was highlighted by the presentation of the Gil Champagne Award for Boy of the Year to Philip Bnurnham, son of Mr. & Mrs. Philip E. Burnham Jr. of 319 Ward Street, Newton Centre, and the Jeannette C. West Award for Girl of the Year went to Meg Doherty, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Charles E. Midget and Junior Baseball Championship

The week of August 6-10th marked baseball tournament week for the Newton Recreation Department. After a long week of hard playing and keen competition, Burr Park won the Midget Championship over Carr School 9-5. Excellent hitting by Tommy Conboy (two triples and one double), and the pitching of Mike Lyons with strong relief by Joe Connell enabled Burr Park to hang on for the victory. The Junior Championship was won by Claflin School over Newton Centre Playground by a score of 10-6. Excellent hitting by Jon Humphrey, Bill Jordan and Tim Brandon and the fine pitching of Bill Drew insured the victory.

Look for changes at Longwood

By STEVEN EPSTEIN

At least Bud Collins will be there.

This statement may be common among tennis fans looking for a familiar face this year at the 52nd annual U.S. Pro Tennis Championships to be played at the Longwood Cricket Club in Brookline from August 20-27.

Aside from defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain, many of the game's top players have decided to pass up this prestigeous tournament in favor of a week of rest before the U.S. Open which begins August 28, in Flushing, New York.

To say that this year's field is not the strongest ever to gather at Longwood is a vast understatement. Only two of the top 10 players in the world will be competing in the 64-man draw which gets underway this Monday. However, the tournament organizers have billed this Longwood as a rebuilding year for the tournament, and are quick to stress that although many top name players have skipped the tourney, the 58 openings for touring pros have been filled by eager young stars who promise to make the action exciting and interesting to watch. Also, 64 young players will compete on the weekend prior to play to gain one of 8 qualifying positions in the tournament.

Longwood spokesman Ed Hickey notes, "It was discouraging not to see the top players here." However, he added, "But if you notice, they're not playing anywhere this week before the U.S. Open. They prefer to take the week off to practice."

Hickey sees this year as a transition for Longwood. Although the top names aren't here, it's not due to lack of effort by Hickey. The tournament organizers tried to have the date changed to the last week in July this year, but that change was impossible. Hickey says he "feels confident" that the tournament date will be changed to the last week in July next year. He further commented that Jimmy Connors, John McEnroe, and Guillermo Vilas have all assured him that they would be willing to play at Longwood in 1980 if the date were moved to any time before the week preceding the U.S. Open.

The tournament organizers are still confident that this year's tennis will be exciting to watch, despite the absence of eight of the world's top 10 tennis players. They see this as a year when tennis greats of the next 5-10 years can begin to blossom. They are also quick to point out that a kid from Illinois named Connors was a virtual unknown until he beat Arthur Ashe in the 1973 Longwood final.

The New England Merchants Bank is not sponsoring the U.S. Pro Tournament for the first time since it was moved to Longwood 16 years ago. Last October it was announced that the tournament had become too big for the local bank, and that it was time for new sponsorship. In the time since The Merchants began sponsoring the tournament in 1964, the total prize money rose from $10,000 to a high of $200,000 last year.

This year, a group of eight local sponsors have combined to post $175,000 in prize money. A spokesman for the New England Merchants stated that the sponsorship change was due largely to the tournament's increased size and the bank's desire to spend its money in different areas. However, some bank affiliates have implied that part of the reason for the cancellation of sponsorship was last year's adverse media publicity about the Longwood tournament and its fading quality of play. This "negative press" may have combined with the fact that a last minute $25,000 increase in prize money attracted no additional big name stars.

Manuel Orantes

The eight new sponsors who have combined to save the tournament are all local merchants. They are The Coca Cola Bottling Company of New England, The Fidelity Management Group, The Gillette Company, Instrumentation Laboratory, The Lionel Corp., Marshalls, The Shawmut Banks, and Spaulding and Slye Corp.

Since fuss has been made again over who isn't coming to Longwood this year, maybe it's time to concentrate on the players who will be in attendance. There are many good young players in this year's draw who will be names to reckon with in the future. It wouldn't be surprising to see one of these virtual unknowns go far in this year's tournament.

Jose Higueras

MANUEL ORANTES of Barcelona, Spain has dominated Longwood over the last two years, winning the title in 1978 over American Eddie Dibbs and last year over Harold Solomon. In the last 4 years, this 30 year old clay court specialist has played in 17 matches at Longwood, winning 15 of them, including his last 12 in a row. Orantes is currently ranked in the top 10 players in the world. Last year he defeated Wojtek Fibak, Arthur Ashe, and Harold Solomon in the quarter-finals, semi-finals, and final respectively, without giving up a set to any of these three top stars. In fact, Orantes only lost one set in the entire tournament last year, in the first round to Chilean Belus Prejoux. He returns as the top seed and odds on favorite to capture his third Longwood crown. Only Bjorn Borg and Rod Laver have won at least three Longwood tournaments.

JOSE HIGUERAS a fellow countryman of Orantes is the 10th ranked tennis player in the world. He comes to Longwood much improved over last year, and ready to win a major title. Three weeks ago Higueras was defeated in the finals of the Volvo Tournament in New Hampshire by Harold Solomon in a third set tiebreaker. After losing in the first round here to Bob Lutz as an unseeded unknown, Higueras began to climb which has made him one of the most respected clay court players in the world. Last year he was Longwood's 7th seed, and he advanced to the quarter-finals before being forced to retire with an injury in a controversial match against Italy's Corrado Barrazzutti. Higueras plays a slow, deliberate game and is often not thrilling to watch, although effective in wearing down opponents.

JOSE-LUIS CLERC is a 20 year old Argentinian who has been hailed as the next Guillermo Vilas. He is now ranked 12th in the world, and has continually improved since his debut internationally last summer. Clerc was seeded 12th in his first U.S. Pro tournament last year. He pulled one of the tournament's big upsets by ousting 2nd seeded Raul Ramirez in the third round in straight sets by scores of 6-3, 6-2. The tennis world was astounded at the ease with which the unheralded Argentinian defeated the veteran Mexican. However, Clerc fell in the quarter-finals to veteran Arthur Ashe. Clerc has only matured in his game in the last year, and this superstar of the future would love to gain some exposure by winning a Longwood title.

BALASZ TAROCZKY is the man to watch if your Hungarian is better than your Spanish. One of the most underrated players on the tour, Taroczy has already won two Grand Prix tournaments this summer and has played tough against many of tennis's top stars. Last year at Longwood, Taroczy came into the tournament as the 16th seed, but was upset in the second round by Austrian Peter Feigl by scores of 6-7, 6-0, 7-6. Taroczy returns to Longwood to avenge this upset and try to win his third tournament of the season.

JOHN LLOYD of England has been known better lately for the company that he keeps than the tennis he plays. Lloyd is, of course, married to female tennis phenom Chris Evert. At Longwood, this is the only reputation that Lloyd has been able to attain. In two years of trying, Lloyd has been unable to survive even the first round of the U.S. Pro. In 1977 he fell to eventual champion Manuel Orantes after winning the first set; and in his appearance last year as 14th seed, Lloyd again was beaten in his opener, this time by Chris Lewis of New Zealand. It happens that this year's Longwood final falls on Lloyd's 25th birthday. A major title here on the clay would certainly be a rewarding present.

Although doubles has always taken a second seat to singles, possibly the most exciting tennis will be played this year by the twosomes. The South African team of Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan are scheduled to appear. This team was ranked number one in the world off and on between 1967-72, dominating the world of doubles during this six year period. Other top teams competing will be the Australian pairs of Phil Dent and Ross Case and also Mark Edmondson and John Marks. Edmondson and Marks have been semi-finalists in the Longwood doubles the last two years and were quarter-finalists here three years ago. Also two brother teams will be in doubles competition. The Amritraj brothers from India will be joined by John and David Lloyd of Great Britain. Over all, the doubles here could well surpass the singles competition for pure viewer excitement.

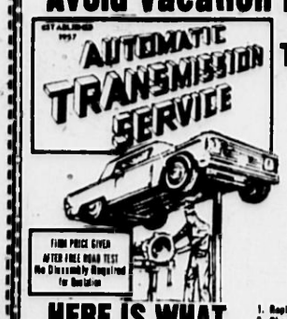

And finally, Bud Collins will be back to make even Balazs Taroczy sound like a phenom.

Newton driver chasing title

Is it possible for a car salesman from Newton Highlands to win the Champion Sparkplug Road Racing Classic in Atlanta, Ga., the highest amateur title as sanctioned by the Sports Car Club of America. Well, Bruce Kapsten thinks so, and after five years of competitive racing, he is beginning to realize his dream.

First driving an Austin Healey Sprite, Kapsten placed third last year in the New England Regionals, and took second place honors in the 1977 N.E. Road Racing Championship. Last Labor Day, Kapsten competed in the Mayor's Cup in Quebec, Canada, and placed fourth.

Winning almost every race he entered, Kapsten decided he wanted greater competition, and began driving a formula-V racecar. He won his last two races with the Sprite, then purchased a Caldwell D-13 formula-V. Kapsten completely disassembled his new vehicle, and rebuilt it to meet his own specifications.'

Kapsten, a resident of 60 Puritan Rd, Newton, has driven his 10-foot long Caldwell for nearly a year now, has made some progress, and has also suffered several accidents.

At Watkins Glen this past June, Kapsten finished 11th in a field of 40 cars in National competition, then placed 10th in the Kendall Cup Nationals in early July.

But, along with the triumphs, go the heartaches. On Memorial Day, Kapsten was racing at the Bryar Motor Sport Park in Loudon, N.H., and was involved in a multi-car accident at the start of the race. After getting untangled, Kapsten re-entered the race and finished 15th.

Last weekend, Kapsten returned to New York to compete at Watkins Glen. Half way through the Kapsten was involved in a five car battle for 12th place. Kapsten nearly hit the car in front of him, touched his brakes, then sped off the track at 90 m.p.h. He went through three rows of catch Caldwell. fencing then flipped his

"The Sprite was a heavier car, first of all, and it had fenders. If you bumped a car it was never critical. But, with the Caldwell there are no fenders to keep the wheels of co cars from eting colliding. In a tight race you are wheel to wheel. If these wheels touch, one car will be catapulted into the air," said Kapsten.

The car that Kapsten drives stands three and a half feet off the ground. Including the driver, the car must weigh at least 1000 pounds to compete. Formula-V cars are restricted to Volkswagon 1200cc engines. Each car has the same hardware, unlike the cars Kapsten competed against with his Sprite , where a difference in engine size would mean the race.

"In this class of racing, experience is the key factor to success. You have to know when to use drafting, to use the car in front of yours to cut the wind for you. You have to know when to pull out and pass. With more experience, you get to know the track, and your car," Kapsten said.

Kapsten, a salesman for an automobile dealer in Brookline, reflects on his last year of Formula-V racing as a learning experience.

"To be a national contender, you really need a sponsor. The car goes through a set of tires at $250 every weekend, and to be able to compete, a second motor is a necessity," said Kapsten.

Raceware, Inc., and Motor Inc., both of Marblehead are Kapsten's product sponsors. But, Kapsten is looking for a sponsor to purchase a second motor, and to defray tire expenses. The tires are soft and "scrub off" in the corners. "That is why they corner so well and so fast," Kapsten added.

At performing speeds, Kapsten's Caldwell travels 20 miles per gallon and has a maximum speed of 120 m.p.h. Kapsten practically lies down as he drives, with the engine behind him, and the fuel tank underneath. Kapsten is encased by a safety harness, protected by a roll cage, and has access to an on board fire system.

Limerock Park, in Limerock, Conn.

The 25-year old Kapsten started racing five years ago after gaining exposure to the sport by friends. He was first introduced to "autocross" in Loudon, N.H., then worked at the various tracks getting acquainted with racing.

Bruce Kapsten's Blue Caldwell was involved in a 90 m.p.h. crash last weekend in Watkins Glen, N.Y. Someday, it may bring Kapsten the Champion Sparkplug Road Racing Classic.

Corsi arm, bat lifts Clubbies in playoffs

If Newton's Jimmy Corsi ever gets drafted by a professional baseball team, he'd better hope it's one in the National League where he can also do his own batting.

During his three-year stint at Newton North, there was never any question about his pitching. And, he swung a mean bat at times, chipping in with key hits during the season.

But, Tuesday night in the opening game of the best-of-five Newton National Division final playoffs, the bespectacled hurler out-did himself, both at the plate and on the mound.

Actually, on the mound, he turned in what is becoming normal for him, a three hitter with a season-high 12 strikeouts, including the last six batters of the game, and four walks. But, at the plate, he actually won his own game, driving in the Boys' Club's first three runs on a pair of base hits to spark a 7-1 triumph over St. Bernard's under the lights at Albemarle Field.

Corsi split his summer between Newmarket of the Boston Park League and the Clubbies, both of whom finished in second place in their respective leagues and are now involved in playoffs.

Bound for St. Leo's College in Tampa, Fla., in a couple of weeks, Big Jim had his fastball humming and a curve and knuckler that kept the St. Bernard's batters off balance. The only time he had any trouble was in the second when St. Bernard's tied the game at 1-1.

St. Bernard's catcher Dave Donahue opened the inning with a long, line triple to right center. Bob Ryan followed with a blooper to right center for the only run of the game for the losers.

The Clubbies opened the scoring with a run in the getaway frame when Bill Uberti ground a single to center and, with two outs, came all the way around to score on a blooper to right by Corsi.

After St. Bernard's tied the game in the second, the Green and Gold put the game away with four runs in the third. Uberti and Steve Fleming worked losing pitcher Tony Santagati for walks on either side of Dennis Berube's reaching on an error. After Uberti was picked off third, Fleming and Berube pulled off a double steal.

Cleanup batter Corsi came through again with a line shot up the middle that brought in both runners. John Leone followed this with a walk and Noel Foley reached on an error that scored the fourth run of the game. Foley and Leone then pulled off an attempted double steal with Foley being thrown out, but Leone scoring.

The next inning, Berube drew a two-out walk, stole second and tallied on Fleming's rope to center. The Boys' Club's final run came in the sixth with Chris Flaherty singling in front of a one-bagger by pinchhitter Steve Wilson and motoring home on a ground out by Berube.

Santagati scattered eight hits in the setback, striking out five and passing four. John Bradle y of the Boys' Club is expected to get the nod tonight against Nick Butera of St. Bernard's.

Dog Obedience School — Wise Choice

The family dog has enjoyed the children's company all summer long. With the return of the big yellow school bus, the canines are left behind to stare out the window with sad eyes and long faces. They must learn to adjust to being left alone for long stretches.

Boredom affects dogs who are not used to being left behind. A dog owner who leaves his pet alone, inside for long periods must expect, and not blame the animal for relieving himself in the house. The owner, not the dog, is at fault.

There are several options available for the lonely dog. Get him a pet of his own, such as a kitten or a box turtle, or try leaving the television or radio on.

If it were possible to ask your dog his preference, he would probably reply that he, also, would like to go to school. Dog obedience school is a wise option. A well adjusted pet is one that obeys, and receives positive reinforcement for good behavious. Boredom is easily subdued when a dog is given a chance to perform, and finds that praise and affection are his reward for obedience.

The best approach to teaching dogs is to implement love, praise, and reward. This method is based on motivating the dog to work with, and to help the trainer. In order to successfully train your dog it is important to understand training from the dog's point of view. One of the most difficult things for a good trainer to achieve is a feeling in his human students of the dog's personal involvement in the training program. The trainer should be absolutely certain that the dog connects the exact error with the punsihment.

Treat a puppy nicely and the treatment will be reciprocated by the dog, which is an essential condition where children are involved. Never reprimand a dog unless you are sure he knows what is expected of him. Teach the dog obedience without physical force. Wait until the dog performs naturally and then use spoken praise.

The training of animals (teaching them to perform all sorts of entertaining tricks) is a task that requires perhaps a special talent on the part of the trainer. Leave guard dog training to the highly skilled professionals.

For general training there are four options:

1) Private training: A trainer comes to you and works with you and your dog in the home environment.

2) Group Classes: Attractive because of low costs - twenty-five to fifty dollars, with from five lessons (one a week) to twelve lessons (two a week).

3) Kennel Training: Owner and family do not participate. Convenient.

4) By Book: A common complaint of this method is that the variety of methods border on chaos.

The ways and means of professional trainers vary a great deal. However, there are some things you can be sure of: If you pay a fee, you can demand a realistic, humane teaching program with clear goals; if you follow the rules, you can look forward to positive results. Check credentials, quiz the trainer, challenge theories with good common sense and humanity.

Want To Succeed? Don't Drop Out!

A study conducted by a psychologist among persons with high I.Q.'s indicates that success is not determined so much by one's score on intelligence tests, as by one's perserverance in finishing college.

Thinking Thrifty Will Stretch Fashion Looks

Heading back to school, economy-minded students need to make the most of limited budgets.

Before Orientation Week, Homecoming and all the other rites of fall on campus, savvy students will keep costs down when shopping for clothes and personal care products, or finding a new hairstyle that's right for school.

Experts offer these tips on economy for coeds migrating back to campus this fall:

Economy starts at the top with a short, easy-care hairstyle as breezy as a crisp fall day. Natural or permed for curl, a good haircut frees a coed from the expense and fuss of rollers and dryer because it dries naturally and falls right into place.

Save money by buying large sizes of bath soap, creams and other frequently-used items. Dandruff Shampoo in the economical 16-ounce bottle, is gentle on hair and scalp and leaves hair feeling healthy, clean and easy to manage. And it's easy on the pocketbook, too.

Recycling a cycle to look like new involves a few, simple steps. They include: disassembling the bike, cleaning and de-rusting the parts and applying a couple of coats of spray paint. Once it is reassembled, touch up any spots you may have missed.

Recycling A Cycle

If your youngster's bike has been left out in the wet once too often, or if it's a banged-up, banged-in, hand-me-down, don't abandon it. Spruce it up. It will take time, but it's not difficult. The cost will be small, especially when you consider the cost of a new bicycle these days.

First, disassemble the bike. You probably have the tools you'll need — wrenches, a screwdriver, pliers, hammer and such. For the redo you will also need: a sanding block, steel wool, medium grade emery cloth, cycle lubricant, chrome polish a spray degreaser, rust primer, spray enamel, metal flake paint and paint thinner.

Disassemble the bike in the following order: seat, handle bars, chain guard and chain, wheels, fenders, front fork and head set, pedals and crank set. After disassembly you will be left with the basic frame.

Use the steel wool, sanding block and emery cloth to remove as much rust as possible from all parts and the frame. Knock any dents out of the fenders with a hammer. Lightly sand all parts that will be painted. Then wipe with paint thinner to remove sanding dust and clean the surfaces.

Polish chrome parts and clean and degrease the front and rear wheel hubs (do not spray into the bearings.)

You are now set to paint. Work outdoors on a table covered with newspapers or, if the weather is bad, set up the table in a table covered with newspapers or, if the weather is bad, set up the table in a well-ventilated garage. Set the parts up on wood blocks so that they won't stick to the newspapers.

Spray any rusted parts with Primer. Then you're ready to spray paint in whatever color you've selected. The do-it-yourselfer shown here used white enamel on the bike frame and a burgundy metal flake paint to give extra pizzaz to the chain guard and trim. Several light coats give a smooth surface and good coverage.

Simply reverse the disassembly order to put the bike back together. If you want to "touch-up" any paint after the bike is reassembled, just be sure to protect the surrounding parts with newspapers.

Fill the tires with air and you have a bright, new bike that will delight your youngster at a price to please you.

Let Youngsters Develop Own Way, Say Experts

Psychologists say children should be allowed to develop in their own way and not be forced into a parent's ideal of what youngsters should be.

Giving a youngster love and encouraging him in his endeavors will help him fulfill his potential best, say mental health experts.

Put an Avocado in that Lunch Box

Question: What food is so versatile that it is adaptable to any course of any meal, can be served around the clock, is a perfect lunch box addition, and is available all year round?

Aha! You've guessed it — 'tis the mighty avocado. Give yourself an "A."

Children adore the nutty-like flavor of this versatile fruit. A perfect solution for those faced with the problem of livening-up the monotony of lunch box menus.

Avocados can be used in many ways — as a sandwich spread — with bacon or tomato or egg salad — whole (don't forget to include that plastic knife and spoon) — or halved. With the latter, just brush some lemon juice on the cut surface to retain that sunny look before you put it in a wax or plastic bag.

We all know of course, that an avocado is eating-good when fully ripe. To determine this, just cradle it gently in your hand. Don't pinch. If it's ripe it will yield and be soft to the touch.

The first Step To Fitting Children's Shoes

The staff of the Stride Rite Bootery, located at The Mall at Chestnut Hill, cordially invites all children to visit them soon! Better quality shoes which are appropriate for proper growth patterns for boys and girls are available for children of all ages. Every pair of Stride Rite shoes you buy in their store is fitted by a children's shoe specialist. Stride Rite holds fitting seminars regularly to make sure every shoe fitter is as expert as he ought to be. Children with narrow feet and wide feet are easily accommodated by proper fitting from AA to EEEE. Your child is guaranteed a proper fit and parents are informed about special problems concerning their children's feet which should be discussed with their doctor. One of the many services offered by the Stride Rite Bootery at the Mall at Chestnut Hill is their card file which is kept up-to-date when you purchase shoes for your children. You are notified when it is time to return for a check on your child's shoe size.

The Stride Rite Bootery has a complete selection of sneakers, slippers, boots, rubbers and socks. It is the perfect spot to start your Back-to-School shopping.

Financial Aid for College

If you have a good idea of where you want to go to school, contact the college of your choice for information regarding possible financial aid. Many schools do grant scholarships, or have funds available just for this purpose.

The Federal Government offers summer employment programs, educational opportunity grants and student loans; all possibilities you should look into.

And don't ignore the possibilities of Social Security educational benefits for those students who fall into certain categories. Your local Social Security office can advise you as to whether or not you quality. There are also educational benefits available for qualified youngsters through the Veterans Administration.

SCHOOL DAZE

Here's A Solution To Back-To-School Woes

The first day of class is not far off and as you check your clothes budget, you're certain this semester will be a fashion disaster.

'Tain't necessarily so....with judicious shopping and a careful reappraisal of last year's wardrobe, you can look great both on and off the campus this fall.

First, go through your closet. Weed out the garments that don't fit, are outdated or that you never did like, and get down to a working wardrobe. Separate clothes according to color and category: pants, skirts, casual and dressy. Try different combinations and make a note of the gaps. Look for ways to update your wardrobe — one of the new, slimmer skirts will give last year's bulky sweater a new look, for instance. If you have an overabundance of patterns, plan on purchasing solids to complement what you have.

Make a list of the items you need to round out your wardrobe — and stick to it! When you shop, keep an eye out for classic styles that won't be out of date next year. Be sure and choose colors that will mix and match readily with your present wardrobe — and try to choose fabrics that are not obviously seasonal.

Go for garments that do double duty — black velvet blazers that complement pants or long skirts equally well....jumpers that go to class with shirts by day, and solo by night.

Here's a tip from fashion experts: one-color looks are smart in more ways than one — it's easier to accessorize them. You can jazz up a monochromatic brown outfit of separates for instance, with a bright scarf or better yet, a matching cap and muffler in the newest patterned knits. New accessories such as belts, bags, scarves, gloves and jewelry all go a long way toward updating last year's look.

If you're really limited as to funds, fashion designers agree that it's wiser to buy one good garment than several inexpensive ones. It can be a really great pair of jeans that you'll wear with a turtleneck sweater one day, and with a satin shirt the next evening....or it might be a gorgeous, leather jacket to top all your separates.

By organizing your wardrobe with the best of the old and a few new items, you'll rate "A" for both fashion and economy this semester.

Shopping for back-to-school wardrobe begins in the closet! You can update last year's sweater, for instance, with one of the new slimmer skirts.

Computers Will Help Students Plan Careers

MIANI — Senior high school students in the Dade County Public School system are using a computer to help shape their future.

Using a terminal linked to the school district's IBM System/370 computer, students can identify and select career and education preferences, and evaluate their interests and goals.

Using IBM's 'Discover' career guidance program, students can explore various occupations at their own pace and get information on jobs, training, colleges, vocational training and financial aid," says Alan Olkes, executive director of management information services for the Dade County Public Schools.

But it is more than just a computerized library of career-related facts," he adds.

"Discover is also a learning tool that helps students understand how to make decisions and how to evaluate alternatives."

The Discover program is divided into three basic sections.

The first uses computer games and simulations designed to help students understand how decisions are made and lets them practice making decisions and lets them observe the consequences.

"This section will be particularly helpful to younger students who are beginning to think about what they'd like to be," says Olkes.

The second section of Discover enables the student to make decisions about his or her career, to narrow career choices and get specific information on the benefits, limitations, duties and prospects in a chosen field.

In the career-planning section, students can use the system to identify specific training requirements and resources available, to prepare themselves to pursue their occupation.

"Whether they're looking for information on colleges that have majors in specific fields, how to get financial aid, where vocational programs and apprenticeships are offered, what military training is available, or what continuing education programs might be helpful in a given profession, the student can get a good idea of how they'll reach their objectives," Olkes says.

According to Olkes, that information is also important to guidance counselors advising students on future plans.

"We have one guidance counselor for every 450 students in the Dade County system, and with clerical and administrative responsibilities, that doesn't leave as much time as we'd like for counseling.

"With Discover, students have the opportunity to get information before seeing their counselors.

Computer games and simulations are part of IBM's "Discover" program, aimed at helping junior high and high school students prepare themselves for future careers.

First Aid Tips

If a youngster should swallow poison, rush the victim and the suspected container to your nearest emergency hospital, with someone else along to indeuce vomiting, if possible.

When attempting mouth to mouth resuscitation, cover youngster's mouth. Blow 20 times, allowing air to return each time.

If child's wind pipe is clogged, hold him over your arm, head downward, and try to dislodge object with your fingers.

Always keep a kit of first aid supplies on hamd; your pharmacist can provide you with a checklist of necessary items.

Save A Bit of Summer For Back To School

There's no need to pack away all of your summer favorites when you start planning for back-to-school. Many of the things you love to wear all summer long have a place on campus this fall, too.

Those pretty print sundresses, especially the dark tones, will look just great with a T-shirt underneath. Or change the look entirely by wearing a shirt or blouse over the dress, belted at the waist for an updated style.

Other summer-to-fall changeabouts to consider... slip a pair of skinny pants under your summer tent dresses, nipped at the waist with a scarf or belt. Add comfy leg-warmers to your walking shorts.

New Aid For Today's Students

Ball point pens are great for school work, but until now, they've had one drawback — you couldn't erase ball point ink.

This semester, students will be able to write with a ball point pen and erase, too, thanks to a new product on the market.

The Teacher's Lament

Monday morning,
bright and early,

Those little heads
(not all of them curly)

Will bounce on thru the classroom door

To fill their minds with 3rd Grade lore.

Still buzzing with vacation stories,

Unbothered by an adult's worries,

They'll be a handful that first day,

After 3 long months of carefree play!

But back to work, you must direct 'em,

And for attire you must inspect 'em

Musn't wear playsyits to class, Marguerite

And Johnny, we don't allow bare feet!

Quite gradually,
they'll settle down

But not before an occasional frown;

And when the bell rings out at 3

A greater stampede, you'll never see —

While teacher collapses,
as a rule,

Relieved to survive
The First Day of School.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

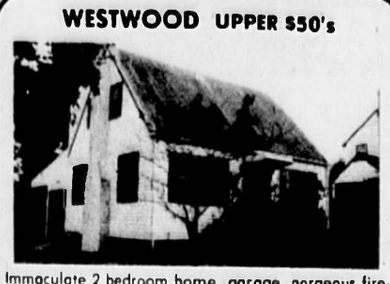

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

REPORT

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Figures released by MLS committee of Greater Boston Real Estate Board, for 1977, reflect a 53% increase in number of Cooperative Sales. The average sale price on a home was $48,936 during 1977. The MLS committee hope to have the new computerized listing book, in full operation by Spring of this year. The brokers of Council I&M MLS group meet at a monthly breakfast meeting, to further promote the services of MLS. There are well over 90 offices from the 16 towns, involved. Speakers are invited to address the group, and listings are brought to the attention of attending members, that might offer some unusual features, as acreage, or waterfront properties, etc. All in all membership in MLS grew substantially during 77 and is looking foreard to a bigger and better one for 1978.

Going, Going,...

At one time, there were about 20 house lots avail. in this fine Westwood development.
The owners saved the best lot for last (perhaps for themselves).
Now they have decided to make the home being built on this fine, level, wooded lot avail. to the public exclusively through Riley & Rizza.
A gracious over-sized Colonial at over $100,000 is going up. Town water & sewerage of course.

Sports Probe

by Steve K. Walz

Inside Pro Sports

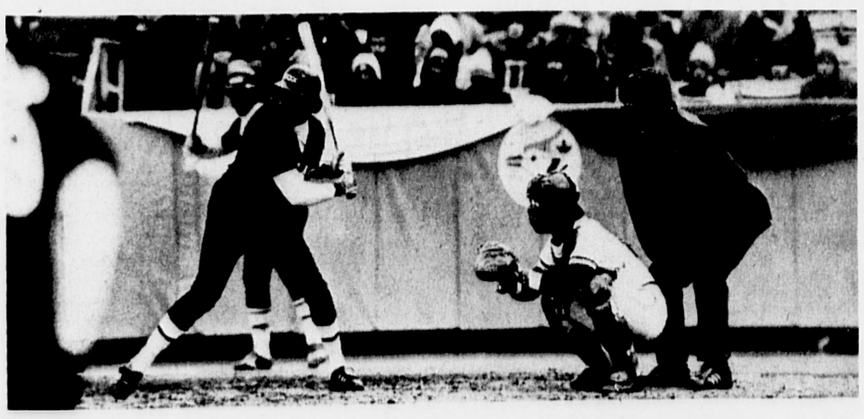

Although professional sports is thriving in North America, there are still some lingering problems facing the various team owners and league hierarchies.

National pastime

Major league BASEBALL is booming. Attendance figures are skyrocketing every year and the game's relationship with the TV networks couldn't be better. But unless the Oakland A's situation is cleared up soon, it will leave a blemish on the game as a whole.

The minor league system is still working, and talent production from the farm systems have stockpiled the 26 teams with regularity, which may prompt the National League to expand into two more cities in order to have the same amount of teams as the American League.

There is still the sticky problem of free agents. With Angels fireballer Nolan Ryan expected to test the free agency waters, pending his arm miseries being solved, one has to wonder if Pete Rose's and Dave Parker's million-dollar-a-year contracts will be obsolete. Obviously, the richer owners like Steinbrenner (New York) and Kroc (San Diego) would have the inside track on such talent. It may be high-time for the courts to decide whether a form of compensation for the team that loses its superstar should be forthcoming from the team that signs him. It's happening in basketball and hockey.

Just a kick

With the National FOOTBALL League season about to get underway, there are positive vibes emanating from the various teams around the league. Season tickets sales are up and the 16 game schedule has helped keep fan interest at a peak.

Yet the league owners need to continually tackle the problem of injuries. A step in the right direction was taken in the off-season when new rules were adopted to cut back on the frightening number of quarterback injuries caused by behemoth opposing defenders. Scientists are working to perfect flak-jackets for the rib cage and shock absorbers for the helmet head gear.

As it stands now, the talent distribution around the league seems to be well proportioned, which has prompted talk of further expansion in two years. The colleges are producing the talent, and you know how things are as far as the law of supply and demand goes.

Hoop to hoop

BASKETBALL shares a common problem with baseball in that its salary structure is out of whack. Players gathering splinters on the bench are earning at least $75,000 a year. But unlike baseball, NBA teams must compensate each other when they lose stars to free agency, whether the compensation is in the form of cash, draft picks or players. The league office acts as the judge of what's fair and not fair in terms of compensation.

The NBA in 1979-80 will need a hard-hitting public relations campaign to bring the game back to respectability in terms of entertainment. Several franchises (including the NBA's flagship franchise, New York Knicks) have been wallowing in a sea of discontent, thus hurting the gate and the league's relationship with the CBS-TV network. Also, the long schedule may be in need of change, especially with the playoff season stretching into June when baseball is 'king of sport.'

On a positive note, the league has adopted the old ABA three-point 'home run' rule, which will give teams which are down by a bunch of points at the end of a game a chance to catch up—pronto. Already various teams have drafted long-range shooters. Inevitably the fans should like this exciting new concept, which takes as much skill as hauling down a rebound or dribbling behind your back.

Next week we'll take a look at hockey and soccer.

SPORTSWHIRLED—I always find it amusing to peer at the NASL rosters every year and find that many players have the kind of names that you can't help but poke a little fun at. Here are a few choice morsels: The California Surf have a Phil Sandback, the Detroit Express a David Bradford (the name of Grant Goodeve's character on 'Eight Is Enough') and the Houston Hurricane a Stewart Jump. Believe it or not, the San Jose Earthquakes have an Easy Perez and an Ove Flindt, but the Toronto Blizzard win the 'What's In a Name' prize with Alessandro Abbondanza and Oscar Albuquerque... The Cosmos are entering the playoffs with four netminders—enough to confuse any coach or technical director. Erol Yasin and David Brcic have been with the team for awhile but obviously haven't thrilled the front office, so they went out and purchased German keeper Hubert Birkenmeier and American prospect Eric Delabar... The death of the Cards' tight end, J.V. Cain, during a practice in the sweltering summer heat should raise a few eyebrows in the NFL office. Wearing heavy protective equipment and enduring punishing workouts can destroy anybody physically, no matter how well an individual athlete is conditioned. The human body can take only so much before something goes out of kilter... Pele, king of the soccer field, is eyeing a lucrative movie career which would obviously include his life story being lensed for the silver screen... Argentinian superstar Oscar Fabbaiani had a field day in the NASL this year challenging Cosmos striker Giorgio Chinaglia for the league scoring title and giving the Tampa Bay Rowdies a bonafide superstar.

SPORTS SPECIAL—Look for California Angels third baseman Carney Lansford to replace Graig Nettles as the American League's best corner man in the next two years. Carney who hasn't had that much 'press,' is beginning to display consistent heroics both with the bat and with the glove. The fact that the Angels are a pennant contender makes him that much more visible.

SPORTS QUEST—Q. I would like to know what the Toronto Maple Leafs are doing to improve their team for next season, and who you think they'll trade.—Walter Vokey, Bell Island, Newfoundland

A. Even though baseball is still in season, rabid hockey fans up north just can't wait for the weather to change and usher in another NHL season. The Leafs recently hired Floyd Smith as coach of the club, which could be a step in the right direction. The only problem is that deposed coach Roger Nielson commanded the respect of all of the Leafs players, which is a tough act for anybody to follow. Toronto does not possess an abundance of talent and will have to trade one of their established stars—perhaps defenseman Ian Turnbull—in order to get some more punch up front. Depending on how the Leafs do in signing various WHA refugees and draft picks, it looks as if the team will still be mediocre.

FOOTBALL

When Dallas takes on Seattle in the enclosed Kingdome, in a game airing Sunday, Aug. 12 on ABC-TV, it will be up against a team that finished its third NFL season with an impressive 9-7 won-lost record. Seattle's left-handed Jim Zorn paced the AFC quarterbacks with the most passing yardage in 1978—3,283.

Zorn's first pro football team was Dallas. The Cowboys signed him as a free agent in 1975. He had made the team as third-string quarterback only to be cut three days before the season opener when injuries forced the Cowboys to sign another running back, Preston Pearson. It put them over the player limit and Zorn was cut. A year later, he hooked on with first-year Seattle and won the regular quarterback job.

Bibby on a tear

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pittsburgh Pirates' pitcher Jim Bibby, on a personal six-game winning streak, says there's only one team in baseball he wouldn't feel confident pitching against right now — his own.

"We've got the best team in baseball right now — we've got good hitting, good defense and good pitching," Bibby, now 9-3, said Monday night after he scattered four hits over 7 1-3 innings and doubled in a run to help lead the Pirates to a 9-1 rout of the cross-state rival Philadelphia Phillies.

"So," Bibby added, "if there was one team I'd prefer not to pitch to it'd have to be the Piitsburgh Pirates."

John Milner and Bill Madlock led the 13-hit attack the Pirates used to gain their eighth victory in nine games played with the Phils during consecutive weekend series.

For the sixth time this season, Milner, an occasional starter, drove in four runs, this time with a first-inning sacrifice fly and a third-inning, three-run homer off Phillies' starter and loser Larry Christenson, 3-8.

Madlock added a three-run triple in the ninth. Omar Moreno led off the game with his eighth homer of the season, a career season-high.

Bibby was used primarily and effectively for long relief early in the season. Then, after missing three weeks' action with a pulled muscle in his rib cage, he became the Pirates' sixth starter.

Since then, the big right-hander has become one of the most consistent pitchers in the National League and has played a large role in the Pirates' climb into a 2 ½-game lead over Montreal for first place in the National League East. He has not lost a game since June 20.

"I'd have to assess my performances as good. I am pitching well," Bibby said without a trace of modesty.

At the moment, however, there is no room for modesty in the Pirates' zany but enthusiastic clubhouse.

As they entered their facilities at Veterans Stadium after Monday night's game, the Pirates burst into a rousing chorus of a popular disco song.

"Ain't no stopping us now," they sang, stopping only to encourage clubhouse visitors to join in. "We're in the groove."

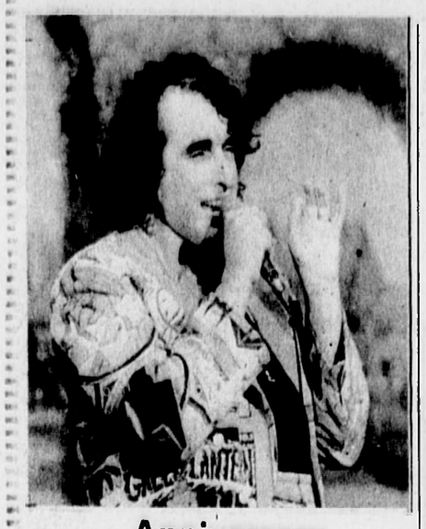

The Phillies, meanwhile, are in a rut. And they did not get much encouragement in their struggle to end it from the hometown fans who lustily booed their lackluster play Monday night.

"Maybe it's a good thing we're going on the road now (to Cincinnati)," said Pete Rose, who singled in the Phils' only run in the first. "Maybe we can get some momentum going. The fans don't bother me, but I think maybe they're burying some of our guys."

Army consolidates its hold on Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanese army regulars, supported by tanks and armored cars, consolidated their hold on the Beirut port today, ending four days of clashes with rightist Christian militiamen.

The rightist Phalangist radio said agreement to deploy fresh troops in the port was reached at top-level talks between government and army leaders and officials from the rightist political groups.

The army move was completed witout any resistance from the militiamen controlling the port's eastern approaches, the radio reported.

Government sources said they hoped the move to reassert government control over the port — the country's major lifeline — will be a prelude to an army takeover of the adjacent city center, which has been a no man's land of bombed-out buildings for most of the past four years.

On Wednesday, the army and militiamen clashed and official Beirut Radio reported one soldier killed and five wounded in the fighting.

Two people were reported wounded Wednesday near the U.S. Embassy by shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns, which are often used in Beirut's ground fighting. Officials at the embassy, however, said they had no knowledge of the incident.

The new government of Prime Minister Salim Al Hoss first tried to move army units into the port area on Tuesday, but they were driven out by snipers belonging to the Phalange Party, the largest Christian militia in the country.

Because of the fighting, the port closed on Tuesday, and many ships pulled up anchor and moved out into the Mediterranean Sea.

On Wednesday, a reinforced army contingent of five tanks, 10 armored personnel carriers and five other armored vehicles entered the port area and an army communique announced it intended to remain there.

Former President Camille Chamoun, head of the country's other major Christian party, the National Liberals, applauded the army's move as the "only way to establish security over the area."

"It's to no one's advantage to attack the establishment," he told Beirut Radio.

Ainsworth child abuse conviction is upheld

SEATTLE (UPI) — The traditionally privileged relationship between a doctor and patient does not apply in cases of child abuse, the state Court of Appeals has ruled.

The decision upholds the conviction of Ray Charles Ainsworth, who was charged with taking indecent liberties with an 8-year-old girl.

Testimony produced during Ainsworth's trial indicated the victim contracted gonorrhea shortly after the assault. The defendant's attorneys had contended evidence that the defendant also had the disease should not have been admitted.

But Judges Fred Dore and Frank D. James concurred in ruling that the ordinary rules regarding physician-patient relationships do not apply in any judicial proceeding regarding a child's injuries, neglect or sexual abuse.

Federal workers pay to park

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of federal workers got the word today: If you want to drive to work, you will have to pay to park.

President Carter's Office of Management and Budget announced Wednesday the final details of its pay-for-parking policy, saying it will help ease gasoline shortages, relieve traffic jams and clean up the air.

By Nov. 1, non-postal civilian workers in the executive branch will start paying about half the commercial rate for spaces they have been using at or near their office buildings. Two years later, on Oct. 1, 1981, they will pay the full commercial rate.

The policy does not touch the judicial and legislative branches, but Carter is encouraging Congress and the courts to make the same rules.

James McIntyre, Carter's budget director, said, "The energy constraints on our nation are already requiring changes in driving patterns."

Carter made the parking fee idea part of his new energy policy — to discourage gasoline consumption by making driving a bit more expensive. In the nation's capital, the parking fees would run from $50 to $70 a month for the most part.

The budget office estimated free parking for federal employees amounts to a $35 to $40 million subsidy yearly.

McIntyre's deputy, Bo Cutter, told reporters money — only a drop in the federal bucket — is not the point.

The point, he said, is to encourage federal workers to form car pools or use mass transit to get to work to save energy.

The president won't pay: He is driven around in a government car.

Cancer Society sponsors student writing contest

BOSTON — The American Cancer Society and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association are sponsoring their fourth annual high school writing and cartoon contest. Deadline for entries is Jan. 10, 1980.

The theme of the contest is the detrimental effects of cigarette smoking on the health of teenagers.

Categories include feature stories, editorials and cartoons. Individual school publication staffs may submit as many entries as they choose in any or all categories.

All entries must have been published in the school publication between Feb. 1, 1979, and Jan. 1, 1980, and each must be the work of a student in grades 7 through 12.

Each entry must be mounted on a plain white sheet of paper, 8 ½ by 11 inches in size. Lengthy entries may use an extra sheet stapled to the first. If printed on both sides of a sheet, mount separately. Specify at the top of the sheet the category in which it is entered. Give the name of the publication, school, full address of school, date of issue, and name of author.

Entries should be mailed to: American Cancer Society-CSPA Writing Contest, CSPA, Box 11, Central Mail Room, Columbia University, New York, New York 10027.

For additional information, call the Massachusetts Cancer Society's public relations department at 1-800-952-7664.

Razing Weeks favored

NEWTON — Swinging around from a position that the Weeks Junior High School building should be retained after the school is closed in 1981, the advisory group on Weeks reuse is leaning strongly toward recommending demolition.

Weeks Planning Advisory Group Chairman Robert Cohen said the sentiment is at this point "overwhelmingly" in favor of demolition of the Newton Centre school.

The advisory group will hold its final meeting the week after Labor Day, Cohen said, after which it will submit its final recommendation to the mayor and the Board of Aldermen.

Cohen said that at its inception, the group wanted at all costs to keep the building in use, but it has been unable to come up with a multiple use for the school.

The building, which occupies 113,000 square feet of the 169,000 feet of school grounds, could house 25-75 apartments, according to the Planning Department.

The school grounds are exclusive of the 11.5 acres of playfields.

Cohen said the group is in agreement that apartments would create traffic problems. Parking space would also be insufficient for more than 50 apartments.

If the building is torn down, the land could accommodate 12 or 13 single-family, 10,000-foot house lots in Residence C district, the zone that surrounds the school.

An opinion of some members of the Board of Aldermen is that the Newton Free Library should take over at least part of the Weeks building, putting the main library there and closing the Newton Highlands and Newton Centre branches.

Library Director Virginia Tashjian and the Library Board of Trustees have all along resisted that suggestion for a variety of reasons, primarily location.

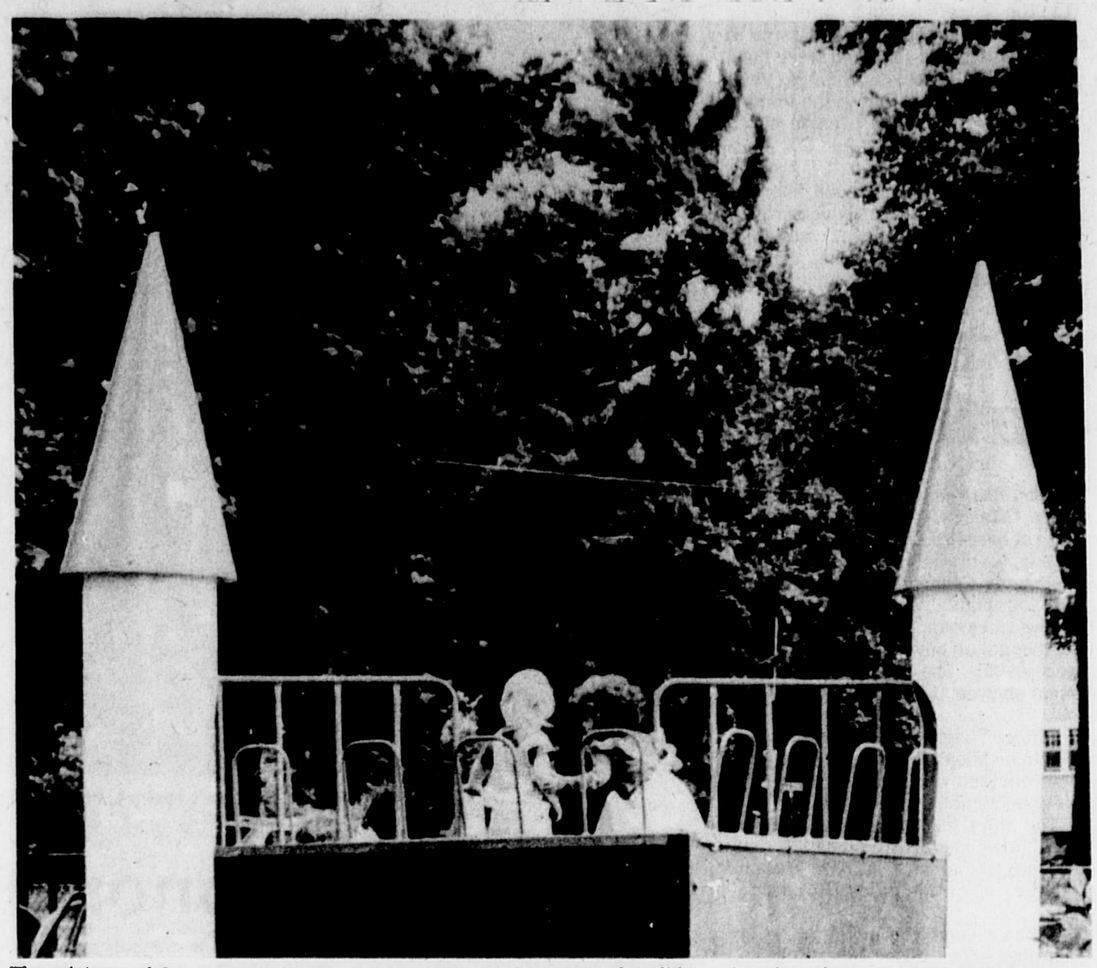

Cohen says one use of the land occupied by the building could be as part of a land exchange with land at the other end of the entire property, on Paul Street.

Although there are technical problems with transferring plans for a 43-unit apartment house for the elderly, proposed for Paul Street next to Centre Street, to a different site because of design, Cohen has asked the Planning Department to explore that possibility.

Demolition would also allow an increase in parking for the playfields, Cohen said. One-third of the land could be turned over to additional parking and the rest could be developed with townhouses.

The existing playfields may not be used as other than playground land without a special act of the Legislature.

The recommendation of the advisory group, when it is made, goes next to the aldermanic Administration & Planning Committee for a public hearing.

Newton's old housing an asset in federal funding formula

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

NEWTON — Does Newton with an average family income of $22,149 and a population of 87,000 deserve over $2.2 million in federal community development funds, when Waltham with an average family income of $16,593 and a population of about 57,000 receives less than $1.2 million?

Yes, Newton deserves all of its community development funds, according to Stephen Andrews, community development coordinator for the city. The city's allocation, as are Waltham's and all United States cities' and towns' allocations, is calculated by formulae that were developed for the Housing and Community Development Act of 1977.

This act actually benefited Newton far better than its predecessor, the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. In the first year of the 1974 program, Newton received only $655,000; it did not fare much better in the following two years. What made Newton's allocation shoot up to $2.1 million in the fourth year?

Newton's abundant older homes were responsible for the increase, Andrews explained. Age of a city's or town's housing stock became an important factor for the first time under

New in town?

NEWTON— Newton Newcomers is gearing up for its busy season this fall with a new president and a slight change in its format.

"We are basically a social club for newcomers to the area, but this year we are also going to try to be a community reference club to our members," said newly appointed president Liz Asaff. "We want to let them know what is going on in the city."

One of the events on the club's fall lineup is a "Mayor's Night" at which Mayor Mann will talk about taxes and school budgets and answer questions from the members.

The group also puts out a resource booklet which is available to new members and lists just about everything the city has to offer, from plumbers to flower shops to banks.

Many of the social activities are family-oriented, with some special events changing from month to month. There is an apple-picking outing for the kids in the fall and poker nights for the daddies, as well as wine and cheese socials, tennis games, and "theme" dinners.

"We are also offering a CPR course in November at City Hall," said Liz, "and there will be wine and cheese socials every month."

Membership in the club is limited to five years, a practical safeguard against the possibility of having to change the name to the Newton Oldtimers.

Sharon Kern, publicity director, explained that the club is not the only resource in Newton.

"But it's hard to meet people in this area, so we help to ease the transition. Members have a more immediate rapport than they would in other clubs."

Local officials upset

Aid formula blasted here

By JOSEPH FAZZINO
Staff Writer

King administration news releases about the "cherry sheets" remind local officials of the first two acts of a three-act play. There is still more to come.

One day after the state released aid distribution figures, Mayor Theodore Mann said he is not yet able to assess the impact of the receipts on local taxes.

The reason? Missing from the preliminary figures are the county, water, sewer and transportation charges which will be assessed against the cities and towns.

Increases in the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) and the Middlesex County budget could gobble up much of the additional state aid promised by Gov. Edward J. King.

Mayor Mann commented that "the release is a deception because it shows a promise of help without showing the accompanying increases to the MBTA, MDC and county accounts."

Mann said the governor's "promise of help has been overstated. I'm disappointed by his failure to deliver."

The cherry sheet receipts released by the state Monday show Newton getting a 13 percent increase in state aid and Waltham getting a 23.6 percent increase in the aid.

"It's a favorite trick of the state," commented Waltham Mayor Arthur J. Clark of the release of information about the "cherry sheets", so called because of the color of the paper upon which they're printed.

But neither Mann nor Clark was ready to predict the effect of the assistance on local property tax rates.

Mann suggested that the tax rate for the present fiscal year, FY 1980, would be "fairly close" to the city's present levy of $170.40 per $1,000 assessed value.

"The City of Newton this year enjoys a very favorable free cash situation because of effective department management and increased earnings from cash utilization."

No matter what the other side of the cherry sheet ledgers say, Newton will have a tax rate increase "less than the cost of living and that, in itself, is a commendable achievement."

Clark of Waltham said that "without the other figures, I can't tell what the tax rate will be."

Like Mann, Clark blasted the state distribution formulas which, both say, are unfair to the majority of cities and towns in the Commonwealth.

"Some communities picked up more than 40 percent (in receipts) while others received far less."

Here are the "cherry sheet" receipt figures released by the state for nine area communities.

Right-on-red out for most intersections

NEWTON — Only three intersections in Newton meet state requirements for right turns on red lights, according to Traffic Planner David Tannozzini.

The state law allowing right turn on red goes into effect Jan. 1.

There are 75 signalized intersections with pedestrian phases, Tannozzini said. At such intersections state law now says there should not be right turn on red, and those intersections will be posted against it.

That means 300 signs will have to be put up, one at each corner of the 75 intersections.

Tannozzini said the Traffic Commission and the Board of Aldermen will have to rule on each of the intersections. Even then, it is not clear whether the city may overrule state conditions and allow the right turns' Tannozzini said.

The state is paying for the cost of the signs and will provide them to communities.

Statewide, Tannozzini said, only about 20 percent of the intersections will allow right turn on red under current warrants.

China: The amazement was mutual

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Don't expect an ordinary answer from Jeff Shapiro or Frances Rudnick when they are asked about their summer vacations, because they are likely to tell you about Chinese culture, Romanian hospitality, and what Bob Hope looks like up close.

While most college students were painting houses or working in restaurants on the Cape for the summer, Jeff and Frances were touring China and Romania with the Brown University chorus, which in June became the first American collegiate chorus to tour the People's Republic of China. Frances and Jeff, both juniors at Brown, were left with mixed impressions about the two-week singing tour of China. They were pleased with the courteous manner in which they were treated, although they felt that at times it was a bit too much.

The students had been forewarned about the excessive attention that would be paid to them during their stay, but nonetheless they were unprepared for the mob scenes that seemed to follow them wherever they went.

"It was incredible in the stores," said Jeff. "As soon as we went to pick something up to look at it, this huge crowd would form around us. I was trying on a pair of shoes one time and there were all of these Chinese peering over each other's shoulders trying to see what I was doing. When I untied my shoelaces, the whole crowd started murmuring suddenly as though I had done something amazing."

"The salespeople were very courteous to us, though," said Frances. "They were eager to wait on us but they ignored the natives to do it."

The excessive accommodation to foreigners in China was evident at other times, also. The group stayed for a time in Canton, which is very hot and humid. As the group was leaving the hotel to return to Peking, they noticed rows of air conditioners still in cartons in the hallway, waiting to be installed. These kinds of Western-style conveniences are becoming more common in China due to the increase in tourism in that country in recent years.

One incident particularly distressed Jeff and Frances, leaving them feeling somewhat guilty for the special treatment that they were receiving.

The group was en route to Shenyang from Peking on a train and some of the students were making their way from the dining car to the sleeping car late one night.

"We had the deluxe coach, which is only for foreigners," explained Jeff. "The natives aren't even allowed to see it. We were being led by a police officer and as we passed through the other cars he would hit the people with his stick to get them to move if they were hanging in the aisles the smallest bit. Some of them were sleeping, but they just woke up if he hit them, and stared at us as we passed through. The really incredible thing about incidents like this is that they showed no resentment. We felt like apologizing."

"In Romania we probably would have been beaten up," said Frances, remembering the first few days of their trip which they spent with peasant families in a Romanian village.

"The people there seemed more aware of the differences in culture and they seemed to resent any special treatment that we received. On the plane ride over from the States, the Romanian stewardesses were very gruff, almost mean."

During its two-week stint in China, the group gave formal concerts at the Central Conservatory in Peking, the Worker's Cultural Palace in Shenyang, and at the Youth Palace and Conservatory in Shanghai. They were enthusiastically received by the Chinese audiences, but the chorus did not realize how enthusiastically until they went to see a ballet performed by a professional dancing troupe.

"We learned that Chinese audiences do not applaud!" marveled Frances. "At the ballet, we were the only ones who clapped. Also, the audiences thought nothing of talking during the performance. They don't seem accustomed to silence of that kind."

One of their concerts was taped and broadcast by Radio Peking, which has a listening audience of over 200 million. It was at this taping that the students from Brown were treated to a little touch of home. Bob Hope' filming a show in Peking, stopped in to watch the taping and chat with the group.

"That was really strange!" laughs Jeff. "He had his crew with him and the whole group looked like they were right off the streets of Southern California — a pretty funny sight in downtown Peking!"

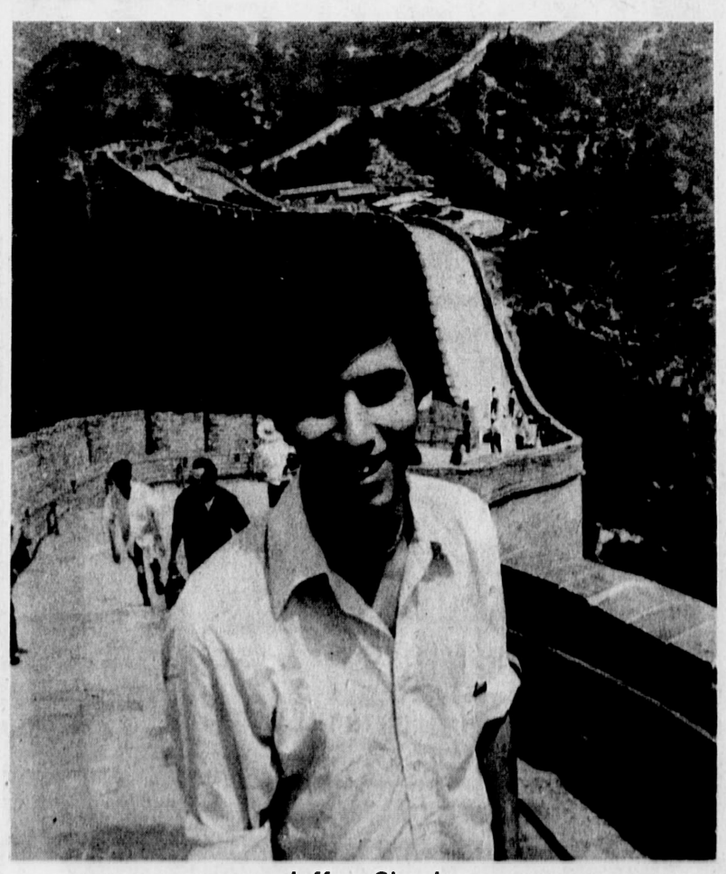

Jeff, according to Frances, showed his "true colors" at this point when he mentioned to Hope that he must feel particularly honored to be in the same studio with the Brown University chorus.

"He looked at me and said, 'You must be the funny man of the group and I'm playing straight

Although the group gave about nine formal concerts and eight informal concerts, they still had time for other things, like visiting the Great Wall, watching an acupuncture operation, visiting Fudan University, and teaching disco dancing to members of a professional singing and dancing troupe.

Wherever they went, however, the American students never failed to attract several stares as they walked down the streets. Walking down a

'Boatpeople' topic of concern at two-hour Drinan forum

By SUELLEN MEDD
Staff Writer

NEWTONVILLE — Quoting Vice-President Walter Mondale, U.S. Rep. Robert F. Drinan won extended applause from constituents Tuesday night when he told them:

"History will not forgive us if we fail (to help the boatpeople), nor will it forget us if we succeed."

The Fourth District congressman, home from recent talks with Hanoi officials, stirred questions from the audience regarding the plight of the boat people. Speaking at the Newton Arts Center, Drinan also commented on the nation's energy needs, as he opened the floor for questions during the two hour forum.

Drinan aide Michael Shea evaluated the audience reaction to the Hanoi visit, as an open-minded search for insight on this complicated issue still very close to the American conscience.

Shea said the congressman has received support in the district not only for his efforts to aid these remaining victims of the war, but for his outspoken comments lambasting the Vietnamese government for the treatment meted out to its citizens, particularly the ethnic Chinese.

Drinan, one of the nine congressmen to visit the Southeast Asian country, was quoted during his travels as saying:

"Hanoi's policy of forcing thousands of people to leave Vietnam is one of the worst violations of human rights in this century." Because of his remarks, the delegation almost was forbad the right to enter that country.

Shea said, however, that according to one of the journalists who was part of the mission, the Hanoi government only was looking for an excuse to prevent the visit. He said apparently a low level bureaucrat originally had approved the opening of the doors to the U.S., and subsequently, the upper ranks panicked, overturning the decision when the controversial comments were made by the congressman. As demonstrated by the recent events, Hanoi eventually agreed to a sit-down session with the American representatives.

As to how honest the Hanoi officials were about why the boatpeople feel they must flee Vietnam, Drinan said after the forum, "I think they were being honest from their point of view. They want to keep Russian aid...but they need us desperately." Aide Shea said Hanoi officials indicated they chose Russian assistance out of a fear of an attack by neighboring China, and because the U.S. had closed its doors.

Whether or not the Vietnamese government would follow through on its overtures to allow a U.S. consulate in Hanoi, Drinan felt remained to be seen. Also, from the U.S. perspective, Drinan said,

"It's not easy to give normalization when that country is still at war with a neutral nation."

Even if an official liaison office is not established, Drinan said humanitarian efforts should be intensified through world agency auspices such as UNICEF and the Red Cross.

The continuing emigration from that country may have peaked, Drinan added, since Hanoi Leaders claimed to have cracked down on lower level purge efforts.

A final audience comment on the boat people indicated that some voters wre not happy with resettlement efforts made for the refugees. Though Drinan lauded religious groups for being on the forefront of rescue efforts, a constituent complained that contrary to popular belief, there were several refugees on welfare. A Newton area voter criticized the congressman's information that most refugees wpo had come to this country had jobs and were hard at work. Drinan stood behind his comments, saying that indeed the majority which already had been resettled were employed.

The questioner, who said she had been working in centers which provided aid to the boatpeople, countered, that not enough was being done to help the refugees in this country.

False IDs claimed in liquor violations

NEWTON — The Highland Beverage Co., 9 Woodward St., Newton Highlands, had its license suspended Tuesday night for two weeks, effective Sept. 10-22, for violations of sales of alcoholic beverages to persons less than 20 years old.

The Board of License Commissioners also suspended the license of the Barron Beverage Co., 1142 Beacon St., Newton Highlands, for two days, Sept. 10 and 11, for the same violation.

The three violations at the Highland Beverage store all involved false identification cards, according to testimony given at the hearing of the Licensing Board.

On July 17, Police Officer Linda Glenn said she and another officer stopped Richard Jensen of Needham after he had bought an alcoholic beverage because he seemed to the officers not to be old enough. He presented unacceptable identification — a college ID — and later showed another ID with a picture of someone else on it.

The salesman at the store, Theodore Parker, a wholesale liquor salesman who works there part-time, said at the hearing he thought the picture like looked like the purchaser of the beer. The identification indicated that Jensen was 21 years old.

On July 28, Paul Graham of Needham bought beer at the Highland Beverage. Questioned by Officer James Rogers, Jr., he showed a driver's license showing him to be 19 years old.

The salesman in the store, Paul Sheehan, a teacher in Marlboro, said the young man had showed different identification to him, but police did not find the alleged false identification. They searched Graham, Rogers said.

Sumner Pearlman, proprietor of the liquor store, said he had asked to see identification himself after Sheehan had examined the license. A police car was parked across the street, he said. The so-called license seemed in order to him.

The third violation occurred Aug. 8, when Officer Gregory Wright sold a case of beer to John F. Delaney on the strength of having been shown Delaney's Connecticut "license" the previous night.

The salesman, again Parker, said he thought an out-of-state license was acceptable. The Connecticut document showed Delaney to be 20 years old.

Officer Wright said the license proved to be phony, but admitted that no one could tell who is not familiar with a Connecticut license.

The store has had such problems with false identification that it has recently installed a camera to take pictures of all identification produced.

Asked recently about the extent of searches for false identification, Police Officer Paul Golden of police community services said a full search of person and automobile cannot be conducted unless a person has been placed under arrest.

Whether or not to arrest a young person for buying beer is discretionary with police, Golden said, and police often do not want to arrest the young person if it is his first offense.

Therefore, Golden said, it is possible that a false ID may be disposed or hidden in a car without knowledge of the police.

Sheri Jones, age 3, doesn't really know what Elvis was all about but is enjoying helping her older friends at Hawthorn Playground.

Hawthorne honors Elvis

NONANTUM—Two years after his death at age 42, Elvis Presley lives on in the Hawthorne playground. Thanks to the efforts of the Waltham Arts Council and the Arts in the Parks program, Elvis was paid full tribute by the children in the area, who helped paint a mural at the playground honoring the famous rock-and-roll star.

Mary Troyan, an artist-in-residence with the Waltham Arts Council,designed the mural and drew in the outlines, the children do the actual painting.

Newton is a co-applicant on the Waltham Arts Grant, so Mary is essentially "on loan" from Waltham to work on the mural. The Arts in the Parks program, which is part of the Newton Recreation Department, was also involved in the project, and Joan Pellegrini, director of the playground, organized the "painters," all children from the area, to complete the mural after the initial work had been done.

The entire mural is dedicated to the men from the area who lost their lives in the Korean and Vietnam wars. The 45 names of the war dead will be stenciled on a section of the wall reserved for that purpoSe.

$1.5m street work starting this week

NEWTON — Street repairs and reconstruction will will be starting within days in several sections of the city, with most of the work concentrated in the "target areas" of the federally funded community development program.

Some $800,000 of community development funds have been allocated for street repair and reconstruction and installation of curbs and sidewalks on Charlesbank Road, St. James Street, Faxon Street, Jasset Street and Beech Street, and for sidewalks and curbs on Langley Road, Jackson Street, Daniels Street and some of Cypress Street in Newton Centre.

In addition to community development street repairs, the city is spending $717,000 of city funds on major resurfacing jobs on Centre Street between Bellevue and Church streets, Lincoln Street between Walnut and Woodward streets, and Tremont Street for its whole length.

The resurfacing jobs mean removal of the top layer of paving surface and laying of a new surface, not simply the filling of cracks.

Lining of water mains is also being done, principally in Nonantum, at a cost of $$356,000.

The street projects should be completed during this construction season, Public Works Commissioner Charles Thomas said Tuesday. Some of the work has already started.

Human services proposals sought

NEWTON — Mayor Theodore D. Mann announced today that the Human Services Assistance Program FY80 funding applications are available. Deadline for proposal summaries is Sept. 4.

The Human Services Assistance Program (HSAP) will offer $140,000 in grants to social services programs serving residents of designated Community Development Neighborhood Strategy Areas (target areas). Interested agencies will be invited to submit proposals in response to the Human Services Advisory Committee's guidelines.

The Human Services Advisory Committee of the Newton Community Development Program has adopted a strategy for the delivery of social services which designates the priority program needs within each Neighborhood Strategy Area. In adopting the above strategy, the Human Services Advisory Committee took into account statistical population data, Neighborhood Strategy Area priority needs information provided by governmental agencies and human services advocacy organizations, and information on existing services.

In addition, the committee solicited information from Neighborhood Strategy Area residents through meetings with neighborhood advisory committees, questionnaires distributed to members of neighborhood advisory committees, and human services testimony delivered at community development public hearings.

Applicants must demonstrate that programs proposed for community development funding comply with federal eligibility and technical regulations. Key federal requirements are: services primarily for residents of designated Neighborhood Strategy Areas, unavailability of other federal funds, and linkage with community development physical development activities.

The Human Services Advisory Committee will be responsive to programs which have potential for self—sufficiency, have potential for matching funds or leveraging capability, provide linkages to other critical programs, have demonstrated effective financial capabilities, devote funding to most critical needs, devote funding to meet needs identified by neighborhood advisory committees, give priority to direct services rather than enrichment programs, provide job training and job opportunities, and are cost-effective.

The first step in the application process for each social service agency is the development of a proposal summary, which will provide the Human Services Advisory Committee with a brief, concise description of the proposed program. The proposal summary procedure will streamline the Human Services Advisory Committee's work and reduce paperwork for agencies proposing programs not consistent with Human Services Advisory Committee priorities.

Interested agencies are invited to submit proposal summaries to the Department of Planning and Development. Proposal summary forms are available upon request. Contact Dale Silin at 552-7135 to obtain copies of the proposal summary form. The application deadline is 5 p.m. Sept. 4.

Coins, wine silver stolen

NEWTON–Between $15 and $25 in coin was taken from West Newton Shell,1200 Washington St.,police learned about 11 a.m. Sunday.

A pane of glass in an overhead door was broken,and the inner office door was forced. The money was taken from a cash register draw in the office.

Wine valued at $55 was taken from the home of Fernando Carbato,88 Temple St.,sometime between Thursday and Sunday, police said.

Three bottles of homemade wine were found in the backyard.

A vehicle dug up the sixth fairway at the Charles River Country Club,483 Dedham St., sometime between midnight and 7 a.m. Saturday,police said.

A large amount of silver was taken from the Shirley Van Antique Shoppe, 381 Eliot St. about 12:30 a.m. Friday.The amount of silver missing has not yet been determined.

Legion can buy city land

NEWTON — American Legion Post 440 on California Street, Nonantum, is finally going to be able to buy the land it thought it was going to get in 1975.

The post, which has been using the 32,000 square feet of land for parking for the past four years, made an offer to buy the land in 1975, and it was accepted by the city.

For unknown reasons, the sale was never consummated, and papers lay in the Law Department until 1978, when the matter came up in connection with another piece of city-owned land the post would like to buy.

One of the reasons for the sale's not being completed was a need to obtain permission from the State Legislature. That was never requested.

Since the introduction of the request to buy an additional 14,000 square feet of what used to be called Victory Field, the permission has been obtained from the Legislature to sell the former playground land.

The authorization of the Board of Aldermen in 1975 for the sale of the land was at 50 cents per square foot' the same price the post is willing to pay for the new piece of land.

The new parcel will be used partly for additional parking and for a small park and tot lot for use by the neighborhood.

The park was a part of the plan for the original purchase, but did not materialize.

Ald. Ernest Dietz, chairman of the Administration & Planning Committee, said at a committee meeting Monday night that he wanted to rescind the 1975 order of the Board of Aldermen and start all over again with the two pieces of land combined into one parcel.

But Ald. Donald Budge was afraid that rescission would open the entire matter to tampering by the Board in contravention of the previous Board's intentions. It would certainly delay the final sale of the land for a year or more.

Several amendments to the 1975 order are necessary to make it reflect the Board's intention and to ease the way for the sale of the addditional 14,000 feet.

A new site plan must be approved, showing the relocation of the park; a clause must be inserted that returns the property to the city should Post 440 cease to exist; and a time limit for consummation of the sale will be added.

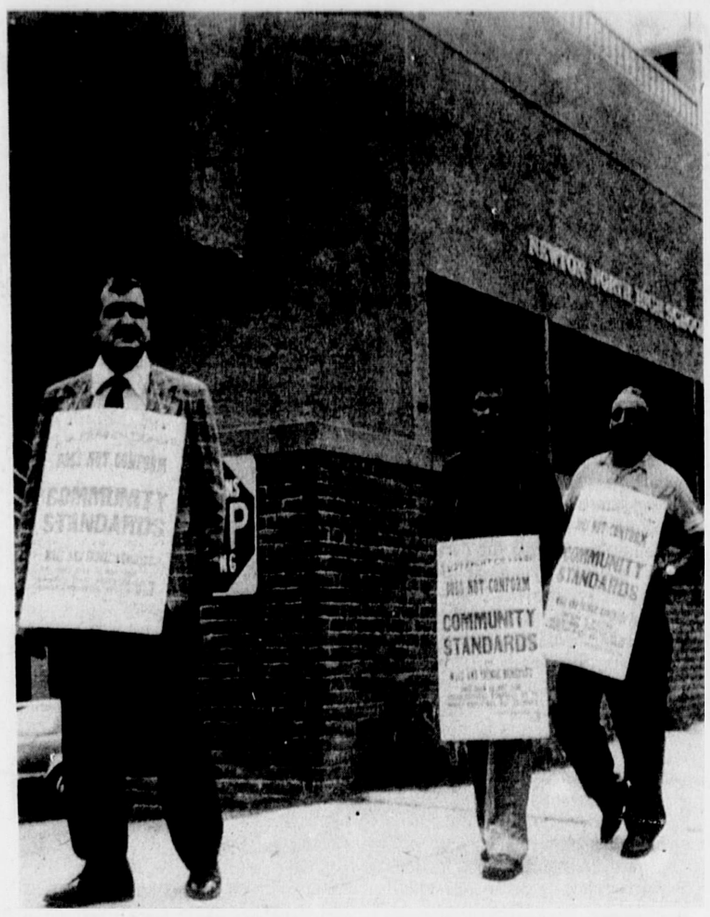

A rezoning and a special permit for parking in a residential zone will also be needed.

The committee voted 6-0 in favor of the amendments, with Ald. Robert Tennant excused.

On the offer to buy the 14,000-foot parcel the committee voted 6-0 in favor of the proposed purchase and 5-0 in favor of a waiver of the need for an advisory committee to study the purchase, as required by a revised ordinance governing the sale of city land.

The Finance Committee must set the minimum price for the 14,000 feet.

The post plans to improve the land with shrubbery and grass and pave the parking area.

Pickets at Newton North High School halt work on heating, ventilation and air conditioning.

Trash rules not specific

NEWTON — Police complaints against residents who put out trash on weekends have been refused by Newton District Court, Public Works Commissioner Charles Thomas said Wednesday, and he has proposed to do something about it.

At a meeting of the Public Facilities Committee, Thomas said Judge Monte Basbas has refused to accept complaints from police because the ordinance is not specific enough.

Currently the ordinance says trash shall be put out for collection "on or before 7 a.m. of such days as may be designated" for collection.

A throughly literal interpretation of that wording might imply that trash may be put out several days before 7 a.m. of the day of collection.

That's exactly what happens, and Thomas want to make the ordinance enforceable.

He has proposed that the ordinance allow trash to be put out after 8 p.m. the preceding. night and empty containers taken off the street by 8 p.m. the day of collection.

The proclivity many Newton residents and businesses have for putting their rubbish out too early makes the city unsightly on weekends and adds to the collection burden, Thomas said.

Especially in business areas rubbish tends to be disturbed and gets scattered over the street, making pickup more difficult, he said.

Homeowners who plan to be away on their regular collection days are also guilty of putting trash out on weekends, and dogs get into the refuse.

Committee members were concerned that householders not be penalized for a mistake made by putting trash out on a minor holiday not generally observed or when snow precludes trash collection on the designated day.

Correction

The new telephone number for people to call for telephone service repairs was incorrectly printed in a recent issue of the Newton Graphic.

The correct numbers to call are: 1-555-1611 for residential customers and 1-555-1515 for business customers.

Coletti loses first round with 6-1 committee vote

NEWTON — A petition to legalize a third apartment built in an alderman's two-family house was denied last week by the Land Use Committee on a 6-0 vote.

Ald. Paul Coletti of Upper Falls said at the meeting that if his petition is denied by the full Board of Aldermen at its next meeting, Sept. 4, he will "inevitably" go to court on the matter.

The decision of the Land Use Committee was based partially on the intent of a 1974 ordinance that allows conversion of large houses with large lots to use by more than one family, if the lot has enough square footage to provide for each unit the amount of land required for a single house in that zoning district.

The ordinance applied originally only to Residence A and B districts but has since been amended to include Residence C and Private Residence districts. Coletti's two-family house is in Private Residence district at 34-36 Columbia Ave., Upper Falls.

Coletti admitted that he had made an error in having the basement of his two-family house converted to a "dwelling unit" without having a special permit from the Board of Aldermen. He also failed to obtain building permits from the Building Department for the plumbing, electrical, and construction work.

Coletti has offered to agree to a condition that would allow the dwelling unit, consisting of two large rooms with closets, a full bathroom, and fully equipped kitchen, to be legalized for use by himself and his family, with rental being specifically prohibited.

Coletti lives on the second floor of the house. A tenant occupies the first floor.

Coletti also said he was willing to have a condition imposed that would prevent his selling the house as a three-family house.

If the Board of Aldermen sustains the Land Use Committee vote, Coletti will have to remove all the kitchen equipment and rectify the building-code violations, Building Commissioner Allan Fraser said at the meeting.

If the petition is approved, the plumbing and wiring will have to be made accessible for inspection by building inspectors.

The Land Use Committee also dwelt at length on whether the "public welfare and convenience" could be construed as being served by approving Coletti's petition.

The public welfare and convenience being served is the first criterion for granting a special permit and is required by the state zoning law.

Coletti asserted that in his opinion the ordinance (Sec. 24-6-h) spells out a right to convert his house, and if the Land Use Committee is using other criteria than contained in the ordinance they are not acting properly. cPD Chairman Terry Morris said the committee agreed that the intent of the amendment, written by Morris, was not to allow every conversion that is legally possible but to allow conversions of one- and two-family houses to occupancy by more families where there is some economic need, which is not the case with Coletti.

Morris said the "thread of economic viability" runs through the original ordinance that applied only to large estates down through the later amendment that allowed conversion of smaller properties.

The original amendment, called Ordinance 30, was proposed specifically to save large, old houses that are in danger of being demolished because they are too large for single-family use and cannot be maintained.

Coletti said his house is "uneconomic" because his taxes are higher than for other houses on his street.

In answer to a question from Ald. David Cohen about what benefit allowing a third dwelling unit would be to the public, Coletti responded, "It would benefit my constituents and me as a taxpayer."

"Are you saying you can't carry out your duties as an alderman without this?" Cho Cohen asked.

"Yes," Coletti replied. He explained that without the basement unit constituents and campaign workers will have to use the family bathroom and kitchen. Coletti is a first-term alderman.

Ald. Mark White, not a Land Use Committee member, argued that the committee should not use the criterion of public welfare and convenience, since "very few petitions are for the convenience of the public — they're for the convenience of the petitioner."

Morris disagreed and gave examples of the gain of open space, low-income housinW., and preservation of the architectural integrity of neighborhoods as reasons for granting special permits.

Ald. Robert Gaynor, the only alderman voting against denial of the petition, tried to get the committee to disregard the dwelling-unit aspect, since Coletti had already said he would abide by a condition that there could be no rental of the apartvent.

After considerable discussion with Building Commissioner Allan Fraser about what constitutes a dwelling unit, the committee decided it would be authorizing another dwelling unit, making the house a three-family house, and did not want to do that. There are no three-family houses in the neighborhood.

Discussion often erupted into personal slurs against the press and some members of the committee by Coletti that were returned by some members.

When the denial seemed imminent, Coletti said he had come to the Board because he did not want to do anything "underhanded" and had not "put pressure" on people in the neighborhood and gotten petitions because, he said, "I thought I had a fair chance."

The petition would need a vote of 16 members of the Board of Aldermen to be approved.

Voting against the petition were Ald. Cynthia Creem, Carol Ann Shea, Ethel Sheehan, Morris, Susan Schur, and Cohen.

Stolen car torched

NEWTON--Police found a flaming car in the parking lot of King's Department Store, 191 California St,.about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

There was an empty gallon container in the backseat of the burning car.The radio had been removed and police believe the tires had been replaced.

Five televisions valued at more than $1,900 and two radio-tape decks,valued at $450,were taken from the home of Adelaide Lalli,125 Florence St.,sometime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday.A cellar door was forced open, police said.

Missing from the cash register at Tody's Gulf ,1354 Washington St.,is $50,taken sometime between 1:30 a.m. and 9 a.m. Tuesday,police said.

Correction on poison

In the Wednesday, Aug. 15 edition of publications of Transcript Newspapers, Inc., the manner of treating children suspected of injesting poison was incorrectly reported.

The article, included in a back-to-school advertising section, incorrectly advised that the child, along with the the container of the suspect poison, be rushed immediately to the hospital, with a second person on hand to induce vomiting.

Dr. James Easom, assistant director of the Massachusetts Poison Information Center, has advised contacting the center immediately. In the greater Boston area, the number is 232-2120. Outside the area, the toll free number is 1-800-682-9211.

To induce vomiting, Dr. Easom said, could worsen the toxicity of some poisons. Further, some ingestion cases could be rapidly addressed at home, rather than losing precious moments en route to the hospital.

Expert medical advice is available by contacting the Massachusetts Poison Information Center on a 24 hour daily basis. The phone numbers can be obtained by contacting the operator, or inside every telephone book in the commonwealth.

Poison prevention information is available free of charge by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Poison, 300 Longwood Avenue, Boston, MA., 02115.

Bottle bill, another try

Supporters of the Bottle Bill are still active on Beacon Hill, but a victory for them is far down the road after their near-miss earlier this year.

A proposal to outlaw no-deposit soft drink bottles and throw-away, flip-top cans was approved by both the State Senate and House of Representatives and sent to Governor Edward J. King.

After a period of deliberation in which he listened to both sides in the controversy, Governor King vetoed the measure, and the frustrated Bottle Bill backers lost another round in their long fight.

King will be sitting in the Governor's chair at least through 1982, and he apparently is committed to vetoing any similar Bottle Bill if enacted by the Legislature and sent to him for his acceptance or rejection.

The Governor could hardly veto a Bottle Bill in 1979 and sign one in 1980, 1981 or 1982. Aides to Governor King say he was fearful that one or both of the two bottle manufacturing plants and the one company making cans for beer and soft drinks might have moved out of the Bay State, causing a loss of jobs, if he had signed the Bottle Bill.

Top supporters of the move to ban no-deposit bottles and cans say their ranks have increased substantially since 1976 when an initiative petition seeking to prohibit the use of throw-away bottles and cans was defeated by less than six-tenths of one per cent.

They are planning to place another initiative petition on the ballot, but under the Massachusetts Constitution cannot do so until 1982 since similar initiative petitions cannot appear on the ballot more often than every six years.

To get an initiative petition on the ballot next year, its sponsors would be forced to revamp it drastically but the end result, a bottle bill, would make all their efforts worth while.

Lawns and roadsides covered with broken bottles are a common sight and a tremendous expense both for private individuals and town financed cleanups.

We firmly believe a bottle bill would be most welcome. The sooner the better.

Advantages

Is the new Susan B. Anthony silver dollar a subtle sign of sexual discrimination?

It's a lot smaller than either the Kennedy half dollar or the Eisenhower dollar. It doesn't compare in silver content to the big silver dollars of earlier eras. It cost only 3 cents to produce while the Eisenhower dollar cost 8 cents during a pre-inflation time. Like some foreign coins, it is not round which is just as well as its size is very close to that of the quarter.

What are its advantages?

Apologists claim it will last about fifteen years instead of the normal 18 months for paper dollars. They are easy to stack and don't stick together like paper bills. They are hard to copy for would-be counterfeiters. They don't ordinarily blow away.

But it certainly hasn't demonstrated any power for affirmative action. Nor does it show a political realization that women make up well over half the voting public. However, there is that woman on many United States coins which pre-dated Susan B. Anthony. Possibly the representation of liberty as female is more important than how much silver is in the Anthony dollar.

My Turn

Last laughs in the Granite State

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE

I had occasion to visit my friend Ned in the Mt. Washington Valley last week, and although it is always a pleasure to paddle a canoe with a fellow of such wit and vigor, to tell the truth I had been approaching the visit with some trepidation.

You see I had made it a practice of needling Xed about the antics of former Governor Meldrim Thomson. Whether it was lowering the flag for the "Second Day of Infamy" (the signing of the Panama Canal Treaties) or defending the sanctity of the state's morbid motto, Governor Mel was always good for a laugh.

Of course I know Ned could never take those gentle barbs seriously, he did have to answer for the voters of his state for electing the man time and again.

Well as you can imagine, my trepidation at this meeting was matched on Ned's part by boundless glee. He even took a long time (for Ned) getting around to the subject of governors.

He told me he hoped I had enjoyed poking fun at the Granite State voters and he allowed as how the shoe is now on quite the other foot.

Between the fake diplomas on the resumes and the lunches at Anthony's Pier 4, I had my hands full all weekend.

It seems Governor Mel went too far, as all potentates do, large and small. The canal business was innocuous enough, as was Mel's secretariat in the Conservative Caucus' "shadow government" (he was secretary of state) but eventually he wasn't funny anymore, not at all.

They say it was the "Construction Works in Progress" charges on the electric bills that did Mel in. He vetoed a bill which would have outlawed them.

But don't discount the unprecedented joint statement signed by the leader of every religious denomination in the state (just about) which had a few comments to make about his trip to South Africa.

Ned says he hopes people will see that New "tax climate" Hampshire's is a product of tight-fisted, totally representative local government and not some rabbit out of Mel's hat.

In parting he told me he hopes that someday people everywhere will realize that trimming back the bureaucracy doesn't have to mean electing creeps.

Tsongas to be Ted's stalking horse?

By LORING SWAIM
State House Correspondent

BOSTON — "Ham-handed" was U.S. Sen. Paul Tsongas' cryptic desrciption this week of the White House's current arm-twisting with Massachusetts Democrats over the timing of their presidential primary.

The matter has assumed all the proportions of a dry-run test of strength between a crippled President Carter and a disenchanted Bay State where Ted Kennedy is crown prince.

It was in 1975 that the Democratic-dominated Legislature decided to move the date of Massachusetts presidential primaries from late April to March 4, from well down in the pack of primaries to up near the head of the line.

The purpose was to increase Massachusetts' influence as an early bellwether in the presidential sweepstakes and in the process to steal some of the thunder and campaigning loot from neighboring New Hampshire with its always-first-in-the-nation primary.

There was also talk of a regional primary to consolidate New England's attitude into a composite picture, coming early enough in the season to dissipate the unreality of rock-ribbed conservative New Hampshire and get some liberal input to the scene. Only Connecticut and Vermont showed any interest.

As it turned out, Jimmy Carter in 1976 seized on the existing primary schedule to capitalize on the stretched-out primaries and caucuses, to outlast the pack and to go on to become President.

At the 1976 Democratic convention that nominated him, it was decided to name a commission to explore ways of shortening such a gruelling campaign race. One proposal was to compact the primaries into a tighter time frame, into a "window" from March 11 to June 11.

But such a foreshortening would close to others the long-march route Carter himself used to slog his way to victory. It would lessen the likelihood of any Carter challenger developing momentum in early primaries. It would water down the impact of another Massachusetts defeat for Carter (he came in fourth in 1976, just about his poorest performance).

The Democratic National Committee cannot dictate when any state will hold its primary, but the next best thing is its authority to refuse to seat 1980 convention delegates chosen at primaries that are "in non-compliance".

These "reforms" were adopted by the DNC last December at the Memphis mid-term convention, then ratified in January in Washington, over the objections of various Massachusetts national committeemen and women.

Soon the DNC zeroed in on the Massachusetts primary irreverence and lowered the boom. On July 26, it dispatched a letter declaring the Massachusetts delegate selection plan "in technical non-compliance".

The gauntlet was flung down. Massachusetts Democratic spines bristled. The issue quickly mushroomed into an eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation between the White House and its puppet, the DNC, and the Massachusetts Democratic party otherwise known as Kennedy Country.

In the circumstances, the White House figured it needed only to contact good buddy Tom McGee to get the date switched and the state into compliance.

But the astute House speaker, whatever his personal feelings, quickly realized he couldn't push his House colleagues through any hoop held by Jimmy Carter, so he demurred.

Time was running out, especially for State Committee Chairman Chet Atkins who doubles as Senate chairman of Ways and Means. Last week, on the eve of the five-week legislative break and after hearing from Kennedy, Atkins trotted out of his W&M a bill moving the primary to June 3.

That Wednesday night in the Senate when the bill was debated was something to behold. Talk about blue smoke and mirrors! Though "carrying" the measure, Atkins argued that no self-respecting Democrat should support it because the DNC was treating Massachusetts differently, holding us to the "window" but exempting others like N.H., Iowa and Minnesota.

There was great levity that night as senators proceeded to clobber the bill, 1 to 25. Still, on paper, the action represented the "provable positive step" the DNC rules demand for a state to try to comply.

Next move is for the state committee, by Aug. 31, to draft its carefully phrased reply to the DNC's July 26 non-compliance missive, then for the DNC's Compliance Review Committee to meet and respond.

Reports differ on how the CRC will react. Some claim the DNC will downplay the fuss and take the line that because other states have been exempted, Massachusetts will be too. Such a stance would take the heat out of a media-hyped confrontation with Kennedy on the latter's home turf.

One source warns the White House is keeping its powder dry awaiting an upturn in the President's popularity and a better chance to stick it to Massachusetts for good. One ploy, if Massachusetts won't budge is to move other states up to March 4 and so water down the Bay State primary.

Meanwhile Sen. Tsongas says he's thinking of running on March 4 ballots as a favorite son to hold Kennedy votes. "No," he said this week in an interview. "I haven't talked with Kennedy about this." (Sophisticated politicians don't need to "talk" about such matters; they know what to do instinctively.)

"I'll take another look around the first of October and decide what to do then," Tsongas said. "You know, the trouble with the Carter people is that they campaigned for the presidency as outsiders — and they're STILL outsiders. They never developed political friends out there all around the country."

Honest justice under a Bell

Commentary by Joseph Kraft

Griffin Bell, the courtly judge who has just stepped down as attorney general, brought to government the best the Carter administration has to offer. In running the Justice Department, he has been honest, humane and non-political with a vengeance.

By leaning over backwards to be non-political, however, Judge Bell left power in the hands of political activists lower down in the department. So his record charts the limits of morality in government, and provides an insight into the systematic weaknesses of the Carter administration.

The good-guy approach finds its chief virtue in appointments. Probably the outstanding achievement of Judge Bell's service as attorney general was the designation of a new director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

William Webster, the fellow judge whom Bell selected for the post, is an undoubted success. By reorganizing the bureau and writing rules of behavior into a proposed new statute, he has moved far away from the excesses associated with J. Edgar Hoover. But Judge Webster has managed the transition without any loss of professional expertise or morale. Witness the cracking by the FBI last year of a Soviet spy ring at the United Nations.

Probably the blackest chapter in the story of Judge Bell's tenure at Justice involved the maneuvers which led to the ouster of David Marston, the Republican holdover as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia. But that action was initiated by President Carter on behalf of a powerful Democratic congressman. The attorney general was just being a good soldier, not acting on his own bat.

When Judge Bell did act on his own, we worked religiously to undo the dirty reputation given to the Justice Department by the unabashed meddling of John Mitchell and Richard Kleindienst in the Nixon administration. He took a non-political stance across the board — and with similar results in every case.

A notable example in the criminal field was the prosecution of Smith Bagley, they Reynolds Tobacco heir, on charges of fraud. Mr. Bagley had been an early financial backer of the Carter campaign for the presidency. In order to avoid any suspicion of political interference, Judge Bell and the assistant attorney general, Philip Heymann, both kept their distances from the case.

The gung-ho professionals in the Criminal Division took over, and brought, with much applause from the press, a prosecution. It turned out to be an exceedingly weak case. The judge complained repeatedly about lack of evidence, and the 12 jurors eventually all voted for acquittal.

In the anti-trust field, the biggest thing going has been a case, instituted by the Johnson administration and carried forward by the Nixon and Ford administrations, against IBM. That unending case, involving millions of documents of a highly technical nature, has raised questions as to whether litigation is the right way to settle issues of industrial policy. Judge Bell clearly does not believe it is, and in his last days as attorney general, he said that if he had not disqualified himself from the IBM suit, he would have settled with the company.

But he did disqualify himself — on the not very material grounds that his Atlanta law firm had once represented IBM in an unrelated case. He left anti-trust matters in the hands of an eager assistant attorney, John Shenefield. Mr. Shenefield is prosecuting the case with a vengeance.

In the civil rights field, there has come most recently the case against Mayor Frank Rizzo of Philadelphia, and 19 members of the city's police department, on charges growing out of brutal treatment of minorities. The case cannot possibly be brought to trial for months. By that time there will have been elected one of three candidates in the Philadelphia mayoralty election. All are Rizzo opponents pledged to reform the police. In the interim what the case does is heighten race tensions and give Rizzo a highly emotional Philadelphia-against-the-feds defense.

But the case was dear to Assistant Attorney General Drew Days III and the activists in the Civil Rights Division. Judge Bell could not deny them without seeming to be against civil rights. So he signed the complaint.

What these three examples describe is the inner history of the whole Carter administration. The president and his men came to office determined to be good, but without any strategy for governing. In the absence of their own strategy they had to take the ready-made program of the activists who dominate the sub-cabinet posts in the administration. That program, in foreign and in domestic matters, is essentially the program the country repudiated when it voted against George McGovern in 1972. It is not surprising that it is proving unworkable now.

First aid tips wrong

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on an item that appeared in a recent issue of the Newton Graphic.

Under "First Aid Tips," four subjects were dealt with, two erroneously.

A youngster who swallows poison should indeed be rushed to hospital, but vomiting should not be induced, unless it is known what has been ingested. A caustic substance which can burn the esophagus on the way down can do the same damage a second time if vomiting is induced. The substance must be neutralized in the stomach before more harm is done.

A child who is choking should not be held head downward and on no account should attempts be made to dislodge the object with the fingers. This only serves to push it further down.

The Heimlich maneuver should be performed in all cases of choking. This is done by standing behind the victim, making a fist with one hand and placing it against the victim's abdomen, slightly above the navel. The fist should then be grasped with the other hand and quick upward thrusts should be repeated several times to dislodge the object.

In the case of a younger child or infant, the maneuver should be modified: the child should be placed on his back and the upward thrusts performed with the fingers of both hands instead of the fist.

Opposed to fence

To the Editor:

Your article, "Crystal Lake Fence Creates Stir," did not, I feel, fully express the concern of a large number of Newton residents for the preservation of the ever-diminishing atmosphere of nature and small-village life that we currently strive to maintain here.

Our attempt to prevent the construction of still another fence is of great concern not only to the immediate residents but is documented by the hundreds of signatures already present on the following petition:

"We the undersigned hereby express our strong opposition to the plans of the Crystal Lake condominium organization to construct a fence along Norwood Avenue where it fronts directly on Crystal Lake. Although we are aware that this land belongs to the owners of the condominiums, we are also aware that throughout the entire period since Norwood Avenue was built, this land has been open, affording residents of the area as well as the casual passerby an unobstructed view of a body of water that is a central feature to the neighborhood and as a great pond, a resource for the benefit and welfare of the general public.

"We call upon the appropriate Newton and Massachusetts authorities to prevent the construction of any structure that would further obstruct the view of Crystal Lake from Norwood Avenue."

Recycling

To the Editor:

"Newton Recycles" seems to be an empty slogan. Visitors to our city take note of the signs proclaiming our supposed support for this program. It does not, however, appear that our municipal government is really committed to this goal.

No one can dispute the fact that recycling saves. Why then is the Board of Aldermen unable to devise a program of incentives to increase participation in this worthy program?

If the city must cut back pickup schedules of recyclable items, it should set up several areas in the city where residents can make periodic deposits. City pickups from these designated areas on a regular basis would decrease any possible problem of vandalism.

Trucking our solid waste over 40 miles is a waste of energy. Let's support recycling by making more residents aware of the program and its advantages.

Little League

To the Editor:

Organized sports for young kids, especially Little League Baseball, have always been controversial. During the five years my children have been old enough to participate, I have had many doubts.

Good sportsmanship and the pressure on the individual player have been two of my greatest concerns. At times I have been tempted to pull them out but in the end have acquiesced, all the while paying careful attention to the particular situations they were in at the time.

During the last three months a situation has developed in the Newton Central Little League that should be brought to the attention of each and every Little League doubter. Under the superb coaching of Joe Doyle and Sherman Spritz, two young men who have shown tireless devotion and enthusiasm, an All-Star team has developed that won first place in the so-called "losers tournament."

Winning is by far the least important factor where this team is concerned. What these boys have gained by their association with these two men can never be measured by wins and losses. They played as a team, with individual successes and failures becoming those of the whole team.

These days when we worry so much about the outcome of our parenting, it is comforting to have our children have such fine examples to emulate. Let's hope that the board of the Newton Central Little League recognizes this and that more coaches of this caliber can be found in the future.

Thanks

To the Editor:

The following letter was received by Chief Edward B. Reilly, Jr., of the Newton Fire Department:

Dear Fire Chief Reilly:

I take this opportunity of extending the thanks and gratitude of our family to your men who responded to an emergency call which I initiated Tuesday evening, July 17, 1979.

Within minutes, and certainly within less time than it's taken me to write this letter, your department was at my father's house providing emergency medical aid. Equally important, their sympathetic and concerned attitude and obviously deep desire to be helpful was a comfort not only to the patient but to my father, my wife and myself who were there.

It is so reassuring to know that when in Newton we call for help, help is available — promptly.

street in Shenyang, Jeff and two others decided to see if it was possible for them to attract even more attention. So all three of them walked down the street backward.

"The looks that we got weren't any different than the ones we had gotten all along!" said Jeff. "We always felt like Martians."

Despite the lack of any sense of individuality and the stiff, militaristic manner of the natives, it was evident to the visitors that the Chinese are content with their lifestyle. One of the places that Jeff visited was Democracy Wall, where the natives go to learn about the various party candidates, since there are no newspapers. The posters are lined up according to the amount of power the candidates have in the government, explained Jeff, and this is how the people find out who is in and who is out.

"Mao is like a deity over there," said Frances. "The people are happy this way and they seem to accept the government without question. Everywhere we went there were huge posters of Mao, Lenin, Stalin, and Engels. Anything that goes wrong is blamed on the Gang of Four, which is a really a contradiction because they had only been following Mao's orders to the letter."

Jeff was especially impressed with the ballet that they had seen in Shenyang in which the dancers expressed a "different kind of joy, was free and unregimented," unlike the more formal style found in Chinese dance.

"They also haven't heard of psychiatry," he added. "I tried to explain it to one of the Chinese guides that we had and he couldn't understand the need for it such a thing. I got the impression that all of our problems and neuroses are strictly Western traits."

Frances agreed, and said, "They seem to exist on a kind of inner peace. They're very happy."

Newton's housing an asset—

the 1977 act, he said. Congress's rationale was that as houses age, they require more repairs and modernization. This criterion neglects to distinguish whether or not the older homes are owned by the rich or by those with low and moderate incomes.

While poverty under the new 1977 formula is considered, it is weighted at 30 percent. Age of the housing stock is weighted at 50 percent.

According to 1970 census data, the statistics used by the C.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) — the administrators of the program — 67.5 per built cent of Newton's houses were prior to 1939. Included in these were 3736 older homes in Chestnut Hill, 3737 in Newton Centre and all the large older homes on West Newton Hill and in Newton Corner.

Not only is age of housing considered under the new formula, but so is growth lag, which is weighted at 20 percent. While Newton does benefit somewhat from this factor, it essentially helps large Northern cities such as New York and Boston, according to Andrews.

Cities without a growth lag and with a newer housing stock can still use the formula developed for the 1974 program. This formula considers population weighted at 25 percent, poverty at 50 percent, and overcrowding at 25 percent. .

It must, however, be remembered that there is only so much funding available in the total program each year. Therefore by increasing the number of cities and towns which qualify for large chunks of funds, Congress has decreased what the large Sun Belt cities might have received with only the 1974 formula in operation.

It is a question of philosophy whether the funds should go to the Northern cities or to those ever-expanding Sun Belt areas' Andrews said. The 1977 formula does help cities on the decline, such as New York and Boston, he added.

Whether or not the government wants to continue helping the Northern cities will once again be decided when and if the community development program is renewed in 1980. Coming at about the same time will be the 1980 census, Andrews said. The census will probably show additional population declines in the North and increases in the Sun Belt.

While the act will probably be rewritten before the data is properly assimilated for use, said Juris G. Alksnitis of the city's community development group, Congress could ask for . some preliminary figures. The act will, however, probably be rewritten before there is sufficient census information available for the reapportionment of Congressional seats, he added. In other words, there will be the same number of Northern and Sun Belt Congressmen as there was when the 1977 act was written.

Whether or not Newton will fare as well in the 1980 community development act is still a question mark. If age of housing is once again considered, Newton will have even more houses over 30 years old than it did in the 1977 program.

Commercial activity opposed at Emerson

NEWTON — The Land Use Committee has recommended there be no commercial use for the Emerson School in Upper Falls.

The committee also recommended a density no higher than 4000 square feet of land area for each apartment to be built in the closed school.

That figure allows a maximum of 21 apartments in the old wing.

Both the Administration & Planning and Land Use Committees have recommended the new wing be used wholly for community activities, and the Public Facilities Committee last week approved $30,000 to change utilities and heat to serve only the new wing and pay the bills for making the new wing usable for the next year.

The next step is a determination by the aldermanic Finance Committee as to what the price should be for the old wing, and how much return to the city should be expected in coming years.

Church wants to buy Grove Street lots

By LINDA FRITZ
Graphic Correspondent

LOWER FALLS — The Planning & Development Board learned last week that St. Mary's Church in Lower Falls is interested in buying two lots on Grove Street from the Community Development Authority.

On the lots are two houses managed by the Community Development Authority and occupied by two families formerly living in another portion of the Lower Falls Redevelopment Area. These families are scheduled to move to the New Falls project on Washington Street when it is completed.

At that time the two houses will be razed. There are both in bad shape, according to Renewal Director Gerald Early.

According to the renewal plan, the lots should be used for public or semipublic use, said Planning Director Barry Canner, the sole member of the authority. A church use could be seen as fitting with this plan, he added.

But the Planning & Development Board and Canner want to know exactly what the church plans to do with the lots if it acquires them. The lots are in front of the church cemetery and next to the church itself.

In other matters Newton is applying with APT Corp. of Cambridge to Argon National Labs for a Department of Energy grant. The grant would be for $70,000 for studying ways to change city regulations to promote energy conservation.

APT, according to Canner, would receive 40 percent of the funds, while the city would receive 60 percent. The city, he added, would only have to do 40 percent of the work.

Open space guidelines adopted

NEWTON — The comprehensive plan's Open Space Goals and Policies section has been approved by a committee of aldermen and will be adopted by the full Board to serve as a guide to future decisions.

Goals are to preserve the city's natural resources, to ensure an adequate amount, variety and distribution of open space, and to integrate compatible recreation and conservation uses.

The policies to be followed in trying to attain the open-space goals call first for preservation of the city's natural environment — its rivers, ponds, wetlands, woods, and so on.

Next comes a policy of providing active and passive recreation at convenient distances from anyone's home, enough open space to fulfill the needs of residents on both a citywide and a village level, linkage of open space, and opportunities for "special needs" groups.

Finally, a policy was adopted to ensure that the treatment of open space is consistent with the other parts of the comprehensive plan (housing and land use) and provides "a balance between the acquisition of open space and the city's need for land to accommodate future housing and economic development."

The last policy includes sensitivity to the "regional significance" of Newton's open space and support of energy conservation.

The revised goals and policies have been approved by the Conservation Commission and the Planning & Development Board, which formulated the original goals and policies through a long series of public meetings.

The League of Women Voters, in a statement presented at a meeting of the Administration & Planning Committee Monday night, said the goals and policies "betray a distressingly developmental bias."

"We feel it is unwise to specifically plan for development of open space or depend on it for whatever development is needed," the LWV said.

Anita Capeless' newly elected president of the Newton League, commented that there should be more thought given to reuse and redevelopment, rather than counting on the relatively small amount of unbuilt-on land.

New assistant rabbi named at Temple Shalom

WEST NEWTON — Rabbi Jeffery M. Silberman has been named assistant rabbi at Temple Shalom, West Newton, where he will share the pulpit with the temple's senior spiritual leader, Rabbi Murray I. Rothman.

Rabbi Silberman is a recent graduate of Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati. He received a B.A. degree from the University of Dayton in 1973, and he is a native of Dayton, Ohio.

Silberman brings considerable pulpit experience from a term as student rabbi at Temple Beth Israel, Harlingen, Texas. He also has experience in religious education and Hebrew studies from several years as a teacher at several grade levels. At Temple Shalom, Rabbi Silberman will assume responsibility for religious school, Hebrew school and bar and bat mitzvah preparation.

Rabbi Jeffery Silberman

"I see coming to Temple Shalom as a marvelous opportunity to participate in a Jewish community near a center of contemporary Jewish life," Rabbi Silberman said. "All of the people I have met here so far have welcomed my wife and me warmly. I especially look forward to sharing with and learning from Rabbi Rothman."

Rabbi Silberman and his wife live in Newtonville.

Parking lot will replace church

As expected, the Board of Aldermen Monday night reconsidered denial of a permit for an 89-space parking lot on Washington Street, Lower Falls.

The Board approved the special permit 20-2, with Ald. Terry Morris and Rodney Barker opposed.

The parking lot is necessary to provide the required number of spaces for the Shipley complex nearby on Washington Street, which is being converted from an industrial property to an office complex.

The new parking lot will mean the demolition of the former "Greek Church," a little old-fashioned church building that Ald. Donald Budge said would be demolished whether or not the permit was granted.

Land Use Committee Chairman Morris explained that his previous vote against the parking lot, and his persuasion of the Board to go along with him in denial, had been not so much to save the church building as a "statement" against the whole process of urban renewal.

Development of the south side of Washington Street, where the church and the Shipley property are, will complete the Lower Falls urban renewal, which has been in process for more than 10 years.

Morris acknowledged that demolition of the Greek Church is probably in the best interest of the city — "but that's too bad. We largely had no choice."

Morris ruminated about the possibility available to the city for reclaiming the riverbank through urban renewal and said, "This (his negative vote again) is a statement for land use planning, for what might have been."

The Rev. John Balcom, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, receives a plaque in recognition of his service to Newton Rotary. Rev. Balcom is the immmediate past president. Presenting the plaque is the new president, Philip R. Holmes.

Newton police take 3 firsts

NEWTON — The Newton Police Defensive Weapons Team led by Sgt. Robert MacDougall and honorary captain Frederick D. Fraini, with Officers Clifford Chaisson and Donald Claflin, won three first-place trophies at the 47th annual New England Police Revolver League Competition held at North Attleboro.

The Newton team captured the award for a fourman team in the Practical Police Course with a score of 1425 out of 1500 rounds. Fraini took first place in rapid firing and in slow firing with identical scores of 280 out of 300 rounds.

Fraini has been a member of the Newton Police Academy Instructors for 25 years and maintains a high degree of proficiency as one of New England's outstanding instructors and competitors.

Sgt. MacDougall, Officers Chaisson and Claflin are also instructors for the Newton Police Department.

Officers from federal, state, county, municipal and private security forces were in the competition.

Bigelow enrollment

NEWTON — New pupils entering Bigelow Junior High School may register on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Aug. 29, 30 and 31, from 9 a.m. to noon and at other times by appointment.

The student, accompanied by his or her parent, should bring birth certificate, transfer card, health record and transcript from the previous school.

Illiteracy caused Benson to hide for last 36 years

SHADY POINT, Okla. (UPI) — D.B. Benson, a 22-year-old country boy with a third-grade education, had little trouble joining the old Army Air Corps in 1942, despite his inability to read or write.

But Benson says illiteracy — not considered rare among World War II soldiers — was the most important factor that caused him to hide for 36 years in the Kiamichi Mountains of eastern Oklahoma.

The ex-private, now 57, said he never returned to the Air Corps from a weekend pass because he believed he would be shot as a deserter. He said he only recently taught himself to read from discarded schoolbooks, "and I haven't done too good at that."

Benson walked out of the wooded mountains of southeast Oklahoma last week after surviving for more than three decades on edible plants, small game and occasional stores of food from a few select friends. He says he should have come out of the hills sooner and does not plan to return there to live.

The problem of illiteracy in the military may have changed since Benson's day, but a civilian specialist in armed force legal matters says lack of education remains the top cause of discipline problems, troops being declared Absent Without Leave and subsequent bad discharges.

David Addlestone, director of the Veterans Law Center in Washington, says more than 75 percent of Vietnam-era veterans with bad discharges did not have a high school diploma.

"In this day and age, it's a lot more difficult to survive without reading skills than when Benson enlisted," Addlestone said. "I'd say he has a pretty good chance for an upgraded discharge if he asks for it."

Benson says he left the Army Air Corps, then part of the Army but later transformed into the Air Force, because his sergeant at Amarillo Air Force Base in Texas told him to go home.

The sergeant arranged a weekend pass for Benson, gave him a pat on the back and told him to go home and wait for his discharge, Benson has told family members. He kept the pass as a memento of his war days.

But Benson couldn't read the pass — neither could most of his family living in the foothills of the Kiamichi Mountains — and he was not completely familiar with military rules. He never returned to Amarillo.

It was at least a year, Benson says, before he realized he had illegally left the Army Air Corps.

Whether or not there was a misunderstanding, Benson also says the unidentified sergeant told him he would be "used for cannon fodder" at the battle front because that's all men who couldn't read maps and charts were good for.

The ex-private's nephew, Will Stacy, who convinced Benson he would not be shot if he came in from the wildnerness, blames the Army Air Corps for accepting Benson.

"He should have never been allowed to enlist in the first place," Stacy said.

Stacy says he will help Benson ask for an upgraded discharge, making him eligible for veteran's benefits. Air Force officials gave Benson an "other than honorable" discharge last week in lieu of facing a court martial.

Stacy, who met Benson only 18 months ago, says he and his wife, Marva, have been battling military red tape for the entire time they have known the ex-private. Stacy says they plan to wait "a while" before seeking an upgraded discharge.

Addlestone said he was not surprised the Stacy family had numerous problems dealing with depths of the military bureaucracy. He said all three military branches gave "a hell of a lot" of bad discharges in the 1940s. World War II veterans could not get upgraded discharges, he said, due to a 15-year deadline but Congress this year suspended the statute of limitations.

For this year only, because of the congressional action, World War II veterans can obtain upgraded discharge papers.

"Most of the veterans from the '40s don't even know they can apply to have an upgrade," Addlestone said.

"For some reason, we've found kids from rural areas with the most per capita bad discharges," Addlestone said. He speculated that recruits from rural areas may have had problems with strict military discipline.

Other than his inability to read, Benson says he had no trouble in the Army Air Corps. He said most of his trouble was while he was on the run from the military.

He never married, never held a full-time job and allowed most of his relatives, who lived within a few miles of his mountain hideaways, to believe he was dead.

At a recent news conference, Benson indicated his newly acquired ability to read helped him decide to turn himself in.

"I just got studying about it (surrendering) and decided I would," he said. "I just did it on my own."

Share A Ride With A Friend

Nurse forms study group

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. (UPI) -- Five years ago one of nurse Vivian Meehan's young relatives came home from her first semester in college some 25 pounds lighter than when she left.

"I was horrified," Mrs. Meehan recalled. "She looked terribly skinny. Here was a girl who had been slightly overweight — she was about 124 pounds and 5 feet, 1 inch tall — and had said she wanted to diet a little. But now she was less than 100 pounds and all bony."

By the next vacation, three months later, the girl's weight had dropped to less than 90 pounds.

"She said the food wasn't really good, but I thought she was even trying to lose more," Mrs. Meehan said. "She looked like a concentration camp victim."

The college student was sent to a doctor, who diagnosed her affliction as anorexia nervosa — a mysterious disorder, considered by many to be an emotional problem, that causes its victims to virtually starve themselves and sometimes later go on eating-and-vomiting binges.

The usually sociable girl began spending most of her time alone. She started a vigorous bicycling regimen. And eventually she dropped out of college. She went to psychological therapy sessions for help, but continued her meager eating habits.

"She just wouldn't eat much — she rarely ate at the table," Mrs. Meehan said. "At her lowest she dropped to 70 pounds or so. But she still had energy. Once she admitted only eating half an apple a day."

The woman eventually got off her starvation vigil, but then started gorging herself and vomiting — a condition called bulimia.

"Combination locks had to be put on the refrigerator and cupboards so others in the family could have food," Mrs. Meehan said. "She would eat the equivalent of several persons — once she ate 10 pounds of hamburger in two and a half days."

The young woman is still afflicted with bulimia, though her weight has crept back up, Mrs. Meehan said. She is trying to conquer the disorder through a self-control regimen.

Mrs. Meehan said her family found the experience a bewildering, harrowing tragedy.

"The whole thing is so frustrating and perplexing for the families," Mrs. Meehan said. "The families of anoretics really don't know where to turn. Most of the counseling is done on a one-on-one basis with the anoretic and the psychologist. The family is just left out in the cold."

So Mrs. Meehan, a nursing superviser at Highland Park Hospital near Chicago, formed a resource support group — called Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders Inc. — to spread knowledge and promote research about the disorder.

Green plague over in England

LONDON (UPI) — Members of Parliament, basking on their broad terrace overlooking the Thames, fled indoors to the safety of the cocktail lounges as the green plague struck. All over East Anglia women flailed at the airborne invaders in what might be described as hand to hand fighting.

The manager of a frozen food factory in Lowestoft had to send his workers home. The opening ceremony for an oil rig in Great Yarmouth was disrupted as a greenish tinge began to cover everything in sight there as in many other places on a broad front.

This was the science fiction opening of an infestation of aphids that provided an irritating end to the month of July and gave British entemologists an inkling of what is possible when the enemy is an insect.

The aphid is harmless to humans, though it can be a considerable nuisance, but it takes only a little imagination to envision the disaster if it had been a more aggressive species.

As it happened, the plague had been detected in its earliest stages in late May by a team from the Cranfield Institute of Technology, using novel techniques of radar combined with electro-optics plus weather monitoring and field studies of insect population. They reported in the magazine New Scientist on what they said was "a rare phenomenon."

Taking advantage of favorable weather and the absence of the usual large numbers of its most dangerous predator, the ladybird, the aphids began producing a new generation every 8 to 12 days and in only eight weeks had reached the colossal number of 800 trillion — 200,000 times larger than the entire human population of the Earth.

Aphids weigh in at thousands to the ounce (gram) but the aggregate of its vast numbers led the Cranfield team to calculate the weight of the entire swarm at more than 200,000 tons and to suggest that the insects consumed approximately the same weight of sugar and amino acids from leaf fluids every day.

The effects on the harvest are yet to be determined.

"The public," they said, "has only become aware of this awesome phenomenon by the prodigious output of the winged form (of aphid) this year."

In the light winds that prevailed they estimated one trillion aphids — about 1000 tons — in the airspace at any one time.

Even clamming business has middle-man

By MARYANN JAROSZ

EAST GREENWICH, R.I. — Outside, the air is laced with the smell of salt water and seafood being prepared.

The water is choppy because of the high winds. Sailboats and yachts rock with the waves.

Motorboats pull up to the dock, and one or two men jump out to pull wheelbarrows over to the side of the boat.

And then the action begins.

Quickly, gunnysacks are heaved into carts and wheeled into Finn Enterprises by men half-clad in black diving suits and still smelling of ocean waters.

Once inside, the sacks are loaded onto an oversized shovel-shaped scale. They are loaded with quahogs.

(Pronounced "ko-hogs," it is an Indian, and commonly accepted Rhode Island, word for the hardshell, edible clams harvested from Narragansett Bay.)

"That's 61 on the necks," Andrew L. Gastrow calls out. Bruce Cooley jots down the number.

The quahoggers stand by waiting for their catch to be weighed and the payoff calculated. Meanwhile, Gastrow useds a large hose to wash off the clams and bag them.

"They (quahoggers) won't tell you how much they make. But many of them make as much as $100 a day," Cooley said.

Warren B. Finn Jr., owner of the $2.5 million a year business, orchestrates the operation like a maestro conducting a symphony.

He barks out all that is needed to fill the orders as they come in, then watches to make sure the 60-pound bags of clams and the larger quahogs are correctly loaded onto waiting trucks.

At times, water is still dripping from the bulging bags as they are carried out.

Finn has owned the business for 35 years. In all, Finn and his father have been shellfish wholesalers for 50 years.

His operation supplies shellfish to restaurants and markets throughout New England as well as to individual customers who walk in off the street.

The quahoggers are secretive about how much they earn and places they dive and rake for clams. But when it comes to talking about Finn, they can't seem to praise him enough.

"I've been here in the quahogging business for four years now and I've always done business with Finn," one man said, cautiously retaining his anonymity.

Weston's Dr. Fred Ward with one of his four cats

Doctor Fred Ward weathers the storm

By ELLEN POWERS
Staff Writer

WESTON—From fighting a television station and a foreign government to forecasting the weather and fathering six daughters, Weston resident Dr. Fred Ward Jr., has a penchant for predicaments.

Ward comes into our homes on the weekends when he forecasts the weather on Channel 7. He used to come into our homes every weeknight. The fact that he no longer does is the reason he has filed an age discrimination suit with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD).

The 49-year-old Ward charges that the station is trying to edge him out of the shows because he is too old according to the standards of the station's parent corporation, WRKO.

This is the second time Ward has filed against the company In 1975, he also charged age discrimination. Stu Siroka was being preened by the station as the new meteorologist, according to Ward. Ward was asked to resume the weeknight forecasting when Siroka was relieved and the suit became a moot one.

However, within the last year and a half, Ward says, Harvey Leonard has gradually been given Ward's nights and Ward has decided to fight age discrimination again.

"I'm insulted by their stupidity, I think it's unfair and it's partly because I'm ornery," Ward, sitting in his Concord Road kitchen, explains to The News-Tribune, as his feelings behind the suit. ! "I think they're gonna lose it in the end but it's going to take a long time. It could get very nasty too but I've got as thick a skin as anyone around and I think I can take it," he says.

Ward is not alone in his fight. Another Channel 7 employee, Ken Wayne who covered the State House for the show, has also filed an age discrimination suit with the MCAD. Wayne has recently been replaced on the air by a younger reporter.

Noting that many people in the television news racket will be facing the same kind of disposal methods, Ward says his co-workers are behind him but adds, "How far?"

"I think the others at the station would like to see this case won but they're not going to stick their necks out.

"Everyone calls me about this—I end up spending half my time as an age discrimination counselor," he says goodnaturedly.

Even though he has his hands in several pockets through consulting services and developing a new business in Bedford called Weather Service International, Ward makes a strong point for pursuing the case.

"When my connection with Channel 7 is severed, I have to say it that way because I don't know how this will work out, I can say there will be no other job on TV for me. If I didn't have my other job to turn to, I could end up on welfare," Ward says.

One of Ward's consulting jobs once had him a prisoner of the Venezuelan military government. Nesspaper headlines carried the government's allegationa that Ward was a C.I.A. agent.

"I was down there with another fellow for a Baltimore firm,. TCOM. We were supposed to check out an area where the company wanted to put up weather balloons under contract for the Venezuelan government. We were in a spot that could only be reached by boat or plane," says Ward, recalling the incident.

"We had a very young interpreter. A lack of communication with the government and no introductions to the people in the village made them suspicious. We were picked up and thrown into a military jail first, they charged, for being C.I.A. agents and when that fell through, for having tourist visas instead of work visas.

"We were transported to Caracas to another jail where friends finally got us out after a week," Ward saya. "We were treated well but I finally started tellin9 them that I was angry about being there because I had better things to do with ny time."

Ward recently retired from his job with the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory at Hanacom Air Force Base after 27 years. I$itially he moonlighted as a TV weatherman because, he says, "It's difficult to live on a government salary with six kids in Weston."

Although he was a poor student in high school, he managed to get a full scholarship to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He took up because it was the only program of study which did not require courses in mechanical drawing and chemical engineering.

Working for the government paid for further college education. Ward also has a M.S. and Ph.D. in meteorology from M.I.T.

"You shouldn't think in terms of being a meteorologist just because you're a weather nut'" he advises. "You should be concerned about getting a good education. If you're going into a professional field, you better be ready to train professionally and behave like a professional."

Ward and his wife, Lois, have been married 26 years come September. They moved to their large rambling redwood house, surrounded by five acres of evergreens and light brush, in 1957. They brought daughters Sally and Mary Beth with them and identical twins, Janet and Judy, arrived shortly afterward as did Caroline and Amy. All the girls went to Weston Public Schools.

"He fought our with all of teachers," says 21-year-old Janet as her father's blue eyes and television snile light up. Janet also confides that she does not watch her dad on TV. "I watch Channel 4, I like it better," she says.

A proud father, Ward says he pushes the girls to excel in school and go to college. When they were young, he says, they all did work around the house like helping him to build a carport, lugging chopped wood intO the house, and acting as plumber's assistants.

"Remember that time you wanted to fix the pipes and forgot to turn off the water first," says Janet, pointing her finger. "Five hours we were down there."

Ward takes the accusations smiling. "As an Irish father, I don't want to let any of them go," he says.

Dividing television personalities into two categories, those who enjoy going on TV and those who do not, Ward says he has never gone blank while standing in front of the camera.

"Weathermen ad lib everything, you know," he says. "The thing is to put on the map memory joggers so when you turn to the map it tells you what you want to say."

According to Ward, it takes an hour to prepare for a show. That includes making up a forecast, getting the maps ready, getting dressed up and then doing the show. He does not have to spend time in make-up because he does not wear it.

"I'm sure they would like me to," he says. "I'm sure they'd also like me to wear a hairpiece. But so far I've gotten away without them.

"It's an article of faith," Ward explains about the station's attitude toward older newscasters. . "They want to get the younger audience. They xant to attract females aged 18 to 35 and everything is aimed at them."

Ward says many people call him up when they do not like the forecast he has given' particularly shop owners in tourist towns who say business drops off if Ward predicts inclement weather.

He also says people want him to change the forecast when it is bad. "Basically people think that we make the weather. They really like to think that we can change it'" Ward says.

One woman, according to Ward, did think Ward has omnipotent control over the weather.

"She called me up because her daughter was getting married in three weeks and she wanted me to make sure the weather xould be good. I told her that wasn't really in my power but she insisted it was so I told her I would try.

"That Saturday came and it just happened to be a nice day. She called me back and thanked me," Ward says.

There have been many highs and many lows for "Dr. Fred," as the friendly character on the TV is called. When he weathers his latest predicament, the next front through town will bring him a new one.

Boston's 'Rose' is Ireland bound

By DOROTHY HINES
In Focus Editor

For Roslindale's Meg Sullivan, it will be "starting at the top," when she travels to Ireland for the first time on Aug. 25 as Boston's representative in the 21st annual "Rose of Tralee" contest.

By the top, as she explained it at a recent luncheon in her honor hosted by Boston's Irish Consul, Carmel Heaney, she meant that she will return to her ancestors' birthplace on an all expense paid trip with a $400 wardrobe to meet and mix with 30 other girls from around the world to vie for the "Rose" title.

During the Festival of Kerry, a week long celebration preceded by an international horse meet, the "Tralee Races," Margaret Mary, as she was christened, will participate in a round of receptions and balls, ride a float and appear in the pageant program.

"I couldn't be going to Ireland in a better way," she enthused.

Meg Sullivan will participate in the Festival of Kerry

Mrs. Heaney explained that, "the Irish people love festivals for the opportunity to commemorate their heritage and join together in celebration. Many of the towns, like Tralee, are small enough for the whole population to join in."

For the two weeks of the races and festival the local population swells from 16,000 to five times its size as people are drawn internationally.

And an integral part of the celebration is the naming of the festival queen—"Rose of Tralee" a name made famous by the ballad long favored by Irish tenors.

The contest was originally limited to Kerry girls, but has been open for the last 10 years to 18 to 24 year olds of Irish ancestry from around the world.

Last year's winner was from Philadelphia, Pa.

And like the lines from the ballad, "it's not beauty alone," but poise, personality, general character and academic background which will win some coleen the title.

The 22 year old Roslindale native, daughter of Paul and Mary Sullivan of 35 Navarre St., is a graduate of Westfield State College with a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice.

She, also, holds a certificate in paralegal studies from Bentley College, her father's alma mater.

Sullivan is an assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Boston.

Miss Sullivan has done volunteer work with pre-release prisoners, conducting inmate counseling, and is employed as a para-legal with the law firm of Jerril Krowen.

As a liason between clients and lawyers, she finds the "exposure is just great," and she's thinking about going to law school in the future.

Although Meg has always had an interest in her Irish heritage, she did not belong to an Irish social club at the time of the local contest. A friend of her family encouraged her to enter the West Roxbury preliminary and she emerged the winner.

Meg describes her contest participation as a "wonderful experience" with everyone supportive and wishing her the best.

Several friendships have come from the first event at which she drew 12th position and was the last to appear. While waiting she had the opportunity to make the acquaintance of the others.

Nine finalists from the Greater Boston area, sponsored by local Irish-American clubs, competed for the opportunity to be Boston's representative.

Eileen O'Sullivan of Arlington, former president of the St. Brendan Society, was in charge of the Boston contest and was pleased with the large participation.

A raffle and other fund raising activities provided the funds for the contest wardrobe and the air flight was contributed by Aer Lingus.

Since this will be the 21st anniversary of the pageant, each contestant has been requested to bring the flag of her area.

The Boston City Council presented Miss Sullivan with the city flag to take with her. It will fly with the 30 others from around the world.

Councilman Fred Langone, who arranged for the flag presentation, also gave Meg a Boston bean pot to present to Tralee officials.

She's now researching the history of "Boston Baked Beans," so she will be able to recount the story at the Irish festival.

THE READERS WRITE.. Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Dear Diane: How about some recipes for high protein, low calorie fish?
Mrs. S. W,, West Roxbury
Dear Mrs. W: Here are some of my favorite ways to prepare fish.

Broiled Fish with Deviled Cheese

Glamorize fish with a great topper.
2 pounds fish fillets
Butter, melted
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chili sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons prepared horseradish

Place fish on buttered broiler pan. Brush fillets with butter. Broil 8 to 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork. Combine remaining ingredients; mix well. Spoon on fish. Broil 2 to 4 minutes or until cheese begins to melt and browns lightly. 8 servings.

Halibut Parmesan

Lemon, yogurt and Parmesan provide the topping.
2 to 2½ pounds halibut steaks, cut 1-inch thick
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 carton (8 oz.) plain yogurt
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed tomato soup
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon salt

Place fish in a 3-quart shallow baking dish; set aside. Stir flour into ¼ cup yogurt. Stir in remaining yogurt, soup, cheese, lemon peel and salt. Heat mixture just to boiling over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Spoon soup mixture over fish. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven about 20 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, if desired. 6 servings.

Shrimp de Jonghe

Gourmet favorite gives an accent.
½ cup (1 stick) butter
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
3 tablespoons cornflake crumbs
2 tablespoons chopped chives
⅛ to ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
3½ cups cooked, cleaned and deveined shrimp (1½ lbs. frozen)
2 tablespoons sherry (optional)

Melt butter in skillet; stir in cheese, crumbs, chives and garlic powder. Add shrimp and sherry. Heat to serving temperature, stirring constantly. Serve with lemon wedges, if desired. 8 servings.

Seafood San Marco

Shrimp and scallops satisfy.
1 pound frozen cleaned and deveined shrimp, thawed, drained
1 pound frozen sea scallops, thawed, drained
⅓ cup butter
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme
2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
Hot cooked buttered rice

Combine shrimp, scallops, butter, lemon juice, and seasonings. Cook in a large skilled over medium heat 5 to 10 minutes, or until shrimp are pink and scallops are opaque, stirring constantly. Remove seafood from skillet; keep warm. Add a small amount of liquid from skillet to cornstarch, stirring until blended; return all to skillet. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 2 minutes. Add reserved seafood. Serve over rice. 8 servings.

KITCHEN CORNER

Not long ago anyone who wanted to cook authentic ethnic food needed to find the side street food stores that sold the ingredients. If supermarkets carried any of them, they usually were relegated to a small "gourmet" shelf.

Today Americans are buying 450 million pounds a year of that exotic Mid-Eastern specialty, yogurt. Pita bread, flour tortillas, fresh bean sprouts and canned green chilis are available nearly everywhere.

From supermarket sales to cooking schools to tableservice restaurants where Italian cooking ranks next to steak and seafood, ethnic eating and cooking are at the height of popularity.

Bamboo Beef Buns are second counsins to dim sum, the Chinese steamed dumplings that often contain chopped meat extended with finely chopped vegetables. In this recipe refrigerated big flaky biscuits replace the yeast dough that traditionally is used, and the buns are baked instead of steamed. In the same way that dim sum makes a quick and nutritious meal, Bamboo Beef Buns are a satisfying lunch of supper with soup or a salad.

Quick Peach Kuchen substitutes hot roll mix for the rich yeast dough in this German Coffee cake. Although the dough does not rise before baking in this recipe, the kuchen is tender and light, suitable to serve for dessert or with coffee, as well as for a special breakfast treat.

BAMBOO BEEF BUNS

10-oz. can Refrigerated Big Flaky Biscuits
½ lb. ground beef
6-oz. can bamboo shoots, drained, cut into ½-inch lengths
3 tablespoons sliced green onions with tops
¼ cup catsup
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon curry powder
Dash pepper
1 small tomato, chopped
1 egg, slightly beaten

In 10-inch skillet, brown ground beef; drain. Stir in bambo shoots, green onions, catsup, salt, curry powder and pepper. Simmer uncovered over medium heat for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat; let cool about 10 minutes.

Heat oven to 375°F. Separate dough into 10 discuits. On large ungreased cookie sheet, press out 5 biscuits to form 5-inch circles. On waxed paper, press out remaining 5 biscuits to form 5-inch circles. Stir tomato into beef mixture. Spoon about ½ cup of the beef mixture onto each biscuit on the cookie sheet. Top with remaining biscuits. Press edges with fork to seal. Brush with egg. Bake at 375°F. for 14 to 16 minutes or until light golden brown. Serve warm. 5 buns.

QUICK PEACH KUCHEN

1 pkg. Hot Roll Mix
½ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
29-oz. can peach slices, drained, reserving ¾ cup liquid
½ cup shortening
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
2 eggs

Topping
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
¼ cup chopped nuts

Heat oven to 350°F. Using solid shortening (not oil), generously grease 13x9-inch pan. In large bowl, combine about ½ of flour mixture, the yeast from hot roll mix, sugar, baking powder, salt, reserved peach liquid, shortening, extract and eggs. Blend at low speed until moistened; beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Stir in remaining flour from hot roll mix until batter is smooth, about 50 strokes. Spread evenly in prepared pan. Arrange peach slices in rows on top of batter, pressing in slightly.

In small bowl, combine brown sugar, flour and cinnamon; cut in margarine until crumbly. Stir in nuts. Sprinkle evenly over peaches. Bake at 350°F. for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm or cold. 12 servings.

HIGH ALTITUDE — Above 3500 Feet: No change.

TIP: Batter does not rise before baking.

Bamboo Beef Buns are second cousins to Dim Sum

Temple hold open house

BOSTON— Families and individuals who are considering temple affiliation this fall are invited to an open house at Temple Israel of Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 28, beginning at 7:30 p.m., sponsored by the membership committee. The temple is located near the Brookline line at the corner of Longwood Avenue and Plymouth Street.

Prospective members will have an opportunity to meet Temple Israel's senior rabbi, Bernard H. Mehlman, his associate, Rabbi Ronne Friedman, executive director Norman Fogel, religious school principal Lillian Beauvais, Cantor Murray E. Simon, librarian Elaine Wilton, and many other members of the staff.

Guided tours will be offered throughout the evening, and refreshments will be served.

Parents who are interested in the religious school or the Hebrew school for their children will have an opportunity to discuss the curriculum with Mrs. Beauvais that evening. Religious school starts Sunday, Sept. 9, and Hebrew school begins Tuesday, Sept. 11.

Maria E. Arcese, Joan-Leslie Mullane, Virginia M. Young, Marjorie Fulp, Laura A. Daunis, Janet K. Rawdon, Barbara Buck Wolf and Francine R. Vanora, the new members, are all Waban residents.

The Waban Woman's Club is a nonprofit community organization affiliated with the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Margot Lafferty, club president, encourages women interested in its educational, cultural and philanthropic activities to call Patricia Givens, membership chairman of 41 Wamesit Rd., for more information.

Hebrew school registration beginning at Temple Shalom

WEST NEWTON — The registration period has begun for the religious school and Hebrew studies program at Temple Shalom, West Newton, it was announced by Richard Morrison, chairman of the School Committee.

Registration will take place weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Temple office, 175 Temple St., West Newton.

The religious education program serves all present and new member families of the reform temple. Bar and Bat Mitzvah instruction is included in the program of Hebrew studies. Youngsters of kindergarten age and through grade three are introduced to Jewish life and the holidays with classes meeting on Saturday mornings. Older children attend with greater frequency, through a post-confirmation program if desired.

The varied program of instruction is augmented by an educational and social program that is stimulating and entertaining, and familiarizes children with the temple as a pleasant place to meet friends for worthwhile activity.

The educational program at Temple Shalom is under the direction of Assistant Rabbi Jeffery M. Silberman, who has prepared an outline of it.

A copy may be obtained at the school office, 969-3518. Rabbi Silberman will also be pleased to meet with any parent concerning the program and his children's needs. Call for an appointment.

Shalom Couples Club reveals fall program

WEST NEWTON—The Couples Club of Temple Shalom has announced a full program of events for this fall. Continuing events include discussion groups, disco lessons, and the annual Couples Club Sabbath on Nov. 30.

Special events will be a Fiesta Italiane social on Oct. 27, a Foliage Walk in October, and a "Hanukkah in Chelm" party Dec. 22. The Winter Breakaway Weekend will be at the Seacrest in January.

The Couples Club is open to any member of Temple Shalom. Couples not in the Temple family are also invited. Dues are $10 per couple.

For further information call Barbara and Harry Rosen, co-presidents, at 739-1438 or membership co-chairmen Lori and Scott Shepard at 891-0283.

New library phone help locate books

NEWTON CORNER — To facilitate access to library information, the Newton Free Library has installed four red, in-house telephones at the Main Library, giving direct contact from their locations in the stack areas to the reference desk.

Even though in certain areas there may be no librarian on duty, a patron may find information on how to find materials by picking up the red house phone and talking to a member of the reference staff.

The red phones are located in the third-floor stacks, second-floor stacks and in the 800 (literature) stacks. They are for the use of all patrons. For example, if a library user is in the history and travel section of the stacks and cannot locate a particular book, the patron can use the red phone for assistance. A reference librarian will provide the information either by phone or by physically coming to the patron's assistance.

Whenever you are in the library, be sure to try the Newton Free Library's newest efforts to respond to patrons' needs.

Golf lessons to resume

Golf lessons under the direction of Dan Meany are resuming at the Newton Community Center 429 Cherry Street in early October. Classes will be held on either Wednesday and Friday evenings depending upon the personal preference of participants. Each session runs for one hour and is scheduled for 6, 7, 8, or 9 p.m. each evening. Classes are limited to 6 per class.

Meany's course consists of seven one-hour lessons which cover stance, the driver, fairway woods, long irons, middle irons, short irons, chipping and putting.

All teaching equipment is supplied, although pupils may use their own clubs if they wish. Sneakers or some other type comfortable footwear should be worn.

In that classes are small, a great deal of individual attention is provided which makes the program attractive to the advanced, intermediate, or beginning golfer.

For additional information or to register, contact the Centers at 969-5906 during the week from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The series of seven lessons are scheduled to commence on Wednesday and Friday evenings, October 10th and 12th respectively.

Rate hike tightens money

By DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve, seeking to curb inflation, is tightening money and credit another notch.

Thursday it raised the discount rate — the interest it charges on loans to its member banks — from 10 percent to an all-time record 10.5 percent effective today.

It was the second such rise this year, and it prompted immediate controversy.

Rudy Oswald, an AFL-CIO economist, said in an interview the move will aggravate the current recession by raising interest rates generally, making it more expensive to get a mortgage and for business to borrow money to finance production.

Higher interest rates, Oswald argued, may well add to the inflationary spiral, instead of decreasing it.

Since early 1978, he noted, the discount rate already has been raised from 6.5 percent to 10 percent.

"During that period," Oswald said, "inflation didn't go down at all. It accelerated."

But David M. Jones, an economist with the New York firm of Aubrey G. Lanston Co., favors the move.

"In view of the excessive money growth, high inflation and the continuing weakness of the dollar, the board's action is entirely appropriate," he said.

The Treasury called the action "understandable."

Coach's Son Elects To Play for Rival

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Elway, one of the best high school quarterbacks in the nation last year, is taking his talents to Stanford University this fall.

And Jack Elway, father of the quarterback and the newly-appointed head football coach at San Jose State University, is a proud but troubled man these days.

"San Jose State has given me $5,000 to find a quarterback," the elder Elway said, "and every morning I sit across the breakfast table from the quarterback who's going to beat me for the next four years."

Jack Elway knows he created his own monster.

Since John was a toddler, Jack would take him along to football games. He taught his son to throw a football and encouraged him to become a quarterback.

John took the cue and soared to enormous heights.

As a junior at Granada Hills, Calif., High School, Elway passed for 3,039 yards. He missed five games as a senior and passed for 1,837 yards. In those two years he completed 422 of 723 pass attempts. He was named an All-America in three different polls and was named Southern California Athlete of the Year.

Last Saturday night, in the Southern California High School All-Star Game, Elway fired four touchdown passes and completed 23 of 37 pass attempts to break the record set by Vince Ferragamo, now of the Los Angeles Rams. Elway's 363 yards passing was one short of Ferragamo's record for the game.

The reason he missed five games as a senior is a story in itself. Elway injured his right knee playing varsity basketball and reinjured it playing baseball, which many scouts said is his best sport. He batted .551 and .491 in his last two high school seasons, was named Los Angeles Player of the Year and drafted in the 18th round by the Kansas City Royals.

But the 19-year-old Elway, who said he hopes to be drafted by both the NFL and major league baseball when he graduates from Stanford, made up his mind to play college football and has set lofty goals for his Stanford career.

"I'm not planning on being the starter immediately," he said, "but I'd like to start halfway through this season. If I don't get the job my first year, I definitely will be the starter next season."

Elway, who received scholarship offers from countless schools, considered San Jose State, but only because his father was the coach. Long ago he decided the Pacific-10 Conference was to be his showground, and his father's unintended influence did not change his decision.

"It was a hard decision," he said. "There would be a lot of problems playing for my Dad but also a lot of high points.

"I just decided I wanted to play in the Pac-10. I had considered USC and Washington, but the offense Stanford utilizes and the education it offers made the difference.

Stanford's second regular season game this year is against San Jose State. The younger Elway may not be a factor that early in his college career. But Elway the coach knows that someday he will have to attempt to stop Elway the quarterback.

"We're both tough competitors," he said.

Maine hires St. Clair to fight Indian land claims

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — The Maine attorney general's office has hired former President Nixon's Watergate attorney, James St. Clair, to defend the state against a 12.5-million-acre Indian land claim suit in the event the case goes to trial.

The announcement, made Wednesday by Attorney General Richard S. Cohen, immediately hightened concern that the state and the two Indian tribes may be unable to reach an out-of-court settlement.

Before leaving office, former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell said if the Maine case ever went to trial, it would be the most complicated and drawn-out legal matter ever litigated in the United States and could take up to 20 years to resolve.

The case has already clouded land titles across much of the state and legal experts have said a trial could jeopardize all real estate transactions in the disputed area.

A trial could also pit St. Clair against Archibald Cox, the former special Watergate prosecutor before being dismissed in the 1973 "Saturday Night Massacre," who is now co-counsel for the Indians.

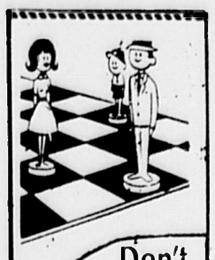

The Penobscot and Passamaquoddy tribes filed suit in federal court in 1974, claiming 12.5 million acres — roughly the northern two-thirds of Maine — were taken from them without congressional approval in violation of federal law more than 150 years ago.

A proposed out-of-court agreement drawn up by former Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, was tentatively accepted by negotiators last fall. It called for a settlement of $62 million to be paid the Indians from the federal government, but tribal representatives recently asked to have the settlement increased to as much as $86 million.

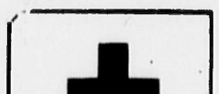

Cohen announced Wednesday he hired St. Clair — with Gov. Joseph E. Brennan's approval — because of his experience in Indian law.

Can you spare time to be a Big Brother?

BOSTON — Young children are affected by the lives of their parents when in cases of death, divorce, or infirmity they are deprived of a complete parent-child relationship. A little bit of your time can make a difference in the life of a child who is in need of a friend to talk to and confide in, and to share the many experiences of a healthy childhood.

Robert Riemer of West Newton realized this 11 years ago and contacted the Jewish Big Brother-Sister Association of Boston (JBB-SA).

Riemer is a native of Newton and now lives in West Newton with Stepheny, his wife of 11 years; and their two children, Mara, 9, and Adam, 7.

Riemer received his B.S. in business administration from Babson College, Wellesley, and for the past six years has been president of Pickwick Associates, a finance company in Burlington. He also occasionally teaches woodworking for the Newton Community Schools program. In his spare time, Riemer coaches in the Newton Girls Soccer League. Over the years, Riemer has been a very active member of the JBB-SA and presently serves as vice president and publicity chairman.

He finds the relationship with his Little Brother, which began in May, 1978, to be a rewarding experience.

"We really get along and enjoy each other's company a lot. In the time I have known my Little Brother, he has become more self-confident and has more self-esteem, and can physically handle himself better.

"It is really gratifying to be able to help him like this."

Riemer like all the Big Brothers and Big Sisters visits his Little Brother on the average of twice a month when they go to Red Sox and Bruins games, bowling, swimming and to the movies. At other times, they spend an afternoon at the Newton Centre Playground or go back to Riemer's house and throw the baseball around in the backyard.

"This summer, my Little Brother went to camp for four weeks and had a great time. Now he makes friends much easier and is happier more often."

The JBB-SA is looking for more people like Riemer who want to enrich their lives by offering love and friendship to a child.

If you want to be a Big Brother or a Big Sister, or if you want your child to benefit from the JBB-SA program, give the agency a call at 367-5818 or 5819. The JBB-SA, constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, is located at 31 New Chardon St., Boston.

Advanced first aid course begins Sept. 4

NEWTON — The Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, will be offering an Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care Course on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. The course will begin on Sept. 4 and end on Nov. 1, thereby fulfilling the deadline for National Ski Patrol.

The class will meet at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, and there will be a $4 charge for books and materials, which the students may keep.

The instructors for this course will be Myron Michals and Sandra Fitch. Michals is a member of National Ski Patrol at Pleasant Mountain, Maine; and Ms. Fitch, who is also a Red Cross CPR Module and Basic First Aid instructor, is a member of National Ski Patrol at Mount Abram, Maine.

The Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care Course is designed for use by persons who are responsible for giving emergency care to the sick and injured. Although the primary candidates are usually National Ski Patrolers, firefighters and policemen, others who are interested in first aid are also eligible. The only prerequisite is to be over 15 years of age.

The teaching methods used are lecture, demonstration, and skill practice sessions.

For more information and registration, please call the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, at 527-6000.

Cat show this weekend

The largest cat show ever to be held in New England will take place in the Grand Ballroom of the Copley Plaza Hotel on Saturday and Sunday. Over 350 purebred and domestic cats will be on public display this weekend from 10 a.m to 5 p.m. each day.

Highlighting the show will be the presentation Saturday of the Morris trophy for the best household pet. The trophy, donated by a national cat food company, is named after the well-known "finicky" cat who passed away last year at the age of 17 after more than a decade of stardom promoting cat food on national TV, radio, and magazines.

An additional feature of the show will be the appearance for the first time in the New England area of the recently developed "feral hybrid" cats, a cross between larger SOuth American cats of the wild and domestic American shorthairs.

In addition to the feral cats the public will be able to view throughout the show four simultaneous rings featuring continuous professional judging of over 30 different breeds of purebred cats as well as a large class of household pets. These cats, coming from as far as 1,500 miles away, will be competing for local, regional and national honors.

The event is being sponsored by Cats—Plain & Fancy, a local club of cat fanciers dedicated to feline welfare. Throughout the year the club holds open lectures about cat care, and, through show proceeds, supports local charitable organizations interested in the welfare of cats. Among the groups benefiting from the show are the Massachusetts SPCA (Angell Memorial Hospital), the Animal Rescue League, and the new Tufts University School of Veterinary Medicine, where the club established a scholarship last year.

Admission to the show: $2.50 for adults; $1.25,, under 12 and over 65. Information pamphlets regarding cat and kitten care will be available at the show; visitors can also chOose among a extraordinary variety of cat products from a number of sales booths. Hourly door prizes and a free catnip mouse to the first 100 visitors each day are additional attractions.

WR Theatre auditions planned

The West Roxbury Community Theatre will hold auditions for its fall play, "Bell, Book and Candle," by John Van Druten, on Tuesday, Sept. 4, and Thursday, Sept. 6, at 7 p.m. in the West Roxbury High School Auditorium, 1205 V.F.W. Parkway, West Roxbury, under the direction of Marge White.

The cast of characters include Gillian Holroyd, the lovely temptress witch who uses her powers with subtle finesse (age between 25-35); Shepherd Henderson, the innocent publisher who become romantically involved with Gillian and is a disbeliever in witchcraft (35-45); Miss Holroyd, also know as Miss Queenie, is the flighty and funny family member who blunders her way through witchcraft (40-50); Nicky Holroyd, Gillian's mischievious younger brother who is always trying to capitalize on being a warlOck in an entertaining and devious way (20-25); and Sidney Redlitch is the eccentric author of books dealing with witchcraft who becomes involved with the Holroyd family (40-50).

The dates for the fall production of "Bell, Book and Candle" are Nov. 1, 2, 8, 9 and 10 at West Roxbury High School.

This play will be directed and produced by Marge White, past president of the Dedham Public Theatre and producer-director of "Butterflies are Free," "Plaza Suite," "Don't Drink the Water" and Who Dunnit?." Everyone is welcome to come and audition or be a part of this funny three-act play of witchery and love.

Past productions of the West Roxbury Community Theatre include "Absolutely Murder," "Wisdom of Eve," "Forty Carats" and "Little Moon of Alban." The group's first entry in the New England Theatre Conference competition held in May at Brandeis was "Riders to the Sea."

A program of one-act plays, "Yes Dear" by Warren Graves and "Actors" by Conrad Bromberg, will be presented at the West Roxbury High School on Friday, Sept. 21, and Friday, Sept. 28. Tickets will be available at the door. Call 323-2688 for further information.

Green Thumb

By George Abraham

African Violet woes: Here are some problems reported to us concerning America's No. 1. house plant, the African violet. (1) Scorching and yellowing of leaf edges. Due to tOo much direct sun in summer. Filter the light with a curtain or move the plants to a less bright spot. (2) Yellowing of entire foliage. Due to lack of humidity, excess fertilizer or overwatering. Clay pots will build up salts. Knock the soil ball out of pot and drench it a few seconds under a faucet. Repot in fresh soil mixture. Feed plants less often—about half the amount stated on the label. Grow plants on a tray of pebbles or perlite, with a little water in the bottom. (3) Spots, colored markings, yellowed leaves are all signs of unwatering. Remove damaged foliage and pour water over the entire soil surface slowly until excess water drains out of holes in the bottom. Allow soil surface to dry before another thorough.

Centipedes, etc.: We've been asked to comment on two pests that are found in basements of our homes' centipedes and millipeds. The "thousand-legged worms" are called millipedes, easily identified by their many legs. They are about 1 to 1 and a-half inches long, have a rounded edge, and are slow moving. These can build up in potted plants, feeding on plant parts. More frequently, they feed on decaying Organic matter. They can be a nuisance in large numbers. No, they do not bite.

The other pest, Centipede or "Hundred-legged worm" also has many legs, being flat, brownish and very fasting moving. They are about a quarter to two inches long. These animals are not plant pests, but do feed on many insects and insect relatives, thus are beneficial. However, the larger ones often bite when disturbed. It's not poisonous, but the string can be painful. Control: Use a vacuum sweeper in the area you see them. If in potted plants, remove them carefully and toss them outside where they can continue to be useful in nature's scheme of things.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Please tell me what causes the brown, leathery rOt on the bottom of our tomatoes. Is something lacking in soil?"

Ans. That brown, leathery rot is called blossom rot, and is not a disease, but a physiological problem caused by dry weather. Fungi (not the cause of the problem) may enter and cause further rotting. Control: Keep the plants watered and mulched with straw or other suitable material. Staked tomatoes get it worse than unstaked ones, so be sure to mulch and stake vines if end rot is a constant problem. Some varieties are more susceptible than others. Rutgers and Marglobe are resistant to blossom end rot.

STARDUST

by Steve K. Walz

Ann-Margret

Star Trends—Glamorous entertainer Ann-Margret, who has wowed movie-going audiences with such feature films as 'The Villain' and 'Magic' and has received accolades for her Las Vegas performances, returns to TV later this year in ABC's 'Hollywood Movie Girls,' a musical-variety special showcasing Ann's vast talents.

Star-Lets—Perky TV star Valerie Bertinelli has just finished making a tele-flick for CBS entitled, 'A Girl and a Boy: The First Time,' in which she and Timothy Hutton star as teenagers of disparate backgrounds who experience their first romance. Val portrays a girl who comes from a permissive California background, while Hutton plays a boy who comes from a conservative midwestern family. Timothy is the son of the late actor James 'Ellery Queen' Hutton. The program is scheduled for airing later this year.

Valerie Bertinelli

Polly Holliday

Star Blurb—Jean Simmons and Glenn Ford headline in NBC's 'Beggarman Thief' miniseries, the sequel to 'Rich Man, Poor Man.' Tovah Feldshuh, Jean Pierre Aumont, Susan Strasberg and Andrew Stevens co-star in the Universal Production which is scheduled for an early October screening . . . CBS is readying a spinoff series for 'Alice' star Polly Holliday, aptly titled 'Flo,' for a mid-season airing.

Future Star—Believe it or not, Vanessa Redgrave has won the lead role in Arthur Miller's 'Playing For Time,' a three-hour tele-drama for CBS. The hot-headed British actress, who has won an Academy Award for her work in 'Julia,' the story of a European Jew during the Nazi era, returns to portray Fania Fenelon, who was a member of a unique orchestra comprised of inmates in Auschwitz during WW II. The orchestra members performed in the midst of concentration camp horrors, death and human degradation, thereby providing for the world a compelling testimony to survival and life. One wonders whether the gifted thespian will once again use the tube as a political forum for her radical views on the mid-east if she cops an Emmy for the film, which is almost a cinch to be a masterpiece.

Vanessa Redgrave in a scene from 'Camelot' with Richard Burton.

David Soul

Star Extra—'Starsky and Hutch' star David Soul didn't waste any time in pursuing other roles once his popular ABC show was axed this spring. He's currently lensing the controversial CBS miniseries, 'Salem's Lot' with James Mason. Soul stars as a novelist who returns to his small town, drawn by the memory of an old house which he believes is the embodiment of pure evil.

Communications technician Robert Gray updates information in the data base of AT&T's new No. 4 Electronic Switching System (ESS), now serving telephone users in Newton. Installed at the Cambridge central office, the No. 4 ESS incorporates computer technology to process long distance calls with greater speed and efficiency that its electromechanical predecessors. It can handle 150 calls a second.

Newton telephones join 'Super Switcher' network

NEWTONVILLE — A new "Super Switcher", capable of routing huge volumes of long distance calls at velocities approaching the speed of light, is now serving telephone users in the Newton area as well as throughout eastern and central Massachusetts.

The new equipment, which recently went into service, also has the potential for providing a variety of new communications services.

Known as the Number 4 Electronic Switching System, the equipment is located at 250 Bent St., Cambridge. Owned by AT&T Long Lines, the Bell System unit for interstate and international communications, it is the first such system to be installed in Massachusetts.

Plans call for another in Springfield in 1980. Together, they will handle most of Massachusetts' interstate long distance calling.

The 4ESS has been nicknamed the "Super Switcher" because of its incredible speed. It can connect 150 calls every second, about 550,000 an hour, which is four times the capacity of the most advanced long distance switching equipment previously in use.

One of the largest and most complex projects ever undertaken by private industry, the Bell System's development of the equipment, at a cost of $400 million, is a step toward the telephone network of tomorrow. A total of 115 such systems are to be installed nationwide by 1985.

The "Super Switcher" will be an integral part of a computer-based, programmable telecommunications network. It will help usher in a new era in communications, where customers in homes and offices will access communications services unheard of a decade ago.

By the mid-1980's, special services for residential customers may include the ability to program certain numbers to produce a distinctive ring on telephone calls, identifying them as priority calls. Telephones also could be "instructed" to accept certain collect calls without the help of an operator. Other planned features include automatic re-dialing of long distance calls when numbers are busy and a "do-not disturb" feature that would automatically record and store calls during certain periods.

Ultimately, the network could pave the way for home communications centers, where customers could work, study, shop, vote, and be entertained. Many new services could be provided by linking telephone service with a television set.

For businesses, the all-electronic network will be the key to providing the "office of the future," where voice, data, and video communications are by a single communications system.

In addition to helping the Bell System hold down future long distance rates, the system also is an energy saver. When operating at full capacity, Super Switchers, compared to its electromechanical predecessors, will save enough energy annually to supply the electrical needs of 2,000 average homes for a year.

It also requires only one-fifth the space and one-third the maintenance cost of older machines handling the same volume of calls.

The new switching system was designed by Bell Laboratories and manufactured by Western Electric. It is one of a family of electronic switching systems designed to handle both local and long distance calls.

Real estate course to be given here

AUBURNDALE — The Massachusetts Association of Realtors is offering a six-week real estate license exam preparatory course Sept. 10-October 18.

Classes for the 30-hour course are held Monday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 10 p.m., at the Holiday Inn, Newton. According to Course Dean John R. McGrath of Boston, the course covers material for both the real estate salesman and brokers examination. It includes intensive review of laws, rules, and regulations on real estate in Massachusetts, as well as mathematics, terminology, transaction and instrument preparation.

There is a fee for the course. For advance registration or further information, contact the association office in Boston, at 261-3800.

Congratulations are extended to Jeffrey Sandborg of Newton (right) for having completed five years of service in the Windjammer Lounge of the Marriott by Colin Nadeau (left), Marriott general manager.

25 finish 10-week CETA schooling

NEWTON — Twenty-five students received certificates of achievement this month at the successful completion of their 10-week training program of full-time study for the General Educational Development examination at Newton Area CETA's Learning Center at 320 Needham St.

The GED is a nationally recognized test enabling people who did not finish high school to earn a certificate demonstrating knowledge of high school level subjects. It is considered the equivalent of a high school diploma by colleges and employers.

Sixteen students attained the GED certificate; the remaining nine were awarded certificates in mathematics, reading and writing skills and GED preparation.

Newton residents receiving certificates were Shirley MacLellan, Mary Crowder and Seymour Beckford.

The GED and other CETA programs are designed to meet the needs of the adult returning to the classroom. Courses are separated by subject matter and levels of ability and include periods of supervised, independent study.

This combination enables students to learn with others who are at their educational level while at the same time strengthening their weaker areas, a formula which has proved successful with mature learners. A full-time counselor is on hand to help with such problems as day care and transportation, problems which often prevent returning to school.

Anyone who thinks he may be CETA-eligible and is interested in the GED or other programs on either a fullor part-time basis may apply at any of the three Newton Area CETA locations: 320 Needham St., Newton; 681 Main St. Waltham; 276 Washington St., Brookline.

William H. Maurhoff was recently elected senior vice president of the Mutual Bank for Savings of Newton. He will be primarily involved in lending. William Schwartz

Joins board

NEW YORK CITY — William Schwartz, professor of law at Boston University, a financial advisor, and the author of 18 books on estate planning, trial law, and other subjects has been elected to the board of directors of The Sperry and Hutchinson Company.

Schwartz, of Newton Centre, has been professor of law at Boston University since 1955. He graduated from that university's school of law as a doctor of law magna cum laude and first in his class. He also holds a master of arts degree from the same university.

Schwartz has been a faculty member of the Frances Glessner Lee Institute at the Harvard Medical School and presently serves on the faculty of the National College of Probate Judges.

Elder Services has extra grant money

WEST NEWTON — West Suburban Elder Services, Inc. (WSES), the area agency on aging, home care and nutrition serving Belmont, Brookline, Needham, Newton, Waltham, Watertown, Wellesley and Weston is pleased to be able to make available $52,800 to organizations and programs whose purpose is to help older persons to remain in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.

The grant money comes from the federal government (Title III-B of the revised Older Americans Act), to the State Department of Elder Affairs to WSES. The supplemental money was just received by WSES and must be awarded by Sept. 15.

The grant money can be utilized in a variety of ways. For instance, WSES through this funding source has over the past two years been able to work with community-based agencies to provide such services as legal assistance, friendly visitors, outreach, employment programs, counseling, health and nutrition education and medical screening, day care, transportation and special services for deaf elders and those elders confined to institutions and more. During this year alone, WSES has over $300,000 in grants in the community working for area elders.

Since time is of the essence in developing a program, call Dan O'Leary at WSES at 332-2133 immediately. He will be able to explain in more detail the application procedures and the specific guidelines of the grant program.

Quality of Life program gets $16,500 grant

NEWTON — Congressman Robert F. Drinan has announced that the Massachusetts Quality of Working Life Center Inc. has been awarded a $16,500 grant from the U.S. Office of Personnel Management for continuation of a joint union project with the City of Newton.

Paul Joseph, assistant chief of intergovernmental personnel, explained that the program is designed to defuse potential labor grievances by establishing labor-management committees to resolve problems affecting the quality of working life.

"What makes this program so unusual," said Joseph, "is that the three unions involved are providing part of the funding." He explained that the government provides $16,500, the City of Newton furnishes an equal amount, and the unions share the remaining costs. ES

N-W nursing programs resume in September

NEWTON— The Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing has announced its fall schedule of continuing education programs. They are: Sept. 12 — Crisis Intervention; Sept. 19 — Nursing Management of the Patient with Diabetes Mellitus; Sept. 26 — Antineoplastics: Drugs and the Oncology Client; Oct. 3 and 10 — Coronary Care of the Non-CCU Client; Oct. 17 — Pain: Recognition and Management; Oct. 24 — Nursing Process and the Client Who is Taking Psychotropic Medications.

The workshops are held at the School of Nursing in the Administration Building classroom from 7 to 10 p.m. with registration from 6 to 7 p.m. Fee for the workshops is $10 per session.

For registration information, please contact Dotty Kehoe at 964-2800, ext. 342.

Job Bank set for fall work

NEWTON — As summer ends, students are beginning to focus on the need for fall and winter employment opportunities and homeowners on how much work needs to be done.

If your cellar needs cleaning, your lawn needs raking, windows need washing or pets need to be cared for on a final vacation weekend, call the Newton Job Bank.

There are students available for these tasks, as well as interior and exterior painting and other big jobs, at all times of the day.

Try Job Bank for babysitters, too.

Job Bank is sponsored by the City of Newton and located at 429 Cherry St., West Newton. Call 969-5906.

Arts Center fall-term courses start Sept. 24

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Arts Center announces its schedule of courses for the Fall. Fall term begins Sept. 24 and classes run for 10 weeks. Classes will be offered in dance, visual arts, pottery, art appreciation and theater.

Open house is Sunday, Sept. 16, 1-4 p.m. The public is invited to come and register for classes, meet the faculty and view class demonstrations.

For a free brochure call the Arts Center at 964-3424. The Arts Center is located one block east of the Newtonville branch library off Walnut Street at 61 Washington Park.

The Newton Arts Center will be offering an expanded program in the visual arts this Fall. The program will include classes in calligraphy, drawing, painting, portraiture, silk screening, stained glass, photography and more.

The Arts Center's fall dance schedule offers a broad range of classes in ballet, jazz, modern, and creative movement,with specialized classes in dance history and an improvisation-composition performance workshop. Classes are offered in the day and evening Monday-Saturday beginning Sept. 24.

'Diners Club' perks up meals in hospital

LOWER FALLS — It may not be the Ritz, but from 5 to 6 p.m. several days a month the patients on 4-West at Newton— Wellesley Hospital enjoy their evening meal in an attractive dining room complete with tablecloths, flowers, wine, and soft music.

Thanks to the employees of Sun Life of Canada, the 4-West "Diners Club" can now eat in style with a new table and a new FM radio. Sun Life's employee organization, the Aurora Club, recently sold 700 carnations during two Flower Days, with all profits going to the NWH Diners Club.

Dick Mieli, R.N., nursing supervisor at NWH, explains that the project is designed to provide patients, especially those facing long-term confinements, with a break from tedious hospital routine.

The staff of 4-West agree that the Diners Club, which began this winter, provides a pleasant setting for socializing and conversation among the patients. They have also noted that the experience has helped to stimulate appetites of patients who are poor eaters.

Mayor Theodore Mann accepts an offering at Newport Creamery, a new restaurant and ice cream store in the recently opened Marshall's mall on Needham Street. Newport Creamery's president, Peter Rector, looks on.

Donna J. Taylor of Newtonville receives an award for her outstanding work at the Massachusetts Department of Corrections under the Northeastern University cooperative plan from Roy L. Wooldridge, vice president for cooperative education at the school. Ms. Taylor recently graduated from the College of Criminal Justice with a BS degree.

Making a few repairs on the doghouse is Terry Notartomaso of 51 Wildwood Ave.,Newtonville.

U. Mass. president to aid United Way

NEWTON — David C. Knapp, president of the University of Massachusetts, Boston, has accepted the voluntary position of chairman of the university section of the Education Division in the 1979 Campaign of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay.

As chairman of the university section he is responsible for fund-raising efforts in the universities in the Greater Boston area. Knapp has an A.B. from Syracuse University and an M.A. and a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. Knapp lives in Newton Centre.

The 1979 United Way Campaign starts in September and will continue through November. Money raised helps to support 162 human care agencies serving residents in 86 cities and towns in the Massachusetts Bay area.

Newton United Way agencies include the Newton Red Cross, Intercommunity Homemaker Service, Norumbega Council Boy Scouts, Newton YMCA, Newton Community Service Centers, Newton— Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association, Newton Boys Club, and Family Counseling Service, Region West.

Anyone can suffer 'swimmer's ear'

BOSTON — You don't have to be Mark Spitz or Buster Crabbe or Esther Williams or Diana Nyad to be a victim. You don't even have to like the water very much.

Many people who never go near the ocean or the neighbor's backyard pool still suffer from "swimmer's ear."

External otitis, or "swimmer's ear," is an infection of the skin of the outer ear canal. It is most often caused by excessive moisture in the ear canal, and is not necessarily contracted after swimming.

Dr. Gerald Healy, otolaryngologist-in-chief at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston, said that some people have a predisposition to the condition because their ears do not produce enough cerumen (ear wax) to keep the ear canal properly lubricated. In these people, "the skin of the external ear canal becomes too dry, and flakes — like dandruff," says Healy, "and the skin can become infected from accumulation of the debris."

What most often happens in external otitis, however, according to Healy, is that "too much moisture produces changes in the thin skin of the ear canal, making it susceptible to infection by bacteria or fungus."

Symptoms of "swimmer's ear" are, says Healy, "ear pain — which is intensified by tugging on the ear — redness in the ear canal, and discharge from the ear."

Healy says that the first step in treating the condition is to "avoid getting water in the ear until the infection is completely gone."

He suggests that, when taking a shower or washing hair, it is important to place a piece of cotton in the ear and cover the cotton with vaseline to make the entrance to the ear canal water-tight.

"This assures that the external ear canal will stay dry," he said. If infection occurs, Healy advocates the use of medicated ear drops, which contain antibiotics and cortisone to clear up the infection and relieve ear pain.

For most people, preventing external otitis is simply a matter of keeping the ear canal dry. Those who regularly get water in their ears, especially swimmers in chlorinated pools, should wear ear plugs.

"A drop or two of rubbing alcohol introduced into the ear after swimming helps dry up any excess moisture; it is also a mild antiseptic, and helps keep the canal clean," says Healy.

A further preventive measure for protection against external otitis is "periodic flushing out of the ear canal with an acetic acid solution." Healy says this is often recommended for those predisposed to the condition.

Swimmer's ear is not contagious, but should be treated promptly and thoroughly.

Central Stars take District titles

The Newton Central Little League All-Stars combined superb pitching and homerun hitting to win their last seven games in a row on their way to capturing the Massachusetts District 11 and 17 post season tournament championships.

After a heart-breaking defeat to Watertown West in the opening round of the State tournament, the Central Stars entered this double-elimination tournament hoping to show the many skeptics, especially the ones in their own league, that the loss was a fluke.

Throughout the tournament the Central Stars relied on only two starting pitchers, Bobby Martin (5-0) and Jimmy Lawless (3-1) came through time after time with solid mound efforts often with only 1 or 2 days rest. When relief was needed Greg Rutan (2 saves, 0.00 era, 0 hits allowed) was ready to seal the victory.

At the plate the team was lead by Leon Bablouzian (8 homeruns, 19 RBIs, .612 ave.), Martin (5 home runs, 14 RBIs, .500 ave.), Lawless (1 homerun, 6 RBIs, 384 ave.), and Chris brotti, (8 RBIs, .448 ave.).

Newton Central 6, Parkway Central 5

On Wednesday, August 1st the team traveled to Praught Field in West Roxbury to play Parkway Central from that town. With Martin on the mound the Central Stars fell behind 3-; in the fourth inning. in the bottom of the 4th Central tied the game on a homerun by Bablouzian and a triple by Biotti. In the 5th Bablouzian homered for the second consecutive time after a Martin walk and the Garden city nine took a two run lead into the sixth. However Parkway tied it and sent it to the seventh. In the bottom of the seventh with one out Martin won his own game with a solo blast down the line in left.

Newton West 6, Newton Central 4

With Lawless on the mound the Central Stars fell behind 5-0 early in the game and were unable to catch up to their cross town rivals. David Boule was the hero for West as he struck out 8 to get the win. He also had two hits and a walk in three appearances at the plate. This game was also played at Praught Field in West Roxbury on Thursday, August 2nd.

At this time skeptics rose en masse with the thought "at least they won once." However Manager Joe Doyle and coaches Sherm Spritz, and Barry Freedman had a few days to prepare their team for the next game.

Newton Central 10, Watertown West 2

On Tuesday, August 7th the Stars taveled once again to West Roxbury and this time Bunker Field. This was the key game of the tournament for Central. Incentive to win was plenty as this was a rematch with the same Watertown West team who eliminated them from the State Championships three weeks earlier.

At this time the Central's Stars suddenly matured from a group of individuals into a team, with everyone pulling for one another. Revenge was sweet as the Central Stars behind Martin's four hitter trounced Watertown West 10-2. Centerfielder Lawless had three hits as did Chris Biotti to lead the attack. Biotti also had four RBIs in the game. Catchers Phil Dare, and Mark Lane performed very well behind the plate as they tagged out 3 Watertown runners trying to score.

Newton Central 12, Millis II 3

The following day central jumped all over Millis II pitching with 4 homeruns at Richardson field in Waban. Centrals leadoff batter Brian Corrigan continued his on base streak to 8 in a row to set the stage for Lawless' homer in the first. Bablouzian later struck for homers in the second and fifth innings, sandwiched around a Martin blast in the fifth. Chris Biotti continued his torrid streak with another perfect 3 for 3 game, his second in a row. Lawless went the route striking out 5 to gain his first victory.

Newton Central 12, Newton West 8

On Saturday, August 11th, the Central Stars traveled to Lyons Park in Auburndale for a return engagement with the West Stars. Once again revenge proved to be sweet as the Central Stars continued their barrage on opposing pitchers with a 12-8 thrashing of West, thus eliminating them from the tournament. Lawless, Andy White, and Rich Claflin, each knocked in two runs apiece to help Martin to his third straight complete game victory. Corrigan, Bablouzian, Biotti and Justin McKenna also knocked in runs. David Boule, and Mark Buckley had two hits each for the losers.

Newton Central 5, Warrendale 3

On Tuesday, August 14th, Newton Central returned to West Roxbury and Bunker Field to take on the Warrendale (Waltham) Stars. Bablouzian was the hitting star as he cracked his sixth and seventh homeruns to lead Central to a 5-3 victory. Bablouzian's homers were each two run shots, one in the first and one in the sixth to break up a 3-3 game. Jimmy Lawless was aided by some spectacular defense to gain the victory. Andy White made two fine running catches in left field with the bases loaded and two outs, each time saving two runs. Phil Dare and David Butzel each came through with a strong game while splitting the catching duties. Greg Rutan retired the last 3 batters in the sixth to save the victory for Lawless.

Newton Central 5, Medfield 4

On Wednesday, August 15th Central again traveled to West Roxbury and Praught Field. In this game the Stars had their work cut out for them as they were going up against State semifinalist Medfield.

As could be expected, this game proved to be the most exciting game of the tournament. Going into the bottom of the fourth the Central Stars had their backs against the wall as they were down 4-0 to their powerful foes. In the fourth Martin led off with a homerun to left center. Bablouzian doubled, and Biotti singled him home. In the fifth Butzel and Lawless walked, Butzel scored on a Martin ground out and Lawless scored on Biotti's second straight single to tie the game.

Earlier in the fifth inning, Neil Stolzenbach made a tremendous throw to the plate to nail a runner and keep the game close. The sixth inning was scoreless as was the Medfield half of the seventh. However in the bottom of the seventh Lawless walked, Martin walked and Bablouzian doubled to right to score Lawless and send Central into the finals vs. Millis I. Martin again went the distance for the victory. The lefty struck out 7 and walked 4.

Newton Central 6, Millis I 3

On Thursday, August 16th the team journeyed to Fletcher Field in Franklin to take on a thus far undefeated Millis I team. In order to win the title the Central Stars not only had to win this game, but also beat the same team again on Saturday. In this game Newton went up against Millis pitcher Lance Frankina who had not given up more than two runs in one game all year.

Furthermore Central pitcher Lawless was pitching with only one day rest. Frankina, however faltered as he could not find the strike zone. Newton Central took advantage of seven walks to gain their six runs. Martin and Biotti each had tow hits to lead Newton.

Lawless, up 6-0, breezed into the fifth inning aided by a super throw by Brian Corrigan from right to save a run in the second. However in the fifth Lawless finally tired and again Greg Rutan was called upon to put out the fire. Once again Greg came in firing to end the threat in the fifth, and then breezed through the sixth to again save the win for Lawless, thus setting the stage for the final winner-take-all game on Saturday.

Newton Central 10, Millis 1

Saturday, August 18th. After 8 weeks of summer practice and games which followed a two-month long regular season the Central Stars overwhelmed Millis 10-1 to capture the championship. The game was Central's seventh straight win when a loss would have meant elimination.

Bobby Martin was awesome in the game as he led his team in hitting and pitching. Not only did Martin go the route for the 5th consecutive time in tournament play to raise his record to 5-0, but he also hit two home runs and knocked in seven runs. In the first, Leon Bablouzian walked to force in Rich Claflin with the first run of the game. In the second with Phil Dare, David Vento, and Claflin aboard, Martin clouted a grand slam over the centerfield wall to put central up 5-0. Bablouzian then followed with a clout of his own to center to make it 6-0. Two innings later Martin stepped up and clouted another blast, this time to left with Vento aboard to make it 8-0. The lead stretched to 10-1 in the fifth on a Mark Lane Walk, a Vento single, a Martin ground out, and a wild pitch.

In the top of the sixth Martin completed his 6 hitter as he got the last batter to ground to first.

David Vento played a sparkling game in center field when after playing all year at first, was pressed into service when Central regular center fielder Jim Lawless went away with his family.

The championship marked only the second time that Central has gone so far in tournament play.

Other members of the team included are, Tom Gruber, 2nd base; Jason Moscartolo, outfield; Chuck Hatem, first base; Eric Olsson, pitcher, 2nd base; Andy Swett, outfield, and Geoff Drew, outfield.

In summary, this Central team won every type of game possible, high scoring, low scoring, with superb team defense, powerful hitting, and clutch pitching. Seven times they played the seventh game of the world series and seven times they won. Congratulations Newton Central Little League All Stars, 1979 Massachusetts Districts 11 .. 17 Post Season Tournament Champions.

Acheson at Harvard camp

Newton's Jim Acheson will be one of 105 varsity candidates on hand when Harvard opens up its pre-season football camp August 30 in Cambridge.

The 6-0, 185 lb. running back was a stalwart on the Harvard freshman football last year, rushing for 223 yards on 37 carries. Under Ivy League rules, freshmen are prohibited from playing on the varsity level. Acheson's 6.0 yard per rush average was a contributing factor to the success of the 4-1-1 squad; despite being sidelined with an injury midway through the season, Acheson still managed to finish second overall in team rushing. Acheson won high praise from freshman coach Mac Singleton who feels that Acheson can make an outstanding contribution to the program after coming back from the injury.

Two years have past since Harvard has enjoyed a winning football campaign, the only two losing seasons in head coach Joe Restic's nine year tenure. Restic (44-26-2) and the 1978 squad suffered through a frustrating season last fall, taking a 4-3-1 record into the final game but being only eight points from an undefeated season at that point. This year's squad, although depleted by graduation, hopes to not only significantly better last year's 4-4-1 mark, but aim for the Ivy crown.

"Once again Yale, Brown, and Dartmouth seem to be the leaders, but the League is tremendously balanced, perhaps this year more so than ever," says Restic. "Over the past few years, the decisive quarter in the championship race has been the fourth quarter of the final game. I think this season will be the same in that respect, and we intend to be very much in the race at that point," Restic adds.

In striving toward that goal, coach Restic must fill several key gaps left by graduated talent. First priority will be given to rebuilding the offensive unit which lost all-time passing leader Larry Brown, leading scorer, rusher, and receiver Ralph Pollio, yet another back, a tight-end, a tackle, and both guards. The defense also has lost important stalwarts with attentions now being directed to filling an end, tackle, and both cornerback positions. Restic remarks, "For the first time in a while, we can't say it's simply the offense or simply the defense. We'll be looking to talented newcomers like Jim to fill in those positions. He's learned our multi-flex system inside and out and has the talent and potential we need, especially in te back slot.."

Acheson is a 1977 graduate of Newton North High School where he set a school record for most points scored in a single season. He also played lacrosse and captained the wrestling team. Newton North's class president, Acheson spent a post-graduate year at Phillips Andover Academy before coming to Harvard where he is a prospective government major. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Acheson of 26 Hollis Street in Newton.

Sports physicals in Newt n scheduled

As the month of A nears an end, signs of bac school, homework and football games begin to appear.

To help make the transition from summer into fall a safe one, the Newton Health Department will offer physicals to all Newton high school students who have not had their sports physicals from their family physician. During the last week of August, physicians from the community will join the school nurses of the Health Department at Newton North and South High School and Newton Catholic High School to give the physicals.

The sports physical, mandated by Massachusetts law, serves two functions. The physician and nurse can assess the current health status of the student as well as learn about previous injuries and health problems which may be affected by the student's participation in sports.

The staff will be particularly concerned about orthopedic injuries, heart problems and diabetes. Treatment by the family physician will be recommended if any such problems are detected.

Each student is asked to bring a consent form signed by a parent or parents, to the examination. The consent forms are available from the Health Department or the coaches at each high school. All reports will have to be on file with the nurse before the student can participate in practice.

The schedule for sports physicals is as follows: Newton South students at Newton South High School, August 24, 8:30-11:30 a.m.; Newton North students at Claflin School, August 27, 29, 8-11 a.m.; Newton Catholic students at Newton Catholic High School, August 30, 8-10 a.m.

Physicals for junior high students will be done during the first and second weeks of September.

All questions concerning the physicals can be referred to Joan York, Child Health Coordinator, Newton Health Department, 552-7058.

Center for birth defects and genetic counseling to open at hospital

BOSTON — The Children's Hospital Medical Center has announced that it will establish a Birth Defects and Genetic Counseling Center to provide services to families and patients with genetically influenced or genetically determined diseases.

The program will also provide information and educational services for area physicians and for the lay public.

The new center will coordinate a complete range of genetic services at the hospital, using the resources of the Division of Clinical Genetics at Children's Hospital. Working with practicing physicians, community hospitals, neighborhood health centers, and other health-related facilities, the new center plans to inaugurate an outreach network to provide a wide range of genetic services to the community, including genetic counseling and educational courses. This community-oriented approach will use a combination of local resources supplemented when necessary by the additional support services of the Children's Hospital Medical Center.

Eventually, the service will be staffed by a team which will include physicians, geneticists, genetic associates, social workers, psychologists, nurses, and other health care professionals specially trained to deal with patients and families having genetic concerns. People at risk for birth defects and other genetic disorders will receive counseling to guide them in making informed decisions based on what they determine to be the best course of action for themselves and their family.

The counseling team will work with children who have genetic disorders and birth defects, including those with multiple handicaps, in an effort to improve their quality of life and to assist them and their families in coping with their disabilities.

The Birth Defects and Genetic Counseling Center will also offer services to area physicians. The Children's Hospital genetics program will include the continuing education of family physicians, obstetricians, and pediatricians in the community.

The center will be directed by John W. Wood, M.D., a senior associate in medicine and clinical genetics at Children's Hospital. He holds faculty appointments in pediatrics at Harvard, Boston University and Tufts University Medical Schools. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics and a member of the American Society of Human Genetics.

Class action suit asks bill of rights for emotionally disturbed children

BOSTON — The Juvenile Law Reform Project has brought suit in the U.S. District Court to assert a bill of rights for emotionally disturbed children, according to Russell Dunning, Director of the Project, Attorney Paula Cosgrove, and Sen. Jack Backman, Chairman of the Human Services Committee.

The class action brought on behalf of all emotionally disturbed children of Massachusetts was filed against Governor Edward J. King, Patricia R. Harris, U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare , Robert Okin, Commissioner of Mental Health, Gregory Anrig, Commissioner of Education and Charles F. Mahoney, Secretary of Human Services.

Sen. Backman has requested the Attorney General of Massachusetts to assign counsel from his office to assert the rights of the children who have been deprived of their constitutional rights.

Sen. Backman stated: "The abuse and neglect of innocent emotionally disturbed children is a crime against humanity. I receive complaints and pleas for assistance from judges, as well as parents, for children who are not receiving proper care for emotional problems from the Department of Education and the Department of Mental Health."

In a letter to Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, Sen. Backman stated, "Without exception, every judge in Massachusetts dealing with children who have emotional problems, knows that today there are not adequate facilities and programs in Massachusetts to treat these children who come before their court. Many judges in Massachusetts have told me that they cannot properly carry out their responsibilities to emotionally disturbed children in need of services.

"The Chief Justice of the Massachusetts District Court should appoint a special committee of judges to file its report in the law suit. Under these circumstances, the Attorney General cannot assume the traditional role of defending the establishment which has failed. The Attorney General must assign his best lawyers and investigators to protect the rights of helpless children whose constitutional right to care has been violated.

"Psychiatrists have stated openly to me that if the mental health programs and personnel were adequate, they would not have to handcuff children to beds or keep them in 24-hour seclusion for months.

"Hundreds of children with severe emotional problems do not have an individualized treatment program. Thousands of children do not have a treatment program that is being carried out.

"Representatives of the Department of Mental Health, in Certificate of Need proceedings, publicly state that neither the Department of Mental Health nor the Department of Education at present have programs, capacity, personnel to treat children with severe emotional problems.

"The tragedy of innocent emotionally disturbed children, who are in large part the result of a cruel environment, being neglected, abused, rejected and warehoused by the Department of Mental Health and the Department of Education must be addressed and ended," Backman said.

TRAVEL TIP: Ask your travel agent about duty-free items and best buys in each port before leaving for a cruise.

Travel

I-93 South of Lincoln in the White Mountains. This major artery takes motorists to just south of Franconia Notch State Park. The peaks in the distance are the famed Presidential Range.

Superb Scenery is a good reason to bring your camera when you vacation in the Granite State.

Fun on a raft. Rivers in N.H. are some of the cleanest in the United States.

We're better natured

The scenic White Mountains are less than an hour's drive from the Atlantic Coast. Come to where the air is clean and discover the reason New Hampshire's slogan is "We're Better Natured".

Eighteen of New Hampshire's thirty-two state parks offer swimming facilities, and all provide picnic areas. Combine a scenic drive with some walking or hiking. Refresh with a swim in the clearest of fresh water rivers.

Driving up to Lincoln and across on the Kancamagus Highway. Experience 34 miles of breath-taking scenery. The highway crosses Kancamagus Pass at 2,860 feet, and then heads down along the Passaconaway River. Scenic areas are marked, with pull-off spots and plenty of parking space. Travelers are welcome to take their time absorbing the majestic views. Camera buffs beware; you'll want to capture Mother Nature in her beautiful attire.

There are waterfalls, rocky gorges, and plenty of picnic and swimming spots. The Kancamagus cross the White Mountain National Forest to the junction of Route 16 at Conway. Just before reaching the Rte. 16 junction, make a stop at Lower Falls, a sign on the left marks this popular spot along the Passaconaway River. Here you'll find a deep swimming hole with a flat rock in the middle of the river for diving. Smooth, flat rocks worn by the river form an abundance of sandy, shallow-water pools. Lots of mini-rapids provide plenty of fun. Slide over them, letting the current carry you along.

The White Mountain National Forest consists of 735,000 acres of public forest land. There are twenty campgrounds. Prices vary between $3.00 and $4.00. Within the National Forest there are twenty picnic areas and 1,200 miles of hiking trails. Camping and fire permits are required. In an area of 1,270 square miles, New Hampshire has 86 mountains grouped around the Presidential Range.

Continue on Route 16 and you will drive into an area full of family recreation possibilities. Glen Ellis Falls, just off Rte. 16, is a scenic, 64 ft. waterfall and cascading river. A walkway brings you close to the falls. Parking is free and there is no admission charge.

Further up, Route 16 enters into Pinkham Notch, which is at the base of the Presidential Range. Here you will find the Mt. Washington auto road, an eight mile scenic road which winds to the summit of the highest mountain in Northeastern United States. The price is $7.00 for car and driver. Passengers are charged $2.00 each. A chauffered van is another option for reaching Mt. Washington's summit. Round trip is $8.00 per person. Children from five to twelve years old ride at half fare. Chauffered drives run until late October, weather permitting.

The world's first Cog Railway starts off of Rte. 302, and climbs to Mt. Washington's summit of 6,288 feet. Adults are charged $13.95; ages six through fifteen are charged $7.00. Family fares are offered in full season only. Dial 846-5404 for information.

The Appalachian Mountain Club has its White Mountain headquarters off of Rte. 16 at Pinkham Notch. Ambitious hikers begin their climb to Tuckerman's Ravine, and on to the top of Mt. Washington from the trails that begin at the Club. Shelter huts on the trails provide lodging. A free folder and map may be obtained at the base lodge.

The State of New Hampshire's Office of Vacation Travel in Concord has set up a 24-hour hot-line phone service that provides daily updates on gasoline and recreation information. The Concord number is 224-2525. If dialing from outside New Hampshire, add area code 603. This number is also used to provide colorful Fall Foliage information this September and October.

In the White Mountains you will find some of the finest family attractions anywhere in the U.S.! Each attraction is but minutes away from another.

David Berkeley to run for alderman-at-large

NEWTON — David J. Berkeley of 33 Central Ave., Newtonville, in announcing his candidacy for alderman-at-large from 2 in the city's fall election, says his goal is to help "all people of Newton, not individual villages, but the whole Garden City."

Berkeley is a former candidate for mayor of Newton, also a former assessor in Cambridge and a former insuranceman for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Berkeley is active in community affairs such as the Nonantum Christmas Party Association, Sons of Italy, and president of the Newtonville Triangle Association. He also is a volunteer teacher in Christian Doctrine classes.

A member of the American Legion, Post No. 440, he is a life member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a member of the Americal Division, and recently received a medal of honor from the Republic of China. Berkeley is also a member of the Newton Council, Knights of Columbus, and recently became a Fourth Degree member.

He was graduated from High School of Commerce, Boston, and attended Boston University.

He attended Staley College of the Spoken Word in Brookline, majoring in parliamentary law and procedures. He also attended Japanese School for Language and General Hospital in the Pacific Area for Studies of Tropical Diseases.

The candidate is married to the former Mary Fitzgerald, a lifelong resident of Newton.

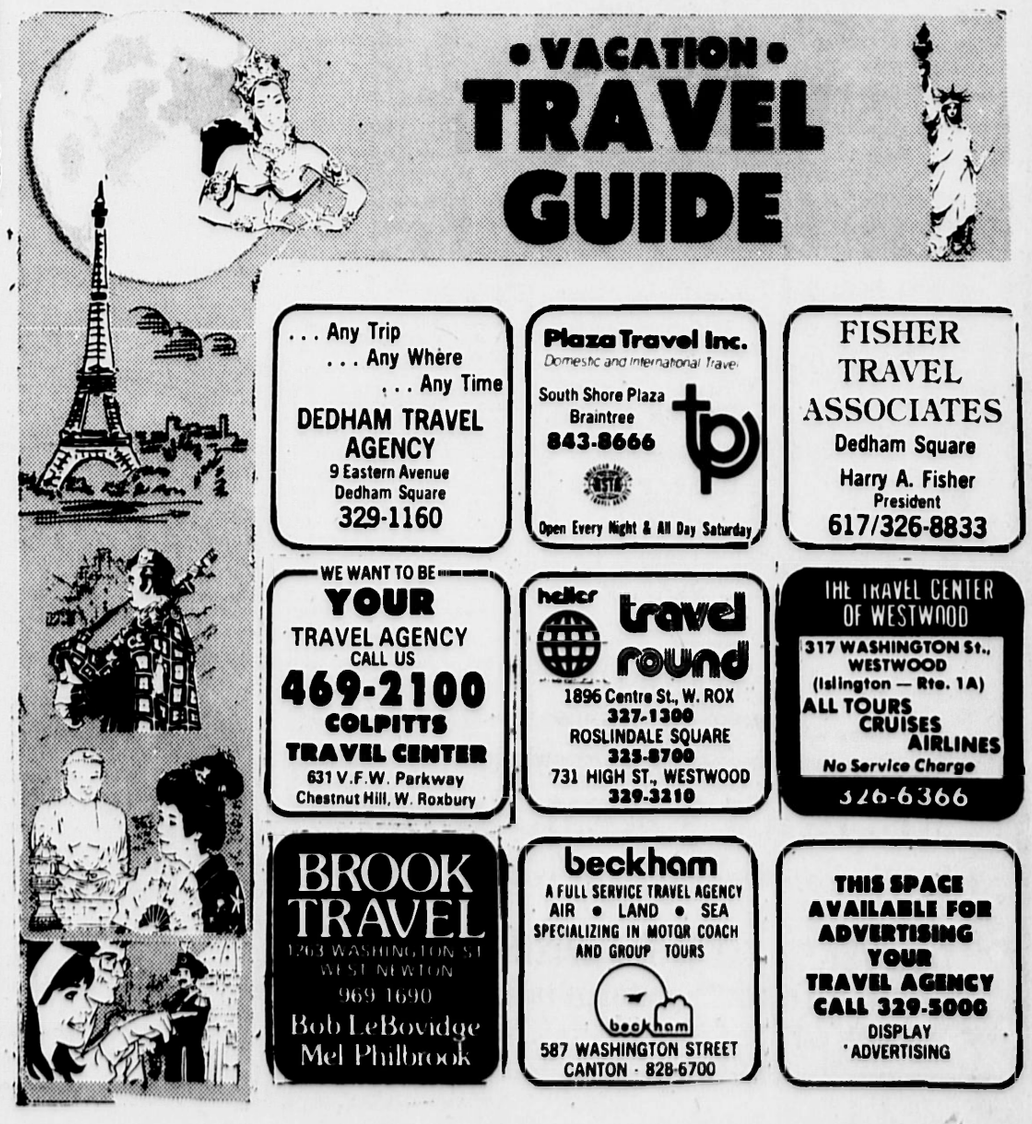

The Berkeleys have five children all educated in Newton schools: Donna Morrison, Diane Morris, David Jr., Doreen Sheehan and Dana.

Frances Skinner

NEWTONVILLE — Frances Van Arsdale (Hunt) Skinner, 84, of 37 Walden St., Newtonville, died suddenly, Friday, Aug. 17.

She was the wife of Orin E. Skinner.

Mrs. Skinner was a member of the Boston Society of Arts and Crafts, a Friend of the Jackson Homestead, a member of St. John's Episcopal Church, and taught arts and crafts at the Boston YWCA, and the Newton YMCA.

She was a craftsman who worked with her husband, who owned Charles W. Connick, a firm that does stained glass work in churches.

The funeral service was in St. John's Episcopal Church, Lowell Ave., Newtonville, Tuesday. Burial was in Newton Cemetery.

Frank DiGregorio

NONANTUM — A funeral mass was celebrated in Church of Our Lady, Saturday, Aug. 18, for Frank DiGregorio, Jr. He was 44 years old.

A lifelong Newton resident, Mr. DiGregorio worked for the city of Newton for 26 years as a heavy equipment operator in the Highway department, Crafts Street division.

He is survived by his sisters, Mrs. Dolores Delgado, Mrs. Marion Rolls of Brighton, Mrs. Elaine Whelan and Mrs. Rita Riffe both of Newton; and his brother, Newton Police Officer Richard A. of Framingham. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Edith Meinhart

HIGHLANDS — Edith Meinhart, 72, 9 Carver Rd., died Saturday at the Chetwynde Nursing Home.

She was the mother of Asst. Fire Chief Karl Meinhart.

She is survived also by a daughter, Mrs. Annette Griggs of Lincoln, eight grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were private.

Pneumonia vaccination advised for elderly

The same group of people who are advised to take the flu vaccine this fall should also take the pneumonia vaccine, Dr. Grant V. Rodkey, president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, said today.

"Although we do not expect the winter of 1979-1980 to be a severe flu year, it is still important that certain people be vaccinated," Dr. Rodkey continued. Among those citizens who are older or chronically ill, influenza often paves the way for respiratory invasion by other organisms that cause penumonia, strep and staph infections. Therefore, the society is recommending that people in these categories take both flu and pneumonia vaccinations as early as possible this season.

"There is no contraindication to administering flu vaccine in one arm and pneumococcal vaccine in the other. In fact, many of the towns and cities planning public clinics do plan to give both shots simultaneously," Dr. Rodkey said.

The pneumonia vaccine is effective against pneumoccal pneumonia. Studies show that some 65 percent of all victims of pneumococcal pneumonia require hospitalization, that meant over 600,000 cases in 1976. The vaccine is highly effective in preventing 80 percent of the most serious types of pneumococcal pneumonia.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health recently released a report which states that the predominant influenza strain for the winter of '79-'80 will probably be A-Brazil, which first appeared in late 1978 and is a variant of the Russian strain which appeared in the United States and Massachusetts during the winter of 1977-78. Most people have had the Russian flu, and the antibodies from this infection should give partial protection against A-Brazil.

Thompsonville work to start this month

NEWTON — Phase I of the Thompsonville Neighborhood Improvement Program will begin this month, according to the Planning Department.

First-year Thompsonville Neighborhood Improvement Program activities will consist of installation of new curbing and sidewalks, where necessary, along portions of Langley Road, Jackson Road, Cypress Street and Daniel Street. The cost of the project is estimated at $85,000, to be provided by the Newton Community Development Program.

Cetrone Compa Corporation, of Newton, was low bidder on the project and will perform all construction work. Field coordinator will be provided by the Newton Engineering Department.

Recommendations developed by the Thompsonville Advisory Committee included the improvement of unsafe streets leading to the Bowen School. The priority need for these improvements was identified by the Thompsonville Community at a public-needs-identification workshop.

The village of Thompsonville was designated as a Neighborhood Strategy Area by the community development program in July, 1978.

Mrs. Chana Shonfeld, head teacher at Beth El Community Hebrew School in Newton, receives the Louis Hillson Memorial Prize for achievement and creativity in Jewish education. Mrs. Shonfeld has a master's degree from Hebrew College and Simmons College and is continuing her education at Hebrew College. Shown with Mrs. Shonfeld, from left, are Albert Semick, president of Congregation Beth El-Atereth Israel; Nathan Pearlman, president of the Beth El Community School; and Rabbi Abraham Koolyk.

Midwesterners apparently do not read polls

By LAURENCE MCQUILLAN

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — They line the river bank in the dead of night. They pass babies, head over head, for the president to clasp them. They roar a hearty Midwest greeting when President Carter turns the spotlight of the Delta Queen upon himself.

Carter's "working vacation" cruise is turning into a Mississippi River love-in.

For most of five days, Carter has been sailing downriver on the old sternwheeler and each day the crowds in the river towns mount.

These Midwesterners apparently do not read the polls.

They turn out at any hour, day or night, rain or shine, to say howdy to the president.

When the Delta Queen steamed past Clinton, Iowa, between 1:30 and 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, the ship was not scheduled to stop and it did not. But Carter was awakened in his cabin and was told hundreds of people were lining the river bank.

He dressed, came out on the bridge wing and grabbed the spotlight, turning its glare upon his face. He waved and, through a microphone, thanked the people on shore. They shouted back a welcome.

As the ship passed Savanna, Ill., the response was even more electric.

Once again, the Delta Queen did not dock. But there were 2,000 people on shore and television lights bathed the president.

"Is this the greatest country on earth?" he yelled through the microphone.

A roar of assent came across the Mississippi waters.

"Will you help with the energy program?" Another roar.

Every time the Delta Queen docks — and many of its stops are not on its schedule — the president comes ashore and plunges into the crowds. Even his 11-year-old daughter, Amy, has taken to joining her father in working the fences and shaking hands.

Every time the president comes ashore, of course, he is practically surrounded by Secret Service men. One always has his back to the president. He carries an attache case with the lock open. It reportedly carries an Israeli submachine gun, capable of firing 40 rounds in 2 seconds.

The Midwesterners do not mind that, or are unaware of it.

When Carter got to Davenport, he went on a radio talk show where listeners were invited to call him up.

Oscar Peterson was one of them.

"I believe in you," he said.

Then he choked up and could not continue.

"That's good enough," Carter said.

New licenses issued to many bad drivers in R.I.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Because of delays by the Division of Administrative Adjudication, new licenses are issued to nearly 10 percent of the state's drivers whose licenses are supposed to be suspended, an audit said today.

The report by Auditor General Anthony Piccirilli criticized slow or sloppy record-keeping by the AAD, created five years ago to handle most traffic offenses in the state.

The auditor's office looked at records of 47 suspended licenses in a random check. In four cases, "due to late reporting suspensions were not enforced and licenses were renewed," the auditor's report said.

"Thus in almost 10 percent of the cases, delays in record-keeping prevented completion of the suspension process and drivers received new licenses," the report added.

The auditor's report said AAD sometimes sends notice of license suspensions to the Department of Motor Vehicles one to five days after the suspension's effective date. The DMV often takes two or three more months to process the suspension, the audit said.

A similar issue flared up in Massachusetts this year after a car accident killed four North Reading teen-agers. It was later learned the driver's license had been ordered suspended, but the actual suspension hadn't been enforced because of clerical delays.

The auditor also criticized AAD's backlog of cases, whittled down to 3,000 now from 8,500 last December. In some cases, the auditor said, a hearing is not held until up to 60 days after a violation.

That backlog of 8,500 cases cost the state $150,000 a year in lost investment income. The auditor blamed the backlog on the AAD's leniency in letting drivers reschedule their cases.

The auditor also said:

—Slow computer processing of fines paid by mail means $75,000 to $100,000 in uncashed checks sits in unlocked "aging bins" waiting to be matched with cards listing the fine paid. The result is a loss of an estimated $6,000 a year in investment income. The audit said AAD is taking remedial steps.

—A random look at 50 summonses found four were dismissed despite the driver's admission of guilt, and 13 had clerical errors. The audit urged more detailed records on dismissed offenses.

—The AAD is responsible for processing summonses voided by local or state police departments. But because of sloppy record-keeping, 20 of 50 voided summonses included in a random check were not in adherence to AAD regulations.

USDA defends figures on soil erosion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In response to criticism of new Agriculture Department research on soil erosion, officials reviewed data and techniques used in the research and defended their conclusions.

Officials in the department's Soil Conservation Service also warned the debate over measuring soil erosion overshadowed important new findings reinforcing the belief crops should not be planted on poor land.

The basic figure at issue was the study's conclusion that an average acre of soil in the United States is losing 4.8 tons of soil a year from surface erosion by water.

Conservationists and conservation district officials feared the figure would mislead Americans into thinking that a grave soil erosion problem has gone away. They suggested the Agriculture Department made mistakes in obtaining and analyzing data.

The 4.8-ton average was about half as large as an earlier estimate and one ton less than the average loss reported by the Soil Conservation Service a decade ago.

The figure concerned conservationists because it is so close to the annual soil loss figure regarded as permissible for many soil types: 4 tons per acre, at which new soil can be created nearly as fast as soil is lost.

The Soil Conservation Service took the offensive in an issue briefing paper published Tuesday.

In the paper, the agency said, "SCS has checked and rechecked its data, collected by its field technicians at more than 200,000 sample points during the summer of 1977."

The agency said officials are "convinced the data are reliable and will guide conservationists in carrying the fight against erosion to those areas that need it most."

Although strongly defending its figures, the agency cautioned that government policies should not be based on the 4.8-ton soil loss average.

Stay up with Jerry and watch the stars come out

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

MAINTENANCE PERSON

Prima donnas are not our style but hard working, ambitious people are - and that's the kind of person we are looking for. Someone who is mature, can handle responsibility and see it through. Someone who doesn't balk at work and makes a super effort no matter what the job is. Your job will include general cleaning, light building and equipment maintenance. Quite honestly, we need you from 11PM to 7AM, but there's room for flexibility so don't panic.

And if you think we are asking a lot - you are right, but we are ready to give you a lot: merit raise after 30 days and every 6 months thereafter, and excellent benefits including free uniforms, paid vacations, free meals, life, medical and dental insurance after one month and free after five years with full time positions. Do your best for us and we'll do our best for you.

Please apply in person to Store Manager, Paul Barnes, at the McDonald's of West Roxbury located at 1650 VFW Parkway.

Backman denounces King and death penalty

BOSTON— Senator Jack Backman, (D. Brookline), chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, has sharply criticized Gov. Edward King and the Legislature for enacting a death penalty bill.

"It is shocking that the governor and the Legislature, Republicans and Democrats alike, would debase the judicial process by passing a law which the Massachusetts Supreme Court has twice held unconstitutional under the Massachusetts Bill of Rights and Constitution," Backman stated.

"When our chief executive and our Legislature fly in the face of the Constitution they have sworn to uphold, it's time for a change in leadership from the governor on down," Backman continued. "This action reminds me of some southern legislatures which vainly attempted to ignore court decisions. Our Massachusetts Supreme Court has stated that any death penalty is unconstitutional. They have also made it clear that the Massachusetts Constitution, not the U.S. Constitution, governs use of this extreme penalty in the Commonwealth. While the U.S. Supreme Court has declared that a state might enact a death penalty, it is the clear opinion of the courts that a more restrictive state constitution governs whether a particular state may execute anyone."

Assault complaint filed against police officer

NEWTON—A Nonantum man arrested Saturday for disorderly conduct has filed a complaint of assault and battery against one of the arresting officers.

Anthony "Fat" Pellegrini, 54, of 58 Clinton St. has charged that Officer William Whalen assaulted him at the time of the arrest around 5 p.m. Saturday in Newton Corner.

Police say Whalen and another officer saw two cars parked in a no-parking zone on Washington Street and approached the vehicles to offer assistance.

According to police Pellegrini got out of one of the vehicles and began shouting obscenities at the officers, refusing to stop when told to do so.

Pellegrini was arraigned in Newton District Court Monday and released on his own recognizance. Judge Monte Basbas set a trial date for Sept. 14.

A hearing on the assault complaint has been scheduled for Sept. 17 in the office of Court Clerk Henry Shultz.

Restitution program to start at district court

Northeastern University, in conjunction with the Dedham, Newton, and Brookline District Courts, has announced a new court-ordered Community Service Restitution Program.

The program is funded by a $207,941 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) with additional funding committed by the Gardner Howland Shaw Foundation and the municipal governments of Newton and Brookline for a total of $231,046 for the project.

While limited restitution sentences have been attempted by the judges of these courts on an ad hoc basis, the Community Service Restitution Program is the first systematic effort to use widescale restitution.

The Community Service Restitution Program will aid existing court personnel to develop community service restitution placement for offenders who have committed minor offenses and are seeking a "second chance."

Community service restitution means the working-off of an offender's debt to society in a worthwhile public institution in lieu of receiving a jail sentence or other penalty.

A total of nine individuals will be employed in the program to develop placement plans, supervise clients in the community, and create new placement opportunities for clients.

Broader role suggested for design review panel

NEWTON — The Design Review Committee, little known to the public, has done such a good job in the opinion of some aldermen that it may be given the task of reviewing everything built by the city.

A review of its duties and operation, called for by Ald. Robert Sandman before the Public Facilities Committee, prompted Ald. Richard McGrath to suggest that all construction and changes to all city facilities be submitted to the DRC.

McGrath noted that he remembers the establishment of the DRC in 1974 as a reaction to the almost citywide displeasure with the design of the then new Newton North High School.

Since the Design Review Committee has been examining architectural plans and designs of city buildings being built or remodeled, McGrath said, there has been nothing built that is badly or untastefully designed.

Sandman had asked that DRC Chairman Sidney Shuman explain the workings of his voluntary committee, composed of experts in construction, engineering, and design, with an eye toward making some changes in the ordinance governing the DRC.

The committee discussion never got to Sandman's point, because work that is not reviewed by the DRC kept being brought up and Public Facilities Committee members began saying it would be a good idea to have the DRC review parking lots, changes in streets and so on.

The ordinance does not require that everything be reviewed by DRC, only work done by an architect hired by the city. Most of its work has been devoted to school buildings.

The Board of Aldermen could have all along, if it had made itself familiar with the 1974 ordinance, referred many other projects to the Design Review Committee. The ordinance allows referral by the mayor, the Board, any or any other public agency or committee of the city.

Health Department offers physical exams

NEWTON — The Newton Health Department will offer physicals to all Newton high school students who have not had the sports physical from the family physician during the last week of August.

The sports physical, mandated by Massachusetts law, serves two functions. The physician and nurse can assess the current health status of the student and can learn about previous injuries and health problems which may be affected by student's participation in sports.

The staff will be particularly concerned about orthopedic injuries, heart problems and diabetes. Treatment by the family physican will be recommended if any such problems are detected.

Each student is asked to bring to the examination a consent form signed by a parent or parents. The consent forms are available from the Health Department or the coaches at each high school. All reports will have to be on file with the nurse before the student can participate in practice.

The schedule for sports physicals is as follows: Newton South students at Newton South High School, Aug. 24, 8:30-11:30 a.m.; Newton North students at Claflin School, Aug. 27, 29, 8:00-11:00 a.m.; Newton Catholic students at Newton Catholic High School, Aug. 30, 8:00-10:00 a.m.

Physicals for junior high students will be done during the first and second weeks of September.

All questions concerning the physicals can be referred to Joan York, child health coordinator, Newton Health Department, 552-7058.

Newton police take three firsts

NEWTON — The Newton Police Defensive Weapons Team led by Sgt. Robert MacDougall and honorary captain Frederick D. Fraini, with Officers Clifford Chaisson and Donald Claflin, won three first-place trophies at the 47th annual New England Police Revolver League Competition held at North Attleboro.

The Newton team captured the award for a fourman team in the Practical Police Course with a score of 1425 out of 1500 rounds. Fraini took first place in rapid firing and in slow firing with identical scores of 280 out of 300 rounds.

Fraini has been a member of the Newton Police Academy Instructors for 25 years and maintains a high degree of proficiency as one of New England's outstanding instructors and competitors.

'Kidsfair' tops off summer

BOSTON — Parents and children of all ages are invited to a free International Year of the Child Kidsfair on Boston Common, from 1-7 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 26.

Kidsfair will include music, theater, dance and puppet shows by more than 35 different performing groups; sporting events and clinics with pros from the Boston Celtics, Bruins and New England Teamen soccer team; free prizes and souvenirs; participatory games and crafts; and 30 "fun and learning" booths with information and activities sponsored by 46 different Greater Boston service and cultural organizations.

The fair, sponsored by WBZ-TV, will be broadcast live from the Common on Channel 4 from 3:30 to 7 p.m. Among the WBZ-TV personalities who will be on the Common for the broadcast will be Robin Young and Marty Sender, of Evening Magazine; "kidhosts" J. P. Wing, Sara Crutchfield, and Jonathan Sahula; reporter Charles Austin; weatherman Bruce Schwoegler; and Ron Robin and Linda Harris of Evening Magazine.

Visitors will receive free helium balloons, schedules of events, maps of activity areas, and "kidsacks" in which to take home the literature, prizes and other items provided by organizations staffing the 30 booths in the fair's "Fun & Learning" Tent.

While admission and most activities are free, a few of the booths will have a nominal charge for the cost of materials in craft projects. Food concessions will also be set up. Among the prizes given away will be 50 tennis rackets and hockey sticks, a bicycle, and other athletic equipment to participants in game sports clinics.

Entertainment highlights will include puppet performances by ventriloquist Susan Linn; life-size puppets from the Museum of Fine Arts; and other informational puppet shows by the USDA and the Suffolk County Extension Service. Among musical groups performing are the Dixie Cookbook, Dixieland band; Tasty Licks (Bluegrass); the Y Banol de Acero steel drum band; and folksinger and storyteller Tom Smith. Ethnic performances will include the Singing Children Areyto (Spanish); Laduvane, Balkan Folk Group; Catholic (Italian) Folk Action Group; Fitzmaurice-Moran (Irish) Step Dancers; African Dance and Drums with the National Center for Afro-American Artists; and Dora Kalajian and the Gypsy Dance Troupe. There will also be youth-oriented theatrical performances, including "Comedy for Kids" by the City Stage Company of Boston; "Your Story," audience participation play, by Ensemble One Productions; and the popularly acclaimed musical, "Night Excursions," with the Boston Youth Theatre Company.

Among sports celebrities conducting clinics for kids will be Rick Robey and Kevin Stacom of the Celtics and Peter McNab, Bobby Miller, and Milt Schmidt of the Bruins. Free tennis lessons will be provided by the Natick Racquet Club. There will be exhibitions of gymnastics, Oriental martial arts, skateboard and roller skate safety, rugby, and championship Frisbee tossing. There will be a special Olympics and tennis for handicapped kids, as well as a wheelchair obstacle course to help nonhandicapped children learn about problems facing other youngsters.

Visitors will be invited to produce their own videotaped presentations by the Boston Film and Video Foundation; to silkscreen IYC T-shirts with the Museum of Fine Arts; and to make African drums and bamboo flutes with the Elma Lewis School.

In addition to producing Kidsfair, WBZ-TV will also address International Year of the Child issues during its regular programing the week of Aug. 26.

'Sweet Charity' director chosen

HIGHLANDS — The Newton Country Players have selected Liz Bruce of Waltham to direct the initial stage production of their 24th season, the Broadway musical comedy "Sweet Charity," the story of a girl who wanted to be loved.

Performances are slated for Nov. 8-10 and 15-17 at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, 54 Lincoln St. The musical is available for programming at reduced rates to sponsor groups theater parties interested in fundraising for bookings from Nov. 7 to Nov. 18 at the church, with its seating capacity of 250. Call 244-8593.

Liz Bruce is familiar to not only the Newton community, but to Marlboro, Southborough, and Belmont theatergoers as well. A member of the Players' Board of Directors the past two years, her credits with the Players include choreography for "Cabaret," direction and choreography for "The Pajama Game," set decor for "Absurd Person Singular," and an onstage appearance as Ida, the maid, in "See How They Run." Recently she directed "Wait Until Dark" and was responsible for choreography for "Camelot," both with the Belmont Dramatic Club.

Mrs. Bruce received her BA in Theater Education from Emerson College in 1963 and as an undergrad was featured as lead dancer in "Bells Are Ringing," "Wildcat," "South Pacific," and "Brigadoon," as well as being involved in many workshop productions. In 1971, she was named "Outstanding Young Woman of America" by her Alma Mater. Mrs. Bruce is also a member of Zeta Phi Eta, a national professional fraternity for women in the fields of speech and drama.

Back to school!

NEWTON—There will be fewer students in the Newton schools this year, and more of them will be walking.

School officials estimate the entering classes K-12 at 13,200, down 620 from last year.

A School Committee decision not to provide transportation to students who live within two miles of their schools will mean that over 300 students who rode to school last year will now have to walk.

The Emerson Elementary School was added to the list of surplus city buildings last spring and the Carr and Davis Schools will share the same fate at the end of this school year.

The Metco program will send 415 students to Newton this year, 15 more than last year, and the program has a new director here, Lyda Peters, who succeeds Ulysses Shelton.

At Bigelow Junior High School Elizabeth Quinn is the new principal. She succeeds Robert Frost. Helen Herzog has replaced Roland Barth as principal of the Angier Elementary School and Thomas Ryan is the new housemaster of Bacon House at Newton North, replacing Helen Ryan.

All elementary schools start classes the morning of Thursday, September Sept. 6, except Underwood and Countryside, which start Monday, Sept. 10. Renovation work is holding up the Underwood opening and the Countryside opening has been put off because of consolidation with Emerson.

This was a typical scene in King's Department Store in Newton this week, as shopping for school was the main activity of many families. Richard Frank Jr. doesn't seem to mind the prospect of going back to school.

NNHS to open on time

NEWTONVILLE — The 10-day-old picket line of Local 537 of the Pipefitters Association will probably not delay the opening of Newton North High School, Mayor Theodore Mann said Monday.

The pipefitters are picketing the school, where nonunion pipefitters are doing work on modification of the trouble-ridden heating, ventilation and air-conditioning system.

Insulation, electrical and other workers honored the picket line thrown up against the general contractor, J. W. Praught of West Roxbury.

Mann said Monday that the city has asked the court for a restraining order against the Pipefitters Association, and Praught has appealed for relief to the state Labor Relations Board.

Building Commissioner Allan Fraser also said the strike has not yet caused lost time that cannot be made up so that school will open on time.

More pupils must walk

NEWTON—More than 60 parents of secondary students attended the School Committee meeting Monday night to protest the extension of the bus service limit from one and a half to two miles.

Many parents cited the safety hazards they say will result from the increased walking distances to schools and the hardship the hardship imposed on students during snow and

The increase in the distance limit was passed by the Committee during budget sessions last winter and according to Support Services Director Roy Cornelius it will mean the elimination of 26 bus runs —about six buses at a savings of $22,000 each per year.

On a motion by Committeeman Howard Spergel which passed unanimously, the Committee requested Cornelius to report back to them before the opening of school on adjustments in the busing plan based on mileage and safety, to report problems with School Committee policy and to submit options and alternatives.

One specific alternative which Cornelius was asked to look into was the extension of service to those within the two-mile limit on a "user fee" basis, an expedient suggested by Committeeman Alvin Mandell.

Cornelius will also be checking the exact mileage from students' homes to secondary schools because many parents stated that the distance has not been correctly calculated in determining the present bus schedules.

Register by Sept. 5 to vote

NEWTON — The last day to register for voting in the Sept. 25 preliminary municipal election is Wednesday, Sept. 5.

The Election Commission office at City Hall is open daily 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. for voter registration and will take registrations until 10 p.m. Sept. 5.

Absentee ballots should be applied for now, according to Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission. Application may be made by anyone with a letter of authorization from the person to whom the ballot is to be sent.

Absentee ballots may be sent only to registered voters.

New tax rate may stay at '79 level

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Staff writer

NEWTON — The city of Newton will get $3.3 million more from the state than it will owe the state, according to a balance sheet from the state Department of Revenue.

That news, coupled with a record amount of money in the surplus fund, raises the possibility of no tax increase this year.

The "cherry sheet," so called because it is printed on pink paper, was received by the Assessing Department Wednesday and is still being analyzed by Mayor Theodore Mann and his staff.

Mayor Mann may announce the effect of the good financial position of the city on the impending tax rate next week at a Sept. 4 meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

However, unless a supplemental cherry sheet is issued that assesses the city for overlooked or underassessed items, Newton owes the state $7.1 million and will get back in state aid and reimbursements $10.4 million.

The $10.4 million includes $1.1 million in new state aid this year, earmarked by Gov. Edward King for property tax reduction.

Newton also has the greatest surplus in history — $4.9 million. Not all of that amount can be spent, however. The "free cash" certified by the state — the amount a municipality may use for emergencies or to keep tax increases down — has usually been about $1.5 million less than the surplus, according to Comptroller Lawrence Marino.

The roughly $3 million increase in the FY80 budget over the FY79 budget, which would mean an increase of $7.50 on the tax rate (currently $170.40), could be offset by the use of the $1.1 million earmarked for property tax relief by the state and $2 million of the city's surplus funds.

Mayor Mann has been cautious about estimating the impact of the $10.4 million from the state because the debit figures had not been released by the state.

Mann said he was atraid of increases in assessments for the MBTA, the Metropolitan District Commission, and the operation of Middlesex County.

His fears were partially justified, since the MDC assessment for parks increased by $153,000 and the county assessment by $263,000 to nearly $1.5 million.

But the mayor's work over the past year in trying to correct incorrect practices in MBTA billing apparently paid off with a reduction of $316,000.

The largest increases in money to come from the state were in the school-aid column, with an increase of $315,442, and an increase of $751,603 in "local aid fund, additional assistance."

Another $32,000 was tossed for additional "highway fund."

School-related transportation got a $19,000 cut, but school-lunch assistance was given a $34,000 increase.

The Metco program was funded at the same level as last year, even though the program has expanded.

City officials are still double-checking the final city budget to make sure the $80 million is within the governor's 4 percent tax cap, as it appears to be very close.

If it is, the state can certify that figure and then the city can proceed to work out the FY80 tax rate, which should be set in early September.

Tax bills be be must be in the mail by Sept. 30.

Bus cost doubles

NEWTON — The School Committee Monday night voted unanimously to recommend awarding a contract for school bus service to the Transportation Management Corp., which now provides transportation for the city's special-needs students.

The contract will cost the city $407,000 more than the current contract which cannot be fulfilled.

In a separate vote, the Committee opted for a five-year contract by a margin of 6-1. Committeeman Alvin Mandell advocated a short-term contract so that the city would be free to arrange comprehensive bus service involving the schools, the city and the MBTA.

Support Services Director Roy Cornelius recommended TMC as "the lowest responsible bidder" in a field of three.

TMC will provide bus service to and from school at a cost of $126.70 per bus per day, which will put the cost of the first year of the contract at $775,000. This means exceeding the amount budgeted for transportation by $407,000. Mayor Theodore Mann is expected to make a request to the Board of Aldermen for a supplemental appropriation to cover the additional cost of the contract.

The Committee rejected a bid from the Vocell Bus Co., Inc. for $97 per bus per day for a one-year contract and $86 per bus per day for a three-year contract because the Vocell bid included several pages of exceptions to the contract specifications including escalation clauses for labor, insurance and fuel. Vocell was also unwilling to post a performance bond or cash security of $150,000 called for in the contract specifications.

Vocell offered instead to allow the city to withhold 10 percent of its invoices up to $40,000 to be held as surety.

Mayor Mann cautioned the Committee against accepting an "elastic" contract with Vocell and said the escalation clauses could put the Vocell contract above the other bids in a short time.

Joseph Connelly, president of Transit Bus Line, Inc. presented the Committee Monday night with an "explanation" of his company's bid which would have put it below TMC's by reducing the per bus cost by $24, but this reduction would be contingent on complete completing bus service in four hours rather than six.

The Transit bid offered a savings of $12 per hour if a bus were not used for the full six hours, but Cornelius pointed out that a saving of one hour per day would be necessary to bring the Transit bid down to the price offered by TMC. He also pointed out that the Transit bid includes escalation clauses for labor and fuel, but the TMC bid has only a fuel escalation clause.

'Boat people' find safe harbor here

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff writer

NEWTON— They were very tired but very happy, this family of twelve, when they stepped off TWA flight 754 into Logan Airport last Saturday. They were greeted by Newton Mayor Theodore Mann, two interpreters, three reporters, three photographers, and several others who just wanted to be on hand to greet them when they got off the plane.

The Te Chheng Heang family, Cambodian refugees and Newton's first "boat people," reacted quite calmly to the commotion that surrounded their arrival this past weekend. Except for one of the youngest ones who cried quietly from fatigue rather than fright, the others—a 62-year old grandmother, her four children, five grandchildren, and a daughter-in-law — smiled serenely at the chattering crowd around them.

The family arrived in the United States under the sponsorship of the Grace Episcopal Church, Eliot Church, and the United Presbyterian Church, all in Newton Corner. They had been in a refugee camp in Thailand where families who are chosen for sponsorship are promised that they may leave 30 days after the sponsorship comes through. Families that are not vouched for by church and relief organizations within a certain amount of time are shipped back to Vietnam by the Thais.

Sponsors are allowed to choose the kind of family that they want, said Andy Marshallof the Grace Episcopal Church. With help from the Boston Episcopal Diocese and the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief, the group found the family through the Church World Service.

"We asked them what kinds of families had the most problem relocating," said Mrs. Marshall, "and we were told that extended families have the most problem, so we told them we'd take one." The Te Chheng Heangs are an extended family, with its 12 members covering three generations.

About 50 to 60 people in Newton were involved in the project, half of whom do not belong to any of the sponsoring churches. The group has been working since May on the project, collecting clothes, toys for the children, bicycles, and gift certificates from local merchants for food and clothing. Charlie Ricci and Jim Moran, who own the Moore and Moore Paint and Wallpaper Co., have rented a three-bedroom apartment in Newton Corner for the family, although Mrs. Marshall said that they are going to try to get a larger apartment "depending on the housing situation."

There have also been job offers for some members of the family, as a result of several interviews with Mayor Theodore Mann on WEEI and WCRB. Yet the real obstacle is language. None of the members of the Te Chheng family speak English or French, which makes finding a job very difficult.

Efigenia Fernandez, of the Asian-American Service Center in Recycling pickup changes start

By BETSY LEWENBERG

NEWTON — Next Tuesday, Sept. 4, the Newton Recycling Program will initiate a new system for collection of recyclables. Glass and cans will be collected twice each month and newspapers tied in bundles — no magazines, phone books or paper bags — will be recycled each week on trash day.

Glass and can recycling will operate as follows: One pickup each month will be for clear glass and cans; the other will be colored glass and cans.

Half of Newton's households will have glass and cans collected for recycling on the first and third full weeks of the month (odd weeks) on regular trash day; the other half will be on a second and fourth week (even) schedule. Calendars being delivered to each household explain the schedules in detail.

Paper will continue to be collected weekly on trash day for recycling; however, only newspapers will be accepted for recycling. This means magazines, paper bags and phone books can no longer be recycled. Since paper bags cannot be recycled, newspapers cannot be placed in bags for recycling, but must be tied in bundles.

This revised system will enable Newton to continue to provide curbside recycling collection while at the same time reducing collection costs.

Since few of us place our bottles and cans at the curb for recycling each week, scheduling pickups on a rotating basis will reduce the number of trucks and workers needed for this collection and will save Newton $25,000 in collection costs.

Collection of newspapers without the inclusion of other kinds of paper will bring Newton additional revenue of approximately $8000, because the market value of newsprint is currently $4 per ton higher than that for mixed papers.

Newton's commitment to recycling remains unchanged. Recycling saves energy, natural resources, landfill space and, ultimately, money. Each ton recycled saves Newton $17 in hauling fees to an out-of-town dump.

Participation is essential to the success of the revised Newton Recycling Program. The greater the participation, the greater the revenues Newton receives for its recyclables.

If you have any questions regarding the new recycling system, call 552-7221.

Rosalind Johnson seeks nomination for Ward 3 School Committee

NEWTON — Rosalind E. Johnson, 98 Cherry St., West Newton, has announced her candidacy for School Committee from Ward 3.

Mrs. Johnson has been co-president of the Franklin School PTA, Chapter 766 Resource Person, and Metco representative. Her commitment to community involvement has led her to Institutional Representative, Pack 313, Boy Scouts, West Newton, and she most recently served as a member of the screening-advisory committee to choose the Metco Coordinator.

Her leadership roles include former vice president, Big Sister Association of Greater Boston; a term as chairperson, Harvard Business School Wives Association; member of PTA executive board of Shady Hill School.

Mrs. Johnson feels her church commitment is very important and has served as administrative assistant to the St. Paul A.M.E. Community Church School. She is a member of the National Honor Society and one of the finalists for Newton Jaycees Distinguished Service Award.

Her role as co-president of the Franklin School FTA has afforded her the opportunity to be involved with the PTA Council and exposed to many School Committee issues. On consolidation, Mrs. Johnson said there are two important factors. "I must be sensitive to the impact on the children and the plight of the taxpayer. I believe in keeping all schools open without burdening the taxpayer; this can be achieved by formulating viable alternatives such as multiple use of buildings."

She feels she must be highly concerned about both Chapter 766 and the "gifted child" and give equal consideration to both groups. "The concept of Chapter 766 can be effective and responsible if it has a constant monitor pursuing its needs and status, i.e., a subcommittee." As far as the gifted child is concerned, she feels that "the communication lines should continue to grow between this group and the School Committee."

The asbestos situation is a "dilemma which affects the health and safety of our children requires more than one professional opinion before any expenditure is approached," Mrs. Johnson said.

She feels that "after scrutinizing the budget, we should not fail to address reductions that would not penalize our children's educational program. For example, with declining enrollment are administrative positions declining at the same rate?"

Her decision to run for school committee came about because of her past and present leadership roles and a real desire to help make decisions from the top and most importantly to approach issues on the School Committee without alienating "religious, ethnic groups or villages." "I would like to bring some dignity and respect to the meetings and listen to all citizens. I will be an advocate for all Newton citizens."

Mrs. Johnson is married to Herbert G. Johnson, Jr., and has two sons. She is a graduate of Burdett College and attended Boston State College.

Her experience involving children includes remedial reading tutoring, camp administrator and presently special service assistant at the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center in the community evaluation and rehabilitation program with developmentally disabled children and adults.

Highlands residents knock Rte. 9 plan

NEWTON — State plans for the redesign of the Route 9-Eliot St.-Woodward St. intersection may be revised in light of criticism from Newton Highlands residents at a City Hall meeting last week.

Engineers with the Massachusetts Department of Public Works (MDPW) did not expect the opposition to the design they characterized as "75 percent approved."

The most vocal opponent of redesign was Leo Brown, a vice-president with Purity Supreme. The store is at the corner of Route 9 and Elliot St. and he said the traffic changes would have a disastrous economic impact on the supermarket.

MDPW District Traffic Engineer Alfred Laing said his department has been working on the design of the safety improvements for two years, and the objections to the plan should have been voiced at earlier meetings.

Several of the 10 residents at the meeting said they had offered similar suggestions at earlier meetings that state engineers had apparently disregarded.

If there are to be changes, Laing said, a city agency should propose specific alternatives.

The committee did not act on the state proposal. Acting committee Chairman Robert Sandman said there would be a public hearing on the intersection plan, but that the hearing should be delayed until the city can offer its own plan incorporating some of the suggestions from area residents.

Criticism was not restricted to the plan's effect on Purity Supreme, although the residents were clearly concerned the redesign might mean loss of the market, something Brown suggested was a strong possibility.

The market would lose curbcuts on Route 9 though the redesign, leaving entrances to the store parking lot on Elliot St. and Ramsdell Rd.

But residents also objected to creation of a one-way lane without signals to feed traffic from Elliot St. onto Route 9 in an eastbound direction.

Laing said traffic entering at that point would have an acceleration lane, and that a conduit would be installed under the road in case signals are needed later.

Without signals, the one-way lane could be difficult for pedestrians to cross, residents argued, and questioned the ease of turning left off Elliot St. across the lane.

The street will be wider after the redesign, Laing said, because most of the width of the existing island will be eliminated.

Cars now turn against on-coming traffic, he said, and the redesign will allow protected turns from Route 9, and protected U-turns.

Not protected, however, are cars turning onto Route 9 from Elliot or Woodward Sts. Also eliminated in the state plan is a cutoff from the westbound lane of Route 9 into Elliot St.

Laing said the state highway carries about 60,000 vehicles a day, and the Elliot-Woodward intersection has one of the highest accident rates all the intersections included in the state safety improvement program.

The accidents are not cuased by the cut-off into the Purity Supreme parking lot, or by unprotected turns, residents said, but because drivers run red lights.

By removing some of the island, a holding lane will be created for about 13 cars turning left to Elliot St.

Brown said "business today have to have volume sales or they close. The parking lot is inadequate now. If people can't get into the lot easily, they won't shop there."

Fair housing plan for city will monitor and inform

NEWTON — A "fair housing plan," required after Newton had a brush with a federal agency in 1976 over the lack of a real affirmative action program, promises increased information on and monitoring of housing activities by the city, and action where necessary.

The plan, released this week by Mayor Theodore Mann and Newton's affirmative action officer, Virgil Perez, was required by the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) after its review of the city's affirmative action plan for 1978. The affirmative action plan was ordered by the federal Office of Revenue Sharing.

According to commitments made in the plan, Newton will undertake a large public information effort.

Information to be provided to tenants, homeowners and landlords, and those looking for housing in Newton includes legal rights under state and federal law.

A housing information and referral system will be created to help people find housing.

Enforcement of housing codes will be stepped up, and rehabilitation, using community development loans and grants, will be actively encouraged.

The city will step up its monitoring of housing patterns in neighborhoods of Newton and will strengthen the complaint procedures about discrimination.

The Human Rights Commission has a complaint process, which includes subpoena power' but the commission is somewhat slow-acting and has very little money in its budget.

According to 1970 federal census figures, there were in Newton 3162 minority members, 34.5 percent of which were black, 42.2 percent Hispanic and 23.3 percent "other races."

There were seven census tracts (divisions) with a proportion of minority population greater than the city average.

One of the difficulties encountered in correcting the deficiency of minority employees on the city payroll was the cost and scarcity of housing in Newton, especially for less than high-income persons.

Rental housing accounts for only 29 percent of the city's housing units, according to the census figures. Rental units are concentrated in the north side of the city.

There were 653 units of housing receiving some kind of state or federal subsidy, the plan says, as of June 1979, but only 234 of these were not for elderly.

Oil dealers to meet with reps

NEWTON — The Newton legislative delegation, Rep. David Cohen, Rep. Joseph DeNucci, Rep. David Mofenson and Senator Jack Backman, has invited home heating fuel dealers to a meeting which will focus on the pressing issue of allocations to Newton dealers.

The meeting will be held Thursday, Sept. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grace Episcopal Church, 73 Eldredge St., in Newton.

The meeting will also discuss the current credit squeeze that has caused dealers to require payment on delivery because they are no long being extended credit by suppliers.

Rep. Cohen noted that because of the lack of credit being extended to dealers, as well as the decrease in allocations, dealers are being forced to make decisions as to who will receive heating oil and who will not.

"Obviously, a dealer will deliver to someone who can pay immediately if he knows his supplier is demanding cash on the barrelhead," Cohen said. "When it becomes a choice between an elderly person who cannot pay now and a family of eight that needs an extra month to pay, the dealers are forced into making a decision in which no one is a winner."

"Hopefully, we will receive input from the dealers that will help us in trying to solve their problems and in making this coming winter easier for consumers," Cohen said.

UAW rejects initial offers

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers union has declared unacceptable the initial contract offers from the top two U.S. automakers calling for substantial increases in wages, pensions and time off.

The offers and the union's rejection of them Tuesday opened a round of hard-nosed, closed-door bargaining to renew contracts for 750,000 U.S. auto workers. The agreements expire at midnight, Sept. 14.

Both sides declined to disclose details of the contract proposals from Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. UAW President Douglas Fraser said the offers were "parallel, but not identical."

Legislation could save money for municipalities

BOSTON — Legislation supported by Newton Reps. A. Joseph DeNucci, David Cohen, and David Mofenson to allow local city and town treasurers to invest the proceeds of tax anticipation notes has passed the House of Representatives and is now pending in the state Senate.

Representative DeNucci, who was instrumental in securing a favorable report for the bill from the House Ways and Means Committee, said, "Passage of this legislation will mean an additional $20,000 annually in income for the City of Newton. This is equivalent to about one dollar on the tax rate. In this time of inflation and soaring property taxes it is important that state officals do whatever they can to ease the burden upon residential property owners."

Representative Cohen explained that most cities and towns are required to take out short-term loans in anticipation of tax receipts in order to pay for current expenses. There is a lag time of up to 30 days from the date the loan proceeds are received by the city to the day these funds are expended by the city.

The legislation will allow the city to invest these funds during this interval. Since the city often borrows up to $4 million on a short-term basis, the interest generated by its investment, even for a few days, can be considerable.

Representative Mofenson commented that "this bill is a good example of the way in which a municipality can save money in a responsible fashion."

The bill is currently in the Senate Ways and Means Committee and will be taken up when the Legislature reconvenes in September.

West Newton gasoline spill tricky cleanup

NEWTON — About 200 gallons of gasoline leaked from a ruptured tank truck near West Newton Square Sunday night.

The spill required sophisticated clean-up proceedures.

The tank truck ripped open about 10:45 p.m. when it hit an exposed water line at the rear of the West Newton Mobil station at the corner of Chestnut and Washington Sts.

Police officers, firefighters, city workers, representatives of Mobil Oil Corp., and a pollution control team from Jet Services, Inc., helped control the spill.

Tank truck driver Hugh J. Keazar, 35, of Dover, told police he was driving into the rear of the station when the truck hit a water line on top of the ground.

Only one injury was reported. Worker John Cedrone, 68 Warwick Rd., Newton, was treated for gasoline in the face and eyes at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The Fire Department sent two ladders, three engines, and other equipment to the scene. The city Public Works Department was asked to supply sand, and Jet Services foamed and vacuumed the area.

Walsh Construction Co., the firm installing the water main, was notified, police said.

Alderman wants raise

NEWTON — Ald. Joseph DePasquale has introduced a measure before the Board of Aldermen to raise aldermanic salary from $1800 a year to $3600.

Under the city ordinances, any pay raise approved in a municipal election year must be voted by Sept. 30 by the Board.

DePasquale's measure, not yet heard by any committee, would need a two-thirds vote of the Board to bypass the committee procedure. If it does not, there is little chance of its passage.

The Board of Aldermen was unpaid until 1974' when a citizens' committee appointed jointly by the mayor and the Board recommended $1200 a year. The Board kept that compensation until 1977, when another committee recommended an increase to $1800 for the Board and $37,500 for the mayor.

A move by Ald. Ethel Sheehan and Robert Sandman in 1978 to cut the compensation in half — down to $900 — was defeated.

Ald. Mark White, a proponent of higher salary, said this week that Newton has the lowest-paid city council of any Massachusetts community. That was not true in 1977.

The matter will be brought up at the Sept. 4 meeting of the full Board.

Newton Centre bus will get ax from 'T'

NEWTON-- The end of the line is near for MBTA bus service from Newton Centre to Forest Hills (via Chestnut Hill) and another bus run from the Dedham Mall to Watertown Square will soon be limited.

The Newton to Forest Hills route is one of 11 runs slated for elimination. The Watertown Square-Dedham service cutback is one of 15 such moves throughout the 'T' system.

MBTA Chairman Robert Foster said the austerity move was prompted by a recent reduction in the 'T' 1979 supplementary budget. That budget was slashed by $15,700,000.

The changes in service are set to go into effect Oct. 8. First, public hearings must be held on the cutbacks.

Foster said the 11 routes to be eliminated are currently 'extraordinarily expensive to operate,and have a very low revenue to cost ratio.'

The Watertown-Dedham Mall service will be maintained enough 'to meet the needs of the riders,'Foster said.It and 14 other routes were not eliminated because of special circumstances,added Foster.

Many students ride the Watertown-Dedham bus.

Although the public will be allowed to speak out on the changes,the MBTA has final say over service matters and it is not likely that the decisions to cut back will be reversed.

Apartments for Carr?

NEWTON — Even though Carr School in West Nonantum has another school year of life, the Planning Department has issued a report on possible reuse of the building and the mandated citizen advisory group has gone into action to decide its fate.

The Planning Department report says the school, on Nevada Street between Linwood Avenue and California Street, is a good candidate for multifamily housing. It could house 12 to 18 apartments.

According to the Planning Department analysis, the building is very adaptable to housing because of its internal layout but will require "significant" alteration to comply with building codes for residential use.

The Carr School Joint Planning Advisory Group will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 13, in Room 202, City Hall.

Community use of the Carr School now consists of Recreation Department programs nearly every night; extensive community school programs for children and teenagers; and Cub Scout and Brownie meetings and programs.

The advisory group on the disposition of the old Murray Road School, closed two years ago but used in the interim by CETA, will meet Sept. 11 at 7:30 at City Hall.

Mayflower Chapter to meet Sept. 5

Mayflower Chapter, B'nai B'rith Women, will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at Temple Beth Shalom, Highland Avenue, Needham.

At 6:30 p.m., those who have made reservations will be served dinner . Following dinner, door prizes, coupons, recipes, and samples will be distributed. Mrs. Rosalind Frutkoff of Newton is president of Mayflower Chapter.

And he makes house calls

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff writer

NEWTON— The phone rings in the doctor's office during the middle of the day. He answers it and greets the caller amicably and you find yourself listening in on his end of the conversation, despite your initial impulse to sing Broadways hits to yourself in is your head while he on the phone.

"Hello, there! What can I do for you?" he starts off. "You don't think you feel well enough to come in? What seems to be the problem?"

He sounds truly concerned and his brow is wrinkled as he concentrates on what the caller is saying.

"I'll tell you what," he continues. "You make yourself a cup of tea and I'll be come over to see you when I leave here this evening, O.K.?"

This may not seem believable to most of you, but the doctor is real, the patient is real, even the scene is real.

Dr. Gus Laurenzi, Internist of the Year, and president-elect of the staff at Newton-Wellesley Hospital gets as many as 12 of these kinds of calls every week and he responds to all of them. Even though this is about 12 times more response than some doctors will give, Laurenzi is very matter-of-fact about his attentiveness.

"I have some patients who are just too sick to come in to see me," he explained one day in his office. "I also have patients on respirators in their homes so it's better that I visit them. Of course, I can't understand the doctor who makes excessive house calls because there really isn't much that he can do. I would also be concerned about a doctor who says he does not go to see his patients if it is better for him to do that. I am going to go see the woman who just called me because she is too sick to drive herself over here and I also know her well enough to be able to evaluate her problem during a house call." Laurenzi's concern for his patients is reflected in the honors that have been bestowed upon hin in recent months. He was voted Internist of the Year by the Massachusetts Society of Internal Medicine, and at the beginning of the year his patients created a living fund in his name which cited his "personal care, constant availability, and medical knowledge." He is also president-elect of the staff at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, where he is also chief of pulmonary medicine.

"There is no greater personal tribute to a doctor than that which comes from his patients," said Laurenzi, "and no greater professional tribute than that which comes from his colleagues." Despite the fact that he is in the spotlight, he feels that it is more a tributeto the hospital than it is to him, and in the past years he has tried to make the public aware of the caliber of the medical treatment that is available to them at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

"In the past years the medical profession has taken on a very cold-hearted treatment," he said' "but it is not that way in Newton. If I am honored for my services, then it honors the community. My colleagues live up to their obligation to the hospital and to the community. They are dedicated to what they are doing."

Laurenzi's own work is mainly in pulmonary medicine . His patients are those who have cancer or lung-related illnesses, although he also works in primary medicine which deals with a variety of problems. He enjoys the spectrum of experience that this area of medicine gives him because he is "able to answer the smallest needs of the patients and make difficult decisions."

All of this means that Dr. Laurenzi sees and talks to a great many patients. He is never "off-duty" and will see the someone the same day if necessary. This has helped the doctor build up quite a rapport with his patients, which is why some of them call up from as far away as Holland to ask for his advice.

"The relationship between a doctor and his patient is very important," said Laurenzi. "The two can be warm and friendly with one another and this helps the process a great deal, yet there are some people who just can't establish that kind of relationship. The doctor should realize that this is a difficult time for the patient. He is sick and worried and sees things in a 8 distorted way. The patient in turn should accept the fact that the doctor cannot have all the answers. It is hard, for example, to deal with the reality of cancer. How do you do that?"

When Laurenzi is not making house calls or working at the hospital, he is at Tufts University in Medford, where he and several of his colleagues are professors of medicine. He has also taught at such veritable institutions as Columbia, Yale, Harvard, and the New Jersey College of Medicine.

Taking care of patients is his first love, though, whether they are patients at the hospital or not. Last year, at the request of an ethnic group in Newton, Laurenzi and two other doctors set up a clinic in order to treat about 90 people in the area. The practice was dissolved after a year because the doctors had met the needs of the patients and the clinic was no longer necessary.

"There is no better community care of patients in Boston than what goes on at this hospital," he stresses. "We are a medical center to a community and we are also a teaching hospital, which a lot of people in Newton don't realize. We have an affiliation with Tufts Medical School and a corps of our physicians have a professorial rank there."

Newton police have suspects in robberies

NEWTON — Police are expected to seek complaints in connection with one of two armed robberies in the city in the last week.

Police brought a complaint Friday in Newton District Court in connection with the holdup of Powers Package Store, 1191 Centre St. last week. A lone gunman took an undetermined amount of cash in that robbery.

Sunday the Med-X Store, 200 Boylston St., was held up about 12:50 p.m., and $150 in cash was taken at gunpoint. Police reportedly have a suspect in that robbery and are expected to seek complaints shortly.

After approaching the counter at the Med-X Store to buy a greeting card, the suspect pointed a shotgun at the clerk from under a jacket and said "This is a holdup. Give me all the money."

After taking the bills from the register, the man was seen walking on Route 9 eastbound.

Police believe the gunman may have escaped in a cream colored car in the direction of Brookline.

RSVP gets federal grant

WEST NEWTON — ACTION, the federal agency for voluntary service, has awarded a grant of $36,190 to continue its support of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) at the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

The grant enables the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. to fund 450 RSVP volunteers, age 60 and over, who remain active contributors to their communities through volunteer work in schools, nursing homes, hospitals, and other community service agencies.

Priscilla Cobb Payne, the advisory council chairperson, and Barbara Ireland, the project director, help coordinate the project along with Donald Wright, ACTION district director.

More than 16,000 New Englanders have volunteered for RSVP in the past year, 5238 in Massachusetts. Currently, there are 12 other RSVP projects across the state.

Retired persons, age 60 and over, can serve on a regular basis in their communities under the auspices of an established organization such as the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. RSVP funding provides guidance, support, training, placement, meals, transportation and insurance for volunteers.

For more information about RSVP, or other volunteer programs, such as Foster Grandparent, Senior Companions, Peace Corps or VISTA, contact your local ACTION office.

Social Security in more trouble

The Social Security System continues to slide into deep trouble. Joseph Califano, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, reports that currently five working Americans are paying taxes for every one receiving benefits. But in the next couple of decades it will be a ratio of three to one.

As almost everyone on payrolls must realize, the percentage of one's pay being deducted has been rising. Benefits have also increased, up almost 10 percent in the last year. Increases in payments are supposed to keep up with consumer price increases.

But the problem is how to ease deductions from young families and meet the increasing costs of the retired. Since everyone is being hit with inflation, there's as big a burden upon the wage earner as upon the elderly.

In reality the Social Security System is not an assured insurance policy. Congress could cut off the benefits at any time. Receiving those benefits depends upon continued payments by the next generations. But can they afford them?

There have been suggestions upon how to ease the burden. General tax revenues might be used. Some arrangement in which payroll taxes are credited against income taxes has also been proposed.

The real question is how far the Social Security program can go and still be fair to both workers and the retired.

Shah chuckling?

Former Shah of Iran must be chuckling. It appears that all Iranians are not enthused about their new government—whatever kind it is.

There were some 2,000 supporters of the Ayatollah Khomeini taking part in a demonstration last Sunday. But there were also 100,000 protesters. The latter didn't like the press censorship, the restrictions for women, the hard lines set down by Khomeini on the use of alcohol, mixed company entertainment and other strict Muslim prohibitions. They probably also wanted to hear some music again on Iranian radio stations.

The new press code sets up fines and imprisonment for anyone who criticizes any recognized religions in Iran. Newspaper publishers must be Iranian and "morally fit." The new code is supposed to be "necessary to govern relations between the people and the press." In other words, don't let the people know what is going on.

American authorities, still permitted in Iran, seem to be handling a difficult situation with aplomb. There was a confrontation at the U.S. Embassy between Khomeini's Revolutionary Council and security men sent in by the government—appointed by Khomeini. There appears to be some lack of coordination. In fact, there appears to be general chaos.

U.S. Embassy personnel kept a low profile.

We also hope they keep their heads down. And where are all those Iranian students in the United States now who were campaigning against the former shah and in favor of civil and human rights?

Apartment-hunting in Boston

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN

I recently had the pleasure of looking for an apartment in the Boston area, an experience that is not unlike looking for a needle in the proverbial haystack. I also made the interesting discovery that the difficulty did not seem to be the result of any kind of housing shortage; rather, it stemmed from the fact that landlords do not like a lot of types of people. The people that they do not like comprise about 99 per cent of the population.

Take, for example, students. Most landlords won't, which is why I had so much trouble finding a place to live. My future roommate will be a student at UMass-Boston this fall. This alone was enough to make the real estate agents that we approached look at us with pity and start shuffling through their listings in Roxbury, Mattapan, and the YWCA.

Then there is the fact that I hadn't even been working long enough to know what my phone number was at my office, and the kinds of people that landlords like are those who have made their first million long ago.

Now, my roommate and I are good, responsible women of principle.

So we decided to lie.

The first agent to fall victim to our relentless tactics looked younger than both of us but a lot tougher. We told her our story, that I had a job and that my friend would be working and going to school part time. Without . lifting a finger or batting an eye she presented us with the verdict.

"All you're going to find is junk."

We decided to do a few quick revisions on our story and by the time we walked into the next real estate agency, my friend had become a typist at a company a few towns away and my salary had jumped substantially.

This time we even got to look at an apartment and fill out some applications. We weren't quite sure if the agent bought our story' which he probably couldn't hear over the sounds of our knees shaking, but he could see our frustration when we looked at the application and saw that we had to have: two employer references, three previous landlord references, personal references, and several credit references.

"How in heaven's name are we supposed to get a first apartment if we had to have had one already to be able to furnish a reference ?" we asked this poor guy. "And how are we supposed to able to give credit references if we've never had enough money to try and establish credit?" Of course, we didn't mention employer references, which my friend had skillfully fabricated, taking the lead from my own application.

Well, as it turns out, the agent must have either needed the commission something fierce or else he's a terrific salesman, because he convinced the landlord that we were good enough for the apartment, even though our applications made us look like we were on the lam for some unsavory reason.

On the way back to the agency we discussed with him our problems of not being able to prove ourselves with dozens of references. His advice to us was that we would be better off and more believable if we got ourselves some credit cards so that we would be able to establish credit.

"Of course, you're going to have to lie to get them. You'd never get one if you told the truth," he said. I couldn't be sure, but I think I may have seen a faint smile as he said this.

Well, with a permanent address and so my own mailbox, the first thing I did was go out and buy myself a magazine subscription. I was lucky in this respect. The week before I had received a letter from Newsweek entitling me to their special student rates. I paid 29 cents an issue instead of the regular subscription price of about 50 cents. After all, one of us is a student.

Our PLO policy doomed to failure

Analysis by Joseph Kraft

The futile debate at the United Nations shows that the Carter administration's latest effort to engage the Palestine Liberation Organization never had a chance. But why did the president and all his advisers — including Robert Strauss — embark upon a policy foredoomed to failure? And what is the cost?

The reason the initiative could not succeed lies in the basic political scene in the Near East. That scene is now dominated by the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty which has set in motion an ongoing process of political, diplomatic and commercial ties.

To be sure, progress in one area — achieving autonomy for the Palestinian Arabs — has been slow. The Israelis and the Egyptians have not found it easy to define autonomy. The local Arabs, in keeping with the contention of the PLO that the treaty sells out their rights, have boycotted the negotiations.

Still the talks continue. Some Palestinians might eventually join. An offer of territory on the West Bank might eventually prompt King Hussein of Jordan to enter the negotiations as surrogate for the Palestinians. These possibilities depend less on Israel and Egypt than upon the staying power of the Arab groups banded together against the peace treaty in the "rejectionist front."

The rejectionist front has its cutting edge in the PLO. But the base of PLO strength is the connection with Syria and Iraq.

Apart from providing shelter, finance, arms and access to Moscow and other radical Arab states, the radical regimes in Damascus and Baghdad back up PLO threats to make trouble for conservative regimes in the Persian Gulf, especially Saudi Arabia. Thus after meetings in Baghdad last fall and spring, the Saudis joined the rejectionists in sanctions aimed against Egyptian follow-through in the treaty with Israel.

In the past few months, however, the Baghdad connection has started to unravel. The inability of the Ayatollah Khomeini to stabilize Iran has brought troubles to neighboring Iraq. The Iraqi leader, Saddam Hussein, has instituted a kind of coup which poisons relations with Syria.

The PLO, with the sands shifting against it, was in no position to take a moderate stance regarding Israel. Thus on Aug. 10 the PLO Central Commission met in Damascus and voted against any UN resolution that did not acknowledge the right to a Palestinian state.

The tough stand of the PLO obliged the Israelis to resist the American effort. The Egyptians also had to refuse the gambit. Hence the U.S. found itself backing a maneuver rejected by the PLO and both Egypt and Israel.

Part of the reason, no doubt, is that the president, Secretary of State Vance, the National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Ambassador Andrew Young have always believed in bringing the PLO into the diplomatic process. In addition there has been a misreading of conditions in Saudi Arabia.

Early in July, as an Independence Day gift to President Carter, the Saudis raised oil exports from 8.5 to 9.5 million barrels a day. That move was accompanied by Saudi urging that Washington make accommodations with the PLO.

A realistic reading of that exhortation is that the Saudis wanted credit in Syria and Iraq and with the PLO for doing their bit for the cause. But the Carter administration, including Ambassador Strauss, took the Saudis at face value. As a means of currying favor in Riyadh,

O'Neill he just gets even

Analysis by Ken Cafarell
UPI state house reporter

BOSTON (UPI) — With the savvy a man who has been schooled in the realities of politics by the best of teachers, Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill has served notice he is not to be taken lightly — by Gov. Edward J. King or anyone else.

O'Neill, growing more and more frustrated because he has been kept out the administration's decision-making process, last week declared his independence of the governor and, at the same time, served notice he is not totally at King's fiscal mercy.

He also provided himself with a solid platform from which to seek higher office three and a half years from now by saying he would follow his own "agenda" on two issues, housing and energy, regardless of King's wishes.

Although the governor and lieutenant governor are selected independently in the Massachusetts primary system, King controls the purse strings for both offices and thereby determines how much staff and how much operating money his second-in-command will have.

The Massachusetts Constitution sets forth only two duties for the lieutenant governor: to preside over the Executive Council in the absence of the governor and to assume the reins of power in the absence or death of the governor.

All other activities of the lieutenant governor are usually defined by the incumbent governor.

Under former Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, O'Neill was a key advisor and an extraordinarily successful money raiser for the state.

Unabashedly ready to use the influence and advice of his father, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., whose political know-how is unquestioned, the lieutenant governor doubled the amount of federal dollars coming into the state.

King's stunning upset of Dukakis in the November primary while O'Neill ran unopposed created a strange situation.

King was regarded by many Democrats as having abandoned "traditional" party positions on welfare, abortion, capital punishment, and state spending in favor of more conservative, Republican-like positions.

O'Neill refused to back down from his liberal positions on those issues and stalled for weeks before issuing an unequivocal statement of support for King.

The differences between the two men flared again shortly after King was inaugurated, when O'Neill appeared before an irate group of welfare demonstrators at the Statehouse and said he did not support the governor's proposals to trim welfare spending.

King responded to the criticism at a news conference by saying he would discuss the issue with O'Neill "when I bump into him on the elevator," an out-of-hand dismissal of the lieutenant governor's opinions.

King recently relieved O'Neill of his duties as the state's liason with the New England Regional Commission, a move that cost O'Neill's office $25,000 in federal funds.

O'Neill struck back Thursday by securing a $300,000 grant from the Department of Energy to help city and town officials plan energy conservation programs and publicly declaring his independence of the governor.

Normally, such grants are channelled through the governor, but in this case the money was awarded directly to O'Neill's office. If he can continue to secure federal money that way, O'Neill will have considerably diminished King's control over him.

O'Neill went out his way several times Thursday to deny any personal ill feeling toward King, saying a number of times "I never get personal."

Nevertheless the wording of his statement was somewhat less than careful of the governor's sensitivities, containing a number of thinly veiled references to criticisms previously leveled at King.

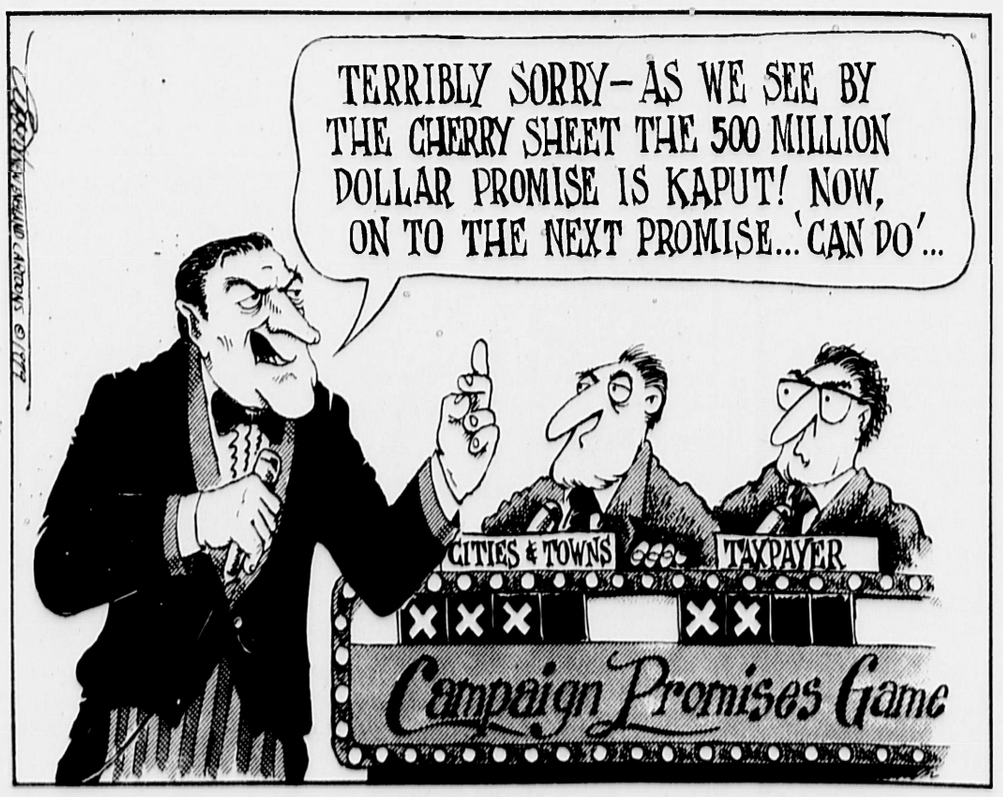

"Given the mood of the country ... federal dollars are harder to get. The citizens of the commonwealth cannot afford on-the-job-training in this important post," said O'Neill, using the same phraseology King critics used to unflatteringly describe the governor's first months in office.

"The door to the lieutenant governor's office will always be open," he said in a clear reference to charges King's office door has been anything but open.

"There is a final part of my agenda for the next three and a half years. It was part of my first term and will always remain a part of Tom O'Neill's agenda. I'm talking about the principles of the Democratic Party," he said, touching another sore spot.

Asked what he would do if King told him he was hindering the administration's plans, O'Neill said, "I would hate to do it, because it would be interpreted as something personal — and I never get personal — but I'd have to say 'so what.'"

While the level of the feud is up for debate, one thing appears obvious. The lieutenant governor may not get personal — but he does get even.

SALT II invites attack

To the Editor:

While the proposed SALT II treaty has numerous questionable provisions, some facts of vital concern are not being openly discussed, and at least one section has strong potential for inviting nuclear attack on mainland USA.

Article IX, subparagraph 1 (a) provides that neither side will deploy long-range ballistic missiles at sea in other than submarines. This provision imposes a significant disadvantage on the USA with nuch less land on which to deploy weapons.

The Soviet land area is about 8.6 million miles, the U.S. only 3.6, which gives the Soviets a 2.4-1 superiority for nuclear missile deployment. To compensate for our lack of land-deployment area we must preserve our right to use the seas in our national interest..

Any agreement with a superior land power to restrict our freedom to use the seas — whether banning nuclear weapons on the seabed, demilitarizing the Indian Ocean or barrieg ICBMs on ships at sea — sharpens and perpetuates the strategic importance of the Soviet superiority in land area.

The deterrent MX or other ICBM on U.S. soil invites a Soviet first-strike attempt to wipe out our retaliatory power and, with fallout carried eastward, would also annihilate millions of civilians. Basing ICBMs at sea would separate military from civilian targets. SALT II as written restricts our historic freedom to use the seas for appropriate defensive purposes and would reduce the danger of a surprise attack on U.S. territory.

I implore your readers to urge our legislators to delete Artice IX Subparagraph 1 (a) from the draft treaty before consideration of ratification.

Push bills

To the Editor:

To talk about nursing homes is to run the risk of being boring. Perhaps the ennui associated with this topic is one reason why S1855, the nursing home receivership bill, and H6070, the patient abuse reporting bill, are still on the desks of a couple of legislators rather than being before Governor King for his signature.

The recent success of the Patient Rights Act gives some cause for hope, but more than just hope is needed. Now is the time for people to shake off their lethargy and use some of their energy to convince their state senators and representatives that they should support the better care and treatment of nursing home residents by pushing for the passage of these two important bills.

Drinan bill 'pig in poke'

To the Editor:

The House Judiciary Subcommittee, under the leadership of Rep. Robert Drinan (D-Mass.), announced that it is ready to begin hearings on its bill, the Revised Criminal Code, on Sept. 6 in Washington, D.C.

Protests are heard from all over (especially from Massachusetts) that it is almost impossible to get a printed copy of this bill. How can civil rights groups express an opinion on a bill that they cannot read beforehand? It's like buying a pig in a poke! (Maybe that's the name of the game.) And where is the voice of labor, whose rights are seriously threatened?

All concerned citizens should write to the House Judiciary Sub-Committee asking for (1) a copy of the revised criminal code; (2) the postponement of the scheduled September hearings; (3) regional hearings on the bill.

Rep. Drinan expects to run for reelection in 1980, but now many constituents have doubts. We can't accept a bill that we haven't read!

Write: Rep. Robert Drinan, Ch. House Judiciary Sub-committee, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Boys help

To the Editor:

I'd like to tell the people of Newton about four young boys who are doing something important and worthwhile for the Newton Community.

After being informed about the Newton recycling program, Joe Scanlon, Bobby Powell, Joey Powell, and Aaron Clark have been collecting bottles and cans in the wooded area surrounding their school, the Bowen School. They separate colored glass from clear glass and put the marked containers out on trash day to be picked up.

It is too bad so many people carelessly discard these bottles and cans on the ground, but I'm pleased that these neighborhood children are doing something to combat pollution. If only Governor King had passed the bottle bill, these ambitious boys could also be earning money!

I hope parents and teachers will follow the lead of these four boys and will encourage their children or students to join in the recycling program to create a safer, cleaner, and more pleasant environment.

Social Security to extend local service

NEWTON — In order to extend service for the Newton community, effective Monday, Sept. 10, a Social Security representative will be at the Newton Community Service Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton, on Mondays and Fridays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

A representative from the Social Security office at 625 Mt. Auburn St., Cambridge, will be on duty to administer the Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, and Medicare programs.

The Social Security office is also expanding hours at the Newton City Hall each Thursday. The hours will now be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. with no closing period for lunch.

Heritage Museum to start teachers' workshops program

LEXINGTON — The Museum of Our National Heritage, a museum of American history located in Lexington, announces the start of its schools services program. Teachers of elementary, secondary, and college age students who would like to learn about the museum's exhibits, tour programs for students, and free-loan resource materials are invited to sign up for special workshops which will be held at the museum on Sept. 25, from 9:30 to 11 a.m., and on Sept. 26, from 3:15 to 4:30 p.m.

Registration for the workshops opens Sept. 3. Persons wishing to attend may call the museum's education director' Marcy Wasilewski, at 861-6559. Admission to the workshops is free. Teachers who cannot attend the workshops may request information be sent to them by writing to Ms. Wasilewski at the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett Rd., P.O. Box 519, Lexington, Ma 02173.

Brandeis adult education courses start Sept. 17

WALTHAM — Dozens of courses embracing a spectrum of contemporary and historical topics make up the fall edition of Brandeis University's adult education program, which begins Sept. 17 and continues through mid-November.

Boston architecture, poetry, the universe, yoga for physical fitness, the American woman, business law, literature and career planning are among the subjects featured in the program taught by Brandeis faculty and guest lecturers.

The fall schedule also includes two separate, special offerings, "Energy Conservation: Practical Alternatives to the Poorhouse" and "Yiddish Film and Lecture Series.".

The energy lectures will be held Tuesdays Oct. 9 through Nov. 20 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The film series is co-sponsored by the American Jewish Historical Society and is scheduled Tuesdays, Oct. 2-30, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Adult education courses have no prerequisites and are offered on a noncredit basis. Certificates of attendance will be available to participants upon request.

Tuition and registration information may be obtained by calling 647-2796.

Job skills seminar offered by JVS

BOSTON — The Jewish Vocational Service, 31 New Chardon St., will hold a job skills seminar for college graduates and unemployed professionals on Wednesday, Sept. 12, from 9:30 to 4 p.m.

The seminar will focus on helping prospective professionals to maximize their job-finding potential through instructions on how to construct a more effective resume, how to create a positive impression in an interview, and how to utilize the "hidden job market."

Cost for the job skills seminar is $10, which includes registration and materials. Preregistration by Sept. 5 is necessary. For further information and reservations, call JVS at 723-2846.

Museum school registration Sept.10

LINCOLN — Class registration for DeCordova Museum courses begins Sept. 10. In addition to the classes the school has offered in past semesters, the Museum School is featuring some new courses. Classes will include intensive workshops in portrait painting, classes in basic Chinese art, exploring drawing media, outdoor-indoor drawing, and an open etching workshop.

New courses for children include calligraphy for kids, puppetmaking, and "Triple Art Exposure," a child's introduction to anatomy, sculpture and painting.

The DeCordova Museum fall program will include over 100 classes for adults, teens and children. For a class schedule, and further information about courses, call the school, 259-0505.

Philadelphia, says that most of the refugees that have been coming into the country are uneducated, yet skilled workers.

"They want to work to support themselves, but they feel frustrated because they don't know the language," said Mrs. Fernandez, whose job is to help refugees with jobs, education, and housing until they no longer need to remain under sponsorship. "The average length of time that most families stay with a sponsor is six months, but I too knew one Laotian family who was on its own in 10 days."

Mayor Mann emphasized, "While there were volunteer interpreters on hand to greet the family on arrival at the airport, there is an additional need for interpreters on an on-going basis. Those individuals who wish to volunteer their services, who can speak the Cambodian dialect, ethnic Chinese, or Khmer should contact Mrs. Marshall at 527-2988 or the mayor's office at 552-7100."

According to Mrs. Marshall, the family is now "doing very well indeed. They are still tired but fitting in most beautifully." Although most of the work of getting the family settled has already been done by volunteers like Jan Morgan, Aargot Berg, Aida Mitchell, Jane Merrill, and Tony and Bonnie Armer, there is still much more to be done in the future. There are "definite" plans for bringing other families to the Newton area, said Mrs. Marshall.

"We want this to be a blueprint of more success so that other churches can see how easy it is," she continued.

Rev. Thomas Lehman of Grace Church praised the volunteers as "hard-working people." He was also on hand to greet the family at Logan.

Both the mayor and Mrs. Marshall have urged the people of Newton to "get involved" and help other volunteers with fund-raising efforts and other assistance.

"Many people are well-intentioned," said Mann, "but it takes one to be a catalyst and Andy is a catalyst. Yet it is a humanitarian effort that does not stop here."

Conservatory adult education courses

BOSTON — The Extension Division of the New England Conservatory of Music will hold its adult education classes for 1979-80 Tuesday evenings beginning Sept. 11 at the Park School, 171 Goddard Ave., Brookline.

The program will include courses in chamber music, music appreciation, music theory, teacher workshops and vocal and instrumental performance ensembles, designed to accommodate students at all levels of interest and ability.

The cost of the 30-week program includes a $25 registration fee plus tuition, which varies according to course content. Ample free parking is available at the Park School. Free minibus shuttle service will be provided connecting with the Arborway and the Riverside MBTA lines.

Curriculum brochures and registration forms are available on request from the New England Conservatory Extension Division Office; call 262-1120, ext. 365.

Williams dreams of stadium

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Washington attorney Edward Bennett Williams says he has a dream to build a "magnificent domed stadium" for his new sports team, the Baltimore Orioles, it was reported Tuesday.

Williams, who bought the American League franchise four weeks ago, also told WMAR-TV that he believes the support of the team by Baltimore fans is "not a passing fancy" and reaffirmed his decision not to move the team to Washington.

Mofenson bill expands role of psychologists in mental health

BOSTON — Legislation which will improve the quality of mental health care by providing psychologists with expanded roles in commitment proceedings has been enacted by the Legislature and sent to the governor for his signature.

Sponsored by Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) and Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Newton), co-chairmen of the Joint Legislative Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, the legislation is the result of months of negotiation between psychologists and psychiatrists, and was supported by members of both the Massachusetts Psychological Association and Massachusetts Psychiatric Society.

Under the new law, psychologists will be able to sign what is known as a "pink slip" which allows for the commitment of a person who is considered dangerous to himself or to others. Currently only police officers and physicians are permitted to sign such papers. Before any admission, however, a person is required to receive a physical examination.

The legislation also provides that at Bridgewater State Hospital only, a psychologist may do court— ordered exams to determine if the initial observation period may be extended.

Mofenson said, "We are certainly pleased that many members of the psychological and psychiatric professions have been able to reach agreement on this important legislation. Both groups are satisfied that sufficient safeguards are in existence so that the high standards which the psychiatrists have established will not be diminished."

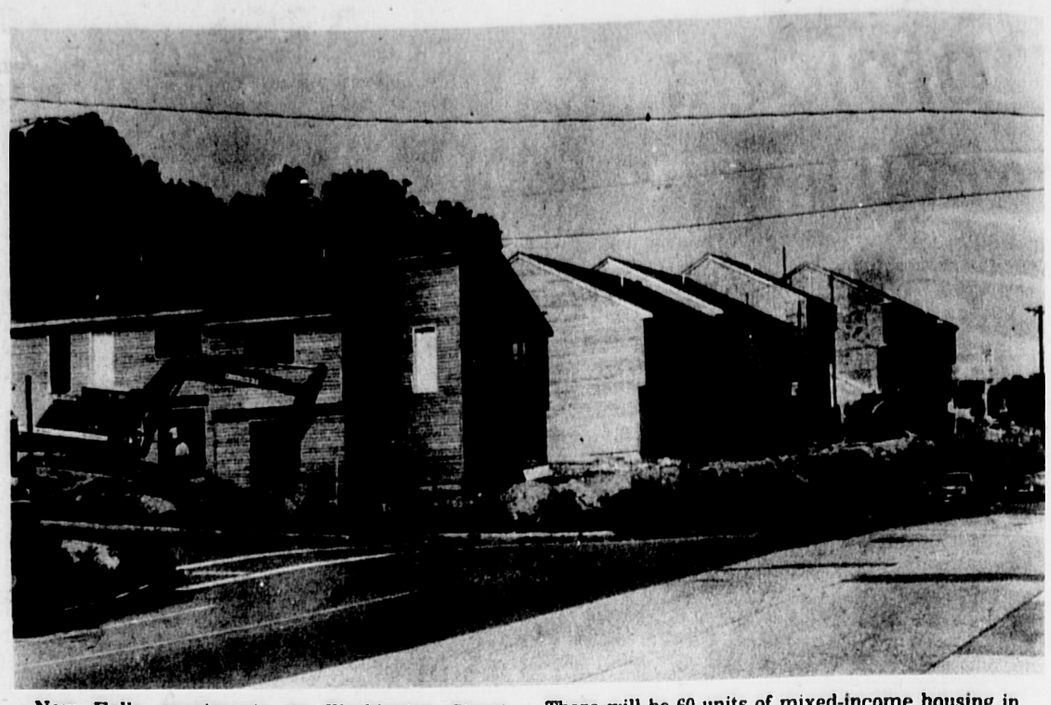

Backman said, "Police officers and physicians are, more often than not, unhappy with the role of signing commitment papers. This bill, when signed into law, will insure that competent, professionally trained and experienced psychologists will be able to make a determination before any 'pink slips' are signed."

Mofenson noted, "At Bridgewater State Hospital, a program in collaboration with McLean Hospital already uses the services of highly qualified psychologists, many of whom are already doing what this bill permits, except they cannot sign the papers. It seems logical that the person making the evaluation be the one who signs the papers."

Local man to present check on telethon

OAK HILL — Bob Katz of 35 Marvin Lane will present a check for approximately $10,000 at 10:45 a.m. on the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy to be broadcast locally by WCVB-TV, Channel 5.

The money was raised at a Dance Marathon for Muscular Dystrophy hosted by Northeastern University April 28-29 at the Boston Arena. Katz is vice president of the Northeastern University Student Union, which with representatives of Boston University and MIT organized and ran the event.

New Falls apartments on Washington Street, Lower Falls, have taken shape over the summer. There will be 60 units of mixed-income housing in the former Lower Falls redevelopment area.

TV THE FAMILY VIEWPOINT

Archie Bunker's appeal

by Beatrice Gross

Many of my friends—well educated, well off and "liberal"—laugh out loud, as I do, at 'All in the Family.' When CBS first telecast the show, critics were appalled that a popular program seemingly pandered repressed racism.

Lately, I've been watching reruns to determine the basis of my enjoyment, and I'm glad to report that what's most funny is not Archie's ethnic slurs. The humor does tap our repressed unconscious feelings, but not those of hate for people Archie hates or even of Archie's "hard-hat" mentality. I think we laugh at his inability to step away from his personal point of view.

The term is egocentrism—seeing everything from the point of view of how it affects you, rather than thinking how it would feel to be in the other person's shoes. Egocentrism is not being aware that a cause-and-effect cycle exists outside of your needs, desires or immediate perceptions.

When Archie wants to do something, he claims that history is on his side. "Until they got axes, spears and guns to bring people around," he argues, "the Christian missionaries dragged them out of the trees into the river 'til they saw the light. You got to use force. That's the Christian way." In this case, Archie wants to use force, so he builds a distorted rationale to support his impulses.

Archie answers Edith's plea that he give to the poor by saying, "To hell with the poor . . . my head hurts." For him, the highest order of life is his comfort and his needs. The same selfish pattern is repeated when a person in trouble sits in Archie's chair; Archie wants his chair back so badly he can't hear what the person is saying.

Almost all of Archie's history and sociology is distorted by his tunnel-narrow vision of the world. All of us as children were similarly self-centered, but overcame that narrowness as adults. Archie has not overcome it. The child in us identifies with Archie. The adult in us identifies with Mike, his "meathead" son-in-law who does seek a higher order of behavior. And we can empathize with Edith, who as a "dingbat" earth mother, respects and loves others.

What makes this series interesting is what makes living in a family interesting—the dynamic interplay of sharing and self-assertion, the day-to-day struggle to gain maturity.

Beatrice Gross has written extensively on children and education.

Merchants ask 3-hour meters

NEWTON — Newton Centre businessmen would like to remove all the 12-hour parking meters from the Cypress St. municipal lot.

In place of the all-day meters, the Newton Centre Association for Commerce would install three-hour meters designed for customers rather than Newton Centre employees and commuters.

The city Traffic Commission is recommending removing some of the 12-hour meters from the Cypress St. lot while increasing the number of 12-hour meters at the Pelham St.-Pleasant St. municipal lot.

The commission concluded the three-hour meters belong near Cypress St. and the shops in that area.

The aldermanic Public Safety and Transportation Committee has asked the commission for a clarification of the number of 12-hour meters and will probably act on the plan in September.

Barbara Levy, president of the business association, told the committee every year the Centre loses more customer parking spaces and for that reason it is difficult to attract shoppers, or lure new business to the area.

There should not be an entire lot turned over to all-day parking, Mrs. Levy said. The Cypress St. lot is filled by employees of businesses in the area, and by riders of the MBTA.

There are 75 members of the Newton Centre Association for Commerce, and the vote in favor of three-hour meters was unanimous, Mrs. Levy said.

But employees and commuters need parking as well, Alderman Ethel Shechan said. The problem with the Pelham St.-Pleasant St. lot is its "invisibility," she said, suggesting it might be better suited for employee parking.

Area resident Virginia Robinson agreed employees could find other parking areas in the Centre if the number of all-day meters in the Cypress St. lot was cut, but that would not be the case with MBTA riders.

Mrs. Robinson asked if there was any information on the number of spaces in the Cypress St. lot used by commuters. A city Planning Department study in May, 1977 showed most of the parkers at Cypress St. were employees.

The Board of Aldermen should also consider a potential increase in MBTA ridership when considering the placement of the all-day meters, Mrs. Robinson said.

Easing water pollution rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency plans to ease water pollution regulations for 64 industry groups because it says the cost outweighthe benefits.

The move is expected to save those industries as much as $200 million, the agency says.

Standard first aid course starts soon

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross will be offering a standard first aid and personal safety course starting Sept. 17. The course will meet 7-10 p.m. at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., on Monday evenings.

In addition to fulfilling the requirements for lifeguards and MDC Skateguards, the standard first aid and personal safety course is designed to prepare members of the general public to meet the needs of situations when emergency first aid care is required and medical assistance is not excessively delayed. This course also incorporates personal safety and accident prevention information.

The teaching methods used for this course are lecture, demonstration of skill, practice sessions, and a final written examination.

For more information call the Newton Red Cross at 527-6000.

..Former Newton Highlands resident Michael A. Ascolese was recently ordained as a permanent deacon at St. Peter in Chains Cathedral, Cincinnati, Ohio. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Ascolese of Newton Highlands, and the brother of Francis of Long Island and Barbara Cocca of Newton Highlands. Ascolese lives in Cincinnati where he is employed as industrial relations manager at the Cincinnati division of the National Distillers Co. He has six children and two grandchildren.

NEWW needs volunteers

NEWTON CENTRE — NEWW Center, a psychiatric day program for adults at 1310 Centre St., is looking for volunteers to work with clients.

Volunteers, either male or female, are needed to share leading various activity groups in the program. Experience working with a psychiatric client population is necessary. To share leading a a crafts group, a varied crafts background is necessary, plus the ability to develop projects with a limited budget.

To volunteer for these positions or for further information, pleass call Ken Davis, executive director, at 969-8200.

First aid courses offered

NEWTON — The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross will be offering two multimedia courses during September. One course will run from 9 a.m. to noon on Sept. 5, 10, and 12 while the other will run from 6-10 p.m. on Sept. 5 and 6.

Both courses will meet at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, and the $6 charge is for books and materials which the students keep.

The multimedia standard first aid course prepares people to care for injuries and to meet emergencies when medical assistance is delayed. This course provides the fundamental principles and skills in first aid.

The teaching methods use programmed workbooks, film demonstrations of the skills, practice sessions and final written examination.

For more information and registration, contact the Newton Red Cross at 527-6000.

Pilgrim I back to normal

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — The Pilgrim I nuclear power plant, shut down by a bolt of lighting Tuesday, was up to normal generating capacity today, a spokesman for Boston Edison Co. said.

Lightning from a line of storms across New England hit the plant's switch yard, company officials said, tripping a circuit breaker which automatically caused the plant to go off line.

There were no injuries or damage to the plant resulting from the bolt.

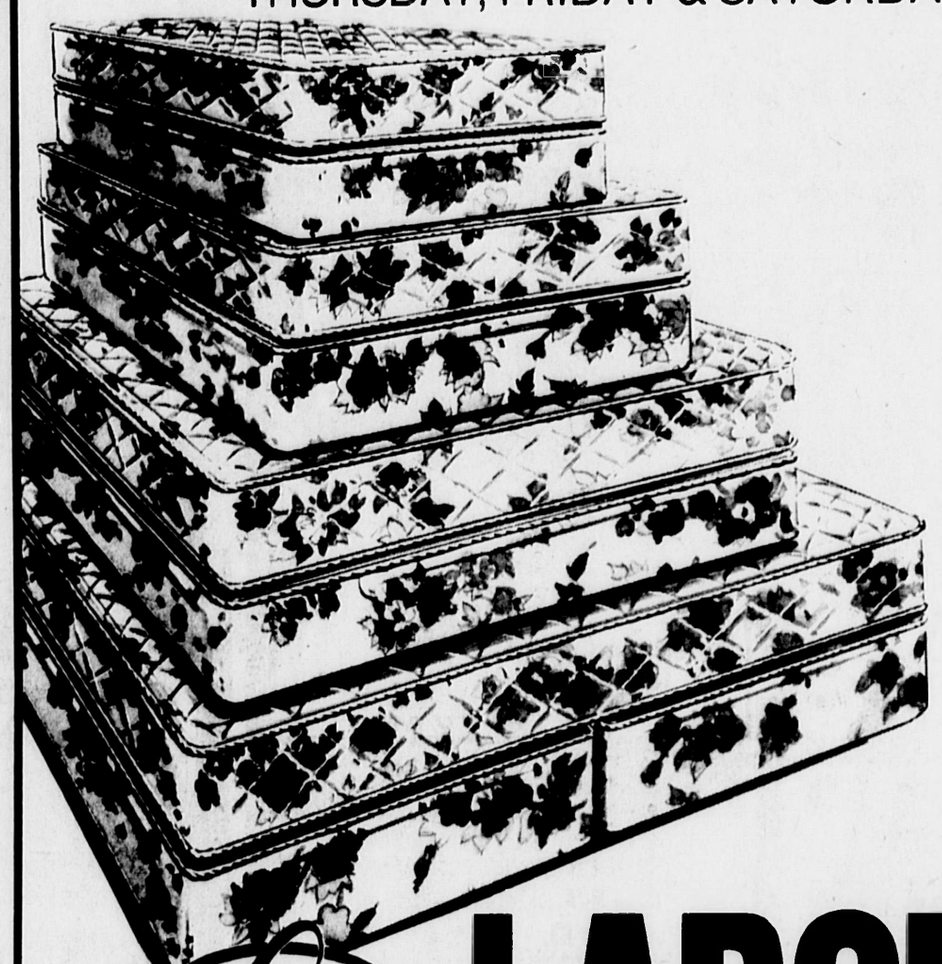

The utility was reportedly conducting an investigation of the plant's lightning defense mechanisms. In July, lightning damage to one of the plant's valve systems also caused the utility to pull the plant off line.

Mofenson opposes bypass of certificate-of-need law

Rep. David J. Mofenson, House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, has urged Governor King to veto six pieces of legislation which would circumvent the state's certificate-of-need laws.

"We passed the certificate-of-need law as a means of limiting the dramatic increase in hospital costs in Massachusetts. For the legislature now to turn around and provide unjustifiable exemptions undermines our commitment to quality health care at reasonable prices. It also places an additional burden on our beleaguered taxpayers at a time when we should be looking at ways to save money, not squander it," Mofenson said.

The Newton representative said that estimates indicate that if those bills are signed into law, taxpayers in the Commonwealth would be "saddled with upwards of $45.6 million in new capital costs alone and annual operating costs would add at least another $4.5 million to their burden."

Furthermore, Rep. Mofenson wrote the governor, "If those bills become law HEW could compound problems by discontinuing a variety of federally funded programs because we would be in violation of federal law. We receive grants and loans for the development, expansion and support of health resources. These monies are contingent upon the assurances that there is an operative certificate-of-need law which identifies a single body authorized to determine health resource needs in the state. In Massachusetts it is the Department of Public Health.

CLO Lawrence Cuzzi of Newton (right) is being congratulated by former governor John A. Volpe on his recent installation as a member of the Knights of Don Orione. The organization promotes the work of the Don Orione Home and Madonna Queen National Shrine in East Boston.

Ald. White urges ouster of MBTA chairman

NEWTON — Ald. Mark White has introduced a resolution before the Board of Aldermen listing a number of complaints against MBTA Chairman Robert Foster and urg ing that either Foster resign or Governor King fire him.

White has charged that Foster promised to resign there were any patronage jobs in the MBTA under his leadership if but then allowed several.

Foster is criticized by White for wanting to double MBTA fares and asking for a $26 million increase in the MBTA budget without putting forth any improvements in service.

White's resolution also says Foster has cut Newton's bus Route 59 (Newton Centre-Forest Hills) to save money, while Foster then proposed new uniforms for MBTA personnel at a projected cost of $1 million.

The resolution might be acted on at the Sept. 4 meeting of the Board of Aldermen, if the Board grants a suspension of the rules. Otherwise it will be referred to the Public Safety and Transportation Committee.

White has sent copies of the resolution to Foster, King, Secy. of Transportation and Construction Barry Locke, and Newton legislators.

Benefit rodeo Sept. 6-9

When huge trucks haul 700 tons of dirt to the Shriners Auditorium in Wilmington, the foundation will be literally in place for four days of high-riding rodeo excitement, the likes of which haven't been seen in the Boston area for more than 25 years.

The dirt will cover the floor of the auditorium home of the Shriners Circus, and create a Western arena where more than 300 cowboys and cowgirls will kick up plenty of action Sept. 6-9 during the first Shriners Championship Rodeo.

Showtimes at the auditorium on Fordham Road, exit 13 off I-93, will be 7:30 p.m. Thursday through Sunday, with 1:30 p.m. matiness Saturday and Sunday. Spectators will have a chance to see calf ropers, steer wrestlers, barrel racers and Brahma bull and bronc riders compete for more than $8,000 in prize money.

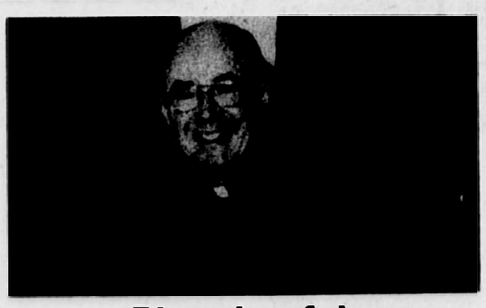

The Round-Up Room (music) will be adjacent to the auditorium and will be open 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Admission is $1 for adults; children under 12 accOmpanied by an adult will be admitted free, and everyone will have an opportunity to meet cowboys and cowgirls from the rodeo.

Activities

Rossignol Ski Show
Sponsored by Herman's World of Sporting Goods
There will be three thirty minute shows of skiing expertise featuring top freestyle performers whose extraordinary skiing ability allow them to soar off a twenty-five foot aerial ramp performing complex invertive maneuvers and land safely on an air bag. Included in the show is a demonstration of ballet skiing, choreographed to music, done on a revolving ski deck. The freestyle performers will also be on hand throughout the day to autograph free posters and to answer any questions.

The Gerwick Puppets
There will be four ½ hour shows presented in fascinating detail, using many puppets, scenery and music with special lighting and sound effects.

Bay State Antique Auto Club
There will be a variety of antique vehicles on display, including some antique fire trucks.

The New England Aquarium
The Aquarium will be introducing a beaver, penguin, and an alligator. Also there will be a tide pool exhibit, including sea stars, sea urchins, etc.

Museum of Science
In keeping with one of the nationwide themes of an astronaut watching Jerry on the moon, this year we will have one of our very own astronaut suits.

MDC Traveling Zoo
Provided by the Stone Memorial Zoo
This 50 ft. walk through trailer is quite the experience. It houses mammals, reptiles, fish, birds, a desert exhibit, and many other different and interesting creatures.

There will be clowns walking about and if you happen to look up to the sky—not a bird.... but a plane. Aerial Skyvertising, Inc., will be flying Monday morning and Nitetime Skywriter on Sunday evening. Also with us is the Needham Fire Department with some fire apparatus.

Another kind of fish story

By DOROTHY HINES

"It only makes sense for the East to try to become capable of producing more food here... we should make an attempt to convert once polluted, now improving rivers and streams to food reservoirs."—Fred Sculco, science department head at Noble and Greenough School

Science teacher Fred Sculco checks catfish in the Charles as Rick Simmons balances.

Rick Simmons has spent quite a lot of time around the water this summer like many other high school youths. But much of that time, on and around the Charles River, has been in the interest of scientific research.

The 17 year old Noble and Greenough senior has been conducting a pilot project aimed at exploring whether the waters of the Charles might one day again become an abundant source of food.

Simmons, son of Dr. Richard Simmons of Otis Street, Newton, has spent up to seven hours a day monitoring the condition of catfish placed in the Charles and others maintained in an aquiculture tank within the school's solar greenhouse.

He didn't mind giving his vacation time, he said, because of the opportunity to learn about aquiculture and carry on the research.

"I like doing the building, and the learning process, especially if it's science," he explained.

The building was the constructing of the cage to contain the catfish in the river. With several friends, he, also, put together a parabolic reflector, a trough like collector with pipe running through its center, which is being used to heat water in the solar unit on a trial basis.

Because of his deep interest in all kinds of science, the project has been fun, he remarked.

Simmons' experiment is part of an on going science program at the Dedham school. A year old solar addition to an administration building, the umbilicus, has been utilized as a greenhouse and aquiculture tanks have been added.

It is the purpose of the umbilicus project to demonstrate the possibility of providing vegetables and fish protein with very little expenditure of energy.

Umbilicus, explained Sculco, refers to the link between humans and the natural environment, "Our need for air, clean water and food links us to the environment, and it is important for us to recognize our dependency," he said.

This fall vegetables from the greenhouse will be used in the school's lunch program. And a tank of Tilapia, an African warm water fish, is almost ready for consumption.

The Tilapia, popular in many underdeveloped countries as a food source, is a vegetarian fish, which could be fed table scraps such as lettuce.

Sculco sees the umbilicus demonstrating the possiblity and a solar chamber attached to a home which could provide food, both vegetable and fish.

The aquiculture tanks at Noble and Greenough operate on a closed filter system which mimics natural purification in a normal aquatic environment. Water is warmed by the solar heat and circulates through the filter system. A variety of bacteria are added as necessary to simulate the natural purifying process.

As a natural spin-off of the indoor project came the idea to transplant some of the fish to the nearby Charles River during the summer months, where they would be maintained without any expenditure of energy.

After determining through tests that the quality of the river water was sufficient to maintain the umbilicus catfish, Simmons, under the direction of Sculco, constructed the cage and set out some of the fish.

Others were kept in the solar tank for comparison.

Each group is fed the same amount of fish food daily, three percent of its body weight, and an effort is made by Rick to maintain the tank fish under the same conditions as those in the river.

At the end of the summer, sometime in late September, the river fish will be sent to a testing lab. Quality and amount of fish flesh, presence of trace metals and other conditions will be noted.

With these results and by comparing with the indoor controls, some idea of the quality of the Charles will be obtained. There will be some indication of how much the river water has improved lately and how far it has to go to become a viable food reservoir.

According to Sculco, aquiculture is fast developing in other sections of the country and is well established in other parts of the world as an answer to protein needs.

In the South of this country, there is a catfish industry and thousands of pounds of the fish are consumed each year. Sculco says that catfish tastes somewhat like chicken.

He sees the development of aquiculture resources in this part of the country as meeting a definite need.

Even though the East Coast population centers are near the ocean, the supply of seafood is limited. Also, the expense of fuel for long fishing voyages pushes up the costs.

On the other hand, these same centers are farthest from the agricultural sources of the Midwest and West.

Therefore, it makes practical sense to attempt to reclaim our rivers and streams as potential food reservoirs.

The science teacher, also, pointed out that fish is a much more efficient converter of food to flesh than other protein sources such as beef cattle. Two pounds of fish food converts to one pound of fish flesh.

Sculco, also, sees the umbilicus projects as helping to educate students to respond to food and energy needs and to prepare them as the next generation of problem-solvers.

For Rick Simmons the process has already begun. Aquiculture if only one of several scientific fields in which he has done research.

He has set up a radiometer to measure the intensity of the sun's rays on the umbilicus, has designed a mock-up of a solar heated house, and even adapted conservation methods to his Newton home.

With his father's permission, he attached piping to the roof of the house, which channels water into ground containers for garden irrigation.

The high school student, also, did an energy audit of his home and convinced his father to install a wood burning stove.

For Simmons believes, "conservation is a very important part of life; you should conserve in any way you can...gas, water, heat, whatever."

THE READERS WRITE.. Diane Taylor

This is the reader's column and readers are invited to send recipes or questions to Diane Taylor, c/o Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Dear Diane: Do you have any ideas for simple summer time desserts? I'm having company soon and would like a special treat.

Mrs. K. W., Dedham

Dear Mrs. W: There are some sensational desserts that are so simple to make as to be deceptive.

Keeping a supply of versatile ingredients on hand pays off for the homemaker who can reach for this-and-that, put them together and create something lovely.

The cool and creamy Strawberry Pastel Pie is a combination of gelatin and ice cream spooned into a pastry or crumb crust pie shell, chilled and garnished with non-dairy whipped topping.

It's practically a 1-2-3 method and is ready to serve in about two hours. The basic formula can be repeated again and again, using different flavors of gelatin or pudding with combinations of ice cream or topping.

Strawberry Pastel Pie

1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
1¼ cups boiling water
1 pint strawberry ice cream
1 baked 8-inch pie shell or graham cracker crumb crust, cooled*

*Or use unbaked 8-inch crumb crust.

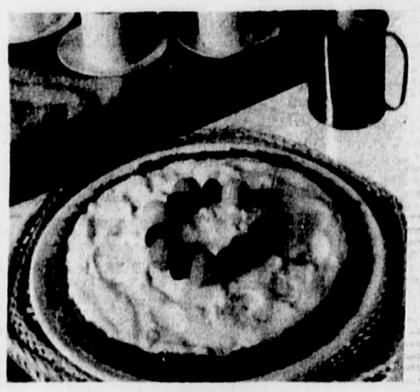

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add ice cream, by spoonfuls, stirring until melted and smooth. Pour into pie shell. Chill until firm, about 2 hours. Garnish with prepared or thawed frozen whipped topping, if desired.

Graham Cracker Crumb Crust. Combine 1¼ cups fine graham cracker crumbs and ¼ cup sugar. Press firmly on bottom and sides of 8-inch pan. For an unbaked crumb crust, chill 1 hour before filling. For a baked crumb crust, bake at 375° for 8 minutes. Cool thoroughly before filling.

Triple Layer Pie

1 package (4-serving size) chocolate flavor instant pudding and pie filling
1¾ cups cold milk
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled
1 package (4-serving size) vanilla or coconut cream flavor instant pudding and pie filling
1¾ cups cold milk
1 tablespoon chocolate syrup or cocoa
1 cup prepared whipped topping

Prepare chocolate pie filling mix as directed on package for pie, reducing the milk to 1¾ cups. Pour into pie shell. Prepare vanilla pie filling mix as directed on package for pie, reducing the milk to 1¾ cups. Carefully pour over the chocolate layer. Fold syrup into whipped topping; spread over the vanilla layer. Chill 3 hours.

Cantaloupe Lime Pie

1 can (6 fl. oz.) frozen limeade concentrate, thawed
1 can (14 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
1 container (4 oz.) frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
1 cup finely diced cantaloupe
½ cup blueberries
1 baked 9-inch graham cracker crumb crust, cooled

Combine concentrate and milk and stir until thickened. Fold in whipped topping; add cantaloupe. Spoon half the topping mixture into crust; sprinkle with blueberries. Top with remaining topping mixture. Chill 4 hours. Garnish with cantaloupe balls and additional blueberries, if desired.

KITCHEN CORNER

Versatile grapes

Grapes that go back to the beginning of time go well today in new recipes that add interest to both family and guest menus.

Grapes come pre-packaged by Nature, the same as they have throughout history. In fact, grapes could be called one of the first convenience foods — age old but with the clout to help you create outstanding and original new dishes.

Table grapes come in many varieties and are available almost all year round. Even though they're ripe and ready to eat when shipped to the market, grapes will stay fresh several days if they're stored in the refrigerator.

Select grape bunches with plump berries that have rich color and are securely attached to stems that are pliable, not weak or brittle.

For best results, avoid soft or wrinkled grapes, ones with bleached skins around the stem or those that are leaking juice. Most grapes in the produce section of your local store will be in good condition, just tempting you to take them home!

There's no need to be conservative in combining grapes with other foods for salads, puddings, pies, cakes, stuffings or accompaniments to the main entree for even the most elegant meal.

They're an attractive addition to other ingredients either whole or even halved, because the juicy, sweet pulp won't darken when cut. And with grapes there's no fixing, no fussing and no waste!

Because grapes make a glamorous garnish and are so good to eat out-of-hand as a snack, it's easy to overlook more original ideas for using this versatile, vine-grown fruit . . . great ideas that guarantee a sensual response, a change of mood or emotion that will make the meal you serve a memorable one. You can achieve that result with the recipes here.

Grapes are a real surprise in Grape Grower's Harvest Streusel because streusel traditionally is a topping for coffee cakes and rich breads. Think of the delight in the first bite — the combination of pleasing textures that you don't expect in this "grape" takeoff on old fashioned streusel.

One classic treatment for fresh California grapes is a cool, pretty molded gelatin salad. Vintner's Citrus Salad is an easy, make-ahead mosaic of red and green grapes suspended in a zippy lemon and orange juice gelatin. It's one of those recipes you'll want to stash away in your "effortless entertaining" file — or one to treat your family on special occasions. Enjoy it this fall and through the holidays.

GRAPE GROWER'S HARVEST STREUSEL

Filling:
2 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash salt
1½ pounds grapes (red, green and/or blue black), halved and seeded (about 4 cups)
4 cups sliced apples
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Streusel:
½ cup butter
⅔ cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped nuts

In large bowl, blend cornstarch with sugar, cinnamon and salt. Add fruits and lemon juice. Toss to coat.

Turn into greased 7½ x 11½ inch baking dish. With fingertips, work butter into sugar, flour and cinnamon. Add nuts. Top filling with streusel. Bake in 375 degree oven 40 to 50 minutes, or until streusel is golden and fruit is tender. Serve warm. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

VINTNER'S CITRUS SALAD

⅔ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 envelopes (1 tablespoon each) unflavored gelatin
⅓ cup lemon juice
2 cups boiling water
1⅓ cups orange juice
1½ cups halved seedless grapes
1½ cups halved and seeded red grapes
Salad greens
Lemon and orange slices
Sour cream or yogurt (optional)

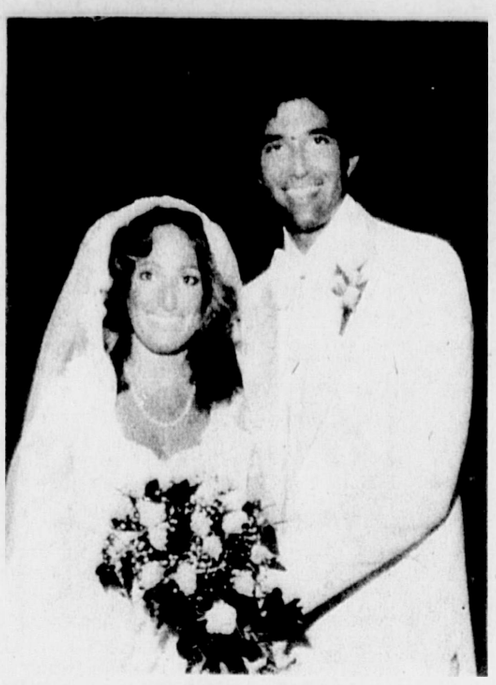

In mixing bowl, blend sugar, salt and gelatin. Stir lemon juice into mixture; let stand 5 minutes to soften.

Stir boiling water into mixture until gelatin and sugar dissolve; add orange juice. Chill until mixture begins to thicken slightly. Add grapes. Pour into 5½-cup mold. Chill firm.

To Serve: Unmold on serving dish lined with salad greens. Garnish with lemon and orange slices. Top with a dollop of sour cream or yogurt, if desired.

Gold goes up

LONDON (UPI) — Heavy demand pushed the price of gold to record highs today, reaching more than $316 an ounce in London and $315 in Zurich. The dollar made gains against major European currencies in both Tokyo and Europe.

In London, where the markets were closed Monday for the Bank Holiday, gold opened at $315.875, its highest opening price ever. Hours later at the morning fixing gold was at $316.20 an ounce, 20 cents above the record price set during trading Last Friday.

Gold opened at $315.875 an ounce in Zurich, up from $314.125 at Monday's close and $1.25 above the record set last Friday.

A week ago gold was selling for about $299 an ounce on the London and Zurich bullion markets. Gold's price began moving up sharply last Wednesday.

"The gold market is hectic with heavy buying demand from all over," a Zurich dealer said.

"Quite a lot of activity was seen in gold at the outset Tuesday," a London dealer said.

Another said, "Demand was coming from all quarters and with no sign of selling evident before the morning fixing, the market was contained."

"Gold was very active this morning though it has eased back a little now," a dealer said in London.

The dollar opened at 1.8305 marks in Frankfurt, up from 1.8300 at Monday's close; in Paris at 4.2725 French francs compared with 4.2690, and in Zurich at 1.6591 Swiss francs against 1.65865.

Chicago railroad clerks go on strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — The railway clerks union struck the Rock Island railroad today, saying the railroad management "gave us no alternative."

The line's 1,700 railway clerks struck at 7 a.m. EDT, said Thomas Fitzgibbon, international vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks.

Union President Fred Kroll sent out the strike order to the clerks Monday, three days after warning that a walkout against the railroad was imminent.

"We are on strike not because we wanted to strike but because Rock Island management gave us no alternative," Fitzgibbon said. "The company refused to negotiate realistically on the issues of pay for retroactivity, which are of essential importance to our members working on the Rock Island."

Fitzgibbon said he hopes the strike will be short so commuters and grain farmers will not be inconvienenced.

The Rock Island railroad hauls more than $3 billion of grain yearly in the South, West, Southwest and Midwest, and the strike puts a new burden on America's already troubled economy.

Economy at a glance

Washington: U.S. corporations took a beating in the second quarter of this year, with output, productivity and profits all dropping, new government figures showed Monday.

Washington: The White House will ask for an extra $2.5 billion in defense funds to catch up with inflation, but is uncertain whether to seek larger military spending to boost Senate chances for the SALT II treaty, sources said Monday.

Washington: The Agriculture Department Monday reduced its estimate of farmers' net earnings for this year by $2 million to $30 million, primarily as a result of lower livestock prices.

New York: The summer stock market rally resumed Monday although profit-taking and some investor concern that interest rates were headed higher cut the gain. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.21 points to 885.41 and the New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.28 to 62.22, its highest since February 1973.

Detroit: United Auto Workers Vice President Irving Bluestone Monday called off threatened "mini-strikes" that could have sharply curtailed GM's production of small cars — now the staple of the auto industry.

Auto makers ready with contract offers

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — With six weeks of preliminary bargaining behind them, General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. are set to make contract offers to United Auto Workers union negotiators.

Today's scheduled presentations will give the UAW a look at corporate money proposals two days before the union decides whether to pick Ford or GM as its strike target in talks to renew contracts for 750,000 U.S. auto workers.

No details of the upcoming contract offers were disclosed.

In a separate move, UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone called off threatened "mini-strikes" that could have sharply curtailed GM's production of small cars — currently the staple of the auto industry.

The local strikes at two assembly and five parts plants around the country were authorized last week, ostensibly over local production standards. The action was unrelated to national bargaining, union officials said.

But it apparently was tied to a longstanding point of contention between GM and the UAW — union hiring at the company's new southern plants.

Asked about the local strikes last week, UAW President Douglas Fraser accused GM of violating agreements to give union members preferential hiring rights in the new plants.

Bluestone said only, "as a result of satisfactory discussions with corporation officials, the union is calling off strikes scheduled to start Wednesday night over productions standards issues at seven General Motors plants."

Targeted were parts plants in Flint, Mich.; Mansfield, Ohio, and Rochester, N.Y., and assembly plants in Ypsilanti, Mich., and Lakewood, Ga.

In past negotiations over the autoworkers' contracts, company bargainers have said they believe there is room for an adequate settlement within the federal government's old 7 percent wage and price guidelines.

They also have roundly criticized the union for what they called its failure to join the anti-inflation fight by restraining its demands.

Kraft recalls cheese, may contain fragments

GLENVIEW, Ill. (UPI) — Kraft Inc. is recalling 36,492 packages of mozzarella cheese because it may be contaminated with small fragments of aluminum.

Kraft spokesman Connie Larkin said Monday the cheese involved is in 8-ounce packages marked Kraft shredded, low-moisture, part-skim mozzarella cheeze with the code date: DEC 11 79, J-12.

The shredded mozzarella product with that code date was distributed in Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia, W. Virginia and Puerto Rico.

Consumers who have product with that date should return the package to grocery stores, Larkin said. Kraft guarantees replacement of the product or refund of the consumers' purchase price, he said.

How to recognize and deal with 'school phobia'

As the opening of school draws near, children begin to look forward to seeing friends and meeting new teachers. But for some children, the very suggestion of entering a classroom brings on great anxiety. Once in school, these children often suffer from headaches and abdominal pains which force parents to keep them out of school and at home.

According to Timothy Rivinus, M.D., assistant in psychiatry and clinical director of the Psychosomatic Unit at Children's Hospital Medical Center, these children are suffering from "school phobia," perhaps more accurately called "school refusal."

Unlike the school truant, the child with school phobia is usually at home with a parent. Physical complaints are often present and occur in the morning before school or upon arrival at school.

Reluctance to leave home is a common, normal phenomenon among children entering school for the first time. Subsequent school phobia can be triggered by a variety of stresses, such as entering adolescence, going into junior or senior high, a death in the family, or a child's chronic illness.

Rivinus believes school phobia may be directly related to school trouble. "The child may have learning disabilities or academic difficulties, or problems with peers. There may even be a message from the parents that the particular school, or school itself, is not good."

The other aspect of school phobia is revealed by the child who is having trouble separating from the home and the family, and as a result has strong anxieties when away from home. "Many such children profess to love school," says Rivinus, "but are unable to make the break from home. What may surface as a school problem or an illness can hide the true cause — the child and parents may together be fostering the child's overdependence."

A child particularly vulnerable to this form of school phobia, according to David Waller, M.D., pediatrician and staff psychiatrist at Children's, is one who is recovering from an illness or has a chronic disease. "When a child is sick, normal bonding between parents and child is intensified," says Waller. "It is appropriate in order to help the child get well again. Often, however, a child with an illness is absent from school out of proportion to the medical problem. The child and parents assume that the child is simply too sick. What is a contributing factor is that parent and child are having trouble separating."

Waller feels that school attendance should be looked at in every sick child. "Though a child may be recovering from an illness or have a serious chronic disease, the child may still be able to go to school. Yet parent and child may be hesistant, and the physician will need to encourage the return, perhaps with the school schedule adjusted."

Rivinus recommends that parents of children who have symptoms of school phobia should consult with the pediatrician and the school first. "Pediatricians can help in deciding when a complaint is physically serious. Schools have strategies to get children with school phobia back into school. Sometimes, to ease the child back in a 'face-saving' manner, provisions can be made such as half-days at school in the beginning stages."

Mt. Ida offers 40 courses in evening programs

NEWTON — Fall registration for Mount Ida Junior College's Evening Division of Continuing Education is open now through Sept. 17. The 12-week fall term offers 40 credit courses, most of them in certificate and associate degree programs, and eight professional and personal development programs.

Certificate and degree programs include business administration, paralegal studies, volunteer services administration, secretarial, and early childhood development. Courses are also offered in recreation and leisure services, science, and English. Three-credit courses in art include photography, calligraphy, portrait drawing, book illustration, and jewelry making.

New to Mount Ida's Evening Division are professional and personal development programs granting continuing education units. The noncredit programs are designed to refine individuals' professional capabilities, advance them in careers, and acquaint them with skills for community activities and personal interests.

These include Preparing for the Massachusetts Real Estate Licensing Exam, Real Estate Appraisal of Residential Dwellings, Techniques of Supervision, Elements of Interior Design, Understanding Your Income Tax, Get the Job You Want, and two publicity writing workshops.

Beginning its third year of operation, Mount Ida's Evening Division charges $35 per credit for credit courses. Tuition for professional and personal development programs varies per program. To obtain more information, call the Evening Division of Continuing Education at 969-7000.

Funds will help clean up water

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering Tuesday announced the distribution of $133 million in federal aid to help clean up the state's waterways.

Department Commissioner Anthony Cortese said the money would be used to pay for the design and construction of waste water treatment facilities across the state.

"This is the first time the state has spent all of the funds allocated to it for waste water control," Cortese told a Statehouse news conference. In the past, unused funds have reverted to the federal government.

Brandeis Women's study groups open

The Study Groups of the Brandeis University National Women's Committee offer unique programs of continuing education for members in a wide range of subject matter, including art, history, politics, literature, and music.

Special-interest groups offer bridge, horticulture, special issues concerning women, speaking Yiddish, food, and cinema.

Most groups meet in members' homes, or, as in some art groups, in various galleries, studies, or at Brandeis University.

Leaders are volunteers, who conduct their groups either with the university-prepared syllabi or according to their own outlines.

The Bulletin, listing the Study Groups, is mailed to members only. A woman need only be a paid-up member to register for one or more study groups, mini-series or potpourri of lectures.

Membership in the Women's Committee is open. For more information, call vice president and coordinator, Mrs. Helen Riemer, at 332-3811, or Brandeis University National Women's Committee office at 647-2316.

Chinese Language School to offer all levels of classes

NEWTON CENTRE — The Newton Chinese Language School, a member school of the Greater Boston Chinese Cultural Association, will begin its fall term on Saturday, Sept. 8, at Meadowbrook Junior High School.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. There will be ten different levels of instruction, from kindergarten to adult. Classes are open to the public and no previous study of Chinese is required.

Classes will meet every Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon for approximately 16 Saturdays.

The school is in its 18th year and has a faculty of 10 experienced teachers. Approximately 70 students were enrolled last year. The principal, Dr. Lena Chang Poe, pointed out that although in the past the majority of the students were children, she expects that with the new interest in Chinese— American relations and travel to China that area adults will enroll. If so, there will be special adult classes.

Classes will be taught in Mandarin, the official dialect, together with the Ping-Ying system of phonetics. Textbooks are printed in traditional Chinese characters.

Cost per semester is $50 per adult. Cost for children is $45 for the first child with a reduction for other children of the same family. Cost of text is $5.

New this year will be short courses in embroidery and calligraphy, details of which will be announced by mid-September.

For further information write to Newton Chinese Language School, P.O. Box 142, Newton, Ma. 02159, or call Dr. Lena Chang Poe at 861-7618 or Frank Chen at 969-5061.

Regis College offers continuing education

WESTON — Women who never had the chance to study, or who had to interrupt their education and who want to start or resume their studies may register for the fall semester at Regis College in Weston now through Sept. 7.

In addition to offering 15 major fields of study within the liberal arts, Regis offers a series of career programs in legal studies, management studies, education, art therapy, medical technology, communications, and social work. Internships and individual study are also integral parts of the curriculum.

Regis also offers a series of general intere st starting Sept. 17 and running from one evening to 10 meetings spread over 10 weeks. Tuition varies accordingly.

Other courses to be offered are "Enjoying Nature with all Five Senses," "Creative Retirement Seminar," "The Creative Consumer Workshop," "Workshop in Improving the Quality of Family Life," "Stress Management: Coping with Tension in Today's World," and "Conserving Archives and Records on a Limited Budget."

The Office of Continuing Education is open daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Appointments can be made by calling 893-1820, ext. 238.

Preschool afternoon program added at NCSC

WEST NEWTON — The Child Center in West Newton, under the auspices of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. (NCSC), has expanded its early childhood program this year to offer an afternoon program for children of preschool and kindergarten age, according to Child Center director Susan E. Werbe.

Preschool afternoon openings will be reserved for 3- and 4-year-olds who are enrolled in the Center's morning program, but several openings are now available for kindergarten-age children. The afternoon program will run from noon to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, following the Newton public school calendar.

Families who do not need a full-time program but would like their children to participate in some regular afternoon activities with other young children may share a single opening, Ms. Werbe said. One child could attend the program two days, the other child three days, each week. The Child Center will also try to help arrange car pools, or contract with a transportation company, if there is a need for this service.

The Child Center afternoon program will begin Monday, Sept. 10, for the kindergarten children. Further information is available from Ms. Werbe, at 964-3293 until September, and at 965-0635 (Child Center) thereafter.

Red Cross offers CPR

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross will be offering CPR module courses from 6-10 p.m. on Sept. 10 and 12 and on Sept. 11 and 13. The classes will meet at the Newton Red Cross Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville.

The $3 charge is for books and materials which the students keep upon completion of the course.

The CPR module course is a self-paced course which uses the teaching techniques of self-paced workbooks, hand viewers for skill demonstrations, practice sessions on the manikins, an instructor check-out and a final written examination.

For more information and registration, call the Newton Red Cross at 527-6000. Early registration is advised.

French School resumes Sept. 15

BELMONT — The French Saturday School will resume its classes on Saturday, Sept. 15.

Open to all children from 4 years old and up from the Greater Boston area, the school is community service—oriented and enters its sixth year of existence.

Its main purpose is to teach French language and culture in its worldwide context through a variety of material ranging from educational games to audiovisual material. For further information please call Dr. Day at 489-1240 after Sept. 2.

TEMPLE SINAI
WHAT IS IT ALL ABOUT?
It is a small, reform congregation, conveniently located in the heart of Brookline, and led by a young, progressive and warm Rabbi catering, especially, to the comprehensive religious education of our youth.
Our School extends from Kindergarten through Post-Confirmation and, under the able leadership of a most competent Principal, is staffed by dedicated, professional teachers of the highest caliber.
Our Temple affords widespread participation by its entire membership in the administration of its affairs.
We have a Cantorial Director of Music and a professional Choir whose liturgical talents add immeasurably to the spirituality of our Services.
Our Sisterhood, Brotherhood and P.T.A. provide interesting social events and adult educational opportunities.
Our dues are moderate and include High Holiday seats for members and their children.
If you wish further information, you are invited to meet with our Rabbi, Frank M. Waldorf, our Principal, Marjorie T. Berkowitz, our President, Lillian Shulman, and our Membership Chairperson, Clarice Cubell, in the Temple Library at 8:00 P.M. on Thursday, Sept. 6 or Monday, Sept. 10, 1979.
If you prefer, you may telephone the Temple Secretary, Frances Halpern, at 277-5888 any weekday commencing at 9:30 a.m.

Police chief offers tips on back-to-school safety

NEWTON — Back-to-school safety for our children calls for some prior effort by parents, children, neighbors and drivers, according to Police Chief William F. Quinn. Quinn asks parents of school-age children, especially younger children to review the following with them.

1. Point out the importance of crosswalks.
2. Point out dangerous areas.
3. Insist that children follow recommended routes.
4. Teach children to observe dangers at every driveway.
5. Teach children to observe dangers at blind corners.
6. Instruct children to know and work with police officers and crossing guards.

Parents who drive children to school or operate car pools should have children enter and leave cars from the right or passenger side of the car and pick up and discharge children in a safe area; avoid double parking or calling children across streets.

Drivers should insist that children remain seated and use seatbelts if available and lock doors while in transit.

Avoid use of school parking lots for pick up, due to dangers of moving and backing cars, as most school parking lots are reserved for school personnel, Chief Quinn advises.

When school buses stop with lights flashing, all traffic must stop in both directions. On rainy days in the vicinity of schools, parents should park only where legal and proper. If the pickup is normally unscheduled, have a prearranged spot agreed upon, or walk back to the school after having parked the car, to pick up the child.

Parent of children taking buses should check the location of the bus stops. This year, fewer students will be riding due to the distance requirements established by the School Committee.

Police have had complaints of shrubs and bushes growing out onto the sidewalk, forcing children into the roadway, and ask that all residents cut back any such growth.

In conclusion, Chief Quinn said, "If we all observe common courtesy, the school regulations, and the direction of our police officers, our children can be much safer."

Two reducing clinics to start for seniors

NEWTON — Nurses of the Newton Health Department's Senior Health Maintenance Program will be starting two weight reduction clinics for Newton's senior citizens. Two different locations have been chosen for these ten-week series, which have been very popular in the past for the 60-and-over age group.

A clinic will start on Friday, Sept. 7, from 11 a.m. to 12 noon at the Nonantum Multi-Service Center, 48 Silver Lake Ave., and continue for nine consecutive Fridays. The second clinic will be at the Newtonville Drop-In Center, 61 Austin St., starting Monday, Sept. 10, 3-4 p.m. and also continue for nine consecutive Mondays.

Those planning to participate are encouraged to attend all the group meetings. Confidential weight records, films, interesting speakers, nutrition information, and helpful weight reduction exercises are all part of this program.

If you are a senior citizen who is interested in losing weight before the oncoming holidays call now and register at either location, Monday-Friday, 9:30 a.m.- 4 p.m. For further information call the Newtonville Drop-In Center (527-6770) or the Nonantum Multi-Service Center (965-6390).

Weekend college offers A.S. degree

BOSTON — Beginning Sept. 14, Fisher Junior College, 118 Beacon St., will offer a weekend college program.

Fisher is the only two-year college in the Greater Boston area to offer an associate in science degree in just 20 months through classes on Friday evenings and Saturdays until 2:30 p.m.

A certificate in secretarial science may also be attained in 12 months. An adult will be able to attain a college degree while working full time, and still have Saturday nights and Sundays free.

Financial aid and veterans' benefits are available to eligible students.

For more information contact Stanley Hitron, weekend college director, at 536-4648 or visit the college at 108 Beacon St. between 9 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Dr. Emerson Sylvester of 81 Woodland Rd., Auburndale, (left) receives the Outstanding Service plaque from Newton YMCA Executive Director Chet Mosher. Nathan D. Bugbee of 14 Exeter St., West Newton, received the president's plaque. Sylvester has served on the YMCA board of directors since 1960 and was chairman of the Camp Frank A. Day committee. Past president of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital medical staff, he serves as executive committeeman of the Charles River District Medical Society and is a Fellow of the American Medical Association and the American Academy of Family Physicians. He was graduated from Tufts University and the Boston University School of Medicine.

Farber names Joel Abrams

BOSTON — Joel M. Abrams of Newton, former director of the Bureau of Community and Non-Institutional Services of the Commonwealth's Rate Setting Commission, has been appointed deputy director for cancer control at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute.

In his new post, Abrams will be responsible for the management and coordination of all functions of the cancer control division including prevention and detection, outreach, continuing care and rehabilitation programs.

Established in 1947 as the Children's Cancer Research Foundation, the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute today is one of a network of 21 federally designated comprehensive cancer centers in the nation.

A graduate of Brandeis University, Abrams received the M.S. degree in community organization and planning from the Columbia University School of Social Work and had extensive experience in the supervision of community social services in New York City. He is a member of the American Public Health Association and the Massachusetts Public Health Association.

Multi needs a refrigerator

NEWTON CENTRE — The Multi-Service Center, 1301 Centre St., an agency which provides counseling and other services to adolescents, greatly needs the donation of a refrigerator in good condition for its emergency housing program.

Please call 244-4802 if you have a refrigerator to contribute to the center.

Newton firm given grant for black history work

NEWTON — Congressman Robert F. Drinan has announced that the Education Development Center of Newton has been awarded a $51,543 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Robert Hayden, project director, explained that the funds will provide the opportunity for Boston and Philadelphia junior high school students to research and develop the Afro— American heritage of their respective cities.

The program involves the use of oral history, historical photographs, and other primary and secondary sources in working toward the establishment of an ethnic-history resource center in the students' schools. The project will also involve the training of junior high school teachers in this specialized area.

This is the second year that the center has received such an award.

Activities for all ages available at Community Service Centers

WEST NEWTON — Registration for all fall activities sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. is now under way, according to Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director.

The fall brochure, which contains a complete activity listing, will be mailed to all Newton families with children in the Newton public schools. The brochure is available to all by phoning 969-5906 or visiting 429 Cherry St., West Newton, or 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

Programs for elementary-school children are diverse. An afterschool Tuesday and Thursday program is scheduled at the Pomroy House for 7-12-year-olds from 1 to 6 p.m. and will function 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. during school vacations all five weekdays. Due to the popularity of this activity, parents are urged to register early to secure positions.

Among other children's activities listed are drama, crewel embroidery, sewing, crafts classes, ballet and tap school. The Saturday camp for 7-14-year-olds at the Hale Reservation in Westwood will be in operation.

For teens, drop-in centers funded in part by the Newton Recreation Department will be in operation weekends throughout the city under the center's coordination.

Newton Job Bank will continue to function each day with support of the City of Newton through the Department of Human Services.

Specialties for teenagers in crafts, golf school, weight watching, and so on, are being offered as outlined in the brochure.

A sampling of activities for adults includes yoga, Weight Watchers, golf school, international cooking, needlepoint, and crafts.

The Senior Citizens Clubs of the Newton Community Service Centers and Rebecca Pomroy House are again scheduled, as is the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Retired Seniors Volunteer Program (RSVP).

Day care is being offered at two locations for preschoolers: 85 Crescent Ave., Newton Centre, and 75 Vernon St., Newton Corner, and at 64 Hancock St., Auburndale, for infants and toddlers. Hours of operation are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., with a hot lunch included. In addition, after-school care is available for elementary-school children from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is open during all school vacations from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and is located at 84 Eldredge St.

Interested persons are encouraged to apply early in order to avoid disappointment with activities being filled.

Moral Re-armament making a comeback

LONDON (UPI) — Moral Re-armament, the ideological movement that flourished before and after World War II, is making a comeback.

"There's more initiative than there's ever been," says Gordon Wise, an Australian who is a spokesman for the British wing of MRA. "MRA is quietly but steadily expanding."

Under such leaders as Dr. Frank Buchman and Peter Howard, MRA enjoyed vast media coverage and was one of the most admired, misunderstood and controversial ideological movements of the 20th century.

Buchman died in 1961, however, and Howard died in 1965. The deaths were traumatic for MRA and resulted in a lower profile for the organization.

MRA groups continue their efforts to transform men and governments in many parts of the globe, loosely cooperating with one another through bonds of common commitment and by means of international assemblies.

MRA in the United States sponsors community programs, keeps in contact with congressmen and State Department officials, sells books and distributes films.

Its New York headquarters reported a 50 percent increase in the number of individuals contributing to MRA in 1978, but it did not disclose the actual number of contributors. Total U.S. contributions were $145,808, an increase of 20 percent over 1977.

Buchman's centenary was celebrated in 1978, the 40th anniversary of the formation of the Moral Re-armament movement. In London, the million dollar Westminster Memorial Trust was set up to commemorate it.

Buchman was born in Pennsburg, Pa. — Pennsylvania declared June 4, 1978, Dr. Frank Buchman Day — and raised in Allentown. He prepared for the Lutheran ministry but resigned in 1908. The next year he had what his followers describe as "a spiritual experience" while listening to a sermon in a small church at Keswick in the lake district of Britain.

As Garth Lean, another member of the British MRA council puts it, "He began to help other men, not from a position of rectitude but from the experience of his own sin met by grace."

As a result of the "experience," Buchman accepted four "absolutes" as a summary of the Sermon on the Mount — honesty, purity, unselfishness and love. Armed with these, he set about trying to change human nature, initially not by mass evangelism but by quiet person to person work. His aim, said Lean, was nothing less than "the remaking of the world."

So Buchman, meeting kings and presidents, became a familiar figure in newspapers, newsreels and on television. He was credited with winning the appreciation of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman for his work in strengthening Allied morale in World War II, with helping improve relations between Japan and her former enemies, with aiding the coming of independence in Morocco and many other intercessions in world affairs.

Buchman did not discuss his own role in events; other participants did. His message struck a chord in prewar days. More than 100,000 attended a meeting at Utrecht, the Netherlands, in 1937.

Buchman did make one serious misjudgement that plagued MRA for years. In an interview with a New York newspaper in 1936 he was quoted as "thanking heaven" for Adolf Hitler's "front-l ine defense against the anti-Christ of communism." The next paragraph qualified this with the need for the German dictator to change, but the harm was done and the label pro-Nazi stuck. MRA considers the judgement unfair since thousands in MRA fought for the Allies.

In Buchman's last years, the movement had become influential enough to attract statesmen, industralists and other important personages to its gatherings at various headquarters — Mackinac Island in Michigan, what had been the Caux Palace hotel in Caux, Switzerland, and elsewhere. Mackinac has been sold but MRA still has the Caux center.

After Buchman's death, Howard, long prepared for the role, smoothly continued the work. But his own death left MRA without an obvious leader.

Garth Lean said strong personalities in several important countries then took the movement off at tangents from Buchman's precise goals, in the process resisting efforts to form a collective leadership.

"Various newspapers issued premature obituaries," he said.

"Slowly, meanwhile, and not without pain, an informal international leadership has evolved which has not only been able to reestablish firm bases in the countries affected, but to consolidate elsewhere and to carry forward initiatives in such crisis points as India, southern Africa, the Sudan and Northern Ireland."

Emphasis of MRA's work is often in the areas of racial and labor-management reconciliation. The British wing believes that among its good points the new leadership has encouraged those who depended too deeply on a single dominant personality — Buchman — to turn instead completely to God.

Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Ants in homes; This seems to be the year of the ant, according to the mail we've been getting. Ants get into the best of homes, so if you have them don't think it's because of poor house keeping. Don't think all ants are termites. There's an easy way to tell ants from termites. Ants have an hourglass figure. Termites have thick waistlines. Termites have straight antennas, while ants have antennas with bends in them like elbows' The wings of a termite are similar in shape, size or pattern and have many small veins. Wings of an ant are not alike in shape, size or pattern, and they have but few veins.

The termites that eat wood are the workers. Ants don't eat wood, though they may destroy some wood if they nest in decayed or rotting timber.

Control: Diazinon sprayed along the foundation of homes will do an excellent job killing ants. We feel it is just as effective or even more so than chlordane, which has been restricted. If you're going to use any pesticide in the kitchen, be sure to remove the food sources (jams, etc). Never spray spray where food is. Remove crumbs from floor, as these are what ants feed on. Some gardeners place some ant bait in a can containing some water, sugar and Spectracide (which contains diazinon). The sugar attracts the ants and the diazinon kills them. Look for cracks or holes in the foundation of your home and treat with diazinon.

Ant hills in a lawn can be treated by punching a hole in the center with a crowbar and applying some Spectracide in it. Also apply same around the hole area. Often you will see a whole nest of ants in a hollow or a willow or other tree. Dispatch them with aerosol spray containing Diazinon. This comes in an aerosol spray can designed to squirt 8 feet or more. That's ideal for bombing a wasp or hornet's nest. Do the job in the evening and direct the spray into the opening.

Green Thumb Clinic: "We have some used lumber ;scrap) with paint on it. Is it safe to use the ainted wood for starting fires in the fireplace?"

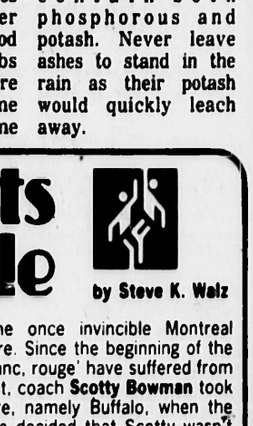

Ans.: It probably wouldn't be a good idea to burn the painted wood as the ash may contain lead or other metals. It's good business to save wood ashes as they contain both phosphorous and potash. Never leave ashes to stand in the rain as their potash would quickly leach away.

SPORTSWHIRLED—The once invincible Montreal Canadiens are no more. Since the beginning of the summer, the 'bleu, blanc, rouge' have suffered from mass disaffection. First, coach Scotty Bowman took his business elsewhere, namely Buffalo, when the Canadiens' front office decided that Scotty wasn't their man for the coveted General Manager's position. Then swift forward Jacques Lemaire packed his bags and left for Switzerland where he will coach and play in the local hockey association with some hefty benefits lining his pockets. And perhaps the final nail in the coffin was the departure of stalwart goalie Ken Dryden, who opted for a career in law, once again. This exodus has left the pride of Canada in shambles. At this writing there is still no replacement for Bowman, though Claude Ruel and Yvon Cournoyer are being considered for the job, Dryden's backup, Bunny Larocque, is not capable of playing more than 50 games, which means the Canadiens need a suitable backup for Larocque. But don't get the impression that Montreal will fall out of contention next year. The Canadiens may be crippled for the moment, but their deep roster should be able to bail them out—for awhile.

SPORTS SPECIAL—The Cosmos' stellar striker Giorgio Chinaglia, who has been maligned by the fans, Meadowlands personnel and the media, is approaching several league records as the season winds down to a rather hectic ending. Aside from leading the NASL in scoring, the 'Italian Stallion' is but a few goals away from becoming the NASL's all-time leading scorer and is a few points away from the top of the career scoring chart. In his remarkable career, Chinaglia has averaged nearly 2.39 points per game. The NASL's leading all-time scorer is Ilija Mitic, who played with the San Jose Quakes. Chinaglia's problems stem from his alleged involvement in the hiring and firing of Cosmos players and coaches, while many Italian fans still haven't forgiven Giorgio for leaving his native Lazio of Italy squad where he was literally worshipped.

Giorgio Chinaglia

SPORTS QUEST—Q. What's happened to California's Frank Tanana? He hasn't pitched lately.—R.C. Battle Creek, Mich.

A. The Angels' star hurler has suffered from several arm miseries, and there is speculation that he may need surgery. Depending upon the extent of his arm problems, Frank may have to sit out the rest of the season, putting a dent in the Angels' pennant plans.

Health Council to meet Sept. 5

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston will take place on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at 7:30 p.m., Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, 777 Memorial Dr., Cambridge.

According to Carlton Smith, president of the 30-member body, the board will receive reports from a variety of committees, and take action on applications for certificates of need and grants for health care

The Health Planning Council is a regional planning organization involving 231 consumers and providers of health care in a variety of projects geared to improve the delivery of services in the 65 cities and towns of its service area. All meetings of the Council are open to the public, which is urged to attend. For more information on the agency and the board meeting, call Nancy Larsen at 426-2022.

Ms. Cole completes Backman internship

OAK HILL — Andrea Cole of 240 Country Club Rd. worked this summer as a legislative intern for State Sen. Jack H. Backman of the Second Middlesex and Norfolk District.

A second-year student at Pine Manor College who plans to spend the following academic year studying at the Sorbonne, Andrea was one of 34 college and graduate students in the Senate summer internship program run by the Senate Legislative Education Office.

The students participated in a wide variety of office activities including drafting legislation for the next session, attending committee hearings, answering constituency requests, writing press releases and conducting legal research.

Weekly seminars were attended by the interns as an important part of the seven-week program. Some of the topics that were addressed in the seminars are the budget process, the relationship between the media and the elected official, the role of the lobbyist, and the function of the office of the Senate counsel.

Proposals sought for teen program

NEWTON — The Newton-Wellesley-Weston-Needham Community Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center requests proposals for the delivery of the following:

A psychotherapeutic day activities program for area adolescents aged 13 through 18 who reside in alternative residential settings, psychiatric hospital settings, and familial settings and who require day activities in support of their residential and school programs.

Interested service providers with experience in service delivery of the kind outlined above should request proposal packets by calling Lea Morris, acting associate area director, at 969-3360. All proposals must be submitted to the area office no later than noon, Sept. 21.

Newton data processing

Marriage of computers

NEWTON — The betrothal of City Hall and the School Department has been canceled, at least in relation to a marriage of the two data processing operations.

The city's new data processing manager, Richard Walsh, has reported to Mayor Theodore Mann that the Data Processing Department will need another two years to revise the city's DP systems, and that he believes that there should not be a combined use of the School Department's data-processing equipment.

For about two years, the city side of government has been considering merging the data processing functions of the city.

Just recently, the city appropriated money to rent the School Department computer through the end of the current year until a the system can be upgraded to serve all needs of the city.

Walsh's report now indicates that he feels the School Department data processing equipment is not capable of handling the city's needs , and that "considerable upgrading" would be necessary for the system to handle all the city's needs.

Essentially Walsh, who is the first data processing head in whom the aldermen have shown great confidence, recommends a two-year period for updating all the city department programs and getting them into a computer.

During these two years, Walsh said, the present City Hall equipment should be updated and people trained.

In addition, he said, Honeywell Inc., which owns the City Hall computer, is willing to provide at no cost equipment and six man-months of systems support, again at no charge.

Walsh said that Honeywell wants to make Newton its "showcase account."

The Board of Aldermen and the School Committee have disagreed for years on the advisability of combining use of a shared data processing system. The School Committee finally gave in last year.

The Newton Recreation Department announces that both Crystal Lake in Newton Highlands and the Gath Pool in Newtonville will close for the 1979 season on Labor Day, Monday, September 3rd.

City-wide Adult Tennis Tournament

Starting the evening of September 7th and continuing through September 9, 1979, at the Newton North High School tennis courts, the Newton Recreation Department/Sundial Tennis City-Wide Adult Tennis Tournament will be played. Events will include Nen's Singles and Doubles, Women's Singles and Doubles and Mixed Doubles. The Tournament is open to all Newton amateur tennis players. Excluded from the Tournament will be professionals, ranked amateurs, non-city residents and anyone 14 years of age or younger. Registration will be held at the Burr Park fieldhouse on Waverly Avenue, Newton Corner, across from the Bigelow Jr. High School on the following dates:

Friday, August 31st, 6 to 8 p.m.
Sunday, September 2nd, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Tuesday, September 4th, 6 to 8 p.m.
Thursday, September 6th, 6 to 8 p.m.
Tuesday, August 28th, 6 to 8 p.m.
Thursday, August 30th, 6 to 8 p.m.
Saturday, September 1st, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Monday, September 3rd, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Wednesday, September 5th, 6 to 8 p.m.

Entries close for all events on Thursday, September 6th, 1979 at 8 p.m. Entry fee is $5 per person per event. Proceeds will go to the Eye Research Institute of Retina Foundation. For further information, call 552-7120.

Women's City Basketball League Champs

Continuing domination of the Newton Women's City Basketball League, Murphy's Fliptops won their fifth consecutive championship by defeating Bob Hare's Sports team by a score of 42 - 31 in the finals. The title winners are coached by Sue and Judy Bonstum.

Supervised Tennis Winds Down

Recreation Department officials report that supervised tennis at Burr Park and the Newton Centre Playground will come to an end on Labor Day. Supervised tennis will continue at Newton North and Newton South High School courts after Labor Day. Attendants will be on duty at these lighted courts from 6 to 11 p.m., Monday thru Friday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Newton residents with 1979 tennis permits may reserve time at these courts through the balance of the 1979 season.

National League Baseball

Newton Upper Falls finished first in the National Baseball regular season play, followed by the Newton Boys Club in second, the Mosca Club in third and St. Bernard's in fourth spot. In the playoffs, the Newton Boys' Club defeated St. Bernard's to take the title for 1979.

Suburban Women's Basketball

The Newton Women's Suburban Basketball Team defeated Winchester in the finals to take the League Title. Newton took the rubber game in the 2 out of 3 series. Player Coach, Fran Towle notes that this is the 8th year that Newton has made the finals and the 4th championship it has captured in that time. This is the first time in 4 years Newton has taken the flag. The Suburban League is made up of 16 teams in area cities and towns.

Mini Bike Track to Reopen

The 3-track mini-bike facility operated at the site of the old City Infirmary in Newton Highlands will reopen for the Fall season on Saturday, September 8th. Until that time, Recreation officials advise no mini-bikes operated on the site. The tracks will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each Saturday, under the supervision of Newton Police Safety Officer, Bob Braceland and Steve Mazzola of the Recreation Department staff. This is the only safe public area in which mini-bikes may be operated in Newton. Each bike must have a spark arrester, muffler and good brakes and safe tires. Riders must wear helmets and hard toed shoes. There is a $5.00 registration fee for each mini-bike and a $1. for each additional rider.

Women's Flag Football

Director, Judy Dore, invites all Newton women 16 years of age and older to play in the Newton Women's Flag Football League this Fall. Games will be played on Mondays and Wednesdays. The first League meeting and clinic will be held at the Albemarle Field House on Monday, September 10th, beginning at 7 p.m. Those who attend should be prepared to play in clinics and game sessions. League play will begin in late September and games will be played at Albemarle.

American League Softball

Post 24 won the title in the American League "A" Division of the Recreation Softball League, by taking three straight playoff games from the Troubadors 6-0, 2-1 and 3-2. The champions received excellent pitching from Ricky McMillen and Bob Healy, while Jim Quinn turned in fine hurling performances for the runners-up. In the "D" Division, General Cinema won its second title in 3 years by taking 3 straight from Yellow Cab in the finals. A complete team effort resulted in the championship for General Cinema.

RECREATION NOTES—See Page 27

Lions have 3 reasons to smile

If Newton South High football Coach Art Kojoyian and his charges are stepping livelier, looking more excited and hitting a little harder, the reasons might be three-fold.

In the first place, the Lions are coming off their first winning season since 1971 after winning their final four games to close out at 5-4-1.

Secondly, Coach Kojoyian expects at least 60 players out for the team by the time school gets back in session next week. Included in this group is the most seniors in at least 10 years at Newton South, at least 25.

Lastly, and far from least, the Newton South Lions will also have a football field to call their own for the first time in the 20-year history of the school. The new stadium, which is being completed along the rightfield side of the baseball field in back of the school, will also serve as a home base for the spring track team and will have portable stands erected.

The field is expected to be lined and ready for action by the Lions' opening day, Sept. 15, when they will entertain Littleton High.

The Lions will also look to their defense to help them in the early going until the new players being inserted into the offensive alignment get soem experience under their belts."We know that several of the players we'll be starting on defense can do the job on offense, but we want to get as many players into the lineup as possible," said Coach Kojoyian. "This is one of the reasons we had as good a year as we did last year and we're going to try to more get as many people playing again as we can. We know what the seniors cane do, it's the younger players we want to get used to playing varsity ball."

Defensively, the Orange and Blue will have starting end Mark Sullivan, tackle David "Bubba" Smith, middleguard Eric DeWaard, cornerbacks Jerry MacDonald and Ron Steinberg and safeties Mike.Dery and Mike Kasten all returning. Linebacking . appears to be the only position in which the Lions will be a little weak, but Bill Penzo and Joe Walsh both saw scattered action there a year ago and will be counted on to bolster those two spots.

Holding seven teams to one touchdown or less, the Dual County League entry will again be a force to be reckoned with when the opposition has the ball. The 96 points allowed a year ago were the second fewest yielded since the 1966 season. The Lions placed five defensive stars on last year's all-DCL squad.

Offensively, Steve Kasten and Ben Schwab, both of whom were guards, will be among the returning starters along with backs Scott Buffington and MacDonald. Senior Jeff Lerner, . ree games although not the starting quarterback, did get the nod for th when Steve Kosowsky was injured and led the team to its first two victories.

Lerner, who is being chased by a fine-looking s sophomore in 6-3 Mike Antonellis, completed 13 of 29 passes a year ago for 201 yards with four touchdowns and a single interception. Antonellis could be a much-needed backup for Lerner, spelling him as field general once the season gets going, if he can continue with his improvement.

In MacDonald and Buffington, the Lions also have their two top rushers from a year ago. Together, they picked up more yards on the ground than the rest of the team. MacDonald churned up the the gridiron for 285 yards in 70 carries for 4.1 yards a clip. Buffington gained 500 yards in 126 totes for 4.0 yards per carry.

Another 10th grader who could make the grade with the varsity is Arthur Walton, a halfback who offers a good deal of speed to the backfield.

"It was really pretty nice for us to be able to run two complete groups of teams in practice and not have a lot of people just standing around with nothing to do," noted the Lions' fifth-year coach. "In the past we've only had one full group able to work out with about 20 or so players just hanging around watching. But now we've got enough players to let two complete units work out at a time.

"This really looks like a fine group we've got this year," added Kojoyian. "Their attitude has been fine and they look like they're willing to work. We don't have the size we had last year with the exception of Smith, but we should be as fast as a year ago. We're really looking forward to this year. We can all sense it, and I think that once school gets back in session, a lot more players will be out for the team."

The Lions will travel to Framingham North for their first scrimmage Saturday morning at 10 a.m. They will then take a week off until Saturday, Sept. 8, when they host Foxboro in another 10 a.m. tilt.

Rev. A. Wilson Wood

Ohio evangelist to lead Fall Revival Sept. 16-21 at Myrtle Baptist Church

WEST NEWTON — A Fall Revival will be held at Myrtle Baptist Church, 21 Curve St., Sunday, Sept. 16, through Friday, Sept. 21. The guest evangelist (Monday through Friday) will be the Rev. A. Wilson Wood pastor of Bethany Baptist Church, Columbus, Ohio.

Rev. Robert L. Littlejohn, Jr., pastor of Myrtle Baptist Church, and the membership invite the community to come and share the messages the Reverend Wood will deliver.

Wood was born in Clinton, S.C., and attended Bluefield (W. Va.) State College, and Lynchburg (Va.) Seminary and College. He is president of the Baptist Pastors' Conference, Columbus, and general chairman of the City Wide Simultaneous Revival involving 43 Baptist churches. He is also assistant dean, Eastern Union District Association, and executive secretary, Ohio Baptist General Convention.

A member of the Ohio Council of Churches, Baptist Pastors' Conference, National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., and Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance Inc., the Reverend Wood is also active as the general church chairman, United Negro College Fund of Columbus.

Reverend Wood has been an evangelist and revivalist for the past 30 years. Among his many honors in a long ministry is a listing in the first edition of Who's Who in Black America and has been honored by Ohio Baptist General Convention (1976) for outstanding leadership in the local church and in Ohio.

He has been active in the capacity of Worshipful Master of the Hiram Abiff Lodge, spokesman for civil rights organizations and a member of the Mayor's Commission on Human Relations for the City of Columbus.

The Reverend Wood is married to the former Gertrude M. Burton of Mullens, W. Va. He is the father of Mrs. Verna M. Adams of Newton, director of Barbizon School of Modeling, Boston, and the grandfather of Chavonne and Renee Adams of Newton.

Sunday, Sept. 16, at the 7 p.m. service the Rev. Richard Wright, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, Worcester, will be the guest preacher. His choir and congregation will also be present.

Other churches, pastors and choirs have been invited to participate in the services throughout the week. The community is welcome to attend services each evening.

For further information, please call the church office at 332-5870 or 332-0810; or 964-4065.

Beth El school registration on

NEWTON CENTRE — Registrations are being accepted for Hebrew Studies at the Beth El Community Hebrew School, 561 Ward St.

Registration is open to nonmembers as well as members of the congregation. The curriculum, which follows that of the Bureau of Jewish Education, includes classes of kindergarten through Grade 6. An accredited faculty is headed by Mrs. Chana Shonfeld.

Scholarship arrangements can be made, and students are welcome from neighboring communities.

For further information call Monday through Thursday and Sunday mornings 9 a.m.-1 p.m. at 244-7233 or visit the office for an outline of school program.

Temple Beth Avodah sets up Institute for Adult Studies

OAK HILL — Temple Beth Avodah has taken a step forward in adult education with the establishment of an Institue of Adult Jewish Studies.

Rabbi Robert Miller and the board of directors have announced a monthly Friday evening series beginning in October in which three classes will be offered after services for six sessions. Each session will have a lecture or course, followed by a workshop.

In addition to the Torah class taught on Sunday mornings by the rabbi, a monthly Sunday morning family forum will take place for six months.

An expert in the field of family life will give a lecture and lead discussions in the following topics: living with elderly parents, coping with teenagers, midlife crisis, the empty-nest syndrome, when the college student returns home, how to handle intermarriage. Breakfast will be served at each session.

The education plan will include an innovative Hallah weekend when a prominent national figure will spend the weekend with the congregation, giving lectures and workshops and leading discusoions.

An addition to the full education program will be an adult bar-bat mitzvah course. Beginning in October, it will consist of two-hour weekly sessions. The first hour will be a review of beginning Hebrew, culminating in the ability to read a portion in the Torah for the bar-bat mitzvah service sometime in May or June. The second hour will cover history, philosophy, beliefs and customs.

Temple Beth Avodah welcomes calls from those interested in affiliating with this young, vital congregation. The office number is 527-0045.

Rothman to hold lectureship

NEWTON CENTRE — A resident lectureship, an accredited course in Judaica, has been endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society at Andover-Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, for the upcoming 1979-80 academic year. The lectureship will be held by Rabbi Murray I. Rothman of Temple Shalom, Newton.

The Jewish Chautauqua Society is the educational project of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods. Its aim, the fostering of improved interfaith relations, is accomplished, in part, through the endowment of courses in Judaica at universities throughout the United States.

The lectureship slated for Andover-Newton Theological School represents one of six granted to the state of Massachusetts this year.

The JCS also sponsors rabbinic visits to college campuses, donates books to college libraries, and distributes a film library in its effort to combat anti-Semitism through education.

Ordained at Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, Rabbi Rothman was awarded the Master of Hebrew Letters degree while in attendance. In 1974 he was awarded his alma mater's honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Affiliated with Temple Shalom since January of 1954, the rabbi previously served at Rodef Shalom, Pittsburgh, and served for two years as a Navy chaplain attached to the First Marine Division in Korea where he earned the Navy Commendation Medal.

A founding member of the Archdiocesan Committee of Catholics and Jews in Boston, he served two terms on the National Executive Board of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, was a member of its Mixed Marriage Committee, represented the CCAR in the National Board of Directors of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations,

N.H. town asks for disaster ruling

NEWMARKET, N.H. (UPI) — President Carter has been asked to declare this small seacoast mill town a disaster area in the wake of a vicious summer storm which caused more than $2 million in damages.

The brief storm, which packed winds up to 90 miles per hour, demolished four trailer homes, tore slate roofs off the library and factory buildings, ripped down power lines and uprooted century-old trees.

No serious injuries were reported.

As insurance adjustors poured into the town of 3,726 Tuesday to survey the damage, Sen. John Durkin and Rep. Norman D'Amours were drafing a letter to the White House, asking Carter to immediately declare the town a federal disaster area.

"We urge you to take into consideration the urgent needs of the people of Newmarket who have suffered such a great loss, so suddenly," they said.

A National Weather Service meteorologist who surveyed the scene concluded the 10-minute storm Monday night was not technically a tornado, as originally reported by some weather service observers.

"I would call it straight line wind damage," said Joe McCall. He estimated the winds were "in the neighborhood of 80 to 90 miles per hour."

Mini-Bike Track to Re-open

The Newton Recreation Department's three track mini-bike facility on Winchester Street, Newton Highlands is due to re-open on Saturday, September 8th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Mini-bike track is under the direction of Newton Police Safety Officer, Bob Braceland, and Recreation staff member Steve Mazzola. It is illegal to ride a mini-bike anywhere in Newton except at this track in Newton Highlands, which will reopen on September 8th. Any new registrants may register on this day.

Women's Softball

In the "B" Division, the Raiderettes, under the direction of Dianne Reddy, took the B Division Championship from C.J.'s, under Barry DeWire's direction, in a two out of three series. In the "A" Division, the Jesters, under the coaching of Narilyn Campbell and Laura Ross, took the championship over the Hustlers, coached by Nancy Bartley in the first two games of a three game series. Awards will be given at the Women's Twilight League Banquet, which will be held on Thursday, September 13th at Post 440. Tickets are still available until August 29th, cost is $7.50. Contact the Newton Recreation for more information.

Women's Basketball

Playoffs in the Women's Basketball League were held at Cabot park this week. In the first round Murphy's vs Yellow Cab and No Names vs Bob Hare's. Championship will be determined Thursday for City League finals.

Women's Flag Football

Newton women 16 and over interested in playing Flag Football on Monday and Wednesdays are invited to attend the first meeting which will be held at the Albemarle Fieldhouse September 10th at 7 p.m. Come ready to play in the clinics and game sessions. This Flag Football League is under the direction of Judy Dore. Games will start the end of September at the Albemarle site.

Women's Invitational Softball Tournament

The Women's Invitational Softball Tournament had a successful playoff with the Newton Raiderettes, for the first time, capturing the chmpionship from the Burlington All Stars, under the direction and pitching of Dianne Reddy. Consolation went to the Rookies, under the direction of Paula Ayes and Carol Stapleton. They won over the Why-not DeWire's. Thanks go to Nancy Sullivan, Frank Sampson, Ann Brady, Connie Cummings, Sandy McMillan and Peg Connolly for all their assistance and a special thanks goes to Jean Cole.

Suburban Swim Meet

Newton hosted, under the supervision of Tim Cotter, the A Class Regional Swim Meet, which consisted of 11 teams and over 500 swimmers at the Harry Gath Memorial Pool at Albemarle Playground last Saturday. Natick won the Swim Meet. Compliments go to the Newton staff, swimmers and parents in making this a successful, efficient meet.

Townsfolk reflect on brutal storm

NEWMARKET, N.H. (UPI) — What bothered Louis Goudreau the most were the trees. The factories could be rebuilt, the mobile homes replaced, the power lines restrung. But trees are a long time in the making.

"They've been here a lifetime," Goudreau, 58, said Tuesday as he cleared his rear yard of broken branches and twisted timber left behind by a savage thunderstorm that slammed into Newmarket with 90 mph winds.

"I can remember planting them with my father when I was five," Goudreau added wistfully as he surveyed the fallen white pines that littered his lawn.

Goudreau had just finished putting a new roof on his home. The thunderstorm, which struck without warning Monday night, hurled a branch through it and cracked his chimney.

"I went to church last Sunday and put $1 in the plate," Goudreau said. "Guess it wasn't enough."

Goudreau's 62-year-old brother and next-door neighbor, Robert, was pulling into his driveway when the storm struck.

"All I saw was black and branches flying all around," he said.

Robert recalled a similiar storm that unleashed its fury nearly a generation ago on this tiny mill town of 3,726.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

REALTOR® MULTIPLE LISTING SERVICE MLS™ REPORT

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Figures released by MLS committee of Greater Boston Real Estate Board, for 1977, reflect a 53% increase in number of Cooperative Sales. The average sale price on a home was $48,936 during 1977. The MLS committee hope to have the new computerized listing book, in full operation by Spring of this year. The brokers of Council I&M MLS group meet at a monthly breakfast meeting, to further promote the services of MLS. There are well over 90 offices from the 16 towns, involved. Speakers are invited to address the group, and listings are brought to the attention of attending members, that might offer some unusual features, as acreage, or waterfront properties, etc. All in all membership in MLS grew substantially during 77 and is looking foreard to a bigger and better one for 1978.

Woman may win runoff in bid for governor

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Veteran politicians Evelyn Gandy and William Winter, ending months on Mississippi's hot summer campaign trail, place their cases before the voters today in a Democratic runoff election for governor.

Miss Gandy, 58, the state's lieutenant governor, is making a bid to become Mississippi's first woman chief executive. Winter, 56, a Jackson attorney, is hoping to bounce back from a primary defeat in 1975.

Miss Gandy, with more than 30 years of public service, told supporters Monday, "I will provide strong, experienced leadership that our people can always trust — leadership based on honesty, integrity, and a proven 100 percent commitment to full-time public service."

Rocks on lawn are sore spot

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (UPI) — Kids who play on the front lawn at the Champagne Heights housing project find it rocky going. That's got the tenants angry.

The town Public Housing Authority's executive director had dozens of one-ton boulders deposited all over the front lawn at the low-income housing project in an effort to keep the tenants off.

George C. Hobson said he ordered the rocks dumped because children romped on the front lawn, ignoring a recreation area built for them behind the apartments, and tenants drove their cars on the grass instead of paved parking areas.

The project's 28 families are angry. They say the boulders are dangerous to children, unsafe because they block fire trucks from getting near the project, and are ugly and demoralizing.

"If that's the only way they can think of spending people's money, I don't think that's too smart," said Danny LaGasse, 15.

The tenants hired a lawyer and are threatening legal action against the managers of the federally financed project.

They have have written the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which paid for the project, but say their complaint has been ignored. All 28 families have signed a petition asking the housing authority to remove the boulders and "bring back our self-respect as tenants."

Hobson's choice isn't written in stone, he said. If the tenants promise to be more responsible, he said he'll consider removing the rocks.

School status up in air in R.I.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — School openings are touch-and-go next week in six Rhode Island communities because of unsettled teacher contracts and a union dispute involving bus drivers could disrupt classes in up to 14 others.

As usual, Labor Day weekend will be no holiday picnic for top state education officials. They'll be busy trying to iron out last-minute settlements to avert illegal strikes.

Schools in many districts are due to open Sept. 5.

"We're hopeful that they'll all be in the fold by starting time," Dr. Arthur R. Pontarelli, executive associate education commissioner, said Tuesday.

Joseph Thibeault, a state Education Department spokesman, said the most serious stalemate appeared to be in Portsmouth, where there was no contract movement. State officials were called in Tuesday to help break a negotiating deadlock in Portsmouth.

Other unsettled districts included Providence, Smithfield, South Kingstown, North Providence and Woonsocket. The six communities have a total of 40,013 students and 2,345 teachers.

There were four strikes a year ago — in Cranston, Pawtucket, Warwick and Westerly.

In Cumberland, meanwhile, teachers ratified a new one-year contract Tuesday providing salaries ranging between $10,600 and $19,100. A new Bristol contract awaits school committee ratification.

Thibeault said continued negotiations in East Providence won't affect the opening of city schools because the current contract doesn't expire until October.

Sherwin J. Kapstein, director of the National Education Association's Rhode Island division, said his group was "preparing for the worst but hoping for the best" in the districts where it represents teachers.

"As long as they're unsettled, there are difficulties. We are trying to work them out," Kapstein said.

He called the 1979 picture a "normal, difficult situation" — neither better nor worse than past years.

Laborers International Union Local 1033 has threatened to resume picketing in local districts if United Truck and Bus Co., doesn't agree to a new election for possible union representation of its drivers.

The firm provides contracted bus service in 14 Rhode Island communities. A meeting on the matter with state officials and school superintendents was set for today.

The National Labor Relations Board this month threw out an earlier election and ordered a new one.

On the college front, faculty contracts remain unsettled at the University of Rhode Island, Rhode Island Junior College and Bryant College. Clerks and technical employees are seeking a new contract at Roger Williams College.

Bryant College President William O'Hara announced Tuesday that the start of the fall semester will be delayed until a new contract is reached with the faculty.

Kay hits Chrysler cry for U.S. aid

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Cleveland lawyer Richard Kay, out to capture one or two delegates in New Hampshire's Democratic primary, has chided Chrysler Corp. for asking for government aid.

"When the average American gets into trouble, he takes advantage of the bankruptcy laws," Kay said Tuesday. "In many cases, businesses file under the bankruptcy law and get back a modest financial fee."

"The same opportunity is available to Chrysler and that is the way the should go, rather than with their hand out to federal government," Kay said.

At a news conference Kay, the lawyer who defended Lt. William Calley, said the Palestine Liberation Organization should not be allowed to represent the Palestinians out of hand. He said an election should be held as soon as possible to elect Palestinian leaders.

"These duly elected representatives could then meet and elect an executive committee and a chairman who could enter into meaningful negotiations with any and all parties to try to solve the Palestinian problem," the Cleveland lawyer said.

The Cleveland Democrat said he doesn't expect to win New Hampshire's Democratic primary Feb. 26, but he is bent on picking up "one or two" delegates to the national convention.

Travel

Visitors' cruise to face of massive glaciers in Glacier Bay National Monument.

Rugged, Majestic Alaska

Alaska, a frontier on the Pacific Ocean, offers excitement, adventure and rugged grandeur. This "air conditioned land" is the 49th state and the largest.

This is a land of friendly people, living life at a relaxed pace. Visitors are extended the warmest of welcomes. An air of the past is noticeable in the people and in the land which they inhabit.

Narrow and deep inlets of the sea between cliffs or steep slopes are called fjords. These extend far inland among the peaks along Alaska's South East coast. This is a rugged land of mountains which thrust upwards from the surf. Glaciers of a blue-green hue float down from mountain ice fields to reach the sea. Waves crash against the advancing ice, breaking off floating cliffs of ice.

Indian villages and fishing towns dot the coastlines. Travelers are welcomed as guests. The natives of this land enjoy treating their guests to salmon baked on the beach.

Due to its milder winters, South East Alaska is known to Alaskans as the banana belt. Mt. McKinley, reaching an elevation of 20,270 ft., stands erect behind the striking Alaska mountain range.

This is a land of hot summers and cold winters where 60 degrees below zero is not an uncommon temperature. This is Seward's ice box, a land thought to be useless, until gold was discovered here. There is also the modern city of Fairbanks, fascinating wilderness posts and a land rich in timber.

The tundra is located in the heart of Alaska. This is the deep freeze world of the Artic. Between May 11, and August 2nd, daylight brightens Alaska's northernmost landscape around the clock. During this period the sun never sets in Point Barrow, which is situated at the top of the world.

Flowers bloom in Alaska during the month of June. At this time summer is at its peak with temperatures at their warmest. During this span rain is nearly non-existant. From the first of May through August, temperatures vary only slightly.

Comfortable daytime hours with a radiance of color as foliage begins to turn, makes September the best autumn month to travel to this wonderland.

Arrangements for travel in Alaska are best arranged by professional travel agents. When you're planning a vacation, your travel agent will fill you in with a wealth of information: about hotels, restaurants, climate, clothes, sightseeing, shopping, entertainment, and answer any questions that might crop up. Chances are you'll be traveling to unfamiliar territory, and you'll have the help of an expert.

A popular way to explore Alaska is on board a ship. Cruise the famed inside passage between Vancouver and Skagway. Continue to Vancouver Island through the Straight of Georgia, Seymour Narrows and Johnston Strait. The rustic landscape seems to swallow up the ship as it passes across Queen Charlotte Sound.

Stroll through the narrow, hilly streets of Juneau, Alaska's capital city. Fifteen minutes north of town is the overwhelming Mendenhall Glacier. In Juneau explore the Alaska State Museum and the colorful Red Dog Saloon.

Pass through Lynn Canal just above Juneau at the northern terminus of Skagway. Skagway is an authentic, historical town, born during the days of the Gold Rush. This town retains the atmosphere of those blithe days.

A tour of Skagway will take you to beautiful Reid Falls. Investigate the Trail of '98 Museum and the Gold Rush Cemetery where the graves of Villainous Sopay Smith and "good guy" Frank Reid are still seen.

Follow on the famed "Trail of '98" en route from Skagway to Whitehorse, Alaska. Famous log skyscrapers and an old log church built in 1900 still stand in Whitehorse. Visit Whitehorse Power dam and picturesque Lake Schwatka. Relive the color and excitement of those wonderful days at Miles Canyon by boarding the steel hulled M.V. Schwatka for a spectacular three hour conducted cruise along the Yukon River. The cruise will pass Miles Canyon, past the site of old Canyon City and by the old wooden railroad right-of-way.

Alaska is a land of hospitality in the lusty flavor of the past. Nowhere is "welcome" more warmly extended. E.S.

Barney Frank to speak at meeting of Mishkan Tefila Forum Sept. 13

CHESTNUT HILL — Mishkan Tefila Forum Presidents Harvey and Myrna Alford announce Forum, the synagogue's couples' club, will hold its opening dinner meeting Thursday, Sept. 13, in the synagogue's Coppelman-Clarke Social Hall at 7 p.m. There will be a cocktail hour at 6 p.m., followed by a full-course dinner.

Barney Frank, state representative from the Back Bay, will be the main speaker of the evening. Since his election to the House of Representatives in 1973, Barney Frank has been one of the most colorful and controversial political figures in Massachusetts. He will speak on the subject of state spending and how to cut it in a human fashion.

The meeting is open to all. For paid-up Forum members there will be a special reduced rate of $4 per person. For non-Forum members the cost will be $8 per person.

For further information about membership or the opening meeting call Bob and Roberta Brener, the chairpersons of this event, at 969-7283, or Mitchell and Maxine Selig (244-2422) or Robin and Nathan Birnbaun (332-0220) for reservations. Reservations should be made early.

NCP opens 24th season, invites all to kickoff gala

HIGHLANDS — The Newton Country Players invite all theater enthusiasts in the Newton community to join them as their guests at their 14th annual "kickoff" social Sunday, Sept. 9, from 7:30 to 10 p.m., at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, 54 Lincoln St.

The open-house gala will raise the curtain on the Country Players' 24th season of community theater activity.

Chaired by Linda Myers of Newton Centre, the annual funfest will be highlighted by the presentation of a scene from a well-known nostalgic comedy and features Jane Yoffe of Newton Centre and Ron Brinn of Cambridge. The playlet is directed by Danny Kosow of Chestnut Hill. In addition, Marcia Massimo of Waban will present vocal selections of Jacques Brel and Edith Piaf favorites. She will be accompanied on piano by Don Boronson of Needham.

Assisting on the committee are Cookie Kates, Donna Linderman, Jennifer McDavey, Susan Nussbaum, Neil Santis, Dotann Schaut and Betty Schuft.

Prospective members, recent inductees, and seasoned troupers will receive a complete briefing on the fall opener, the Broadway musical comedy "Sweet Charity," by Players' director Liz Bruce of Waltham, and will be introduced to others on the production staff, including the musical director and choreographer.

A complete agenda of the forthcoming year's activities will be announced by Players' president John Deming of Newton Highlands, and refreshments and a social hour will conclude the evening's activities. Annual dues payment may be made at this time.

The church can be reached by MBTA by taking the Green Line to Newton Highlands station. The church is located one block down Lincoln Street. For more information call 969-9084 or 969-1867.

After Labor Day, Cape Cod returns to the natives. All the New Yorkers and other fringe groups go back south for the winter, and the souvenir and T-shirt merchants ("I found it in P'Town") pack up their wares and add up their bank balances. Calm is restored. The seaside towns return to the serenity that made them so popular to begin with, first with artists, then with artistic hangers-on and aesthetic well-wishers, then with tourists. No doubt about it, fall is the time to visit the Cape at its best. This year in Provincetown and South Truro and Wellfleet, said best is given extra panache by the Fall Arts Festival, September 21 through 23, under the aegis of the Lower Cape Arts and Humanities Council.

Three weeks away, the Fall Arts Festival is worth planning a long weekend around. It has a number of unusual features, chief among them exhibits of prints and drawings by abstract-expressionists Robert Motherwell (at the Long Point Gallery in Provincetown) and Jack Tworkov (at the Hudson D Walker Gallery at the Provincetown Fine Arts Work Center). Both major figures in the art world, Motherwell and Tworkov rarely show locally. Also on tap: a retrospective view of works and memorabilia of Edward Hopper (1892–1967), whose paintings of American land- and cityscapes have enormous appeal for their uncompromising objectivity. Hopper moved to South Truro in 1930 to paint in the luminous, islandlike light of the Cape. The Hopper Show will be at the Provincetown Art Association.

And that, as they say, ain't all. Dozens of local artists — in all media — will open their studios for public visits during the three days of the festival. This is a first for the Cape, a rare chance to see art and artists in creative situ. While most Lower Cape artists are not exactly household words, many have attained more than a measure of critical and professional recognition in fields where commercial success is rarely the surest indication of quality.

Galleries from Provincetown to Wellfleet will be aglow with works of local artists, and there will be music, too, and symposia and theatre and dance, as the Lower Cape has its own "harvest home," celebrating its special product: Art. The foresighted connoisseur can get a ticket, studio maps, and full schedule information by sending $5 to the Fall Arts Festival, in care of the Lower Cape Arts and Humanities, Box 229, Provincetown, MA 02657. More details in the listings closer to the date.

One of our smart-aleck correspondents wrote in to say, "You guys are nuts. I'm getting out my electric blanket and looking for my socks and you're running a story on keeping cool in the dog days. What are you going to do in December? Fry eggs on the sidewalk?"

We read no further, but turned out attention to the weather. The dog days story (METROGUIDE, August 23) was planned a few weeks ago when the heat was palpable and any effort more strenuous than blinking seemed too bitter to contemplate. Now, with the temp in the mid-seventies, life is indeed more liveable, but you know what they say about the weather in New England: If you don't like it, wait a few minutes. With oft-sultry September stretching ahead, we're anticipating more steam heat. And we're looking for Canadian white owls. According to an old-timer neighbor, that's a sign that the coming winter will be a real humdinger.

What's Doing at Summer's End

Shaun Cassidy da do ron rons at Tanglewood in Lenox on Friday.

The Week

—free

All good things do have to come to an end, and so it goes with the summer. Labor Day is the unofficial end of summer: schools start, vacations end, and the bliss of relaxed, carefree times comes to an abrupt halt. It's probably not as bad as all that, but here's our Labor Day Week Calendar to help make the last days of summer a bit more enjoyable.

Tanglewood Pop

Shaun Cassidy, the 20-year-old idol of teens everywhere whose memorable lyrics from Da Do Ron Ron still reverberate through the ears of the younger generation, performs at the music shed at Tanglewood in Lenox this evening at 7. Tickets cost $8.50 and $9.50, with lawn seats available for $5.50. Tomorrow evening at 7, jazz pianist Keith Jarrett takes to the keyboard, also in the shed. Tickets cost $8.50 and $9.50, and lawn seats are still $5.50. For information on any or both of these performances call (413) 637-1940.

1-sat

Woof

The South Shore Kennel Club sponsors an annual dog show featuring more than 100 breeds of pedigreed dogs judged in breed, group, and best-in-show competition. The show is on today from 8 am to 8 pm at the Hingham High School Athletic Field, in Hingham. Admission is $1; kids and elders pay 50 cents, of which a part is donated to the Standish Humane Society and the Hingham High School Scholarship Fund. For additional information call 822-4616, 834-4301, or 545-1229.

Laborious Music

The August Acres Labor Day Music Festival, with such musical luminaries as Arlo Guthrie, Country Joe and the Fish, Jonathan Edwards, Richie Havens, and Taj Mahal, begins at noon today at the August Acres Farm in Claremont, New Hampshire. Tickets cost $12.50 in advance, $15 the day of the show. Advance tickets can be had at Ticketron, Strawberries, Out-of-Town, and Concert Charge (426-8181). For all the particulars call (603) 863-1225.

Puppets Redux

The Puppet Showplace reopens after its summer respite with performances of Little Red Riding Hood and Billy Goat Gruff today and tomorrow at 1 and 3 pm. The cost is $2 per person, and the location is 30 Station Street in Brookline Village. Call 731-6400 for more information.

Checkmate

The New England Open Chess Championships, with seven sections ranging from master to novice, are held at the Sheraton Boxborough Inn in Boxborough today through Monday. Entry fees vary with categories. Call 862-3799 for further information.

Airing the White Mountains

WGBH radio (89.7 FM) presents a special Labor Day Weekend broadcast with highlights from The White Mountains Festival beginning tonight at 9. The program features the world premiere of Gunther Schuller's Trumpet Concerto, along with guitarist David Bromberg and his group and bluesman Taj Mahal. For details call 492-2777, or tune in 'GBH.

Labor Day

Labor Day, originally tied to the militancy of the 19th century Labor movement, has now become a holiday dear to both skilled and unskilled workers across America. The idea was the brainchild of the founder of the Knights of Labor, Peter J McGuire, back in 1882 when 10,000 laborers celebrated by parading on New York's Union Square, followed by picnics, bands, and fireworks. Over the years the idea gained acceptance, and today no one minds getting the first Monday in September off from work. By the way, there is no real significance to the holiday being the first Monday in September other than the fact that Labor Day falls nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving.

Roller Ski Tour

A roller ski tour of Newton, leaving Newton City Hall (1000 Commonwealth Avenue) at 9:30 this morning, should get cross-country skiers primed for the upcoming season. The course one takes is determined by the interests (and stamina) of the roller ski tourists. This is considered a joint workout, not a race, so don't expect prizes. Do expect aching muscles and a satisfied grin when it's all over. The tour is sponsored by the Cambridge Sports Union. Call 969-8872 for more information.

Cape Ann Run Around

A 25-kilometer (15.5-mile) run around the perimeter of Cape Ann gets underway today at 10 am at the O'Malley School in Gloucester. Men's and women's competition is in six age categories. The race is sponsored by the Natural Light Beer people and sanctioned by the NEAAU and Road Runner's Club of America (beep-beep). The entry fee is $3. For further information call 426-4300.

Labor Day Parade

What would Labor Day be without a parade? We shudder to think. Thank goodness for the one scheduled to begin at noon on Main Street in Marlboro, when numerous bands, floats, and drum corps step off in commemoration of the advances the Labor movement has made throughout the years. The parade is followed by a family picnic at Ward Park from 2 to 9 pm. Rumor has it that The Burger King plus a special magic show will be in attendance at the picnic from 4 till 7 pm. Also at the picnic, pony rides, a display of vans, and a band concert at 6:30 pm. At 9 pm fireworks end the day (and unofficially, the summer) on Fairmont Hill. It's all free. Call 481-8104 or 481-8128 for additional information.

Roy Clark

Roy Clark, the master of country music, strums his way to the South Shore Music Circus, off Route 3A in Cohasset, tonight through September 5. Show times are at 8 nightly, with a 3 pm matinee today and a 2 pm show on Wednesday. Tickets range from $10 to $12 and can be reserved by calling 383-1400.

Jonathan Edwards performs at ArtiCulture's finale at Hoyt Field in Cambridge, on Thursday.

Martial Music

The United States Army Band (Pershing's Own) and the United States Army Herald Trumpets present a musical tribute to the late Boston Pops maestro, Arthur Fiedler. The concert is at the Hatch Memorial Shell on the banks of the Charles River in Boston at 8:30 pm. It's all free. For additional information call 727-5215.

4-tues

Side by Side By Sondheim

The first musical of the new theatre season, Side By Side By Sondheim, starring Arlene Francis and Joe Masiell, previews tonight and tomorrow night at 8 at the Charles Playhouse, 76 Warrenton Street, in Boston. The show is a celebration of American composer Stephen Sondheim, known as the "master lyricist of American popular music." The show begins its regular run on September 6 at 7:30 pm. The regular schedule is Tuesday through Friday, when the curtain goes up at 8 pm; Saturdays at 6 and 9:30 pm; Sundays at 3 pm; and matinees on Wednesdays at 2:30. Tickets range from $8.50 to $12.50 and are available at the box office (426-6912) and can be charged by calling 542-3200.

Kenny Burrell

Kenny Burrell, considered — by those who know — one of the best jazz guitarists around, performs at Lulu White, 3 Appleton Street, Boston, tonight through September 7. Sets start at 9:30 nightly and the cover charge is $5. Call 423-3652 for more details.

The Charlie Daniels Band holds forth at the Cape Cod Coliseum in South Yarmouth, on Sunday.

Wild Blue Yonder

The Thunderbirds, the United States Air Force's aerial demonstration team, demonstrate their airborne skills at Hanscom Air Force Base, exit 44 off Route 128 in Lexington. Army Rangers also demonstrate how to get out of a hovering helicopter using ropes; parachutists perform aerial acrobatics; and Air Force sentry dogs demonstrate how they keep interlopers away from Air Force installations. You can also see Air Force jets on the grounds and listen to live music. It's all free and starts at 1 pm. For information call 861-5322. And do bring a camera, nothing's classified.

Jazzboat

The jazzboat takes its final cruises of the season with the New Black Eagle Jazz Band and the Yankee Rhythm Kings on board tonight at 7:30 and 9:30 pm. The boat leaves from Boston's Long Wharf, State Street and Atlantic Avenue, and the cost is $5.75 for one, or $9.50 for both sailings. For details on the floating New Orleans-style jazz concerts, call 876-8742.

Food

The Last Cookout

By Judith Barrett

The last barbecue of summer, an annual Labor Day feast with friends, marks the end of warm weather, fresh summer foods, and outdoor dining. It's a ritual that calls for special eats and celebration.

Inflation being what it is, the days of thick sirloins for every guest are gone. But a lot less than prime beef can make for sumptuous meals. In fact, many delicious and easy alternatives to the conventional barbecue can make an occasion out of a cookout, pleasing both palate and purse.

The Sausage Special

Who would think that hot dogs, that standby for kids, could be elegant? An extensive selection is available at most neighborhood markets. A big mix of sausages served with an array of imported mustards, rye bread, and fresh corn on the cob is surprisingly splendid.

Try franks, bratwurst, knockwurst, and Italian hot and sweet sausages. For a variety, slice Polish kielbasa and spiced linguica.

Chick- and Fish-Kebabs

Since lamb and beef are so costly, shish-kebab lovers can find satisfaction in a substitute kebab. Boned pieces of chicken marinated in a mixture of fresh lemon juice, olive oil, and fresh-pressed garlic can be skewered with cuts from a yellow onion and whole mushrooms. Substitute vermouth for lemon juice for a different, Frenchified taste.

Chunks of monktail, also known as lotte and anglerfish, can be doused with salt and lemon juice and similarly skewered. This low-profile fish feeds on lobster and tastes a lot like lobster tail itself. It's one of the few fillets that can survive the indelicacies of the grill and come out tasting fantastic.

Don't Spare the Ribs

The price of pork has not skyrocketed recently. And racks of ribs, one of the world's true delights, can be bathed in any tangy barbecue sauce and serve hungry hordes for a reasonable sum. Ribs are properly accompanied by cole slaw — and plenty of paper napkins.

Even if you've been barbecuing all summer, the last bash should be perfect. No charred pieces of chicken. No dried-out hamburgers and no burned-up baked potatoes left in the coals too long.

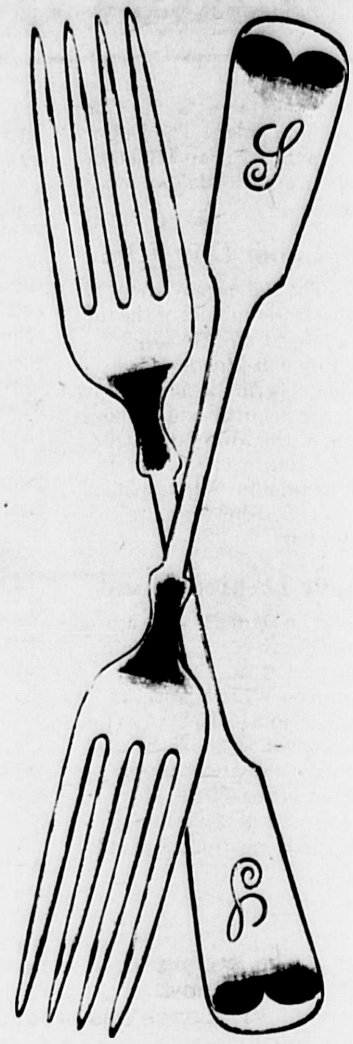

Some barbecue basics should ensure a successful last summer event.

The Fire

Charcoal briquettes from hardwood are the most efficient fuel. Build them into a pyramid before you start the fire. Allow the charcoal to turn ash-white, and space the pieces out an inch apart. The closer together the hotter the cooking coals will be.

Tools

A basting brush, a two-pronged fork, a pair of tongs, and a spatula are the essentials. All should have sufficiently long handles. Inexpensive sets of tools are available, but beware of flimsy ones: The forks bend, and the tongs slip on the weight of an ear of corn.

Easy alternatives to the conventional barbecue can make an occasion out of a cookout.

Skewers for shish kebabs are helpful but not essential if you have a two-sided handgrill that can accommodate all the meat and vegetables.

Keep a spray bottle nearby for flare-ups. Long-armed pot mitts are also helpful.

Cooking

For the best results use fat-trimmed meats. At the start, keep the meat or fish as far away from the coals as possible. Once the food begins to cook, move the grill closer to the flame to brown the outside.

Hot dogs, sausages, fish, hamburgers, and steaks need to be turned only once. Shish kebabs, racks of ribs, or other foods that require basting should be turned frequently and lubricated as often as possible.

Baked potatoes should be placed around the edges of the grill; don't wrap them in foil, or you'll get a steamed potato instead of a baked one. Corn on the cob, on the other hand, should be cleaned of the husk, wrapped in foil, and put under or around the hot coals.

No precise formula or timetable ensures perfect outdoor cooking. Cooking times depend on how hot the coals are and how close the food is to the fire. The best way to prevent overcooked or burned meat is to cook slowly, as far from the fire as possible. You can use a meat thermometer, but technological kitchen gadgets take the fun out of outdoor cooking.

And fun, after all, is what outdoor cooking is all about. With a minimum of planning and a modicum of ingenuity, you can say goodbye to summer with maximum pleasure. □

— EVEN VANDALISM FROM MARKING PENS!

Not a wax! Not a polish! A miracle of modern chemistry!

You simply wipe it on to "wrap" your car in a protective glass-smooth surface! Just as acrylic finishes revolutionized the paint industry . . . just as epoxy adhesives made ordinary glues obsolete overnight . . . now a breakthrough in chemical science has produced an incredibly hard, super glossy, non-stick "polymer glass" sealant that can "glass in your car's showroom shine" virtually for its lifetime!

The Famous "Shock Test" Dealers Use

Dealers who have been charging an arm and a leg for this fabulous treatment have a standard sales pitch. They wipe a bit of this amazing formula on your car and then, while you're watching, deface it with a marking pen. Almost before you can scream in protest, they simply wipe it clean again! And while you're still speechless, they sell you a complete "glassing" for anywhere from $85 to $200 — whatever they think they can get!

The Secret is Simple — The Magic is in the Product

Glasscote's polymer glass formula literally fuses itself to the finish of your car by "molecular bonding". And it contains a formulation similar to that used to make those "non-stick" frying pans, so it's so glossy smooth that practically nothing will stick to it! Even bird droppings and crushed insects simply slide off with the touch of a damp cloth.

It takes less than 60 minutes to Glasscote your car

Now you can get the identical protection for your car with Glasscote, and all you need do is all the dealer does — wipe it on, let it dry, and wipe it off! So why pay somebody $85-$200 an hour to do it for you? Why not buy Glasscote direct-by-mail for only $5.98 — enough for three years treatment for a small car — more than enough to Glasscote even the biggest Mercedes, Rolls, or Cadillac for 12 full months! Simply wipe it on once a year and forget about all that waxing, polishing, and buffing forever! A simple soap and water washing or a wipe with a damp cloth restores the gloss!

Even if your used car is already dingy looking from oxidation, Glasscote helps remove it and restore a brighter color and more glossy shine.

Once you seal your car in Glasscote, its finish and chrome is immune to the worst conditions nature or man can devise! You're protected against:

- . . . oxidation that can fade or change paint color
- . . . corrosive smog, acid precipitation, industrial pollution, oily airborne soot
- . . . road tar stains and smudges
- . . . sticky tree sap, crushed insects, bird droppings
- . . . salt sea air or road salt splashes that can pit, corrode and destroy chrome.

Save Gasoline — Add Resale Value to your Car

Experts say the smoother your car's finish, the less wind resistance it has, which means it can go farther on a gallon of fuel. And when you come to sell your car, you know what a difference appearance makes. A car with "showroom gloss" three, four, or five years old is bound to bring hundreds of dollars more than the same car with dingy, oxidized finish. So release yourself forever from the bondage of constant waxing and polishing, and insure yourself of top dollar on your trade in years from now! Mail coupon now!

Quebec: La Belle Province

By Stan Bicknell

Consider for a moment that the province of Quebec is one-sixth the size of the entire United States and you begin to see the problem. From the border to "land's end" up beyond the Arctic Circle stretch some 1600 miles of unmapped, forbidding country. The northern coast is accessible only by seaplane and then only when the ice is out.

So never say you will "do" Quebec as you might one of the New England states. Quebec is an entity whose potential can only be guessed at. Its future is still to come.

Yet Quebec province is one of the most exciting places in North America to visit these days largely because of this potential. The heady doctrine of "separatism" is really the Quebecoise way of saying that they want to determine that future themselves. Few people visit a region because of its politics; still, anyone who has his or her antennae up will sense the excitement, particularly in Montreal and Quebec City.

Always a city of great charm and vivacity, Montreal's new self-awareness is reflected in its attitudes towards visitors. Tourism has long been the largest industry in the province and the powers that be have no intention of changing that. Yet the Quebecoise no longer cater to the tourist with deference or play the quaint rustics. For instance, signs are not automatically bilingual these days. You will have to employ some French — easy enough to do with the help of a good guidebook — to get around. The people you meet in stores and restaurants might even decide they want to do business in French, which will require effort on your part.

This is no ordinary city. Montreal has more restaurants — 5000 of them — than either New York or San Francisco. Dining out is raised to an art form here. With all the emigres from Europe, Asia, and the Caribean, you will find, in addition to classic French cooking, Greek, Slavic, Pakistani, and West Indian fare. Restaurants fall into all price ranges. Chez Bardet on Henri Bourassa East can easily cost $200 for four people, while in any of the hundreds of small family restaurants with their half-dozen tables, you can treat yourself superbly for $8 a person.

Everything in Montreal is concentrated within walking distance or a short metro ride. You can wander through the miles of underground shopping centers and visit boutiques like Givenchy and Pierre Cardin. Or you can just sit at one of the terrace cafés like the one at the Ritz, which has a little pool alive with ducks. Here, under yellow-and-white striped awnings, you can sit and let the rest of the world pass by.

"Vieux Montreal," the old quarter along the riverfront, is a restored 17th-century enclave of gray limestone buildings where you can browse through antique shops, art galleries, stare in the windows of theatrical costumers, or watch the students loll about Place Jacques Cartier.

At night there are dozens of discos on Stanley and Peel Streets. Better still are the French "café-concerts," which you will find only in a French-speaking country. Quebec has a whole music and recording industry built on native-born singers like Gilles Vigneault and Ginette Reno. They sing of those traditional French concerns — love, heartbreak, nostalgia and, not incidentally, politics.

And in case your're planning a trip to Montreal in September, keep in mind the Canadian Grand Prix auto race set for September 28 through 30 at the Ile Notre-Dame race track. Gilles Villeneuve will attempt to hold onto the first-place title he won at last year's race. Tickets to the race range from $2 up to $65 and can be ordered by writing to: Canadian Grand Prix Office, PO Box 418, Place Bonaventure, Montreal, Canada H5A 1B8.

Quebec City, 160 miles to the northeast, sits like a great land-bound Gibraltar hovering over the Plains of Abraham. Here, even more than in Montreal, you'll get the true flavor of historic Quebec. Quebec City has the only walled fortress remaining in North America. Students of American history will recall that General Wolfe scaled the cliffs of the city and surprised General Montcalm, with the result that French influence in North America was diminished forever.

Like Montreal, this is a pedestrian's city. In contrast to Montreal, the cuisine is neither so varied nor so cosmopolitan. But Quebec provincial cooking is an undiscovered joy. Try habitant pea soup, made with yellow split peas and served with crusty loaves of French bread, or that famous meat pie, tortière.

One excursion worth a day's trip from Montreal is a jaunt over to Ottawa, 110 miles west, in the province of Ontario. Even though it's the capital of Canada, Ottawa is a sleepy little town. And Ottawa is English to the core. There are tours through Parliament and the opportunity to watch the legislative goings-on — often quite boisterous and unruly. There is also the changing of the guard, during which ceremonial troops in scarlet tunics and black beefeaters parade slowly onto the grassy mall in an elegant imitation of the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace. It's almost like being transported to London.

Montreal is 350 miles from Boston by way of Interstates 93 and 89. Although it's a seven- to eight-hour drive, the countryside through New Hampshire, Vermont, and southern Quebec is so lovely that getting there is more a pleasure than a chore. □

Susan B. Anthony Portrait and Life Highlights in Steel Engraving technique

On July 2, 1979, the United States Treasury Department will release, through the Federal Reserve Banks, the new Susan B. Anthony Dollar coin. This new coin represents a unique and historic departure from previous U.S. coinage.

1. It is the first change in the size of our Dollar coins since 1794, and
2. It is the first time an American woman has ever been depicted on a U.S. coin.

The face of the coin pays tribute to Susan B. Anthony, one of the first to champion Women's Rights. The reverse features our National Bird, the great Eagle, landing on the moon with the earth in the background.

This Official First Day of Issue Folio of the Susan B. Anthony coin is being exclusively offered by The Westport Mint. We have made arrangements to acquire limited numbers of the first issue of these unique Susan B. Anthony Dollar coins from all three U.S. Mints — Philadelphia, San Francisco and Denver. The U.S. Postal Service, Washington, D.C., will hand stamp each folio with a special hand cancellation dated July 2, 1979, which will forever attest to the coin's value as a First Day of Issue of a United States coinage.

Each folio is delivered in a attractive, protective album cover which carries a portrait of Susan B. Anthony, and the biographical highlights of her life and accomplishments. (illustrated below) Each first Day of Issue coin is affixed to the folio so that the beauty of both sides of each coin can be viewed and appreciated throughout time.

LIMITED OFFER/RESERVATION PROCEDURE

ACT NOW! To be sure of obtaining one of these significant and historic folios — mail the reservation form, along with your remittance of $15 plus $1 postage and handling for each complete set ordered. If you prefer, a single coin may be ordered, similarly mounted, in your choice of mint mark at only $5.50 per coin plus 50¢ postage and handling. Orders will be handled on a first-come, first-served basis. Please note: this may be the only time in your life that you will have the opportunity to acquire an Official First Day of Issue Folio of United States Coinage! So please act promptly. In order to insure that these unique folios are fairly distributed to a wide number of collectors, there is an order limit of three complete sets or three of any one mint mark. Mail reservation form today.

This handsome album cover bearing a portrait and biography of Susan B. Anthony protects each folio!

If you prefer, single coins similarly mounted as illustrated, may be ordered with your choice of S, P, or D mint mark!

HUB

Benihana-201 Stuart St, Boston, 542-1166. Japanese food cooked at the table by knife-wielding chefs. Hibachi steaks and chicken. Full bar, moderately expensive. Hours: Daily, noon-2 pm and 5:30-10:30 pm; Sun 4:30-9 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The Food Experience-At the Corner Washington and Winter Sts, Boston. Pachita's, Mike's, Clam Up, The Boston Oyster, The Beef Bowl, Boston Ice Cream, Regina's, and the Brown Derby, all under one roof, mean a convenient assortment of practically anything you are hungry for. There's room to sit down, and some are licensed for beer and wine. Hours: Daily 9:30 am-8:30 pm.

Marliave Restaurant-10 Bosworth St, Boston, 423-6340. Italian food like veal parmigiana and pasta specialties, all at eminently reasonable prices. Full bar. Hours: Daily except Sun, 11 am-10 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Nadia's Eastern Star-280 Shawmut Ave, Boston, 338-8091. Family-style Middle Eastern food, by Nadia's family, for yours: safsouf, hummous, shish kebab, kibbe. No bar, moderate prices. Hours: 5 pm-1 am, Sun-Thurs, until 2 am Fri and Sat. No credit cards.

Regina's-11½ Thatcher St, Boston, 227-0765. Pizza, pizza, pizza. Licensed for beer and wine. Hours: Mon-Sat 11 am-midnight; Sun 3 pm-midnight. No credit cards.

Seaside Restaurant and Bar-188 Faneuil Hall Marketplace, Boston, 742-8728. Intimate dining in a contemporary ambiance. Specialties include fresh seafoods, salads, sandwiches, prime sirloin, lobster, homemade desserts, choice wines. International bar on two levels. Popular and correspondingly crowded, so a reservation is a good idea. Full bar. Hours: 11-2 am, daily. AE, MC, House charge.

NORTH

Captain Courageous-25 Rogers St, Gloucester, 283-0007. Eat fish, while you look out across the boats they arrived in. Also steaks and chops. Fully licensed. Winter hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-9 pm; Fri-Sat, until 10 pm. Reservations are accepted. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

By Don Rubin

What if dictionaries were arranged by wûrd instead of by word, by pronunciation instead of by spelling? You don't suppose people would get kənfyo͞ozed?

Each of the large words at the right has been reproduced in the style most frequently used by dictionaries in their phonetic guides. We'd like their equivalents, in plain English, on the lines provided.

Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through November 22 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Thanksgiving Lottery and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the November 29 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE puzzle desk, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Answers To Puzzle #92

Face to Face

One-third of the respondents to this puzzle were correct. A nice job, folks. Explaining the solution is not so easy, so we're resorting to a diagram to graphically explain things.

The first ten winners are: Paula Norton, Marshfield; Connie Varoudakis, Danvers; Jess Laracy, Braintree; David Schafer, Braintree; M Mooers, W Newton; Janis Sullivan, Malden; Dave Phillipo, Marlboro; Merle Schlesinger, Newton Highlands; Ann Stoyle, Braintree; Natalie and Richard Butcher, Salem.

The winner of Boston. Or Bust., the special Boston issue puzzle we ran back on June 21, will be announced in next week's METROGUIDE. Remember, the prize is a night for two at the Parker House plus dinner for two at the Last Hurrah.

TEMPORARY

ACCOUNTANTS

As specialists in Accounting personnel, we usually have several temporary openings available. Assignments can be either short or long term, offer excellent rates and also offer diverse and challenging work in the areas of tax, credit, cost budgets and general accounting.

BOOKKEEPERS

Between jobs? Looking for temporary assignments? Put your knowledge to work! We usually need experienced Full-charge & Asst. Bookkeepers for assignments in and around Boston lasting a week, a month or more. We specialize in Accountants and Bookkeepers exclusively.
